The 59-year-old director of the Canadian Universities Foundation says extinguishitulicus, no matter how small, have the nucleus of a strong faculty and administration and the traditions that no amount of money can give a new school overnight.

In an interview he recalled a conversation between two U.S. professors. The head of a new college, dogged by the enormity of his school's birth pains, optimistically asked Harvard's president what it would take to make a second Harvard. "Two hundred years," was the reply.

SUPPORTS OLDER SCHOOLS

Dr. H. J. Somers, president of St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, N.S., since 1954, believes existing small universities should be developed instead of establishing new ones. Dr. Somers, 59, shown in this photo by Gaby of Montreal, is also director of the Canadian Universities Foundation. — (CP Photo).

FEARS SPECIALIZATION

The role of small colleges is a favorite speech topic for Dr. Somers, a native of nearby Sylvan Valley who has been associated with St. F.X. almost continuously since his high school days. Now a consultant, he was appointed president of the Roman Catholic university in 1954.

Founded in 1853, St. Francis Xavier remains a relatively small university with an enrolment of just under 1,000. But this hasn't prevented it from building an international reputation, particularly for its work in studying and fostering the co-operative movement.

Dr. Somers' wife he feels the main task of small colleges is to give their students a broad general education.

He says he isn't opposed to specialization as such but rather "to that type of specialization which confines education to a small area of knowledge, before the student has grasped the fundamentals that will give breadth to his mind as well as depth to his particular specialty."

HURT BY FIGNESS

The challenge facing small college administrators, in his view, is to guide expansion to meet the needs of the community without giving way to bigness.

Part of the answer was to assure that a campus residence expanded at the same rate as egrolment. If it didn't, the close relationship between faculty and students, a cherished characteristic of small residential colleges, would be lost.

In the decade ahead the size of successful small colleges should range between 1,200 and 2,500 students. Below that they wouldn't have high enough endowments to make an adequate contribution.

"A cosmopolitan school where all parts of the country are represented gives students a sense of awareness that we are building a nation. This is something a student is less apt to get if he is educated in his home province."

At St. F.X., about half the enrolment is from outside Nova Scotia, mostly from New Brunswick, Central Canada and the New England states. Ontario provided 84 students last term.

"He says he'll be working late again tonight, but if you want my opinion, Madam, he's being unfaithful to us."

Income Tax Explained

Destroyed and written for the taxpayer who is not to a position to employ the accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By: C. A. MILLER —Former Supervising Assessor Income Tax Department

There are times when a former resident of Canada finds himself in trouble with the Canadian Income Tax authorities, after he has left the country. Each year many Canadian home owners move to the U.S. to live, and rent their home in Canada when they are unable to sell it. They will have the tenant of a friend remit the rent to them in the U.S.

The difficulty arises, due to the person remitting the rent, being ignorant of the fact, that he must withhold 15 per cent of the gross rent. This 15 per cent must be remitted to the Receiver General of Canada at the time of the collection. If you intend to account of your income tax that may be owing the non-resident owner at the end of the year.

The person responsible for remitting the rents collecting the owner of the property must file with the nearest income tax office at the end of the year an NR4 form and also send the owner an NR4 slip. This slip will show the gross amount of rent collected on his behalf and the amount of tax withheld and paid to Canada. If the rents collecting the rents has not done this he is guilty of an offence and subject to penalties under the income tax act.

The non-resident owner of property in Canada has a choice of two methods in paying the tax to Canada on this rental income. If 15 per cent of the gross rental income has been deducted and paid to Canada, he can accept that as final and not file a Canadian T1 General income tax return, showing the gross rents collected on his behalf, less all expenses applicable to the property, taxes and taxes, insurance, repairs and agents fees, but no claim is allowable for any personal exemption. Any balance after these deductions is taxable at the current Canadian tax rates.

Question? I rented my home in Canada when I moved to the U.S.A. 15 per cent of the rent was withheld by my agent and paid to Canada for income tax purposes. This is in excess of tax owing. How did I get a refund?

Answer: File a return in Canada using the T1 General form. Complete the portion on page 4 applicable to rental income, and attach your NR4 slip. If the deductions on the NR4 slip exceed the tax owing a refund will be made.

Question? I have rented my house in Canada for two years while I am in the U.S.A. I have never filed a Canadian tax return as my agent withheld 14 per cent of rent and paid it to the Canada tax department. I now find this is in excess of the actual tax payable. Can I make any recovery now?

Answer: Yes. You have two years in which to file a Canadian Return for rental income received. You must use the T1 form General and complete the part applicable to rental income. You may not claim any personal exemption when you are a non-resident person.

Canada's Fear of A-Bomb Blocks Easy Development Of Athabasca's Oil Sands

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—Canada appears to be depicted as capable of becoming one of the world's greatest oil exporters—if only she would allow use of a subsidiary bomb to extract oil from Alberta's Athabasca oil sands.

The image is portrayed in a book by Dr. Ralph Sanders, a former U.S. war plans analyst, who predicts that humanity one day will abandon its "psychological anxiety" and adjust to the atom.

"As man has adapted fire, black powder, nitroglycerin and dynamite to his service, he will adapt nuclear explosives to peaceful purposes."

The book, entitled Project Plowshare, is a detailed analysis of various U.S. proposals to harness the atom bomb for such civilian uses as generating electricity, excavating harbors and other huge "earth-moving" projects and extracting oil from shale and oil sands.

While Canada's federal government has remained cool to the idea of exploding an atomic device, on Canadian soil, Dr. Sanders says the Alberta government is enthusiastic. He says that Ottawa is only holding up the project pending collecting the owner of the property must file with the nearest income tax office at the end of the year an NR4 form and also send the owner an NR4 slip. This slip will show the gross amount of rent collected on his behalf and the amount of tax withheld and paid to Canada. White-Man Taught Indians Scythian Art of Scalping

The power of fear is different. Scalps now are an attraction —other people's scalps, to be sure. And scalping appears to have been raised to the level of an art.

The Whitney Gallery of Western Art in Cody has opened an exhibition of scalps lifted by Indians from the heads of other Indians and white men back in the days when the west was young.

The opening of the exhibit gave gallery director Dr. Harold McCracken an opportunity to explode a few old wives' tales about the not-so-gentle art of scalping.

First of all, says Dr. McCracken, the Indians did not invent scalping. It was taught to them by white settlers, who apparently were not so fastidious as schoolbooks would have them believe. Taking scalps as trophies of war was practised in the old world by ancient Scythians as far back as the time of Herodotus.)

BOUNTY STIMULUS

The practice first appeared in the east when colonists offered bounties for scalps in order to get like bounties are offered today for the ears or tails of coyotes, wolves and other undesirable animals.

It didn't take the Indians long to catch on. And they went the while men one better. They learned to preserve scalps and cherish them as evidence of bravery and skill at war.

A true scalp was a circular piece of skin and hair about three inches in diameter taken from the middle of the head where the hair grows in a swirl.

This prevented a conniving warrior who may have learned the trick from white men, lookfrom taking several scalps from the same head and claiming to have killed several enemies.

Soviet Oil Moves Into East Europe

MOSCOW (AP) — The first 1,000,000 tons of Soviet oil has moved through a new international pipeline into Czechoslovakia as a part of a scheme intended to revolutionize the industry of eastern Europe.

An interchange of electric power has begun among the eastern European states and the time part of this will come from the Soviet Union.

These developments promise to put new oil and power resources in the hands of the Communist states, and make them increasingly dependent upon the Soviet Union.

The oil pipeline when finished will extend more than 2,000 miles from Klubyshev, east of the Volga, to a point near Brody in the Ukraine. There it will divide, one branch running into Poland and East Germany, the other into Czechoslovakia and Hungary. This latter will have secondary branching one running from Bratislava to northwest Czechoslovakia, the other into the Budapest area.

The project is supposed to be completed at the end of 1963 and then to supply 15,000,000 tons of oil annually to the eastern European countries.

While the oil will supply a vast fuel and chemical complex—securely laced to the Soviet Union—the power network is to supplement supplies with high-load lines interlocking the whole area.

TALKS FOR MONEY — Crowds still gather in London's Hyde Park to hear soap-box speakers but successful orators today aim to be entertaining rather than argumentative. Only Few Regular Speakers Draw Crowd in Hyde Park

By ALAN WALKER

London's far-famed examples of free speech have degenerated into a few regular speakers draw all the crowds, deliver carefully entertaining rather than argumentative spiels and then pass the hat around for a collection. Other Hyde Park audiences to practise debating. But they all draw slender crowds. Entertainment is the rule.

Billy MacGuinness has been speaking in Hyde Park for 11 of his 34 years. A tiny gypsy with one gold earring and long black hair, he cracks off-color jokes while licking his nose with his lower lip. He makes all his earnings in the park at the moment, but claims he's writing a book called Rantings and Ravings of a Certified Lunatic.

These are the main attractions. Sprinkled through the crowds are fervid African nationalists, members of the Catholic Evidence Guild and the inevitable ban - the - bombers. The occasional student seen in the customers with a Hyde Park audiences to practise debating. But they all draw slender crowds. Entertainment is the rule.

Jobless Number Drops Despite Student Influx

Decline Below Average Though Many Get Jobs

OTTAWA (CP)—A large influx of teen-age students slowed the May-to-June decline in unemployment, holding it at 301,000 last month, the bureau of statistics and the federal labor department reported today.

The monthly labor force report showed employment up by 197,000 to 6,451,000, while unemployment fell by 35,000 to 301,000.

The June jobless total represented 4.5 per cent of the labor force, compared with 5.1 per cent in June last year.

The joint DBS-labor department report, issued about a week earlier than usual, said the increase in employment was "unusually large" for the May-to-June period.

The decline in unemployment, it added, was "smaller than usual for this time of year."

Other ministers will fill their places on an acting basis pending cabinet additions, he said. Later it was announced that Eisenhart Allan Blakeney would act as works minister, Plaxies Minister MacLean will fill in as postmaster general and Forestry Minister Hugh John Flemming will handle the mines portfolio.

State Secretary Dorion resigned earlier and Transport Minister Balcer was named to act in his place.

The fifth minister defeated, Solicitor-General Browne, has not yet resigned. He is awaiting the outcome of an official recount in Burin-St. John West constituency in Newfoundland.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the recount would be finished Thursday.

The prime minister confirmed the three resignations today after he went to a morning caucus of Tory MPs to report publicly he would be some announcements after the meeting.

Finance Minister Fleming, who returned this week from a Commonwealth visit, said he understood the treasury board had approved in principle a contributory salary increase for 30,000 civil servants retroactive to last October. But, however, he could make no announcement on that or the government decision on the increases.

Mr. Diefenbaker said no candidates who has been given yet to calling an early byelection in Newfoundland. The seat was vacated by Erbert Regier to become a Liberal Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas.

Record-Soaring Astronaut Sees 'Paper' 58.7 Miles Up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — X-15 pilot Robert M. White earned an astronaut's wings today by soaring a record 58.7 miles into space—and then he saw a mysterious paper — like object drift by.

"Fantastic," he radioed of the view as he coasted weightless for three minutes in a glass-nose cover California.

"For the first time," he said later, referring to the deep blue hue of space at high altitudes, "I got the impression that I was up in it, this dark blue sky, not looking up at it."

Then about that paper, he added: "Through my left windshield I saw something that looked like a piece of paper the size of my hand tumbling slowly outside the plane. . . . It was gray down in color and about 30 to 40 feet away. I haven't any idea what it could be."

The 33-year-old United States Air Force major, on his 16th X-15 mission, piloted the sky research rocket plane 13 miles higher than it ever has gone before.

Already designated astronauts, for flights more than 100 miles high in the Mercury space capsules, are Alan Shepard, Virgil Grissom, John Glenn and Malcolm Carpenter. By agreement among the space agency and the armed services, anyone voyaging more than 50 miles high qualifies as an astronaut.

White's height Tuesday was 310,000 feet, slightly under 59 miles. This compares with 264,- 700 feet, or 49.3 miles, achieved previously.

"It was a remarkably wonderful flight," the pilot told reporters. "I could see the curve of the earth. I could see the coastline of the United States for perhaps six weeks. They estimated it would take that long for the concrete process in the Court of Appeal.

If he loses the appeal, Dr. Soblen still would have a pending case in the supreme court of Saskatchewan as a political refugee.

The home office has declined to give any talking of its attitude toward this request, but it is thought unlikely it will be granted.

The High Court turned down Soblen's plea to free him from detention by the home office under a writ of habeas corpus. The court upheld the government's decision that the 60-year-old fugitive, who fled from a life sentence in the United States in 1960, is a danger to the public.

Soblen, who jumped $100,000 bail when he fled from New York to Israel, has been fighting for permission to remain in Britain or to go on to Russia, his wife's homeland.

Standing down the three-man Court of Criminal Appeal, Justice Parker rejecting the 62-year - old fugitive's plea that his immigration authorities acted had by implication granted him leave to land in Britain after he stabbed himself on a New York-bound airliner on July 1.

"It is impossible to imply that he was granted leave to land," said Lord Chief Justice Parker.

He added: "The evidence, I think, points all the other way —that there never was any intention to grant such leave and that Dr. Soblen was merely allowed to remain physically for the purpose of saving his life.

"A formal refusal to land was communicated to him as soon as it was practicable."

Saskatchewan Doctors Said Softening Their Opposition

SASKATOON (CP)—Hints of possible moves to establish a medical care controversy spread Tuesday amid reports the province's doctors may soon be settling their opposition to the province's government - sponsored plan.

The focal point of the two-and-a-half-day-old meeting of Saskatchewan where three professional bodies will air their views of government and doctors on the issue of "universal, compulsory, prepaid Medical Care insurance Act.

It was learned Monday that Premier Woodrow S. Lloyd and Dr. Walter Tapp, president of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, gave brief, informal discussions Monday on the dispute.

Neither the premier nor the college would comment on the contents of the letters, but a college official attached great importance to the letter from Dr. Tapp. Premier Lloyd is a free conference a reply had been drafted.

A Saskatoon physician said Tuesday the college's opposition was softening but they would not implemented the act July 1. On that date, most practising physicians offered a min i mal medical services.

There was mounting speculation that behind the-scenes efforts were being made to arrive at some kind of settlement or temporary truce in the dispute.

Premier Lloyd indicated in a telephone interview Tuesday night that the government is insisting doctors return to normal practice before it will consider calling a special session of the legislature.

The Premier had to be agreement between the two sides on specific points before any session was expected to accomplish. Mr. Lloyd said he had never said the session would start or have to return to work first."

BRITISH COURT DENIES SOBLEN FREEDOM PLEA

Right to Appeal Decision Given

LONDON (AP)—The British High Court refused today Dr. Robert Soblen's plea to be set free on British soil but gave him permission to appeal the decision.

Court observers estimated the appeal—even if denied—would delay Soblen's deportation to the United States for perhaps six weeks. They estimated it would take that long for the concrete process in the Court of Appeal.

If he loses the appeal, Dr. Soblen still would have a pending case in the supreme court of Saskatchewan as a political refugee.

The home office has declined to give any talking of its attitude toward this request, but it is thought unlikely it will be granted.

U.S. Rejects Latest Russ Disarmament Proposals

GENEVA (Reuters) — The United States rejected the Soviet Union's latest disarmament proposals today on grounds they would "tend to create immediate and serious imbalances of military power."

U.S. delegate Arthur Dean told the 17-nation disarmament conference that the Soviet proposes the Soviet Union's acceptance of the American approach for phased reduction of conventional armies.

However, he added, "continued Soviet insistence on the elimination of all nuclear delivery vehicles in the first stage of disarmament "quite clearly negates the principle of balanced reduction and would give a state an early disequilibrium of military power detrimental to peace.

"This is just not realistic," he added.

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin announced Monday, when the conference resumed after a month's recess, that his government was ready to accept the Western position "halfway" by modifying its draft treaty on complete and general disarmament.

Western spokesmen almost immediately rejected the change as of no major import.

Dean said he welcomes the indication that the Soviet Union is willing to discuss the question of "even if only to a limited extent."

"We sincerely hope that the Soviet delegation will continue to explore this complex accommodation to which it has now made a small first step."

Dean also rejected the Soviet plan's continued insistence on the elimination of foreign bases and the stationing of troops in foreign countries in the first stage of disarmament. These are integral components of "our zone of reference arrangements," he said.

Picton Major's Sentence Is Confirmed

Bombardier O. F. Johnson, 31, severe reprimand.

TO CALL OAU: BIDS

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)— Syria will call for international bids in the next few days to exploit its newly discovered oil fields, Syria Minister Robert Elias announced today. In a statement to newsmen, he estimated the reserve of Syria's three northeastern oil fields, discovered in the last four years, at 20,000,000,000 barrels.

Conservative Backbenchers Hit Macmillan

Dozen Speakers Call Axe-Swinging 'Brutal'

Splashed on the front pages of British newspapers this morning were reports of a private meeting of backbenchers—rank-and-file members of Parliament—Tuesday night at which a dozen speakers denounced the "brutal" manner in which Macmillan swung his axe among cabinet heads.

In addition, Macmillan Tuesday night was presented with a motion of censure by the opposition Labor party in the House of Commons demanding that his government resign and call a general election.

Macmillan got a chilly reception from his own Conservative members when he entered the House Tuesday following the private meeting of backbenchers.

Gerald Nabarro, one of the best-known backbenchers, was quoted as saying Macmillan had "looked like an abattoir" after Macmillan finished with his self-justification.

Nabarro singled out the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Selwyn Lloyd, and described it as "shabby and disreputable" treatment.

Dame Irene Ward said "so many ministers have gone that the impression has been created that the whole government is finished."

The backbenchers were supportive of Lloyd—he was replaced by Reginald Maudling—pressged a retreat from the anti-inflationary policy he was identified with and which are believed to have caused the government votes in recent byelections.

MAY DEBATE SOON

The Labor censure motion, signed by Party Leader Hugh Gaitskell and several members of the "shadow cabinet," is expected to be debated next week-end—a holiday by tradition are discussed as soon as possible.

The Conservatives have an absolute majority of 99 in the House so it would take a considerable defection from their ranks to pass the motion. Despite the current backbench revolt, the night's meeting this was considered highly unlikely.

Political observers said the censure m o t i o n probably will force the Conservatives to close ranks and help Macmillan over his difficulties with the backbenchers.

Toronto Seeks British Nurses

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto executive committee Tuesday authorized two officials to go to the United Kingdom to recruit 200 nurses for a new hospital and nursing home for the aged.

Welfare Commissioner Robert Hall and hospital and personnel director, George W. Noble were chosen to hire 150 general duty nurses, 25 nursing supervisors and 25 physiotherapists.

The executive committee was told that Metro earlier spent $1,000 to recruit 200 nurses in Canada for the 808 bed, $6,000,000 Riverdale convalescent hospital, which is to open in June, 1963.

Legislator Asks Mercy Killing Of Limbless, Deformed Infants

LONDON (AP) — A British legislator today urged the mercy killing of limbless and deformed and Embless because "there is no justification for drug thalidomide during pregnancy."

Cmdr. John Kenzas, Conservative member of Parliament, will ask the government Thursday to pass a law authorizing doctors to apply euthanasia in such cases.

In the House of Lords Thursday, Lord Silkin, Labor spokesman also will ask the government to permit mercy killings in certain cases where the mother has been thalidomide.

The thalidomide was taken off the British market 7½ months ago and it is only when taken during the second month of pregnancy that it is likely to damage the baby.

By August an estimated 300 babies will have been born in the United Kingdom with missing or deformed limbs. Many more have suffered from the same disorder in West Germany, Sweden, Belgium and Australia.

Thalidomide w a s developed by German scientists and after exhaustive tests was introduced in 1958 as a mild sedative, sold in tablet form it was accepted in medical circles as one of the safest and most effective tranquillizers yet devised.

Dr. Frances Kelsey of two children, said of his mercy killing move:

"The decision would be up to the doctor, but naturally the patient's wishes come very much into the matter.

"If a child is born with no arms or legs, no drugs can help and he is not much use to society. I am not saying there is a case for euthanasia generally, but these babies are an exception.

"If we cannot have euthanasia for them, then the state should look after them for the rest of their lives.

"What is the use of producing children who are already deformed? Few parents would wish it in their heart of hearts."

Liberal Majority Reduced to 65

CORNWALL (CP) — Returning officer Alphonse Charron said today the majority won by Liberal candidate Lucien Lamoureux in Monday's Stormont election has been reduced to 65 from 92 votes on the basis of an unofficial count.

Mr. Charron made the statement following an unofficial count of preliminary statements reconciled with each ballot box listing the number of votes cast for each candidate.

He said the situation arose partly because his telephone number and that of the Liberal committee rooms were similar, resulting in some calls from out-of-town returning officers going astray and others being duplicated. Also, he said, in the confusion of election night, some votes were not corrected as they should have been.

Mrs. Marjorie Bail, NDP 944 (944); Grant Campbell, Progressive Conservative, 12,838 (11,- 569); Lucien Lamoureux, Liberal, 13,003 (12,904); Mel Rowsell, Social Credit, 1,254 (1,297).

Returning officer said the ballot boxes will remain under police guard until after the official count of ballots on Monday. Mr. Campbell, 65 votes behind Mr. Lamoureux in unofficial tally, would have four days from Monday to deposit $250 and request a recount.

Sniper Picks off Three Women On Busy Toronto Intersection

TORONTO (CP) — Three women were wounded by bullets from a .22-calibre rifle Tuesday as they went about their business in the busy intersection of Bathurst Street and St. Clair Avenue in West-central Toronto.

Police said the sniper may have been shooting at random at pedestrians and passing cars for an hour before the women were shot. Dozens of spent shells were found in a second-floor room on Bathurst where police said they believe the man was stationed.

Two hours after the third woman was shot police arrested Norman Allan Ernest Swan, 20, and charged him with three counts of wounding and two of malicious damage.

Police said Swan, a soldier stationed at Camp Barrietield, Ont., near Kingston, had been staying at his parents' home while they went on a vacation trip. He was on a month's leave.

Besides the woundings, a car driven by Bathurst Street home had its windshield shot out and a telephone line in the area was severed, both by bullets.

None of the injured women knew they had been shot until told so at hospital. All three said they heard a loud noise but didn't associate it with rifle fire.

Miss Viney, the last victim, said she was going to dinner at a friend's apartment when she felt a sharp pain in the right leg. "At first I thought a car had thrown up some gravel but the next thing I knew I was on the sidewalk.

"When I turned and saw the blood I just started screaming for help," she said. "I was more frightened than hurt and never even thought that I had been shot."

Police were not called until all three women had arrived at hospital in separate taxis.

Investigators said they could find no reason for the shootings.

B.C. Judge Likely to Head Shipping Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet is considering the appointment of a judge to investigate shipping disruptions and labor unrest on the Great Lakes, reliable informants said today.

Indications are the job will go to Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of Vancouver.

Sources said the 66-year-old judge who sits on the British Columbia Court of Appeal, has consented to head the proposed industrial commission promised earlier this month by Labor Minister Starr after seaway workers boycotted ships manned by the Canadian section of the independent Seafarers International Union.

However, some legal hurdles remain to be cleared before Judge Norris can formally take on the inquiry.

SENATE KILLS U.S. MEDICARE COMPROMISE

Kennedy Calls It Severe Blow to All

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate killed President Kennedy's compromise medical care plan by a 52-48 vote Tuesday. The president called it "a most serious defeat for every American family."

Kennedy planned to turn the reverse into a major issue for the November congressional elections. He said he would run for the program again next year.

The American Medical Association, which led the fight against the program said it would have been financed through higher social security payments, and the Senate action was "a vote in the public interest."

Kennedy had placed the medical care plan in the top priority bracket of his legislative program. The coalition by south Democrats and Republicans which accepted it was of the same pattern as the one that had killed two of his other major proposals in the House of Representatives—the farm bill and his plan to set up a department of urban affairs.

Joining 21 Republicans to kill the medical care plan were 21 Democrats, 12 of them southerners. Five Republicans who co-sponsored the compromise voted with 43 Democrats in trying to save it.

KILLS AMENDMENT

The showdown was on approval of a motion by Senator Robert S. Kerr (D., Okla.) to table and thus kill an amendment by Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem., N.M.) that would have hooked the plan onto a Senate - passed public welfare bill.

The climax to the most bitterly fought issue of the current session came at mid-afternoon in a packed Senate chamber. All 100 senators were on hand. Capacity crowds filled the galleries.

An hour after the Senate vote, Kennedy went before television cameras and radio microphones to read a statement. He said the defeat had dealt a setback to 17,000,000 Americans over 65 and was a blow to children of older persons who have to educate their families and help their parents meet medical expenses.

Then he added:

"I think the American people are going to make a decision in November as to whether they want bills and not defeated bills, to be passed, or whether they want it to be defeated. Nearly all Republicans and a handful of Democrats joined with them to give us today's setback.

"We have to decide, the United States, in 1962, in November, in the congressional elections whether we want to stand still or whether we want to support this kind of legislation."

Will Adopt New Policy For Debentures

A new policy of specific terms for debentures for local improvements is to be adopted by the city of Belleville.

In the future sidewalks, asphalt roads, curbs and gutters will be debentured over a period of ten years, while watermains and sewers will be debentured over a period of 15 years.

At the same time a policy for gravel roads to be built out of the general rate has been adopted.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds told council that in the past there had been varying terms when debenturing for special local improvement projects.

He noted, for instance that in some cases sidewalks in the same district had been debentured for 10 and 15 years. This meant marked differences in the annual payments and was the result of friction.

Several councillors took exception to the recommendation that the cost of gravel roads be borne out of the general rate, it being the feeling that such work should be done under local improvements.

The matter was raised the only instance in which such work would be done under the general rate was where the streets were not covered by sub-division agreements.

Also only partial sections of streets would be affected as in cases where it was necessary to connect up portions of streets for access to or through right of way.

Mayor W. M. Haig said he opposed any policy which violated the city's principle of local improvements.

Fire Rating Tweed Forest District

With 80 fires already on the "books" this season, the Tweed District, Lands and Forests Department, is heading for a record in wooded area blazes, an official said this morning.

To date the district has the highest fire record of any district in the province. None has been out of a very serious nature and none has been out of control.

The total in 1961 for the district was 100 and in 1960, 88. There were 96 in 1959 and 103 in 1958.

The month of July this year has been a record one as far as fires are concerned. The total for last night is 24, twelve of which are still burning but under control and patrol. Only three fires were reported in the month of July 1961.

Widely - scattered showers spotted the district last night. Gilmour with .33 inch and Rawdon with .09 inch received the heaviest falls. Other areas received only a trace or nothing.

The district fire hazard is rated as high.

Alarm Defect Sends Firemen To Hospital

An apparent defect in the alarm system in Belleville Hospital sent a fire crew to the Hillcrest Memorial Residence, the hospital's nurses dormitory last night. The alarm rang in the hospital itself, but not in the fire department. A full firefighting crew was dispatched, but found no fire.

Other calls on the department yesterday included one to a bonfire at 88 Emily St. before 8 p.m. When the fire crew arrived they found the bonfire had been lighted under permit from the fire department and had been held under control.

Kiwanis Hears Mother Goose Philosophy

Local Kiwanians were treated to one of the humorous yet serious talks by the Ottawa philosopher, Art Duncan, at yesterday's luncheon at the Kiwanis Centre. The Bath Shrine firm's public relations director chose to discuss "The Philosophy of Mother Goose" and the manner in which nursery rhymes were a revelation of human characteristics.

In his opening remarks Mr. Duncan emphasized the importance of taking a look at the lighter side of life in order to make the serious side easier to take.

He noted that there were "basic requirements of a story in order to impress children—simplicity, laughter, change of pace and mystery, and proceeded to show how nursery rhymes managed to utilize these facets to put across a message containing philosophy and wisdom.

The speaker also spoke on Canadian culture. He suggested that the cry often heard that there was a so-called lack of Canadian culture was perhaps due more to the indifference of the people than to the actual lack of culture. Canada has a rich heritage of culture, especially in woodcraft and painting, he suggested.

This heritage is constantly being added to by the contributions which new Canadians have to offer in skills which they have brought with them their homelands, he added.

Mr. Duncan observed that there was developing a lack of appreciation for things Canadian, and that many people did not fully appreciate the beauty and grandeur of their own Canadian scenery. Canadians should express their individuality by more terrific and contribute towards their spirit, he continued, adding "we get what we give."

In describing the Canadian scene he earlier summed up his feelings in the comment, "confronted by all means, complacency never."

Kiwanian Frank Follwell and Fergus Kennedy introduced and thanked the speaker respectively.

At yesterday's meeting Doug Stork announced that the club made almost $680 for use in the Kiwanis work from the recent circus.

Holstein Club Meeting Is Well Attended

PICTON — A successful twilight meeting was held Monday night by Prince Edward Holstein Club at the farm of James Denard, R. R. 1, Hillier. More than 300 were in attendance. Fieldman Gerry Nelson said all such meetings had been very popular and depended on their value. He explained what to look for in selecting a good cow, stressing general appearance, the mammary system, dairy character and capacity.

A class of mature cows in milk and a class of two year old heifers were scored by the slightly 4-H members present. Placing the cows on behalf of the judges panel were Jim Alexander and Tom May. The only 4-H member present to place all correctly was Jim's daughter Cathy, who is in her first year of calf club work. Cathy is also a calf baton twirler.

At the conclusion of the judging, Mr. Denard exhibited the first generation of Holstein females from the same maternal line.

The entertainment part of the meeting was provided by Paul Skidmore of Nepanee who showed colored slides of his recent trip to New Zealand. Mr. Skidmore is a retired farmer who served six years in World War alongside the Australians. He said in New Zealand there have the Texans beat when it comes to bragging about their holdings. The North and South Islands which compose New Zealand are about the size as containing all the natural wonders of the world and most of the world's flora. The mountains are opposite to Canada's and are covered with snow and fresh water fish which grow to enormous size. Mr. Skidmore also visited the Fiji Islands and Hawaii on his trip below the equator.

He was introduced by Harold McCall, national director of the Holstein Friesian Association and thanked by Alan Hillier. Charles Sandell of the Denards for hosting the Twilight meeting. Ag. Rep. Tom Hall announced all about the upcoming Crop Improvement Tour.

WALKER, FLYNN,

The cabinet departures of Works Minister Walker, defeated in Montreal's Notre Dame de Grace, will leave gaps which Mr. Diefenbaker from a personal standpoint will be difficult to fill, their friends in the cabinet agree.

Mr. Walker, 58, a Toronto lawyer specializing in the laws of libel and slander, is a long time personal and professional friend of Mr. Diefenbaker. Mr. Walker served as his Eastern Canadian political agent and campaign manager when Mr. Diefenbaker was seeking the Conservative party leadership, which he won in 1956.

Mr. Hamilton, 53 - year - old Montreal advertising and sales executive, first entered parliament in 1957 and immediately became a friend of Mr. Diefenbaker who admired his longtime and enthusiastic approach to political problems and consistency organization.

The assumption of additional portfolios in an acting capacity by ministers already in the cabinet is done routinely when over a minister goes abroad or becomes temporarily incapacitated by illness.

When the first Diefenbaker ministers were sworn into office on June 21, 1957, several of them held other portfolios in an acting capacity until Mr. Diefenbaker completed the building of his cabinet in September, three months later.

Assault Case Enlarged For Week

TRENTON — Cases against Sidney Tomlinson and Robert Pacey, both of Trenton, charged with unlawful assault, occasioning actual bodily harm, were enlarged for one week in magistrate's court in Trenton yesterday. Complainant was John Ulibeyerre, who told the court that he was struck unawares from his truck, which was parked in front of the Queensway Hotel on the evening of June 16, by two men, one of whom he recognized as Robert Pacey, a former employee. Mr. Ulibeyerre, a painter, said that he had sustained a cut on his ear, a black eye, fractured ribs and other bruises as the result of an attack launched upon him by the two men. His shirt bag been almost torn off, he said.

Sidney Tomlast, who had also worked for Mr. Ulibeyerre at one time, said that the complainant owed him money. He pleaded guilty to the charge of common assault, that he had been provoked by Ulibeyerre "pulling his hair."

Mr. Ulibeyerre, who spent three days in the hospital after the incident, told the court he was off work a week, said he did not see the knife in him when the attack occurred and that in fact, he "never carried a knife". He said that he did not owe any money to either of the two men.

Robert Pacey, who pleaded not guilty to the charge, told the court that he had been merely trying to break up the fight between Ulibeyerre and Tomlast. Pacey said that Ulibeyerre had "drawn out a knife on him when the attack occurred and that in fact, he "never carried a knife". He said that he did not owe any money to either of the two men.

Robert Pacey, who pleaded not guilty to the charge, told the court that he had been merely trying to break up the fight between Ulibeyerre and Tomlast. Pacey said that Ulibeyerre had "drawn out a knife on him when the attack occurred and that in fact, he "never carried a knife". He said that he did not owe any money to either of the two men.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills reserved guilty pleas from Sheldon Woodcock and Michael Burley on charges of vagrancy, after listening to evidence from the court, and asked that the incidents leading up to the charges be further investigated, before next week's court appearance. The men were released on $100 bail on their own recognizance.

Constable Gary Davis told the court that around 1.30 on Monday he had chased the pair across the Creosote Company property and into a ditch near bank and under the CNR footbridge. He said that the men could give no reasonable reason for being there, except that they had said that they had been frightened by seeing a policeman when they were in the Trenton yard, in view of the two big fires in this yard, causes which are still under investigation.

Earlier in the evening, the constable said, he had been called upon to investigate two incidents involving broken windows. The watchman at the Hinde and Dauch plant had reported that after eight windows were broken, he had seen two men dash down into the Creosote yard.

Magistrate Wills admitted that he would be rather short of depth in being asked to hear a case against Ernest Boadway, charged with leaving his two young children in his car, while he went off an hour in a beer parlor. Mr. Boadway told the court that he had left his 11-year-old son in charge of two younger children.

"This is a case involving morals," said the magistrate, "and after all, this is a criminal court."

The case was enlarged for two weeks, pending a court ruling, and Boadway was told that he might be notified not to come back.

Chief Smith of Toronto, who was found guilty last week on a charge of committing wilful damage, was sentenced by the magistrate in one case in county jail, his sentence to run from the the date of his conviction, July 10.

Testimony last week, revealed that Smith had smashed the plumbing fixtures in his cell, after he had been taken into custody on a charge of being intoxicated in a public place on June 26.

Police said that Smith had thrown a metal cot against the toilet bowl in the cell. Damage was assessed at $41.

'Another 'Oldie' Comes to Light

TRENTON — Obviously, this is the season for coming across ancient documents, whilst sorting old mirrors, adjusting longlong family portraits or generally renovating. At least, recently, a number of old newspapers have shown up in unexpected unlikely places in Trenton last week.

Last weekend, Mario Mascheso of 201 Simcoe St., tore out a partition in his home, for the partition was a Daily Mail and Empire gated Wed. Sept. 10 1919. The paper was addressed to Five Kingsway, General Delivery, Trenton, which presumably was the former owner of the home.

Scanning through the paper, the Marchesos came across several items concerning the Belleville area. S. S. No. 15, Thurlow wanted "a Protestant teacher, normal-trained; salary, $650, annually" and applicants could apply to Wilmot Sills at Halloway P.O.

A news item from Belleville, stated that cyclist John Sherban, 22 had ridden his bicycle off the "new government dock" and had drowned.

Cross Winners Enplane For London

TRENTON — Eight Victoria Cross and George Cross winners from both World Wars enplaned as an RCAF Yukon aircraft from RCAF Station, Trenton, on July 12, bound for London, Eng., to attend the reunion of British Commonwealth Forces V.C. and G.C. holders to be held July 17 and 18.

Piped aboard the aircraft were Brigadier Paul Triquet, VC, CD, of Quebec City; Lt. Col. J. K. Mahony, VC, CD, of New Westminster, B.C.; Sgt. E. A. Smith, VC, CD, of Vancouver; Capt. G. H. Mullin, VC, MM, of Regina; Major F. A. Tilston, VC of Aurora; Air Commodore A. D. Ross, GC, CBE, CD of Toronto; Capt. C. S. Rutherford, VC, MC, MM, of Keswick, Ont., and Major B. H. Geary, VC, of Toronto.

Tax Collections Note Increase

TRENTON — Trenton's tax collector, R. G. Alan Weaver, reports that net taxes collected during April, May and June totalled $338,849. This total includes pre-payment certificate payments of $100,161.

Tax arrears payments are up too, this year, with a $40,262 total as against the same $33,732 up until the end of June, 1961.

Progressive Supper Enjoyed By Chi Rho

A progressive supper was the occasion last Wednesday evening for the Chi Rho Fellowship. Like all Chi Rho events, the supper progressed successfully under the organization of group leader Don Butcher, and helping hands from the entire group.

To get all good things under way members met at "Rowbotham's Roadhouse" for an appetizer of cold tomato juice with spice, which was necessary as everyone felt near to famished. Certainly the juice went down quite nicely.

With better things to come, on to "Butcher's Bistro" was the next-party progress. The rewards were not only fulfilling but tasty, consisting of avocados salads, cold cuts, pickles and dinner rolls. With all the platters "licked" clean and everyone in a merrier mood on to the road once again.

The next place of dining was "Warwick's Waldorf" where tempting dishes of jelly and whipped cream were enjoyed by all.

No time was wasted in making way to "Grainger's Greasy Spoon," where cookies, tea and coffee awaited everyone. For an added touch the host and hostess of "Grainger's Greasy Spoon" had derived a light club atmosphere on their large open-air verandah. Typical of the above mentioned were multi-colored candlelights and soft dance music. The group was favored with some amusing comedy recordings of "Life With John and Blanche." Then, like all prominent night clubs for high-light, guests were feted with a floor show. Entertainers for the evening were the host and hostesses' very silent daughters doing their version of the latest twist dance.

Mrs. Jeanne Cavalier announced that the occasion also marked the anniversary of two couples in the gathering, president and Mrs. Allan Gardiner, and a new member, out for the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Olson.

Newcomers to the group are extended a hearty welcome. Another guest, for the occasion whom the Chi Rho is always happy to have was the Rev. J. B. Creegan.

President Allan Gardiner reminded members of the the coming annual picnic to be held next month, with further notice to be given.

Junior Farmers Arrange Many Features for Fair

The junior farmers' division at the Belleville Fair promises to be a very interesting feature this year according to junior director Ron Hamilton. The members of the junior board have been as hard at work as their senior counterpart over the past months.

Featured in the junior fair will be such interesting events as tractor safe driving competition, livestock and crops competition, 4-H interclub and achievement days and a square dance competition.

Usually the junior fair has been confined to the two previous events which it holds. This year the junior directors are anticipating a substantial increase in entries and are going all out to provide superior and improved events.

The square dance competition for Junior Farmers, which proved so popular last year despite crowded quarters, will be held under lights on a large open stage in the cattle ring this year. This modification is to allow the square dance teams more room and to provide accommodation for spectators.

The winning team, and any Junior Farmers who enter a team, will have the opportunity of going to the Canadian National Exhibition to compete in the competition held there. This is the first time that such a date has been offered. The square dance event will be held on the Monday evening at 10.00 p.m.

Also on opening day there will be the tractor safe driving event in the morning and the 4-H Homemaking Club exhibits, judging and grooming which will be held all day.

On the Tuesday the general agricultural competition will be held with classes in field crops, fruit and vegetable judging, livestock judging and an agricultural quiz and identification.

The 4-H interclub Day, always a highlight of the junior fair, will be held on the Wednesday. This day's events will feature demonstrations by 4-H members, showmanship preparation and other competitions.

On Thursday the junior fair will be running the Belleville 4-H Calf Club's achievement day. The top calves in the Belleville area will be selected and will go on to compete at Maple Leaf Stadium in Toronto then to Ottawa to compete in the eastern Canada show. Local calves have already established a fine record in competition and may be expected to represent the area in the Ottawa event. This event will be held in the afternoon.

The Hastings 4-H Swine Club and the Hastings 4-H Poultry Club will be holding their county competitions starting on the Thursday morning. These have always been popular and well attended competitions with the top swine and poultry raised by 4-H club members from all over the county being entered.

Besides the agricultural and recreational events in the junior fair, there will also be a program of sports events and competitions which will be conducted by the Belleville Recreation Commission. Details on this part of the fair are expected to be announced in the near future.

Bridal Shower Held For Miss A. Thomson

TRENTON—Mrs. L. Feahay of 57 Hieber St. in Trenton, entertained at a bridal shower for Miss Ann Thomson last Friday evening. Miss Thomson will become the bride of Kaye Elliott on July 28.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. Geraldine Wood and Miss Gail Elliott, Mr. Elliott's mother and sister. Mrs. Feahay is Mr. Elliott's grandmother.

Sixteen friends of the bride-to-be attended, and the bride received many beautiful and useful gifts.

The living room of the home where the guest of honor received her gifts, was attractively decorated with pink and white streamers, and this color motif was carried out in the dining room, where dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Miss Thomson is an employee of radio station CJBQ's Trenton office.

City Refuses To Pay Extra Cost

City council doesn't feel the municipality should kick in for 20 per cent of the cost of constructing a five-foot sidewalk on both sides of Bridge Street East, between Hepburner and Fairley Avenues.

The suggestion that the city assume the 20 per cent cost was made by the Ontario Municipal Board following a hearing here on April 10th.

Cost of the work is estimated at $18,753.35 with the city's share given as $4,750.85. Including the municipality's share of intersections and the 20 per cent additional cost for the five foot walk.

The public works department recommended the five foot walk, noting that this width would be more adequate as sidewalk plowing then was the four foot width.

The Municipal Board, however, did not feel that property owners should be asked to pay for the additional width in their local improvement costs and suggested the tab for the extra expense should be picked up by the city.

Monday, council on a tie vote turned down the proposal for the city to pay the additional per cent cost of the five foot walk.

The feeling is now that the walk construction project will be held up pending further investigation into the matter.

Little Leaguers Play Tournament

TRENTON — On Saturday, Air Force Day, at RCAF Station, Trenton, the official Little League baseball tournament will get off to a rainy start with a game between the RCAF youngsters, (9 to 12 years), and the boys from Barry's Bay. Game time is 6.30 p.m. and the place is the sports field. The winners could go on to the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa.

PASSES EXAM

TRENTON — Recently, Edward "Ted") Jeffery of Peterborough, formerly of Trenton, passed his "general jewellers" examination. He is well-known here in connection with the Ontario basketball champions, (Wilson's Concrete), and with Scouting activities in the Trenton district. He will now go on to take a five-year course in gemology.

Quebec Girls Trade Vacations

When there are no community visits arranged, an individual visit is the next best. That's what Susan Craig, of Belleville thought. So she applied to Visits Interprovinciales, a non profit exchange organization to find her some people to visit in Quebec.

Visites Interprovinciales found the Chartier family, in Pleasiville and Suzan's father drove her down at the beginning of the summer. She spent two weeks of her vacation there and brought the Chartier girls, Madelaine, 14, and Francois, 17, back with her. Francois speaks English well, Madelaine is learning fast. So Susan took two years of French at BCVS before the trip, and learned almost as much during the two weeks of the trip in Quebec.

The three girls are now vacationing in Dr. Craig's cottage at Presqu'ile. Mr. Chartier will arrive Saturday to return Dr. Craig's visit and to bring his daughters back to Quebec.

Why Curiosity Wanes

Sydney J. Harris, whose "Strictly Personal" column appears on this page, commented the other day on the speed with which children lose their natural curiosity and their eagerness to learn.

We all know this to be true.

Mr. Harris says he is convinced that this is not a natural development, but comes from some perversion in the teaching process.

We think he is wrong. What we have here is a natural perversity, rather than an unnatural perversion.

Children are eager to learn, just as long as they are not required to do so. Perhaps failure to recognize this fact is a perversion of the teaching process. Tom Sawyer's fence-painting system is the right one to apply, if a way can be found to do so.

Aside altogether from this natural perversity, though, there are other natural reasons why the urge to learn grows less intense.

A child starts out by knowing nothing. Learning is something new. But once he has learned something, he starts to face hazards. If he learns something more he may discover that part of what he has already learned is false. The more he learns, the greater the possibility that new knowledge will force him to alter his beliefs.

The human mind is as distrustful of shifting beliefs as an elephant is of quicksand.

Man reacts in one of two ways—in stifling his curiosity so that he can retain his beliefs based upon what he already knows or discarding all beliefs and welcoming all new knowledge.

Only those who have learned much, and have therefore been forced to alter their beliefs many times can bring themselves to discarding beliefs entirely and base their lives on the ever-shifting sands of "facts," which are continually changing their forms as they meet the pressures of new knowledge.

But in our society, as experts, even when they are not denounced as cynics, are held in disfavor.

Poetic Justice?

A new, and basic, issue has been tossed into the tangled Algerian picture, with the announcement that the dissident nationalist leader, Mohammed Ben Bella, wants to scrap the Evian agreement, under which Algeria voted for its independence.

There will be those who will regard this as an act of bad faith and a back-stabbing blow at the prestige of General de Gaulle after he as resolutely opposed extremists and paved the way for Algeria to win its freedom.

The truth may be somewhat otherwise.

The Algerians did not have any chance to indicate whether they really approved of the terms agreed upon at Evian. They merely had the opportunity of voting for or against independence under the terms of the Evian agreement which ties Algeria to France economically and socially. If they had voted in the negative, they would have been supporting, for entirely different reasons, the course advocated by the Secret Army of the whites. So, of course, they voted "yes." But it was a loaded question.

Just as the Algerians were not free to approve or disapprove of the Evian conditions, so, too, Ben Bella was deprived of a voice in the negotiations. He was in prison, having been captured years before when a French fighter plane intercepted an airliner carrying Algerian rebel leaders to a conference. There were bitter protests against this interception, it being charged that the French had violated international law.

Ironically enough, this incident may yet serve as an excuse for the Algerians ignoring the terms of their accord with France. If this proves so, there will be those who will maintain this is no more than poetic justice.

What's all this fuss about a former member of the Canadian Parliament being given suspended sentence on a charge of taking a bribe? The West German Cabinet has decided to retire Attorney-General Wolfgang Fraenkel because he failed to reveal that when he was a member of the Nazi prosecutor's office he changed 23 hard labor sentences to death sentences. But Fraenkel will receive his pension.

I am tired and sick of war. Its glory is all moonshine. It is only those who have neither fired a shot nor heard the shrieks and groans of the wounded who cry aloud for blood, more vengeance, more desolation. War is hell.—William Tecumseh Sherman.

The Hippocratic Oath

Stratford Beacon-Herald

Many times since the doctors' strike began in Saskatchewan we have read comment that the striking doctors are violating the Hippocratic oath, which every practising physician and surgeon must have sworn at the beginning of his professional career. Some of the people who have written to us to expound violation by Saskatchewan doctors, should have known better.

To suggest that the striking doctors are in any way contrary to their Hippocratic oath, is nonsense. There is nothing noble of the sort. The essence of the oath, is that the physician must hold in divine confidential information which he may receive in the course of treating a patient. The oath has nothing to do with fees, or the method of collecting them, which are the issues in Saskatchewan now. The doctors, numbering 700 or thereabouts, who are on strike in Saskatchewan, can be perfectly easy in their consciences about their profession al oath, which they will commit them in any way either to provide medical service, or to let the government know what fees they collect.

It is doubtful, according to modern scholars, whether Hippocrates, a Greek physician of the 5th century B.C., ever took the oath which is credited to him. It is more probably sometime in the period 460-400 BC. The oath, in the form in which it has been administered to novice physicians for more than 2,000 centuries is from the Hippocratic Collection of writings on medical school at Alexandria, founded as long ago as 300 BC. The oath itself is thought to date from about 250 BC.

If it should be thought, incidentally, that the medical schools of 2,300 years ago were teaching things that would be considered hopelessly old — fashioned today, consider this passage on surgical procedure, also from a work in the Hippocratic Collection: "The requisites in the surgery; the patient, the operator, assistants, instruments, the light, where and how placed; the patient's person and habit; the operator, whether seated or stand ing, should be placed according to the nature of the operation; the seated upon, and to the light. Each of the two kinds of light, ordinary and artificial, may be used in two ways, direct or oblique." Then follows that section, which remained until the 19th Century AD, was anaesthesia.

As for the Hippocratic Oath itself, this is what it says, and this is the standard of conduct to which every Canadian physician has bound himself:

"I swear by Apollo the physician, by Asculapius, Hygeia, and Panacea, and I take to witness all the gods, all the goddesses, to keep according to my ability and my judgment the following Oath:

"To consider dear to me as my parents him who taught me this art; to live in common with him and if necessary to share my goods with him; to look upon his children as my own brothers, to teach them this art if they are desirous of learning it, without fee or written promise; to impart to my sons and the sons of the physician who taught me and to disciples who enrolled themselves and have taken the oath but to anybody else.

"I will apply dietetic measures for the benefit of my patients according to my ability and my judgment and never do harm to anyone. To please no one will I prescribe a deadly drug, nor give a advice which may cause his death. Nor will I give a woman a pessary to procure abortion. But I will preserve the purity of my life and my heart. I will not cut even for stone, even for patients in whom the disease is manifest; I will leave this operation to be performed by practitioners (specialists in this art).

"In every house where I come I will enter only for the good of my patients, keeping myself far from all intentional ill-doing and all seduction, and especially from the pleasure of love with women or with males, be they free or slaves. All that may come to my knowledge in the exercise of my profession, or in daily commerce with men, which ought not to be spread abroad, I will keep secret and will never reveal. If I keep this oath faithfully, may I enjoy my life and practice my art, respected by all men and in all times; but if I swerve from it or violate it, may the reverse be my lot."

Read it a second time, and there is still nothing there which binds the striking Saskatchewan doctors to treat any patient, or to reveal to any provincial authority the amounts and details of the fees collected from patients. A cause might argue, in fact, that the Hippocratic oath binds a physician to keep secret the amount of fees he collects, the right to keep that secret is exactly what the striking Saskatchewan doctors are striking for.

Hippocrates did not foresee Medicare.

Misdirected Flattery Is Folly

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Next to ingenuity, liars—who are easily found out — the habitual flatterers are the most stupid of people. For the flatterer commonly overlooks the most important element in successful flattery.

Tell a truly beautiful woman that she is beautiful, and you bore her. She knows she is beautiful, and has been told a hundred times, and believes it. She takes for granted your grasp of the obvious.

But tell a brilliant man that he is brilliant, and he thinks you a fool for making so obvious a remark. He is fully aware—perhaps too fully aware of his intellectual powers. There are other things about himself, however, that he is not sure of; and these are what he wants to be flattered about.

As Lord Chesterfield observed to his son, "Persons are more and less flattered upon those points where they wish to excel, and yet are doubtful whether they do so." He also mentioned Cardinal Richelieu, the ablest statesman of his time, who wanted to be thought the best poet, too. Flattery of his statesmanship was met with a shrug; but flattery of his verse would always get him back.

Even so great a man as Goethe thought more of his theories of optics than he did of his literary works — although the latter are today the only former have been mercifully forgotten.

And Isaac Newton was less interested in his profound discoveries about light and color than in the commentaries he wrote on the Bible. He was sure that his Biblical work was monumental, but he secretly doubted the validity of his Biblical research, and needed reassurance on this point.

Voltaire, a few years later over the years, find little gratification in being told that they are tremendous performers; what they really want to hear is that they are as bright as directors or playwrights, or that their personal charm and wit predicate not off the stage as on. They are unsure of themselves as people as professionals.

Among tycoons and executives, it is only the small fry who are flattered by ascent, by obsequious yes-men, think of them as the fathers of flattery provided by no-men; that is, they need to be told, not that they are right, but that they are big enough to take critiques. They do not doubt that they are crack executives; what they may secretly doubt is whether they are good and well-adjusted persons.

Flattery, on the whole, is a despicable talent; and it is just as well that so few really understand its emotional dynamics.

20 YEARS AGO

July 18th, 1942.

Bringing back the thrills of the days before the "gasless buggies," a number of fine horses caused considerable excitement on Pinnacle Street shortly before noon, and had damaged two parked motor cars before they halted in their race. The tottering wagon collided with a parked automobile belonging to Mr. C. Caldwell of Albert Street.

Culmination of sixty-four years of courteous efficient service to the public came today with the doors of the shop of Harry G. Green, well-known Front Street provision merchant closed permanently. The business was established in 1878 by the late Mr. Charles Green, father of the present proprietor, in a shop on Bridge Street. The business gradually expanded, requiring newer and larger quarters, which were eventually transferred to the present location at 181 Front Street where it has flourished for the past forty-four years. It is the only business remaining in which employer and employees co-operated, it seem in the fact that four of the employees aggregate 80 years of service with Mr. Green. Heading this fine record is that of Morley Tugwell with 23 years service; eVnon McKnight, 20 years of service; Henry Donaldson, 12 years and George Frechette, 8 years.

Belleville men were rescued from Lake Ontario yesterday when their sailing craft capsized off the Outlet Beach. They were E. Colborne, A. Lanyon and B. Flander. The timely help given by Norman MacDonald and Kenneth Hyatt undoubtedly prevented a tragedy.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told that if we don't have air escape when we open canned goods, the contents aren't any good. I try and I can't open with cans. I would like your opinion. — Mrs. J. S.

Be careful of dented cans. And especially, look out for bulging ones, because this means that fermentation has been building up pressure inside. Such cans "fizz," and some will squirt contents a11 plenty, or may leave you with a chronic stab. In the latter event X-rays will disclose faulty functioning of the gall bladder and stones may be found — not the cause, of course, but a result.

Stones do not disappear by themselves, nor by any known kind of diet pill. But they can and causing trouble, surgery may be necessary. There is quick relief from getting rid of the faulty gall bladder may make the operation unnecessary while. But conservative treatment should be given a chance first, just as you are now doing.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it harmful to take two Vitamin B-12 pills a day? Is it possible to take too much? — B.B.

No. And no. But if you take more than you need, you are wasting money. Why not save?

This depends on its use — if to soak an infected area, no. But take over a period of days in doses to avoid violent purging and you may find a change in watery, diarrheal stool from Epsom salts may make you liable to insulin reaction. There are blander types of laxatives that are more suitable. Agree?

Cholecystitis Sometimes Resembles Heart Disease

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: For four months my husband had angina — like pains in his chest and arms. Finally tests and X-rays proved it to be gallbladder trouble — cholecystitis. The doctor put him on medication and a low fat diet.

What is this ailment, and how it take a long time to cure? — Mrs. L.M.

It also has a nasty habit of resembling heart disease, and it is not uncommon for the two to be confused until suitable tests have been made. (It's really tough when, as occasionally happens, a patient does have both problems at the same time.)

With proper treatment, such as your husband is getting, the condition may clear up completely, or may leave only a chronic state. In the latter event X-rays will disclose faulty functioning of the gall bladder and stones may be found — not the cause, of course, but a result.

Stones do not disappear by themselves, nor by any known kind of diet pill. But they can and causing trouble, surgery may be necessary. Police Chase Kills Two

Windsor Star

A police car chase at breakneck speeds along business and residential thoroughfares of Windsor early Saturday of an automobile whose driver didn't stop when police signalled him for speeding resulted in a violent four-car collision that took the lives of two persons, caused serious injuries to another and minor injuries to a Garden City, Mich., couple.

Only one of the four occupants in the fatal car of who was badly injured — was involved in the alleged breach of law. The others were in cars that happened to be in the path of the wild race in which speeds of up to 110 miles an hour were registered.

Tragedies of this kind are not as uncommon as one might think. They are the fate motorists here Saturday — one a Windsor man and the other a 19-year-old sailor serving on the H.M.C.S. Stratford, which docked at Windsor the past weekend — bring to six the death toll in Essex County during the past eight years of persons killed in accidents where police officers were involved.

In our view there should be an immediate and thorough investigation of the police chase in which the innocent people were the victims of a police action that resulted in the loss of two lives.

There should be a review of the regulations or instructions under which the police are operating in trying to stop fleeing motorists.

There are times when police owe it to move quickly to enforce laws as protection to the public, but there is no justification for their placing the lives of innocent people — other motorists or pedestrians — in jeopardy in the pursuit of their duty.

Police patrol cars have radio communication with police in the city and suburban communities as well as with the Ontario Provincial Police. A motorist trying to escape should have little chance of getting away. But even at the expense of losing him, the police in other areas have to retake the risks that involve the safety of innocent motorists, pedestrians and of themselves.

Deaths and injuries resulting from police chases in this county in recent years have reached such proportions that action should be taken immediately to ensure as far as is possible that the police pursuit of a wrong-doer is not going to expose others going about their business to such dangers.

Country Rain Meaningful

New York Herald Tribune

Rain is much more pervasive and personal thing in the country than when it lashes the city streets. From the moment when the first drops set the roof to drumming, rain has a kind of meaning.

One cannot defy it, during the early outdoor round, by diving into the subway or dodging from awning to awning. Even though the trees may give some shelter, the undersized umbrella that it by admonishing a drenching, much as a mother admonishes a child. And open fields are far more exposed to the downpour than is ravenous city street.

But while the country rain may be more beguiling than rain in the city, it is also more revealing. One sees the gentle fluffy of the rising level of the well; of the freshened streams; of the pools that appear in low places; of the quickening birch leaves and the flowers that rain returns to mud for a time, at least the dust is laid, and the very stones of the city have a glisten.

Also, standing under the guarded old apple tree on the hill, the clouds appear in fast, grim mass. Almost at once, the rain is making the rounded summits across the valley.

But beneath their somber canopy the rain is scouring and cleansing, and making all new and prevailing gray tones, there is nothing in the sudden, gusty thrill of a bird; country rain is full of promise.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When a provincial government builds a by-pass highway around a small town in order to facilitate the main flow of traffic it is well to spare a thought for the nuisance of their principal street being a bottleneck in a heavily travelled highway, it usually serves its purpose.

But when a by-pass is built around a city, all it becomes is a fast cross-town artery for the city itself. It is true that through-traffic can move a lot faster than if it had to muddle through the city. But no sooner is the by-pass built than you see a sudden increase in the number of construction trucks, bulldozers, earthmovers and a small town's industrial area.

What a by-pass around a city does is open up extensive new real estate developments. It becomes a beehive of activity as a suburban main thoroughfare. By the time a by-pass is ten years old, it is one of the most crowded streets in the whole area. A by-pass is a powerful stimulus to a city's growth. Small towns should bear this in mind when thinking about the expense of by-passes. Expense, that is, to the province, and, of course, to them.

Astonishing Sentence

Toronto Star

There is something astonishing and should be said about the fact that a county judge in Ottawa passed the other day on a former Liberal MP who was convicted of accepting a bribe while in office.

Raymond Bruneau was found guilty of taking a $10,000 bribe when he was what he was a Liberal MP for Glengarry — Prescott. In other words, he undertook to use his influence in arranging government purchases of some kind. The sentence that Judge Frank Costello saw fit to impose on the Conservative two years — but he suspended the sentence, permitting Mr. Bruneau to go free.

This was extraordinary leniency. But more unusual were the reasons the judge advanced for it. To have sent the bribe-taking MP to jail, he explained, would be a gratuitous "insult" to the House of Commons and members of Legislatures because it would illustrate they failed to be deterred against bribery. In any case, he suggested, the bribe-taking crime was an illustration of the inadequacy of the $10,000 salary of some Members of Parliament. He indicated the MP was driven to the bribe-taking because he was in desperate need of money.

This is highly dubious reasoning. Deterrence is a legitimate and necessary part of punishment — but it is only one of the purposes. Important also is the penalty the evildoer for his crime. In this case, by suspending the sentence of conviction, who had violated his oath to serve the public well, a sentence milder than one usually given to, say, a shoplifter.

Mr. Bruneau's is only the second such case Costello has done. One has to go back to Thomas McGreevy, an MP, before him to find a similar case of conspiracy in an affair involving harbor contracts, to find the other instance.

In both cases, the man did more than merely break the law. They also betrayed their trust as public trust.

An exemplary sentence would have been in order in Mr. Bruneau's case. It make it clear to other elected officials that standards of morality in public office cannot be violated lightly. The legal tap on the knuckles in the sudden in Mr. Bruneau is quite incomprehensible.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar was at a premium of 7⅛ per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Montreal reported near noon today. Tuesday's noon rate was 7⅛.

King sized roto tiller (above) is used to mix cement and scarified road materials as part of "cement stabilization" process. Mixed material is sprayed (left) with up to two gallons of water for each bag of cement used.

TAR ADDED

To complete the operation the road is given surface treatment of tar and chips and the street is again ready for traffic. Heavy trucks are kept off the roadway for a day or so to allow the stabilization to set.

According to reports this method is used with considerable success in the Canadian West, particularly Saskatchewan.

And in California the process is sometimes used for main highways.

"It all depends on roadway conditions and what you have to work with", commented one official.

For the Farley Ave. operation 800 bags of cement were used for the 800 feet of roadway.

The cement is dry mixed with the roadway materials, then water is sprayed on and the whole thoroughly mixed before regrading and rolling.

Farley Avenue 'Stabilized' But Adding Cement to Road

"Rapid road repairs" is another term which might be used to describe the special road building technique otherwise known as "cement stabilization".

The city public works department, under acting city engineer Richard Kraft, yesterday "stabilized" a 900 foot section of Farley Ave. north of Victoria, which has been giving pothole trouble.

As the stabilization technique is relatively new in this area, Department of Highways officials from Kingston, and also municipal officials from several Eastern Ontario points, were on hand to view the operation.

The technique is simply this: the existing roadway is thoroughly broken up to a depth mixed with cement and water.

Doubt Common Mart Pact Ready by Time PM's Meet

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The suspicion is growing in British political quarters that the September conference of Commonwealth prime ministers may fall short of its original objectives.

Though there is little likelihood of the Sept. 30 opening date of the conference being changed, it is felt the meeting will not get after all provide the Commonwealth's last word on whether or not Britain should join the European Common Market.

As originally envisaged, the London talks were expected to be among the most important the Commonwealth family has had. Britain had hoped to have by September a broad outline of the kind of terms on which she could become a member of the European club.

Every passing day, however, makes it look less and less likely that an acceptable agreement will be possible. The Brussels negotiations appear to be making little progress and it is unlikely there will be any dramatic developments in a holiday month like August.

MAC CAREFUL

Some British negotiators are hopeful of a breakthrough. Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath still puts an optimistic face on things. But observers noted that Prime Minister Macmillan was unusually careful in his statements in the Commons last Thursday.

If the September conference finds Britain unable to present even the broad outline of terms for British entry, a second conference of Commonwealth premiers might be required.

To all such inquiries, officials give the same answer: "It depends on what happens at Brussels." The next ministerial meeting in Brussels starts Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Britain has run into trouble in her bid to join the Common Market countries in talks on a European political union. France and West Germany are reported still resisting British overtures for participation.

Conservation Authority Given Grant

Mr. Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P. for Hastings East, announced the approval of a Provincial grant of $3200 to the Moira River Conservation Authority for capital improvements in the Colonial Rescue Vandervater Conservation Area.

This Conservation Area is located on the east side of the Moira River, 14 miles northeast of Belleville. It comprises 415 acres of recreational land in Hungerford township. In 1962, the Authority will carry out the program of capital improvements in which the service road will be extended one-half mile, and additional picnic and parking areas, signs and fences, will be installed.

All member municipalities will bear the Authority's share of the costs.

St. Joseph's C.W.L. Plans Fall Bazaar

Recently, at the home of Mrs. B. F. Bedard, convener, of St. Joseph's fall bazaar to be held in October, a meeting of some of the conveners took place to get work under way for the Christmas sewing and knitting booths. Mrs. Z. WEDDING

JONES—CURRIE

Grace United Church, Trenton, was the setting for a recent lovely summer double-ring wedding when Marilyn E. Currie, of Regina, Saskatchewan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sproule F. Currie, of Trenton, Ontario, became the bride of Constable R. Ronald Jones, of the R.C.M.P., of Regina, Sask., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Jones of Trenton, R.R. 2. The Rev. J. T. Irwin, of Trenton, officiated before a background of white and yellow carnations, interspersed with ferns.

Mrs. Howard Leggico, church organist provided the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming satin bridal gown, with fitted bodice, long fully-point sleeves, and full skirt in floor-length cascading into a chapel train. She wore a crown headdress of seed pearls and sequins and lily sequins, holding her full length veil of illusion tulle, and carrying a cascade of red roses.

The bride was attended by Miss Glenna Sproule, of Trenton; Miss Lorraine Ireland, of Glen Miller, Ontario; Miss Janis Hope of Oakville; Miss Linda Brick of Trenton, maid of honor, and Miss Virginia Doherty of Brighton, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

All the attendants were gowned in red satin matching that of the bridegroom's uniform, the escort of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police; bubbleed and rounded neck lines and cap sleeves. They wore white gloves in short length, white accessories and carried white nosegays of white and red carnations intermingled. Their headdresses were red flower caps with white veils.

Mr. George Jones, brother of the bridegroom, of Trenton, R.R. 1, was groomsman and Messrs. Kenneth Currie, of Trenton, brother of the bride, Ronald Parker and Frank Hawken, both also of Trenton were ushers.

The reception which followed the ceremony, was held at Trenton Country Club, which was decorated in red and white carnations for the occasion.

The bride's table was centred by a three-tier wedding cake, topped by a miniature Royal Canadian Mounted Police and bride and mitted about the base with tulle bearing out the color scheme, and flanked by candelabras.

The bride's mother, wearing mint-green organza over taffeta with lace trim, matching picture hat, white accessories, and corsage of yellow roses, received the guests. The bridegroom's mother in green and gold brocade silk with hat and accessories and corsage of bronze roses.

For the honeymoon through the Kawartha Lakes district, the bride chose a two-piece turquoise ensemble with white accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The bride, prior to her marriage, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Fred Ireland, of Glen Miller, when she was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. Following the presentation of the gifts by Miss Vicki Collier, a barbecue was held later in the garden.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gray are shown cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in Massassaga United Church, Massassaga, Ontario. The bride is the former Miss Verna Lorraine Darling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Rupert, of Fort Erie, Ontario. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gray of Forfar, Scotland. (Photo by Z. W. Yeisman, Belleville).

GRAY — DARLING

Baskets of white and pink gladioli and white chrysanthemums, interspersed with ferns, adorned the chancel in Massassaga United Church, Massassaga, Ontario, and white satin bows the guest pews, for a lovely double-ring wedding on Saturday, July 14, at 2.30 p.m. when Verna Lorraine Darling, of Belleville, R.R. No. 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett T. Rupert, of Fort Erie, Ontario, became the bride of John Gray, of Belleville, formerly of Forfar Scotland, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, of Forfar, Scotland. Rev. Reverend T. F. Townsend, assistant minister of Hollow Street United Church, Belleville, officiated.

Soft wedding music rendered by the church organist, Mrs. W. H. Gray, preceded the ceremony, followed by the triumphant strains of the processional, "Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven," as the bridal procession entered the church. Miss Rosalyn Reardon, the soloist, sang before the ceremony, "The Wedding Prayer," and "O Perfect Love," during the signing of the register. For the recessional Miss Gray played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

Her headdress was of matching shell-pink organza. She carried a cascade of pink carnations and white roses.

Mr. Andrew Craik, of Campbellford, formerly of Forfar, Scotland, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Gary Rupert, of Fort Erie, Ontario, brother of the bride, and Clarke Williamson, of Belleville, formerly of Forfar, Scotland, ushered.

The reception was held at Tobe's County Gardens, Rossmore, Ontario, which was prettily decorated with satin-and-shade streamers, baskets of pink and white gladioli and white chrysanthemums, for the occasion. Following the toasts, the groomsman read several telegrams of good wishes from friends and relatives of the bridegroom in Forfar, Scotland.

White damask covered the bridal-table which was centred by a round, pillared, three-tier wedding cake, topped by a cluster of white lilies-of-the-valley beneath a white Arch with pink bells bow and pendant white wedding bell, the base nesting in white bells and surrounded by pink rosebuds. Tall pink and white candles in silver tri-branched candelabra completed the nuptial setting.

Receiving the guests was the bride's mother, attired in a honey-beige lace sheath with matching hat and accessories, and corsage of orange Delight roses.

For the wedding trip to Montreal, thence via air to Foglar, Scotland, Mrs. Gray travelled in a two-piece navy surrah silk ensemble, the bodice being of pink and blue lace net overlay; with matching duster, navy shoes and bag, pink organza hat, and corsage of pink carnations.

The bride, previous to her marriage, was entertained at a linen shower held at the home of Mrs. Earl W. Yateman, Belleville, in the presentation of an oven ware roaster with serving tray by the employees of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, of which the bride was a respondent. The bridegroom was also presented with an electric floor polisher by the employees of the Electric Motor Sales and Service.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride, luggage; to the groomsman, a Capri lighter; to the ushers, gold cuff links with bridegroom's crest; the bride's gift to her bridegroom, a gold and onyx signet ring; to her matron of honor, a jewel box with earrings; and to the organist and soloist, jewellery.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray will reside at Belleville, R.R. 7.

She Scoffs at Barriers Facing Women in Business

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. P. R. Kidd scoffs at the so-called barriers facing women in business, and she advises careers girls to do the same.

Recently appointed assistant secretary of the new British Columbia Power Commission Authority, Mrs. Kidd brings to it a credo long fixed in her way of life.

"There is absolutely no disadvantage in being a woman," interviewed in her Vancouver office—she has another in Victoria—Mrs. Kidd said most of the difficulties women encounter in jobs can be traced to attitude, rather than capability.

"If you're intensely interested in a job and are prepared to learn more about it—that's half the battle.

"There's no guesswork in promotion, you know. You have to show you are capable of doing the job and prepared to take additional responsibility."

To advance, you have to try. And most women don't, says Mrs. Kidd.

"They don't go into a job with the idea that it can lead to a position with professional standing.

"And sometimes they don't realize that they have a flair for some certain job until they're pitch-decided into it."

WIDELY TRAVELLED

Mrs. Kidd always applied for positions if she thought she was capable of filling the vacancy. Her practice took her to Europe five times, to South America and through half a dozen administrative careers.

Her last was at the British Library of Information in New York. After two years she married and began writing for a family. She returned to career work in 1956, this time with the National Research Council in Ottawa.

In 1940 she set up and headed the British technical mission in Ottawa and then joined the federal mines department.

On loan from the Canadian government to the United Nations, she went on a technical assistance mission to Bolivia, after which she spent nine years with the UN in New York.

In 1959 she came west to take a position with the B.C. Hydro Commission, and moved to the hydro and power authority upon its formation.

Mrs. Kidd counsels the highest — possible education for women, because "now - a - days an untrained office boy or reception clerk just doesn't get to be a vice-president."

She began her own higher education at the University of Toronto, where she majored in modern languages and surprised her family and friends by adding typing and shorthand to her talents.

MARSH HILL — Mrs. Berson Mills opened her home for the July meeting of the Marsh Hill U.C.W. The president, Mrs. Harry Coulter, opened the meeting with reading from Proverbs 22:1-12.

Mrs. Alex Tanner conducted the worship period. Mrs. Barkindale read the Scripture readings from Luke 19:14 and 43 and Luke 12:34.

The community friendship convener, Mrs. Mitts in her report for the month stated that 36 cards and two letters had been sent, five hospital calls and six house calls made.

The secretary, Mrs. Fred Campbell called the roll to which ten members answered and one visitor was present.

The treasurer, Mrs. Allyn Finkle is to give to the supply secretary, Mrs. Farley Lindenfield, balance required for the sale.

A letter was read regarding the school for United Church Women to be held at Whitby August 30 to 24.

There will be no meeting in August.

Mrs. David Little took charge of the following programme.

Mrs. E. B. Fields conducted the Bible Study taken from 2nd Kings 23:3-3 and also verses 21-27.

Mrs. Ben Bleecker gave a reading, "Give A Kind Word When You Can".

Mrs. Little gave the chapter from the study book, "Heard in the Echo".

After Mrs. Alex Tanner closed the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Bleecker.

Not-So-Sloppy Joes

by Mary Moore

Ever since the recipe for Aunt Anna's Sloppy Joes appeared here in April of 1956 I have been running across it in other print, on the air and conversation.

It was and is a highly useful recipe, for dependable hamburger — the friend of all budgeters — may be used in it. It is extendable, Because of its moist richness it is popular with young folks — but isn't anything if it is on a bun?

Now we have come up with Not-So-Sloppy Joes that substitute a can of undiluted vegetable soup for some of the tomato-y ingredients in Sloppy Joes and this makes it pretty.

The recipe I am giving you will serve 6 to 8 but if you are going to double or triple or quadruple this recipe for a cookout supper where appetites are heartier, count on this recipe serving only 5, for you will have to serve seconds. The buns do not have to be buttered, but are improved if they are warmed.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Pot Roast of Beef with Mushroom Gravy; Rosebud Beets; Cauliflower; Tomato and Cucumber Salad with Cottage Cheese Dressing; Rosy Baked Rhubarb; Swedish Thimble Cookies (see Tuesday); Coffee.

NOT-SO-SLOPPY JOES
(serves 6 to 8)

2 tablespoons shortening, cooking oil or other fat; 1½ lbs. ground chuck beef; 1 tablespoon dried minced onion; ¾ teaspoon garlic salt; ¼ cup catsup; 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; ¾ teaspoon dry mustard; ½ teaspoon salt; 1 10-oz. can vegetable soup, undiluted.

Brown the ground chuck in the fat or oil (I used leftover turkey fat), chopping and stirring constantly to break up the meat until it is all lightly browned. Add minced onion and stir in. Add garlic salt, catsup, Worcestershire sauce, mustard, salt and undiluted vegetable soup. Cook gently 15 to 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve on warm unbuttered hamburg buns.

Notes: 1) This Sloppy Joe mixture may be served over toast or split buns and eaten with a knife and fork. That is a good thing to do with it for it then becomes the meat item for a family dinner or supper. Served with a generous amount of the vegetables in season such as new beans, cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli and spinich, it makes an attractive plate.

2) If desired the Sloppy Joe mixture may be transferred to the oven when all ingredients are added, and cooking may be finished there. Instead of 15 to 20 minutes gentle cooking on top of stove, bake it 30 minutes at 325 deg. F'ahr.

Women's Institute

CHATTERTON W. I.

The July meeting of the Chatterton W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. A. W. Barlow with 24 members, one visitor and one child present.

The president Mrs. L. Reid, opened the meeting followed by community singing.

A thank you card from Mr. E. B. Fiskin was read. It was decided to send a donation for a prize to the Stirling Fair; also a donation will be sent to the Mental Health Association.

The remainder of the items were sold on the mat which was donated to the Institute by Mrs. E. B. Fiskin. Master Richard Bow, lives the lucky ticket and the winner was Mrs. C. B. Gardner, who gave the lovely mat to Richard.

The convener, Mrs. Gardner, chose as her subjects "Ontario Vacations" and "Safety Rules." She emphasized that parents are responsible for teaching their children water safety rules. Also, it is important that boat owners know the rules of safe boating in order to enjoy a happy holiday, free of accidents. A quiz followed and several illustrative folders were passed.

Mrs. L. Reid gave a reading on Australia". Mr. Barlow showed slides of Florida, also several local pictures, which proved most interesting.

Lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

Can You Invite Guests To Church Only?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—My daughter is inviting 75 to 100 to attend her afternoon wedding in church. Later just the wedding party and immediate families will have dinner at a lodge.

Is it proper to invite people to the wedding and not to the dinner?—GAINING A SON.

DEAR GAINING—Guests do not expect to attend the reception unless this is definitely stated. When the invitation is just to the church, no RSVP is requested.

If the wedding is informal, the invitation may be extended by means of a brief friendly note, or even by a telephone call.

On one such occasion I was invited, along with others, to step into the church parlor—after the ceremony—in order to meet the bride and groom.

Here tea and cake were served (not wedding cake, but a large white cake, specially frosted) and the newlyweds stayed long enough to visit among their friends while they had their tea. This took no more than half an hour, and yet was a gracious gesture. The bridal party had a small dinner later.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—Since I am a divorcee and plan to marry again, I would appreciate any advice or suggestions you could give regarding wearing apparel, procedure, etc.

1. Would it be in any way improper if I were to wear white accessories with my blue dress? My matron of honor is to wear a darker blue, also with white accessories. My small daughter, age 7, is to wear white with blue accessories and my young son, age 9, is to be ring bearer.

2. I have always regretted that I didn't have my father to give me away at my first wedding. Would it be improper for him to do that now?

3. My first husband's parents will be there as we have always been fond of each other. What is the usual procedure in this case? Should they also have red rose corsages? They are very dear to me.—HAPPILY IMPATIENT.

DEAR HAPPILY—

1. Not improper at all. Just avoid white gown and veil.

2. No. A very nice way to make up for last time.

3. Your ex-parents-in-law will be there as good friends, not as relations. Don't embarrass them with corsages.

• • •

(What to do about a special occasion sometimes stumps us. Write to Doris for help.)

PLANS OVERSEAS WEDDING — Leading Aircwoman Jackie Coulson (left), stationed with the RCAF at Baden-Soellingen, West Germany, shows wedding dress to Cpl. Margaret Paterson... Jackie, who will be married in August to a Halifax airman, must plan for a civil wedding ceremony as required by the West German law and for the church ceremony a few days later in the airbase chapel. (CP from National Defence).

Leading Airwoman Plans Two Wedding Ceremonies

By EDNA BLAKELY

BADEN-SOELLINGEN, Germany, (CP)—Like all Canadian brides here, Leading Aircwoman Jackie Coulson is planning two wedding ceremonies.

West German law requires a civil marriage and Canadians married here usually go through this service a few days before the religious ceremony in one of the chapels on the RCAF base.

"We really don't make any plans for the civil ceremony. Most of us consider it just like taking out the licence at home."

The 15-minute ceremony will be performed by the mayor in the nearby town of Rastatt.

Both Jackie and her husband-to-be are from Halifax but they didn't meet until they were posted to Trenton, Ont. They were send overseas within a few months of each other.

MAKES OWN CLOTHES

Jackie, who is a svelte size nine, is having trouble finding clothes for her trousseau that are small enough to fit her. She hopes soon to visit France where she will buy her wedding dress, and says she will make some of the clothes for her trousseau.

She plans to remain in the service after her marriage. The couple have already found the furnished apartment they will rent in Hugelheim, a town about 10 minutes' drive from the station.

She hopes to have the actual marriage ceremony put on tape and have movies taken of the wedding so that "it will be the next best thing for my parents who won't be here."

The couple plan to spend their honeymoon at Duncon, Argyle, Scotland, where Jackie's father grew up. Some of her relatives still live there and Jackie has wanted all her life to visit them.

"That will be one childhood whim satisfied."

The oldest of four daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Coulson of Halifax, she was the first to leave home when she went to Penticton, B.C., to get a job. She helped with the Air Radio Corps there and became interested in an RCAF person.

At Baden, she is secretary to Group Capt. John S. Jordan, commanding officer of the RCAF, No. 4 fighter wing.

She's a Brownie leader and once a week attends a radio course. Soon she will become an announcer for a children's program to be broadcast from Baden over the Canadian Forces Network.

On weekends, Jackie and Vic pack a lunch and take long drives through the neighboring villages.

"We're always finding nice little places that we want to go back to, but we can never find them again," she said.

U.C.W. Meeting

WELLINGTON — The regular meeting of Unit 2 of the United Church Women was held on July 10th at the lovely home of Mrs. Gerald Stoneburg, close by the waters of West Lake.

It was a beautiful afternoon and 14 members and seven visitors enjoyed the hospitality and the fellowship of the meeting. Mrs. Jeanne Hamel, who was president of the W.M.S. before leaving to reside in Toronto was asked to preside. The necessary reports were read and approved and a partial report of the successful bazaar and tea held on the park July 7th was given. The collection was taken and dedicated by Mrs. E. Wells.

Mrs. G. Taylor then took charge of the meeting and called on Mrs. Stoneburg to give the devotional and she chose as her theme, "The Listening Ear" and what a privilege it is to hear the voice of God in nature's symphony. She closed her impressive talk with prayer.

GUEST SPEAKER

At this time Mrs. Taylor introduced the special speaker, Mrs. Ina Lamb (nee Rachel Fergusan), who told of her trip to Africa and of her life for the past two years in southern Rhodesia. Mr. and Mrs. Lamb spent the Christmas of 1959 aboard ship on their trip which lasted two weeks with one stop at the Canary Islands. The weather was very hot when they crossed the equator on New Year's Day. She stated that one third of the population (800,000) of the resort city of Durban are Indian. The official language is called Africans. Almost all Africans stores are managed by Indians as they are much the better business men, whereas the Africans are lacking in business ability.

Mrs. Taylor expressed appreciative thanks to the guest speaker.

Mrs. J. L. Hoag briefly paid tribute to the hostess, Mrs. Stoneburgh, who was presented with a lovely travelling clock by Miss Gladys Puttnguth. Little Miss Sharon Stoneburg was presented with a little necklace, after which they both expressed their thanks.

The ladies enjoyed a social half hour over a cup of tea served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. C. Hicks, Sharon Stoneburg, Ann Robinson and Carol Thompson.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mary U. — He moved me far from my relatives and I'm lonely.

* * *

Mary U. — I was born in Spain and was brought to America as a baby by my parents who settled in Texas. That's where we became United States citizens and where my folks still live. And that's where I met Chris whom I married three years ago.

He promptly moved me to Minnesota where he teaches languages in a suburban high school. Now we have a year-old daughter and she's all I've got to ease my loneliness. My husband gives me no companionship at all. He gets home in a bad humor and retreats to his study as fast as possible with examination papers to correct or a new textbook to write. When I raise a fuss, he'll take the baby and me for a Sunday drive. But he never makes plans for a real outing.

The neighbors are all very cliquey, with no special interest in a new arrival like me. I'm pining to see my family. But Chris won't let me invite them, nor will he let me plan a visit South.

* * *

Chris U. — When people get married, they're supposed to be prepared to move away from their parents. Mary's parents left Spain behind and I expect Mary to leave Texas behind. My family is in New York and I haven't seen them since my wedding. Now that we have the baby, I expect that any relatives who can get up this way during their vacations will stop in. That's all right with me, as long as it's just a stopover. But what Mary wants is for her folks to settle down with us to keep her company. That's for a helpless little girl, not a grown married woman. I want to see Mary snap out of her dependency and get interested in books and hobbies.

She can't depend upon me as her sole companion. My job is exacting and exhausting. I require much solitude for homestudying. As for the neighbors, she's been sweeping haughtily past them. Once she realizes she must depend upon their friendship and can't run back to Texas, she'll find them to be nice people indeed.

* * *

The Council: There's one important point Chris is missing and that's the full meaning of just the legal one, of the word "married." When Mary finds that she was merely being severed from old ties with no new, warm, fulfilling ones to take their place. Yes, Chris, when people marry, and then work at their emotional needs can be pretty well filled by the new love and the new rewards which substitute for the old attachments necessarily left behind. You haven't worked for a place for Mary what you asked her to relinquish.

But she, on the other hand, has merely sulked away three precious years. So injured does she feel at being uprooted and carried to foreign soil, that she seems positively reminded Chris of the great injustice he visited on her, and she moves nary a little finger to "make the best of it." No wonder Chris makes a frantic beeline to his cloister on any pretext — study, his own work, headache, "the cranks," or just wants to dodge the long face, the tears, the self-pity and recriminations.

We'll wager that the pall in this home will lift once the corners of Mary's mouth begin to lift in a good-sport cheery greeting to Chris each evening. There's much left waiting in Chris's behavior as a husband and father, but it's Mary who can set the wheel of progress spinning. First, she can make a sincere effort to be a relaxed, natural neighbor. All it takes is a few pleasant Good Mornings and an occasional, kindly May-I-help-you?

Then, she can dig up a few quiet interests of her own (sewing? gardening? Renaissance Art?) to grip her while Chris is intellectually engrossed. It's not fair to dump the whole problem of her depression in his lap. He has a few problems he'd like to dump in hers, no doubt.

As for Chris, he must respond to Mary's new efforts by joining her in plans for a once-a-week (at least) treat among other adults, and by firming up plans for a vacation with her loved ones. Marriage, doesn't mean the renunciation he does forbes.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

RANDOM MUSINGS

Lives there a man who hasn't had second thoughts about the unscorted woman he sees at a bar or cocktail lounge?

No, Romeo, I'm not talking about possible flirtations. The clean-cut man I'm thinking of is the one who considers, that the lone woman might well have been his wife or daughter.

This man is not necessarily a prude. But he has a sense of decorum, as the woman should have.

To begin with, the unscorted woman must never sit at the bar by herself, even though her date has told her to do so, if she arrives first, she should immediately sit at a table. And she should studiously avoid showing any interest in the unescorted men at the bar.

If her date has any sense of propriety, or just plain good sense, he will make it his business to get to the place at least 10 minutes earlier than the appointed time. Then he can greet her as she comes through the door and bring her to the table.

This brings up another problem that has puzzled a number of readers: Is it ever proper for an escorted woman to sit with her husband or date at the bar of a restaurant or cocktail lounge?

I won't say it's absolutely proper, but it is done, and in the best of places, so I guess that gives the practice some sort of license. But if a woman is squeamish about being so close to the source of supply, she can always tactfully suggest to her escort that she'd be more comfortable at a table.

* * *

Showing respect to your elders can be carried too far. And it's the elders who often resent cloying solicitude.

For one thing, many are apt to dislike being helped around as if they were doddering idiots. Many an elderly person can, and prefers to, do things for himself.

Younger members of the family also often make the mistake of insisting he eat everything in sight, just because they think it's good for him. Don't forget, his capacity may be limited. Respect may be better demonstrated by asking if there is anything special he prefers, thus pampering the palate a bit.

Another mistake younger citizens often make is giving in to their seniors right down the line in a discussion. Perhaps their bodies have aged, but their minds often are as sharp as ever, and they can tell when you're throwing in the towel just to be "respectful."

Naturally, there are limits as to how far you curtail your display of respect. Simply remember that many a modern elder thinks of his age as a number that doesn't mean as much as it used to.

U.C.W. Meetings

MELROSE U.C.W.

Mrs. William McKechan was hostess for the July meeting of the Melrose United Church Women with an attendance of 10.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Grant McLaren, the president, assisted by Mrs. John McLaren and Mrs. Arthur English. Mrs. McLaren also led in a Bible Study session — studying the various versions of the Scriptures from early times up to the present, the new version being used so extensively in recent years.

It was decided that the ladies would cater to a wedding in August.

The program convener, Mrs. Clare Weese, dealt in an interesting manner with the topic, "Getting By Today" discussing moral standards and are the standards improving or declining? To prove or disprove the theory that they are declining, Mrs. Weese used many news items from the local press and periodicals. "If in many instances the standards are declining; why is this so?"

Several members dealt briefly with the subjects, "Our Attitudes Towards Debts" — "The Importance of Material Things in Our Present Day Life"; "Increased Pressure on Modern Life", and "Cheating — Both Adults and Children".

While the members were pondering on these subjects, Sandra Weese favored with a piano solo.

"If for so many reasons, our moral standards are declining is not time for us, as church members, to stop and decide about our principles? Do we love our neighbors? Are we self-ish? Do our moral standards testify to the kind of God in which we believe and trust?

Mrs. Radgley read from the "Rose of Life", by Dr. Stuart Hoskeday — "Righteousness is the natural goal of good society. Beware, however, the trap of self-righteousness. We have a moral right to approve or disapprove of certain behaviours; yet, no man may assume the right to judge others. We need moral standards but they must be linked to an awareness that we, too, are fallible."

Mrs. Weese closed with a prayer for hurried. There never was a time in the world's history when so much had to be done, but there never was a time when haste might do so little. The greatest loss may be the loss of understanding and direction. "May the Lord slow us down that we may send our roots into the soil of life's enduring values; that we may grow towards the stars of a greater destiny. We can remember that we have a Helper in our fight to bolster our declining standards.

Mrs. Weese also read a story of the Missionary boat that plies along the Pacific coast of British Columbia bringing God's word and comfort to the isolated inhabitants.

After the collection was received, the president thanked the hostess and the convener and closed the meeting.

Mrs. McKechan and her assistants served lunch and a cup of tea for a social half hour.

It is the first school held since the U.C.W. organization was formed and will provide a wonderful opportunity for women to receive inspiration, leadership training, a better knowledge of the work of the organization.

Such leaders as Miss Beatrice Wilson, recent guest speaker at the Cobourg Presbyterial rallies; Mrs. Fit-Gilmour, Mrs. J. H. McKinney and Mrs. S. Saywell, will be in charge of topics. Missionary speaker will be Miss Millicent Howse and Mrs. S. R. Collier, both of Angola. Mrs. W. C. Iyes of Bowmanville will bring Literature reports and hymn singing will be in charge of Mrs. F. C. Clark.

PASSES MILITARY BILL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has passed and sent to President Kennedy a bill authorizing military construction projects totalling $1,455,672,000 in the current fiscal year. Authorizations for military construction in Canada are not spelled out in the bill. Huge lump sums are listed under the heading "outside the United States," with no indication at to the exact location where the money is to be used.

Dairy Princess Title Won By Valda McCleary For Northumberland County

CAMPBELLFORD — Valda McCleary, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin McCleary of Roseneath, won the 1962 Northumberland Dairy Princess title at the twilight meeting held near here Friday night.

The twilight meeting, staged by the Northumberland Holstein Association, is an annual event. Similar meetings are held in other countries in the province each year. The meeting this year was held at the farm of W. Alymer Petherick at Petherick's Corners five miles north-east of Campbellford. Mr. Petherick has one of the finest herds of Holsteins in the county, and his cattle have won a number of awards.

Jerry Nelson of Port Perry, field man for the East Central Association, acted as master of ceremonies for the evening and presided for the judging of the Petherick cattle by members of the club. President of the Northumberland Association is Robert Jubb.

DAIRY PRINCESS CONTEST

The Dairy Princess contest is not a beauty contest alone, although most of the 300 people present agreed that Valda could have won the title on that point alone. She had to display her ability to milk a cow, and was judged on general appearance, appearance, personality and knowledge of what is required in the care of a dairy herd. Showmanship in handling the animals is also a factor in the judging.

Following the judging, the group enjoyed a program of entertainment and refreshments.

Miss McCleary will lappear at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto in September, where she will compete with Dairy Princesses from other districts for the Ontario title. Her job will promote dairy products in general for the association.

VOCAL DUETS

On the program, vocal duets with guitar and accordion accompaniment were given by Bob and Fran Spencer, Bagpipe music was played by Carl Linn and Art Mathews with Betty Linn on the drums. Betty also danced the Highland Fling.

Mr. Sanbury introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Starr, who spoke and showed slides on his trip last year with the 4-H Farmer's team Mr. Starr was thanked by vice-president, Ross Middleton.

Bride-to-be Feted by Gift Shower

FRANKFORD — Miss Eleanor Beach, and Miss Colleen Chase were hostesses to a shower at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. Escon on Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Margaret Sline, who is being married on Saturday, July 21.

A book of the honored guest was composed with pictures and poetry and presented to her.

A lovely hotsess chair was also presented to Margaret by her girl friends for which she thanked them.

The hostesses served a luncheon and a time of fellowship was enjoyed.

Place Hands, You're Dancing 'The Popeye'

Then one pivots, but slowly.

What results is the latest rage in teen-age dancing, called "The Popeye" and it comes complete with wardrobe.

The latter, an anatomical exercise in which the top and bottom portions counter - rotate swiftly and with feeling, is on the "way out," say teen-agers.

What is in a dance that's a cross between a hornpipe and square-dancing.

SLACKS SALES UP

"In the last three months I've made more than 100 pairs of bell-bottomed slacks for "the Popeye." I figure we're at the middle of its popularity peak right now."

The slacks — "tricked" to the initiated — hug the thigh and cling to the knee. From there, they cascade about the ankle in ruffs that range up to 26 inches. The bottoms are adorned with buttons, ornate straps or pieces of chain.

How did the dance catch on? Young Toronto tried the rooch and the snake; they had a go at the locomotion, surf-stomping and the wrist and the mashed potatoes. But what where they but variations on the twist?

Then a United States singer named Eddie Bo cut a record called Popeye and set unlike a square-dance in that the singer details the steps and body movements in the lyrics. Hughie Smith followed with a similar record.

LATEST DANCE CRAZE — Toronto, teen-ager demonstrates the Popeye, a dance described as a cross between the hornpipe and square dancing. Many of the dancers wear bell-bottomed slacks, which hug the thigh and cling to the knee. Buttons, ornate straps or pieces of chain adorn the bottoms. —(CP Photo).

Not Who a Lady Wed But What a Pig Is Fed Mr. K's Idea of News

He told 14 American newspaper executives in a Friday interview — the text was released here Monday — that "Your papers often print things even Americans do not want to read."

He said American papers "announce sometimes that such and such a lady with a fortune of many millions seeks a husband of such and such an age."

The Soviet premier said Soviet readers were not interested in such stories "but when it comes to getting good gains of weight by pigs or poultry with small expenditure of labor and feed, we watch such matters closely and print this valuable information."

He offered the executives a yardstick of mutual self-help. "You take from us everything that you regard as good and we shall take from you everything good that you have.

"This is precisely the meaning of the policy of peaceful coexistence," he said.

Khrushchev told the men their papers "publish many articles whose authors would have been put in the dock under our law, because they call for war."

He said the United States also released "many films where people sock each other, torture or kill other people, films that contain many perversions."

"We consider this to be uninteresting," he said.

Plaque to Commemorate Escape of Royal George Will Be Unveiled July 21

On Saturday, July 21, commencing at 2.30 p.m., ceremonies in connection with the unveiling of a plaque to commemorate the Escape of the Royal George, will be held beside highway No. 33 about three miles west of Bath, Lennox and Addington County. This plaque is one of a series being erected throughout the province by the Department of Travel and Publicity, acting on the advice of the Archaeological and Historic Sites Board of Ontario.

Saturday's ceremony is being arranged and sponsored by the Lennox and Addington Historical Society, whose President, Judge Gerald F. Smith, will be program chairman. Among those taking part in the ceremony will be: Mr. Norris Whitney, M.P.P., (Prince Edward Lennox); Prof. J. M. S. Careless of the University of Toronto, representing the provincial Historic Sites Board; Prof. E. A. Preston of the Royal Military College, Kingston; Mr. Joseph Shadley, Warden of Lennox and Addington County; and Mr. J. T. Dowling, Reeve of South Fredericksburgh Township. The plaque will be unveiled by Commodore Hugo G. Cheesman, C.D. R.C.N.R., Commanding Officer, H.M.C.S. Cataraqui and dedicated by the Rev. William Sparling, R.C.N.R. Padre, H.M.C.S. Cataraqui.

At the outset of the War of 1812 the British enjoyed a decided advantage on the Great Lakes, as the result of a naval force known as the Provincial Marine of Upper Canada. This force was not, however, a regular navy, but primarily a transport service administered by the Quartermaster-General's Department of the army.

It was taken over by the Royal Navy in 1813, but by that time much of its initial superiority had been overcome by the arrival on the Lakes of United States naval officers and crews, who quickly improvised fighting squadrons.

The chief British supply route in the Lake Ontario region was by water from Kingston to Fort George at the mouth of the Niagara River. The British and Canadian military forces along the Niagara and Detroit frontier were dependent upon this route for war materials and reinforcements, since land communications were slow and uncertain.

Thus as the winter of 1812-13 approached, it was obvious to the American navy personnel that a decisive victory on Lake Ontario, accompanied preferably by the capture of Kingston, would virtually guarantee the success of their western armies, and the capture of Upper Canada. An advocate of this theory was Cagnuodore Isaac Chauncey, commander of the American squadron on the lake.

STATES ACTION

As his fleet lay anchored at Sackett's Harbor, in the early part of November, 1812, he received word that several British ships had gone up the lake to Fort George with troop reinforcements and that another military contingent at Kingston was awaiting their return. Chauncey in a letter to the Secretary of the Navy, stated his intended course of action:

"My present intention is to take if position on the Canada shore near some small islands called the False Ducks, where the enemy are obliged to pass and where I will wait their return to Kingston. If I should succeed in my enterprise (which I have little doubt of) I shall make an attack upon Kingston for the purpose of destroying the guns and public stores at that station".

He set sail for his prearranged position on November 8th, with seven ships and on the following day fell in with the 22-gun corvette "Royal George", commanded by Commodore Hugh Earl (e). (There is some uncertainty about the spelling of the latter's surname, since contemporary documents and even his personal signature sometimes included the final "e" and sometimes omitted it.) The capture of this ship, the most powerful in the provincial marine, would give the Americans a distinct advantage on the lake.

Chauncey chased her through the Upper Gap between Prince Edward County and Amherst Island into the North Channel west of the Bay of Quinte, but lost contact in the ensuing darkness. The following morning he again sighted her and the chase resumed with Earl seeking refuge in Kingston harbor. The rather leisurely pace of the pursuit indicates that light winds or near calm conditions must have existed throughout much of the action. The enemy fleet sailed into the harbor intact on making her a prize, but they came under heavy fire not only from the Royal George but from the shore batteries whose protection Earl had sought.

TWO-HOUR BATTLE

The engagement continued for almost two hours until sundown, when the Americans withdrew and anchored for the night off Four Mile Point. Chauncey intended to continue the action on the following day, probably hoping to end only capture the "Royal George," but also to land the large body of Marines which he had on board. Adverse weather prevented this and Chauncey later explained his position thus:

"... being after sundown, I determined to haul off and renew the attack the next morning. We beat up in good order under a heavy fire from the Royal George and batteries on Point Frederick, where we anchored. It blew heavy in squalls from the westward during the night, and there was every appearance of a gale of wind. The pilot became alarmed and I thought it most prudent to get into a place of more safety. I therefore, very reluctantly) deferred renewing the attack upon the ships and fort until a more favorable opportunity".

The American squadron returned to Sackett's Harbor, little the worse for the engagement and the "Royal George" was permitted the winter months to refit and to repair her badly damaged rigging.

The engagement, the first considerable one of the war, was a small affair but of much strategic significance. Since Chauncey lost a prime opportunity to cripple British naval strength on Lake Ontario. The supply route from Kingston to the Niagara frontier remained open to a greater or lesser extent until the termination of hostilities and permitted a successful defence of Upper Canada.

SASKATCHEWAN

his arrival that he had not come as a negotiator but as an investigator ready to help in whatever way he could.

Don McMillan, president of the Saskatchewan Hospital Association, said Tuesday the association is still trying to settle the dispute.

HEARING CONTINUES

The last negotiations between the government and the college, a few days before the July 1 start of the act, were arranged through the office of the Association.

In other developments, a court hearing was to continue today on an application for an injunction which would in effect suspend operation of the act until its validity could be tested after the summer court recess.

The application was made by Hans Thal, a vice-president of the provincial Keep Our Doctors Committee, Dr. Lewis MacKenzie Brand of Saskatoon, and Ralph Purdy of Regina.

Argument for the applicants was submitted Tuesday.

From Saskatoon, the Keep Our Doctors Committee sent a three-man delegation to England Tuesday to present the doctors' side of the dispute to British doctors.

The committee said they were sent because of what it termed "misleading information reaching the British press concerning the situation in Saskatchewan."

'MISINFORM DOCTORS'

The committee also said British doctors recruited by the Saskatchewan government are being "deliberately misinformed as to the adequacy of emergency services and the true stand of the medical profession in this crisis."

The government has been recruiting doctors in the United Kingdom for temporary service at centres in the province where emergency service is not being provided. The free emergency service is being provided by 148 members of the college, through plans co-ordinated by the Canadian Medical Association, at 40 hospitals in the province.

The representatives sent to England are Dr. M. A. Baltzan, Dr. Noel Daly and Peter Meiers, president of Medical Services Incorporated, a doctor-sponsored medical care plan.

In Regina, Jack Kinzel, secretary of the Medical Care Insurance Commission which administers the government act, said 34 British doctors are to arrive in the province this week, bringing to 84 the number who have been brought here.

Mr. Kinzel said the British doctors have requested "not to have the press directed to them." He said the commission will not release any names and will not arrange interviews.

The commission said there were 11 doctors from Saskatchewan or other provinces working under the act, which the college has opposed.

In Regina, the government announced the appointment of Harold F. Thompson, a retired judge of the Saskatchewan Court of Queen's Bench, as a one-man royal commission to investigate complaints of discrimination in granting and retaining of hospital privileges among newly arrived doctors.

The commission is expected to start work soon. Hearings will be held in local communities but no decision has been made on whether hearings will be open to the public.

Premier Lloyd said that alleged persecution of doctors is outside the terms of reference of the commission. Terms of reference limit the inquiry to instances involving members of the college who were registered by the college — licensing body for doctors in the province — on or after Jan. 1, 1962.

The premier said the commission is expected to look into the cases of Dr. Ida Fisher and Dr. Joseph Montgomery, two recent arrivals from the U.K., who signed short-term contracts with the government to practise in the province.

Canadian Film Company Plans Fifty Movies

TORONTO (CP)—Seven Arts Productions Limited, a Canadian company, has announced an elaborate production program of more than 50 motion pictures and Broadway shows.

Some of the films will be produced in co - operation with Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer, others have been contracted by 20th Century-Fox and the remainder will be produced solely by the company without prior arrangements for their distribution.

The deals were announced in the company's annual report released Monday by its head office in Toronto.

Louis Chester of Toronto, chairman of the board of directors who operates out of the New York subsidiary of the company, also announced Seven Arts has arranged with MGM to distribute the film Lolita.

Until a few years ago, the company was concerned mainly with the distribution of television films in Canada. Today it has subsidiaries throughout the world and has such stars as Paul Boone and Nancy Kwan under contract.

Edward D. Wright, vice-president and comptroller of the company said he does not have a breakdown of the shareholders but believes most shares are owned by Canadians.

The company finances and produces most films on its own by hiring actors, directors and studio facilities, then arranges for the finished product to be distributed by such Hollywood giants as Warner Brothers.

A spokesman for Seven Arts said it is unlikely any of the major films will be produced in Canada.

Canada's Exhibit at World's Fair Basically Scientific

BY JIM PEACOCK

SEATTLE (CP) — Canada's exhibit at the Seattle World's Fair is basically scientific.

"All science and industry," said one exhibit visitor. "You people have become too serious."

"Tell whoever's responsible that this is the best exhibit," said another, "We've spent twice as long here as anywhere else."

The comments are among a collection jotted down by university students employed to answer questions and dispense information in the Canada pavilion. The students were requested to keep their ears open and write down some of the remarks they overheard.

Some have been enlightening as visitors viewed an arctic diorama showing what a fourth community might be like 50 years hence, a huge wall map displaying Canada's industrial growth over the years, and Canadian scientific medicine, industry and nuclear physics.

"We have an up-and-coming neighbor," said one United States visitor.

"Didn't know we had a satellite," said a Canadian examining the Canada satellite to be shot into orbit later this year by U.S. rockets.

The students have been asked thousands of questions: "How much liquor can you take across the border?" "Where can I buy a tea cozy?" "Where can we get a boat to Banff?" "Why don't you all speak French?" "Is it cold in Calgary?" "Are the stores closed in Victoria on Sundays?"

One student was taken aback when asked: "Have you any information on Disneyland?" But the biggest shock came from an unidentified visitor who asked simply: "Where is Canada?"

A Toronto resident said the exhibit displays Canada as too progressive a country, it should have been aimed at attracting foreign investment, he said.

A U.S. resident said: "If I could play my cards again—in life—I'm telling you, I'd head straight for Canada. It's going to be the dream world of the future."

An Alberta farmer complained that "your pavilion neglects to illustrate the advances scientific research workers have made in the field of agriculture—and s'ker all, who feeds the world?"

A transparent working model of a pipeline designed to carry solids in capsules floated in water drew the question of "what is it, a blood transfusion?" from one inquisitive visitor while another wanted to know if it was "the internal structure of a snake."

One questioner asked whether Canada is a province of Great Britain and whether Ontario is a city in the province of Canada.

An elderly Englishman wanted to know why Canada is the only colony that doesn't use pound sterling.

"You mean Canada has done all this by herself—not part of England or anything?"

American Editors Irked At Russian Transcription

MOSCOW (AP) — The U.S. American editors who interviewed Premier Khrushchev last Friday complained that the Russians made numerous changes in editing the official transcript of the proceedings.

"Yes" even came out "no."

At one point during the interview, Khrushchev asked the Americans, all members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors: "Were you restricted in any way during your tour of the Soviet Union?"

"Yes," they replied with one voice.

"No," was the way the answer came in the transcript they received Monday.

ASNE President Lee Hills of the Knight Newspapers and Paul Miller, president of the Gannett Newspaers, said they were distressed to find that their questions were inaccurately reported.

The Americans said they believed the questions were refrased to fit into the Common. ist party line when they appear in the party newspaper Pravda Wednesday.

Felix McKnight of the Dallas Times-Herald said he asked this question: "Have the Soviet people been told that the Soviet Union, broke the three-year moratorium on nuclear testing and was the first to carry out 40 nuclear explosions in the atmosphere?"

All reference to atmospheric explosions was deleted from the transcri.

The Americans said they found the average Russian citizen woefully lacking in information of the West. For example they said almost no one who knew that the United States dropped the first two Atmaic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki while at war with Japan. Instead, the editors said, many Russians believe the U.S. was testing them on two peaceful cities.

Australia Negotiates Trade Tariffs

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Australia has negotiated tariff concessions covering trade worth £117,000,000 Australian (about $309,960,000) with the six European Common Market countries, Trade Minister John McEwen announced Tuesday.

He said in a statement the concessions covered Australia's wool exports, but did little to overcome Australia's problems in exporting to the "Six" the bulk of its agricultural products —like grains and meat—or processed food, like canned and dried fruits.

McEwen said no tariff concessions on wheat were granted to Australia or any other country during the negotiations, which he said were made under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) and were in line with those announced Monday by Canada.

Gut he said the "Six" will negotiate on this later with Canada had the United States and agreed to consult Australia on the problem.

McEwen said the outcome of the negotiations was satisfactory since the new agreement replaced former concessions and did not call for any new concessions from Australia.

The concessions continued to guarantee duty free entry previously provided for wool, hides and skins, ores and concentrates, pearl shell, sausage skins and other animal products. In addition, unscoured wool now is also free from duty.

Trade items on which the "Six" guaranteed not to increase duties totalled more than $2,000,000 Australian, an increase of 50 per cent on trade covered by the previous concession.

Suns Beat Vees Twice, Leafs Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Harry Fanok may not win the coveted award in the International League this season, but at the rate he's going no one is going to strike out more enemy batters.

The 23-year-old righthander has fanned 133 in 112 1-3 innings, even though he shows a mediocre 7-6 record.

Fanok whiffed 13 Columbus Jets and added icing to the cake by breaking a 1-1 tie with a two-run single to enable Atlanta Crackers to defeat the Jets 3-1.

Fanok has struck out 10 or more batters five times this season and fanned 14 once. Orlando Pena of Toronto Maple Leafs is in second place in the strikeout race with 113 in 104 innings.

With the count tied 1-1 in the seventh, Fanok came up with mates on second and third. Lefty Don Rowe fired two quick strikes past him. But he caught the next pitch for a single.

SIGN WITH SUNS

The league-leading Suns won a doubleheader from Richmond Virginians 9-2 and 4-1. Rochester Red Wings downed the Leafs 3-2 and Syracuse Chiefs turned back Buffalo Bisons 5-1.

The Suns scored all their first-game runs in the seventh. Until then, Jim Bronstad had a three-hit shutout for the Virginians. But four singles and a walk sent three runs across the plate and broke their three-game losing streak. In the nightcap, Schaffernoth fanned the Virginians with six hits for his 11th victory of the campaign.

Herb Modoral worked 8 3-3 innings for the Wings against the Leafs but had to be rescued by Tom Baker with the tying run on second base in the ninth. Baker fanned Bill Lajoie. The Wings scored what proved to be the winning run in the fourth on a walk to Mosford, a wild pitch and a double by Pete Ward. Ron Piche of Verdun, Que., was the loser.

Carl Boulbin bagged the Bisons with five hits for the Chiefs. It marked Syracuse's first home victory over Buffalo this season. The Chiefs clubbed starter Babe Birrer for nine hits and all three runs in the first four innings. Wally Seward held them off the rest of the way.

Lefty Leads French Open

Charles had a 69 Monday for 134 at the halfway point. The final two rounds will be played today at the 6,400-yard, par-72 Saint Germain course.

Peter Thomson of Australia, a four-time winner of the British Open, was in second place with 69-67—136. Sebastian Miguel of Spain and Alan Murray of Australia were tied for third at 137.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—The hardest working driver at Old Woodbine raceway, Harold McKinley, is once again asserting his winning hand in the current 34-night summer meeting.

McKinley, champion driver for the past two seasons, was aboard Tuesday night with the 3-year-old trotter, Tonia Hanover, in the sixth and feature race, scoring his 10th victory in the meeting's 14 nights to date.

This was his 26th in-the-money drive in 32 starts. He has six seconds and 10 thirds.

Tonia Hanover, owned by the ABC stable of Brampton, was the 3-to-5 choice of the crowd of 5,538 and ran a fine mile in 2.02.4.

McKinley's 10th victory put him ahead in win among drivers.

Moss Drives 'Few Yards'

LONDON (Reuters) — Stirling Moss, Britain's ace car-racing driver who was seriously injured in a racing crash about three months ago, says he has driven since his accident.

But he added Tuesday: "I have only driven a few yards so far."

Asked about reports that he had driven at 100 miles an hour since his crash, Moss said:

"That is completely untrue. What I may have said is that I am fit to drive at that speed if I want to."

Atlantic City Swim

Dutchman Beats Lumsdon

By BOB EXELL

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP) Hermine Willemse, a moody swimmer who is well on the road to domination of professional distance swimming.

Willemse made it look easy when she won the 26-mile Atlantic City swim for the third time in a row. The victory netted him $3,000.

He plans to enter the swim across Lake St. John in Quebec in August and the Canadian National Exhibition swim Aug. 27.

Willemse, a 28 - year - old Dutch school teacher, turned in a startling performance in deliberately beating Cliff Lumsdon of Toronto and seven other survivors under the toughest conditions ever in the nine-year history of the Atlantic City swim.

More than a mile behind was Lumsdon fighting choppy water, heavy tides and rocks that left all of the 15 starters scarred. Six dropped out along the way and several lifeguards in boats became ill.

PHYSICIANS' RACK

Lumsdon, 31, a two-time winner of this event, summed up the gruelling marathon.

"It's the toughest race I was ever in and I think Herman Willemse is the greatest swimmer I have ever competed against."

Willemse emerged from the water at 7:04 p.m. EDT. His time was 11 hours, 4 minutes, 45 seconds—just a few minutes off his time in 1961 under far more favorable conditions.

"I think," he said on the landing, "that was the toughest swim I ever—ever in."

Miss Andersen, one of three women entries and the only woman to finish, finished second to Willemse last year and was third among the favorites this time. She was weeping and covered with cuts.

"I'm not going through this anymore," the 35-year-old former Canadian Olympic champion sobbed, "I thought I was going to die out there on those rocks."

Lumsdon picked up $2,000 for second place and Park and LeCourtoure won $1,000 and $800, respectively.

Lumsdonwas realized $1,650 from her long ordeal—$600 for finishing fifth and $1,050 in side awards for being the number one woman in the competition.

'Satan' Trainer Suspended

NEW YORK (AP) — Gordon Potter, trainer of Crimson Satan, has been suspended by stewards of the Jockey Club until the end of the year for administering a drug to the colt prior to his victory in the $42,700 Lowe Handicap Stakes June 23 at Delaware Park.

Potter's attorney, Don Sturgill of Lexington, Ky., challenged the jurisdiction of the Jockey Club Tuesday and said he is considering a New York court injunction staying the order and taking the case to a Delaware court.

Potter has trained Crimson Satan, the champion two-year-old of 1961, since it was a yearling. Crimson Satan was ill last winter in Florida and suffered various ailments as he failed to come up to his 1961 title form. The colt is owned by Peter W. Salmon, Sr., of Detroit.

Crimson Satan beat Noble Jay by 1¼ lengths in the Leonard Richards but on June 27 the Delaware Racing Commission reported a substance in the horse's post-race urine was found in the urine sample of the horse's foot by the state chemist. The commission ordered the purses redistributed, with the first money awarded to Noble Jay's owners, the Jaclyn Stable.

Maxim 'Guns' Deadly Shots On Links

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Maxim brothers have established something of a monopoly on holes - in - one in this district.

During the weekend Harry, 45, sank an ace to join Steve, 36, and Nicholas, 46—aces. There are five and Fred, 31, who has two. Nicholas started the run in 1951 when he sank his tee shot on a 235-yard hole. Steve got his in 1960 and Fred racked up his pair the same year.

If this isn't a record for any one family, the cause is unknown. There are five more golfing brothers in the family; all eager to get their hole-in-one.

Forces Qualifying Round

Record Field For 'Open'

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Canadian Golf Association announced today that a heavy entry list has necessitated a qualifying round for the Canadian open golf championship.

The qualifying round will be played July 24, two days before the official championship play starts for the $30,000 prize money.

Entries now are near the 200 mark and more are expected by Sunday's deadline. Further entries are expected from Philadelphia where the U.S., PGA championship is to be played this week.

Exempt from qualifying are players in specific categories outlined by the RCGA, the Canadian PGA and the U.S. PGA.

Covering amateurs and professionals alike, the RCGA has exempted past Canadian Open champions, former Canadian Amateur titleholders, amateur champions of the U.S., Britain, Mexico and Canada and members of the American Cup squads of the U.S., Mexico and Canada.

CPGA EXEMPTIONS

The Canadian PGA exempts players who were in the top 10 and ties at last year's CPGA title tournament in Quebec City, five leading pros in the 1961 Canadian Open, CPGA champions of the last five years and the pro at the host club—this year, Jules Huot at Laval-sur-le-Lac.

U.S. PGA exemptions include the current U.S. Open champion, Jack Nicklaus, who already has entered the Canadian Open; the low 25 Americans at the 1961 Canadian Open, 40 leading money winners of last year and the low 60 players at the PGA championship which winds up Sunday.

The starting field July 26 will be restricted to 156, including survivors of the qualifying round. After two 18-hole rounds the field will be cut to the low 100 ties and after three rounds to the low 60 and ties.

TRADE SURPLUS

Australia's record exports of $2,309,040,000 in 1961 - 62 were $321,000,000 higher than imports in the same 12 months.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tonight at the Fair Grounds the Kenmore senior baseballers go questing for the leadership of the division they held up to a short time ago when Kingston gave them the pushover sign, and the squads now double-bunk the perch.

They meet the up-and-coming Peterborough Fannings who recently have given conclusive evidence they did not rate the league for the express purpose of being the pinkie for the Belleville-Kingston diamond grinders—or any other club, for that matter.

The Petes handed the Kenmors a defeat on opening day, then seemed to fold against the onslaughts of the Quinte and Limestone City crews, beset by a touch of illluck and some go-against breaks.

But more recently they have shaken off the eastern circles' jinx and reariin' up at their high legs smote both Kingston and the Kenmors down just to show there were no hard feelings, and to prove the league race would not be a two-team romp to the playoffs.

They slapped our side down, true, by a 8-5 squeaker, then turned on Big Boy Pester and his Limestone City laddybucks and sent them home to Roddenville with a 7-3 setback hanging to their south end appendages.

So don't go to the Fair Grounds tonight expecting to see Bill Crocker's Littledean rail over and play dead, or sit up and beg if the Kenmors try to play trained dog masters. They have the potential—in pitching and plate-wise—and if the Kenmors don't come out garbed in their best baseball bibs and tuckers, they might find themselves handing the Petes a couple of much-needed points.

I think the Kenmors know that and Coach Sid Forster and his crew aren't be taking any unnecessary chances. They'll visit this win to push Kingston back into second place albeit they have a game in hand over the Micky Compeau combo.

They will face either Bob Gatfield, sturdy, bespectacled Peterborough fast-balling southpaw, or Al Wade, who had them second-guessing on a lot of corner balls the last time out here. Both are reliable chuckers who can come up with minimum-hits performances.

I don't know who will get the starting nod for the Kenmore lineup. Sadie, the club's leading hurlers, with four wins and two defeats, has been carrying the brunt of the starting chores to date and may again get the nod, although I wouldn't be surprised to see Bill Lackford or Lefty Reid go to the hill.

Latchford has a 2-1 record and is a dependable hurler. Reid, a fast-throwing portsider has started but once and came up with a brilliant two-hitter for his lone victory. Billy Mosson and Bobby Vaughan have shown well in relief roles.

In the divisional hitting department, the Kenmors have placed three in the top eight slugsmiths, with Kingston grabbing the remaining five slots. However, Gary Geyer is leading the pack to date with a .457 average out of 21 hits in 46 official trips to the platter.

Larry Mavety is ambling along, rather merrily, being in fifth spot with a .396 mark from 11 hits out of 16 t.a.b. Lackington is batting at a .294 clip with 10 clouts for 34 plate appearances.

Kingston's Charlie Pester, Mickey Compeau's one-man platoon, is third in hitting with a 16 for 48 average of .333. Pestor shares the division batting tops with Larry Sedlon with a mark of 4-2. With 2-1 records are Latchford and Joe Kolowicz of Kingston.

Remember Chris Chataway?

'Miler' Joins Government

LONDON (AP) — Sport was raised to a new status of dignity this week. A sub-four minute-miler joined the British government.

He helped Roger Bannister crack the four-minute mile barrier. Then he did it himself—in 3:58.8 seconds. With the crowd standing and roaring in excitement he once beat Olympic champion Vladimir Kuts of Russia over 5,000 metres.

Since then he's been a television newscaster, captivating British housewives with his smooth manner and pearly white teeth.

Now he becomes parliamentary secretary to the ministry of education. And he's only 31. Chataway's political rise, however, is overshadowed by the recent elevation of Byron (Whizzer) White to the United States Supreme Court by President Kennedy. During his collegiate days, White was an all-American halfback at the University of Colorado and later, while a law student at Yale, was a star in the National Football League.

CHANGE SITE

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers of the National Hockey League have shifted their training camp from Guelph to Vancouver, general manager Muzz Patrick said Tuesday. The Rangers will open camp Sept. 12. They have a working agreement with Vancouver of the Western Hockey League.

Sox Castoff Trims Tigers

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

There are some red faces in the American League.

The causes of those embarrassing blushes are Robin Roberts of Baltimore Orioles and Ken McBride of Los Angeles Angels, a pair of castoff pitchers shunned by the rest of the league.

Roberts, former mainstay of Philadelphia Phillies, was signed and split out loose by New York Yankees even before he had pitched a championship game. Only the Orioles were willing to gamble on him. The 35 - year - old righthander long since has rewarded their faith in him.

The Orioles received extra dividends on their investment Tuesday night when Robbie pitched a seven-hitter to defeat Kansas City Athletics 5-2 for his fifth victory in eight decisions with Baltimore.

McBride was thrown into the grab-bag by the White Sox in the American League player pool nearly two years ago and the Angels plucked him for $75,000. A 20-game winner in 1961, the righthander shut out Detroit Tigers 1-0 for his ninth straight victory and 10th of the season. He has lost only three games.

STILL TRAIL YANKS

The triumph gave the Angels undisputed possession of second place but left them still 3½ games behind the Yankees, who clipped Boston Red Sox 1-0 for their fifth straight victory. Minnesota Twins dumped Cleveland Indians into third place with a 7-2 triumph over the Indians and Washington Senators swept a doubleheader from the White Sox 10-8 and 3-2.

Marv Breeding's first home run of the season broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning and gave Baltimore its fifth straight, equalling the Orioles' longest winning streak of the campaign. Roberts, who walked two men and struck out four, pitched his third complete game and lowered his earned run average to 2.46.

McBride, who hasn't lost since April 29, clouted a three-hitter for his third shutout of the year, all by the margin. The Angels got their run off Detroit starter and loser Hank Aguirre in the fourth inning. Lee Thomas singled to score Steve Bilko. The latter had singled and hustled to third on a double by Felix Torre, who has a 14 - game hitting streak.

Ralph Terry pitched a four-hitter for the Yankees and rookie shortstop Tom Tresh singled home the run in the Yankees' third. Bruce Conley matched Terry's shutout pitching until the eighth inning when Hector Lopez and Clete Boyer singled and Tresh came through with his two-out, game-winning blow.

GETS TRIPLE

A crowd of 34,386; largest at Boston's Fenway Park in two years, took in the game when Carl Yastrzemski tripled to open the ninth frame but Terry left him stranded, disposing of Frank Malzone and Lu Clinton on infield rollers and Pete Runnels on a fly.

Rookie Don Lock, making his first appearance following his purchase from Richmond Virginians of the International League, homered to account for the only run. Stenhouse pitched a three-hitter for his eighth victory.

The Senators, blanked by Early Wynn in the three hits through seven innings, erupted for six runs in the eighth inning for their two-game sweep. Tom Cheney was the winner.

Harmon Killebrew, emerging from a batting slump, drove in four runs, three with a first inning homer of the season, to lead the Twins to victory. Camilo Pascual went the route, holding the Indians to five hits for his 14th victory. He has lost five. The righthander struck out 10 men to raise his league-leading total to 130.

Giants Turn Back Braves

Redlegs Whittle Dodger Margin

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

You can get an argument on whether expansion was a good thing for the National League, but you won't get it from Philadelphia Phillies.

The Phils are thriving on the expansion clubs. Tuesday night they took their ninth and 10th straight games from the sagging Houston Colts, who have yet to beat them. The scores were 3-0 and 8-2. The losers ran the Colts' record to 20 in their last 23 games.

Sore - handed Sandy Koufax lasted only an inning against Cincinnati Reds and gave up two runs before he retired with a blister on the fore-finger of his left hand. The Reds went on to a 7-3 victory to cut the Dodgers' lead over San Francisco Giants to one game.

The Giants spotted over a run without a hit in the ninth inning to beat Milwaukee Braves 4-3.

Stan Musial cracked a three-run homer to give St. Louis Cardinals an 8-6 victory over Chicago Cubs.

Koufax's difficulties dealt a blow to the Dodgers. The great lefthander has been suffering from a mysterious numbness in his pitching hand for about a month.

Koufax has not been able to finish a game since July 4, when he beat the Phillies 10-1. He had to leave after 8- 1-3 innings against the Giants in his next outing July 8 and after seven innings against the Mets July 12. Each time he was troubled by his hand and began developing blisters because he was gripping the ball differently.

Koufax gave up two runs in the first inning Tuesday night and then had to leave. Manager Walt Alston said Sandy had a finger blister and a muscle trouble in his shoulder.

After Wally Post doubled home two runs in the fourth inning, the Reds jumped on Ed Roebuck in the next two innings for four more on homers by Leo Cardenas, Vada Pinson and Hank Foiles, and got another in the fourth inning.

RELIEVER FURKET

Moe Drabowsky relieved starter Bob Purkey in the fourth frame and gave up only three hits the rest of the way to get the victory.

The Braves were in a give-away mood against the Giants. With Warren Spahn on the mound, Mack Jones misplayed a line drive by Willie Mays into a double in the first inning and Orlando Cepeda followed with a two - out homer. Felipe Alou added a homer in the seventh inning.

The Braves scored twice in the fourth frame off Giant starter Billy O'Dell when Eddie Mathews walked and Hank Aaron homered. Milwaukee tied the game in the eighth on a single by Frank Bolling, passed ball, an infield out and Roy McMillan's single.

Claude Raymond of St. Johns, Que., who pitched the ninth inning, gave up a walk and the Giants got the winning run on a sacrifice fly by Jim Davenport and by substitute second - baseman Amado Samuel. O'Dell was the winner. Raymond was the loser.

Musial hit his homer in the sixth inning with the Cardinals trailing 5-4. It was his 17th of the season and 457th of his career. Larry Jackson, hurt by a leaky defense, got the victory although Lindy McDaniel worked the last three innings, giving up a homer to Ernie Banks, his 33rd.

Johnny Callison homered for the Phils as they shut out the Colts in the first game behind Jack Hamilton, who went the first seven, and Jack Baldschun. Frank Torre was the hitting star in the second game with two singles and a triple as Cal McLish won his sixth game with relief help from Dennis Bennett.

The Colts got only two runs all night, on Bob Aspromonte's homer in the fourth inning of the nightcap. It broke a string of 20 scoreless innings for the punchless Colts, who have picked up only 15 runs in their last eight games.

Pepsi Aims 3 — Eddie's 4

The Pepsi Anne Cornerstone edged Eddie's Recruiting 3-2 at CNRA Park Monday night.

Pepsi Anne scored all their runs in the second inning, helped by a solo homer by Harwood and a bases-loaded smash by Jim Sheridan. Eddie's got two in this first and two in the second to make it close.

F. Howard also gave up four hits for the Recruiters and claimed 11 strikeout victims. He walked a pair.

Bradley Lea had a double and single in a losing cause. T. Johnston and G. Wood also hit safely.

Pepsi's 4 — Trudeau's 3

The Pepsi's scored three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to upset first-place Trudeau Motors 4-3 at the CNRA Park last night.

Trudeau scored all their runs in the first two innings and had 3-0 at one point. The Pepsi's who played heads-up ball all night, got one in the bottom of the second.

The big blow in the sixth was Al Wagar's two-run triple. Trudeaus went down without damage in the top of the seventh, suffering their fourth loss of the year.

Joe Harvey burled the victory, allowing just four hits over the route. He struck out three and walked two while his mates bobbled but once.

Harry Powers started and gave way to Junior Day in the sixth, after giving up all of the Pepsi's runs and nine hits. Powers walked three, Day none and neither struck out a batter.

Lyle Wannamaker hit a two-run homer for Trudeaus in the first and later added a double. John Casey and Gerry Genarsuzzi also had doubles in defeat.

S. Perumba collected three singles to spark the winners while Al Wager had his key triple and a single. H. Young hit a double and single while B. Moon and F. Farrell also hit safely.

Classic Effort Defeats Bobcats

Pat Maracle Pitches Perfect Game

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Pat Maracle, the king of the district's softball pitchers for many years, reached the peak of perfection last night when he pitched a perfect ball game.

Maracle defeated the Bobcats 7-0 at the Fair Grounds for Joyce Real Estate, clinching the league pennant for his club for the second consecutive year.

Maracle almost didn't start the game because of a sore shoulder. He struck out 19 batters, a record for the season, and did not allow a ball to be hit out of the infield. He acad the minimum 27 men.

FIRST SINCE 1951

The veteran right-hander, who had three no-hitters a few years back, is the first pitcher in the Belleville and District softball league to hurl a perfect game since Jack Reid accomplished the feat in 1951.

PAT MARACLE

Maracle struck out seven in a row starting in the first inning, got two on pop ups in the fourth and then fanned eight more in a row before Frank "Shiner" Murray almost ruined the ballgame effort with one out in the seventh.

Murray lined a shot near second base. Shortstop Jackie Elliott got a glove on the ball, knocking it up in the air, then dropped it to catch it about six inches off the ground with his bare hand as he fell on his stomach. It was the only rough play of the night. Six others were on infield pops and one man grounded out.

Maracle, who resigned his shoulder batting in the bottom of the eighth, had two balls and no strikes on leadoff batter Doug Murray in the ninth. He struck him out on the next three pitches, got one on a pop to first and fanned pinch-hitter Bob Green to end it.

The Real Estaters got just a 3-0 lead in the first on Batchelor's single, Plane's sacrifice and Fielder's single and Elliott's two-run double.

Batchelor walked in the third, scored later on Faulkner's hit who in turn scored on Elliott's base knock. Two walks, Muirhead's hit and Le-Roy Wannamaker's fly ball made it 5-0 in the sixth. Hits by Batchelor and Faulkner teamed with two walks and an error for a final pair in the seventh.

Roger Cote was the losing pitcher, giving up five of Joyce's seven hits, fanning three and walking three in the first six frames. Carl Jones whiffed one and walked a pair in the last two innings.

Jackie Elliott Jr. shared the honors, driving in three runs with his double and single, as well as making the key play at shortstop. Ted Batchelor and Bert Faulkner also had two hits apiece and Stu Muirhead bagged the other.

Maracle had the game ball autographed by every member of the team and paid special tribute to Elliott before leaving the ball park. Only 43 paid admissions saw the game but cheered Maracle's every move in the final three innings. His record is 6-0 in all complete games.

Exhibition Test

Argos, Tigers Tonight

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto to Toronto is essentially the same one that beat Toronto in last season's Grey Cup playoffs. Trimble has cut down to seven new imports, including Joe Zagar, a tailsbooted quarterback, defensive back and punter from Arizona.

Coach Lou Agase announced that he will use Gerry McDougall in tonight's game at the Canadian National Exhibition stadium. McDougall, who played for Hamilton last year, has only been with Argos five days.

McDougall, who recently decided to play for Argos after reconsidering his decision to sit out this season, is tentatively listed as No. 2 flanker, behind starter Lynn Bottoms and on the same side (left) as Joe Hernandez, a flashy rookie.

McDougall has been learning a double assignment, flanker and halfback.

BAYTLES FOR JOB

Hernandez, an import rookie was the outstanding player in Argos' intrasquad game last week, is battling three Canadians, Dick Shatto, McDougall and Bottoms for one of two jobs.

Despite an impressive array of 10 quarterbacks on tap at the start of training, Toronto will go into today's game with three only.

Tom Dublinski is recovering from shoulder injuries, Ed Trancygier has a sprained ankle and Brian Aston and John Henry Jackson are busy with defensive assignments. The other rumored quarterbacks have been released.

BOUT CANCELLED

QUEBEC (CP) — A 15-round bout for the Eastern Canada welterweight boxing championship, scheduled to take place in Montreal, Que., today has been postponed indefinitely because of an injury to champion Fernand Simard. Simard's manager said Tuesday his fighter suffered a deep cut over the right eye during Monday night's fight in Trois-Rivieres against Amedee Sparks of Winnipeg. Simard was to have fought Reggie Thibault for the title.

Hopefuls Find Union Cards Keys to Doors of Studios

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "How can we start a new wave in American films?" is only a wouldbe young movie maker. "We can't even start a ripple, because we can't get in the unions."

This is the kind of complaint you hear over and over from young hopefuls, fired with enthusiasm as they emerge from cinema schools at local universities. But their hope and enthusiasm begin to die as they find studio doors locked to them for lack of a union card.

The loss of this creative talent worries some of the movie world, among them Otto Preminger. Says he: "Only new blood can keep anything alive. The film industry is in danger of losing its vigor because it is difficult for new talent to get into some unions."

A cause celebre in this matter is a cinematographer named Haskell Wexler. He photographed such well - regarded films as Hoodlum Priest and Studs Lonigan. Yet he has been unable to get work in Hollywood because he wasn't a member of the cameramen's local. He belongs to the Chicago local and both his films were made in the middle western U.S.

UNION DIVIDED

Business agent Herb Aller of the camera local says that union is divided into three geographical areas and members may not interchanged. He added that Wexler will be admitted to the Hollywood local as an assistant cameraman.

To get into the Directors Guild, it helps to be the son of a director. A new director needs only a job and $2,000 initiation fee, but satisfied directors are admitted only a few at a time—one at studio a year. Preference is given to directors' sons.

Says A. T. Dennison, business manager of the Electrical Technicians' local: "In 1946-47 we had 2,000 men working 5,000,000 man-hours a year. Now we have 1,000 men working less than 1,000,000 man - hours a year. Does anybody wonder why we discourage new members?"

Meanwhile the average age of movie crews grows higher each year, and Hollywood's critics claim that the town is dying from old age.

Astrological Forecast

For July 19
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Best to concentrate on new outlook. Depending upon, old methods, friends is not advised. Open new avenues of expression. Otherwise, you fail to exploit all possibilities.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Fine to think about future, but the present must also be considered. Strive for greater independence of thought, action. Encourage new associations, contacts. Trust intuitive intellect.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Favorable lunar aspect today indicates pleasure through journeys, correspondence, reading, absorbing knowledge. Being self-satisfied takes you down road to defeat.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) A heart-to-heart talk with loved one could accomplish wonders, especially where money is concerned. No time to withhold information, problems. Confide in, trust those close to you.

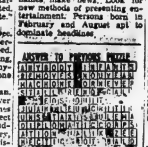
Leo (July 23 to August 21) One you can trust remains your friend, but you had better double check. Carelessness could cause damage. Fine for "celebrating," but moderation should be key. Think straight and plan ahead.

Virgo (August 22 to Sept. 23) Many talks which have been "left hanging" should be taken care of today. Later, excellent for romance, travel, self-expression. Especially good for pursuit of creative interests.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Give your best. Halfway methods doomed to failure. Strive for self-satisfaction. If you are proud of what you put forth, that pride carries over to others. Wonderful day for meeting, conquering challenges.

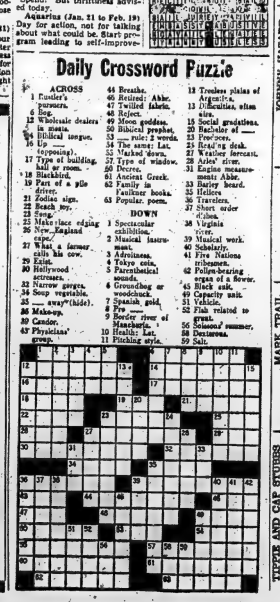
Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you hurry, hurry, you may skip important details. Future security could depend upon making your intentions crystal-clear. Take nothing for granted. Get it in "black-and-white." Don't guess! Be sure.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good for visiting, entertaining and being entertained. But today better for planning, writing, reading than for anything else. Tonight be with one who "cares." Relax.



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Tendency to be mood over money matters accomplishes little, if anything. Take direct action. Plug up "holes" in budget. There are those who cry, "Spendit" But thriftiness advised today.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Day for action, not for talking about what could be. Start program leading to self-improvement. Show others you "know the story." Then prove it to yourself! Start early.



Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Like Gemini, take constructive attitude, action toward learning, advancement. Many "answers" are close at hand if only you will be quiet within. This way you are enabled to "hear." If today is your birthday—this month excellent for improving conditions at home, inclining emotional as well as physical appearance. Year: in general favors romance, business, marriage.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Theatrical, motion picture names make news. Look for new methods of presenting entertainment. Persons born in February and August apt to dominate headlines.

MD's No Longer Insist Medicare Be Suspended

Still Demand Changes Be Approved by House

BULLETIN

SASKATCHEWAN (CP) —Health Minister W. G. Davies said today the government welcomes the latest proposal by the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons and hopes that talks can proceed speedily.

SASKATOON (CP) — Leading figures in Saskatchewan's medical care dispute stated their case before the same committee of the House of Commons today and the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons dropped one of its earlier demands.

Premier Woodrow Lloyd had no phone- ate comment on the steps outlined by Dr. H. D. Dell, president of the college, as necessary to end the doctors' strike. But the Medical Care Insurance Act.

The college dropped its demand that the CCF government suspend the controversial act for 1962 to permit the doctors to resume normal practice. Dr. Dell said the government's legislature passes amendments the college proposed.

Dr. Dell, during hours' of the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan CCF party which the college had asked to be invited. He was interrupted five times by applause for loud assurances as he read from a 2,000-word text. He received brief applause at the end.

Most of the province's 700 practising doctors are withdrew normal service July 1 with the start of the government's compulsory, prepaid medical care insurance plan. About 200 of the doctors have established a free emergency service at 40 of the province's 154 hospitals.

PACK MAIN HALL

About 950 persons packed the main convention hall in the city of a downtown hotel to hear Dr. Dalgleish also propose a system whereby private insurance groups would operate in a form of partnership with the government plan.

C. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party of Canada, addressed the Saskatchewan, rejected the idea of a compulsory plan. He said the country is governed by a parliamentary system, not by plebiscites.

Mr. Douglas said a public medical care insurance a matter part of the platform of the 1960 provincial election which returned the CCF to power.

The New Democratic Party was formed by a merger of the CCF and organized labor. The CCF in Saskatchewan has not yet adopted the new name.

Mr. Douglas told the convention he hopes any serious proposals for catching and stop given careful consideration. At the same time, he said:

Tense Hours In Airliner End Happily

GANDER, Nfld. (CP)—A dramatic three hours above a foam-covered G a n d e r airport runway ended happily Wednesday for 25 passengers and three crew members of a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane.

The four-engine turboprop had just taken off from the airport when a pilot Capt. William Gwynne of Montreal noticed there was something wrong with the nosewheel of the aircraft. His instruments indicated the wheel's locking system had failed. The nosewheel could be raised or lowered, but would not lock in its landing position.

Capt. Gwynne notified Gander control tower, then began to circle the field to burn off excess fuel while ground crews applied a foam layer on the runway and added insulation against a fire from an emergency landing.

During the three hours' circling, the pilot, talking directly with the maintenance centre at in Winnipeg tried to correct the trouble. He bounced the plane on the runway twice to jolt the wheels extended and nose-dived from a high altitude. But nothing worked.

Capt. G w y n e finally retracted the n o s e w h e e l and brought the plane down to an almost-perfect landing without it. The only damage found, a scraped fuselage and bent propellers, was estimated at $5,000.

None of the passengers was hurt.

SPACESHIP WILL HEAD FOR VENUS ON SATURDAY

Journey Takes Nearly 5 Months

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—With a successful balloon shot in the record books, the space agency now takes dead aim at Venus with an interplanetary spaceship scheduled for launching Saturday.

An Atlas-Agena B rocket is set to blast off from Cape Canaveral to start a Mariner I space craft on a 326,000,000-mile journey to probe mysteries of cloud-shrouded neighboring planet.

Scientists and technicians labored to prepare the roofless 200-pound spacecraft for launching. Mariner I is designed to make a 5-month journey across the vastness of space before flying close to Venus in early December.

Mariner I is packed with instruments to measure temperatures and study composition of the Venusian atmosphere; to determine strength of the planet's magnet if field and record high energy particles, cosmic dust and the rate at which charged particles lose energy in that part of space.

Fishing Was Once Women's Work, Men Take Over and Call in Press

OTTAWA (CP) — Four years ago most male Eskimos in the Arctic were amused at fishing as "women's work."

Today hundreds of them are engaged in commercial fishing, stepping aboard a chartered plane at Frobisher Bay with their salmon, which has grown into a $150,000-a-year industry, the biggest in the Arctic, the agency said.

This was the story told Wednesday by Lloyd Erwin, first governor conference ever called by Canadian Eskimos — an event described as the biggest single play of the fish.

Erwin said the questions of more than 100 reporters was John Beritie, stocky, cheerful and confident proprietor of the Fort Chimo, Que., Co-operative Association on Ungava Bay. Mr. Bertha made the 900-mile trip by plane to discuss char which, since its introduction to southern Canada in 1956, has been served at state dinners given for President Kennedy of the United States, President de Gaulle of France and the Queen

Civil Defence Seeks Costs Of Warnings in All Homes

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal civil defence officials are obtaining estimates on what it would cost to install an attack warning system in every Canadian home which has electricity.

The warning system is known as N.E.A.R. — National Emergency Alarm Repeater — and consists of a small shock fitted to which plugs into any electric circuit outlet in the house.

The warning starts as an alarm clock when a signalling voltage is superimposed on the power grid. This would not affect the power grid itself or any electrical device in a home such as a radio, television, refrigerator or oil furnace.

N.E.A.R. would supplement the siren warning system now being installed. Officials said the system would operate practically all the time — between 1,400 and 1,500 — with no place by the end of the summer.

Authorities said Ottawa Hydro has been awarded a federal contract to study the cost of a unit for every home in the area bounded on the west by Windsor-Gemia and on the east by Ottawa - Brockville - Owen Sound.

Early and rough estimates were that the complete system — hooks would cost about $50,000,000 — some $12,000,000 for the generating equipment to supply the signal voltage and the remainder for the black boxes, which cost somewhere between $5 and $10 each.

No firm conclusions have been reached on how the receivers for each home would be financed.

Results of the Ontario Hydro survey are expected to be known this fall. Cost of running each home receiver would be no more than for an electric clock — a maximum of one cent a month.

Use of the power grid to carry the alarm signal is considered more reliable. It is not prevented and less costly than use of telephone or radio hookups.

The warning, as in the case of the sirens, would be merely a signal for the person in the home to turn on his radio or TV to get instructions. The CBC now is on a direct line from the federal control centre near Ottawa which receives the same information from North American Air Defence Command as the Pentagon in Washington and the U.S. Air Force's Strategic Air Command.

N.E.A.R. would replace the present system on education. Ottawa also took a stand against the creation of new universities in Ontario. Fifteen is enough for the time.

The royal commission, headed by Magr. Alphonse - Marie Parent, vice-rector of Laval, has been studying the five educational groups seeking university charters since it began public hearings in November.

Laval said more money must be found for scholarships and research before it would be granted charters. Ottawa should start is the teachers' colleges, said the Laval brief.

There were 120 teachers' colleges or normal schools in the province. Fifteen to 20 would be more suitable, Laval said.

"We can well ask ourselves if we are justified in maintaining 20 normal schools across the province, knowing from experience that, because there are not enough qualified instructors, by so many institutions, we can only achieve mediocrity in the majority of cases."

The unions are seeking an extra 12 cents-an-hour in wages. The non-ops now earn an average of $1.91 an hour, about 13 cents below the latest standard figure made public Wednesday.

The unions say the 12 cents is needed to achieve parity and maintain it through the life of a proposed two-year contract.

Non-ops Promise to Study Any Job Security Scheme

MONTREAL (CP) — Unions negotiating for 100,000 non-operating railway employees promised Wednesday to look "very serious and most carefully" at any reasonable job security proposal offered by a federal conciliation board.

The promise came as the board, sitting for the second time contract demands against seven Canadian railways, started into the final stages of its sittings before adjourning Friday to write its report.

Job security has built up during the hearings as a bigger problem than wages. Owen Sound, with the railways throwing their strongest guns and strongest language into the attack on the unions' proposal.

The union said Wednesday the railways had grossly misunderstood the job security issue and represented them as being uncompromisingly rigid on the question.

That was not true, Harry Crowe, a researcher for the unions, told the board. The issue is not through technological changes was "a very real and distressing problem."

"We and our members certainly prepared to look very seriously and most carefully at any reasonable recommendation that this board may make in this area."

The original union demand, contained by the railways as meaning economic strangulation and bankruptcy for them, would limit the reduction in the number of employees with five or more years seniority to one per cent a year in any job classification.

The three-man board, set up after negotiations between the railways and the 15 CLC-affiliated unions collapsed last February, resumed its sittings Wednesday after a week's adjournment.

The chairman is Mr. Justice Craig Monroe of the Supreme Court of British Columbia. Halifax lawyer Gordon Cooper is the railways nominee and David Lewis of Toronto the

PERU JUNTA BREAKS UP PROTEST MEETS

Military In Complete Control

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Demonstrations continued in Lima Wednesday night but were broken up quickly by the 10-man military junta which seized power brought sharp rebuffs from hemispheric allies.

The armed forces under the leadership of strongman premier Gen. Ricardo Perez Godoy clamped dictatorial rule on the Andean nation and appeared in complete control after overthrowing the constitutional government of President Manuel Prado Wednesday.

Sporadic demonstrations, sparked by students and teenagers, flared in the capital in protest against the military takeover of the government to bodies they could gain much momentum.

Three students were reported wounded.

MINERS STRIKING

A bigger threat to the junta came from the Confederation of Peruvian Workers which reported considering a general strike in protest against the military seizure of power. The confederation controls 75 per cent of the country's labor force.

The United States denounced the coup, suspended diplomatic relations with Peru and halted the Alliance for Progress aid, which has been pouring $80,000,000 a year into the country, a spokesman said.

Brazil, Mexico and Panama said they were studying the situation.

Prado, 72, denied to the last the military chiefs' charge that the government was aged, ailing. He was reported being held in the area of Callao, Lima's seaport.

Several other officials were reported held with him.

Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, 67, front-runner in last month's presidential race and the military's longtime chief political opponent, was reported he had taken asylum in the Venezuelan Embassy.

The Venezuelan Embassy in Lima confirmed that Haya had broadcast that "honest and clean elections" will be held in June and that president-elect will return by July 28, which is the date set by outgoing Prado's e l e c t e d successor would have taken office.

QUEBEC (CP) — Laval University said Wednesday the number of teachers colleges in Quebec province be cut down drastically and the university be placed under university control.

In its brief to Quebec royal commission on education, Laval also took a stand against the creation of new universities in the province. It was presented here.

Laval said more money must be found for scholarships and research before it would be granted charters. Ottawa should start is the teachers' colleges, said the Laval brief.

There were 120 teachers' colleges or normal schools in the province. Fifteen to 20 would be more suitable, Laval said.

Green Believes Chance Exists For A-Test Ban

Leaves to Spend Week At Geneva Conference

OTTAWA (CP) — Geneva disarmament talks this week indicate there is "some chance now of working out an agreement under which there would be no more nuclear weapons tests," External Affairs Minister Green said Wednesday night.

"That seems to be the most promising feature at the present time," he said in an interview before his departure for Geneva today for a week's attendance at the resumed talks.

He added in answer to a question: "I think that because of scientific developments, it is an essential part of any on-site inspection within three (nuclear) countries as was the case a few weeks ago, have

Mr. Green suggested the Geneva discussions are at an important stage now and, after a month's recess, "there is an opportunity to take a fresh look at the whole situation." The countries involved had been going their positions and propos als of others.

GENEVA (Reuters) — The United States and Britain Wednesday tabled a new proposal on the nuclear test ban question in the deadlocked disarmament conference here in the 17-country disarmament conference. The new plan was submitted by the co-chairmen of the committee of the whole in a discussion of preliminary partial disarmament measures.

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin complained the need to test the new plan was "an unnecessary other powers.

But he went on to attack the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and West Germany by saying: "The United States and their nuclear powers to start a war by having the "opportunity to push the button."

REPEATS STAND

American delegate Arthur Dean, said: "We cannot commence agreement" on preventing war by accident. Dean previously stated U.S. suggestions for improving communications and giving advance notice of large military movements and manoeuvres.

He also raised the American proposal calling on parties to the disarmament treaty to permit observation posts at agreed locations, ports, railway junctions, rail centres and air bases to report military concentrations or unusual activity.

Dean said that Zorin's reference to West Germany in his country's Robert Legault, threw the session in an uproar. The victims could not return to Soviet because of the presence of the bank and went down. The accident was witnessed by Legault's wife Francoise, who had accompanied the boys on the bicycling trip.

Dragging operations started immediately and the bodies were recovered. Alain Legault, Artificial respiration was applied by police and firemen for two hours.

Girl Dives 2,000 Feet Into Lake When Her Chute Fails, and Lives

MARSTON MILLS, Mass. (AP) — 20-year-old girl making her first parachute jump escaped with minor injuries Wednesday after falling 2,000 feet into Marston Mills, one of the fishermen, said the girl was conscious but incoherent with fright.

Whitely said he saw the girl tumbling down through the sky "end over end." His companion, Scott Connell, 14, said Miss Frotten hit the water with a "terrific splash."

The parachute instructor, John Laroche, 22, of Watertown, also leaped from the private plane when he saw Miss Frotten was in trouble. He landed safely near her in a lake and helped in the rescue.

The girl was the first to dive with a sky diving unit based at Marrion Mills airport.

Whitely said Miss Frotten, still in shock, was taken to hospital for experience, gasped "I'll never jump again." Later, she asked "What did I do wrong?"

Police said they were told the girl made a "weak exit" and her automatic chute failed to open.

Fellow members of the sky diving unit theorized she "froze" and failed to pull the ripcord for her emergency chute.

New Device Detects Ore In Mountains

OTTAWA (CP) — A revolutionary new airborne magnetometer capable of pinpointing potential mineral and oil deposits in mountainous country has been developed by the Geological Survey of Canada.

Representing a major breakthrough in mineral surveying, the instrument will be used initially to map a 4,000 - square-mile area of northern Vancouver Island, where mountain peaks average about 5,000 feet above sea level.

Dr. Lawrence V. Morley, chief of the geophysics division of the Geological Survey, said in an interview Wednesday that the magnetometer will make its debut the first time the aeromagnetic surveying of the mountain ranges of British Columbia and the Yukon.

He also said the equipment could be of special interest to other countries, including underdeveloped nations with vast areas of terrain not yet surveyed for mineral resources.

The equipment — a major advance over magnetometers used in the geological mapping of non-mountainous country — was designed by two Ottawa members of the Geological Survey staff over a four - year period.

Student Gives Life to Save Cousin, 11

STURGEON FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Marcel Anderson, 20, a Windsor university student, was drowned Friday night in a futile attempt to save the life of his 11-year-old cousin in a bathing accident.

Anderson, fishing on the banks of the Sturgeon River with his cousin, Robert Legault, threw himself in the water in an attempt to save the youngster, who had slipped down a steep rock into 35 feet of water. The victims could not return to shore because of the steepness of the bank and went down. The accident was witnessed by Legault's wife Francoise, who had accompanied the boys on the bicycling trip.

Women Lack Qualifications For Roles in Spacecraft

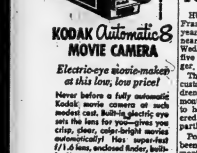
WASHINGTON (AP) — The American part of space is likely to remain an all-male domain for some years to come, the federal space agency says in explaining why women have failed to become members of the ship is the exclusive astronaut club.

George M. Low, director of spacecraft missions for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said none of the six women among 250 applicants for astronaut training have been able to meet all the stringent qualifications established earlier this year.

Low also told the House of Representatives science and astronautics committee Wednesday that the pool of qualified men was more than ample to meet the need for the 40 or 50 astronauts required to carry out planned spaced explorations.

He pointed out that none of the women space hopefuls was a jet test pilot, that some of them lacked the required scientific or engineering education and that "others were too old."

Astronaut John H. Glenn, despite persistent committee questioning, shied away from getting into the space battles of the future. As far as he was concerned, Glenn said, the space effort should "the best qualified people, whatever their sex, color or creed."



He joined with astronaut Scott Carpenter, however, in supporting the requirement that potential astronauts must be experienced jet test pilots, saying that "man is not just a biological specimen going along for the ride in space."

Special Trainer Teaches Use Of Radar Unit

By GEORGE FRASKOR

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadair Ltd. today unveiled one of the most specialized jet trainer airplanes in the world.

The CL-41T has been used to teach people to fly. It's to teach fighter pilots to use the complicated electronics and radar attack system of one single type of plane, the F-104 Starfighter jet.

It is considered by Canadair execs, to train the pilots in this substitute than in the supersonic Starfighter itself.

The CL-41T looks just like its parent the CL-41A, a two-seat primary trainer of which the RCAF has ordered 190, except for a couple of bulges on the sides behind the cockpit and a long, slim needle nose much like the Starfighter's.

Those bulges, that nose, contain the same radar and navigation systems that the Starfighter uses to find, approach and attack its targets. The radar and rockets carried by the fighter are controlled and fired by the electric training system.

The difference is that a Starfighter has a $1,500,000 and a CL-41B a bout $500,000. The fighter is fast, makes costly to operate and 10 times as costly to maintain.

In effect, says Canadair, you can give Starfighter pilots 10 hours of electronic training use per actual flying conditions for the price of one hour.

The Canadair trainer has been adopted as the standard NATO strike plane, and is in service with the air forces of the United States, West Germany, Japan, Belgium, Italy, Belgium and Canada.

The prototype of the CL-41B flew for the first time last Friday and performed well.

college who know better but have allowed themselves to become catspaws of the Liberal party."

Earlier, Premier Lloyd told the cheering convention that a return to "fat days" for the doctors "could be accompanied by a large measure of the legislature."

He reiterated the government's view that under certain regulations passed by the cabinet doctors may not advise inside or outside of the act.

COLLEGE STAND

The college stand has been that the regulations could be "fair enough" to both the government" and has insisted that they should be made amendments, be incorporated in legislation.

Dr. Dalgleish said it was still the college's view that suspension of the act was the best way to achieve a solution, so the impasse but it had shifted its stand in an effort to settle the issue.

He proposed that a patient be allowed to assign any health insurance agency his right to payment from the Medical Care Insurance Commission, administered by the act, to the doctor.

Tm m e d iate discussions between the college and cabinet were held in an effort to reach agreements to the act, to deal with the "real question of the insurance commission and with the powers of the commission to cancel the licence of a doctor."

Those proposals did not represent the college's "improvement" which the plan requires, but they would permit an early resumption of services.

SEES OTHER ISSUES

In his statement, Dr. Dalgleish said there can be an independent public committee to observe total procedure in the act. Then there can be continuing discussion "free of the pressures of national reputation for integrity."

He said medical care insurance is not the sole issue.

"It is a question of whether the democratic process operating through established parliamentary institutions or the [illegible] companies) information could be made sufficient to obtain reimbursement. The doctor would charge what fee he wished."

RESERVES DECISION

Meanwhile, in Regina, Mr. Justice D. C. Disbery reserved decision on an application for an injunction that could halt all activities of the Medical Care supporting division.

The injunction was being sought by three Saskatchewan doctors. The validity of the act could be tested by the courts after the summer recess.

The paper says his sights are set on Oxford or Cambridge when he completes his studies at the University of Toronto, where he is taking political science and economics. He finishes there in late 1953.

The Evening News quotes Kidd as saying he found the British House of Commons most interesting. "I'd very much like to come to learn (in Britain) that at home."

Kidd visited the Commons last week before finishing close second to Portsmouth's Jim Peters in a three - mile event at White City Stadium.

He got it all.

Doctors' Dilemma

Did Not Give Girl Serum For Fear It Killed Her

PENETANGUISHENE, Ont. (CP)—A father-and-son doctor team said Wednesday they decided against giving a Michigan girl the antitoxin that would have saved her life because, under the circumstances, there was a risk the shots would have killed her.

Nora Jean Armitage, 10, of Grosse Pointe, Mich., died of scarlet fever here Tuesday night seven days after the doctors refused to administer the serum.

Dr. Ralph Bell, who gave the girl the serum, even though her mother brought it to them from a government in Ann Arbor, near the family cottage, because he was not satisfied he was sure she actually had been bitten by a snake.

Dr. Karl Mrs. Armitage and four sisters and brothers were vacationing at the Georgian Bay summer resort of Cognashene Point, 12 miles northeast of here. The father, James Armitage, was at home.

Penetanguishene said the doctors — Gerald E. Murphy of Mount Morris, N.Y., and his son, Gerald W. Murphy of Scottsville, N.Y., told them the girl was brought to their cottage by the mother. They said she could not say whether she had just seen a snake or was bitten by one.

The doctors said the wound on the girl's ankle looked like a brush burn she might have suffered in playing from the snake.

EXAMINES GIRL

The younger Dr. Murphy examined the girl and kept her at his cottage two hours. He then suggested the girl could return to the Armitage cottage and that she should be called if her condition became worse.

When Mrs. Armitage noticed her daughter's ankle was swelling she returned to the Murphy cottage. The younger Dr. Murphy went back to the Armitage cottage with her. They decided to take the girl by boat the 12 miles to hospital here. Nora Jean was dead on arrival.

Pathologist Dr. Grant Colpitts of Barrie said he is certain the girl was bitten by at least one Massasauga rattlesnake. The only killer snake of the 13 species inhabiting Ontario.

There were four fang marks on the girl's ankle and it was not known whether she was bitten twice by one snake or attacked by two of the greyish-brown reptiles.

Dr. /A. D. MacKenzie, Barrie coroner, agreed with the U.S. doctors that the serum could be fatal if administered "where there was no snake bite.

Police said Dr. Murphy told Mrs. Armitage he was not licensed to practise in Canada.

Frankford to Lay Case Village Water Facilities Before Municipal Board

TRENTON — Members of Frankford Council will meet with Sulda today all representatives of the Ontario Municipal Board to lay the case before them for the village water and sewer facilities from the Ontario body. A tentative application for approval of the $138,000 project, and a by-law to raise money on the part of the board earlier this month, is now resting in the board's refusal to give immediate approval for the extension of the total debenture debt of Frankford town by seven hundred 30 per cent of total assessment. However, Reeve Frank Rabel feels that in the long run the facilities of facilities would have the effect of bringing in more residents money, by "equalization" service charges.

Last night, Reeve Rabel and members of council, Leonard Rat, Ray Moran, Carman Mikel, C. E. Sager and clerk Glenn Milta, met with Ontario Municipal Board engineer and George Powell, sanitary consultant, from the board's Toronto office, to discuss the need for further facilities for the new services. Also present at the meeting were Dr. J. Beach, Frankford M.O.H. and Provincial inspector.

According to reports, tests taken early this spring, indicate that wells in the village are subject to surface water contamination, but show no deep-seated pollution from sanitation. However, top soil conditions in many parts of the village is not conducive to a septic tank absorption. Phenol tests in the ground water to a greater extent than normal, but the condition is not alarming.

The two department of health officials have given approval to the services' extension proposals, but refuse to allow building permits to be issued unless sites were first approved by the MOH for septic tank purposes. Choicest building sites in the village have been the problem . . . slag consists of land for poor absorption. In the case of existing buildings on existing sites, permission will refuse to have permits issued for additions or alterations unless the MOH has approved of the land for the septic tank purposes.)

Under those conditions, there'd be darned little building in the village," commented Councillor Moran.

Mr. Powell had a further conference with the Provincial Ontario Municipal Board - committee on Tuesday, and specific altitude towards the extension project, council could work from there. Establishment of a health unit in Hastings County, if once that unit was formed, it could "go to bat" for extension of village services. It estimated that the county residents must be in favor of the health unit before a health unit, and Mr. Powell said that it is the OK to the advantage of the health unit project as a whole if Trenton and Belleville, at the OK to the, to come in on the idea.

Mr. Powell indicated that some effort to join the Northumberland and Durham health unit, with Cobourg as the county of Northumberland's health board, a quarter from the village. Mr. Powell agreed that this might be done, but considered that the large could best serve its own needs by forming a health unit unit in Hastings. Health unit medical and nursing services would be the entire county, and government grants would be available.

Reeve Rabel said that while there was no real evidence that wells in the village were polluted, he and members of council felt that it was best way of having the condition reversed. He said that 93 persons have given their approval to the effect that they were willing to pay the installation costs for the services, and that he would present this evidence to the Ontario board. Mr. Powell and Mr. Maxted agreed that this would carry weight with the board.

An enquiry was made if there was anyone of the existing village residents whose properties intent on using where sewer mains are installed to install sanitary facilities, or to install the facilities and charge the owners back the taxes over a five year period. Mr. Powell thought that a request for the installation, under the tax recovery system must come from the owners themselves. He suggested that the general rate structure (for sewers and sewage treatment plant) might be raised, and in this way, it would almost "pay" owners to have the facilities installed.

Toronto Band Will Attend Air Force Day

TRENTON — The massed bands and drums of 400 Auxiliary Squadron, Toronto, and RCAF Trenton will entertain visitors to RCAF Station Trenton on Air Force Day, Saturday, July 21st.

The Trenton and Toronto bands have joined forces several times in the past, and the experience gained by members of the RCAF Trenton Pipe Band from these engagements has been of great value, Flt. Sgt. Skinner said.

A 4,440 p.m. the massed band will carry out the Retreat Ceremonies, ending "finis" to the day's activities.

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF's North Star transport squadron at Trenton, Ont., likely will be disbanded as a government austerity measure, Hermenegild Sauvé said Wednesday.

This is not regarded as a great loss to Air Transport Command, however, it had been intended to disband the squadron when the new Yukon transport, the RCAF equivalent of the Canadair Ltd. DC-6B, the manned band will carry out the Retreat Ceremonies ending "finis" to the day's activities.

Farmers Want Relief From School Costs

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario teachers should be graded as civil servants and education costs borne completely by the province of the federal and provincial governments, says the Ontario federation of agriculture.

In a brief to the legislature's committee on municipal law, the federation said Wednesday the move is the only one that will save rural property owners from taxes that have risen "beyond endurance."

Such a move would probably destroy the autonomy of local school boards, the brief said, but added that study groups had found some boards would fall if enjoyed any real autonomy.

IN MEMORIAM

COOK — In loving memory of my dear father, Clarence Hosker Cook, who passed away July 19, 1950.

God gave me a wonderful father,
He had a heart of purest gold,
His memory will never grow cold.
He fashioned his smile out of sunshine,
He moulded his heart of pure gold,
He needed a new star in Heaven,
So he borrowed light to shine.
So out of the old world he sorrow,
He chose that dear God of mine.

—Ever remembered by his daughter Doris and grandchildren.

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of my mother, Mary, who passed away July 10, 1951.

She is gone but not forgotten,
Her memory will always live,
In our hearts in hours of thinking,
Thoughts of her always true.
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
That lies deep in a heart unseen.

—Lovingly remembered by son Leonard Hamilton. 2718-21

Fined $100 For Driving While Impaired

Gordon Stuart Reekie, a 19-year-old airman, pleaded guilty this morning to a charge of driving while his ability was impaired. He had been stopped on highway number two, by a police officer who observed him to lose control of his car, spin across the road into a ditch, and speed off again in the opposite direction. The officer told county Magistrate's court that Reekie had presented a 1961 60 day learner's permit as identification. He had the application forms for a regular Motor Vehicle Operator's permit, but had not yet filled them out.

In passing sentence, Magistrate T. Y. Wills commented, "This sort of driving has to be penalized, and you don't penalize it by a slap on the wrist". He assessed Reekie a $100 fine, and ordered that the airman not be permitted to drive a car anywhere in Canada, for six months.

Authority Booklet Shows Achievements

The progress and achievements of the Moira River Conservation Authority from 1947 to 1962 are outlined in a new 20 page authority booklet just off the press.

The booklet has been published by the Education Extension Advisory Board of the Authority and is the first compiled entirely by the local committee. Three thousand of the booklets have been printed.

Names of the 1962 members from the 17 participating municipalities, along with executive committee and advisory board members are listed in the booklet as well as representatives on the Authority from the year of its inception — 1947.

Achievements of the various advisory boards — Forestry, Water Control, Conservation Areas and Public Education and Conservation Extension are outlined. The booklet is well illustrated with pictures relating to the work of the Authority.

A centre page map outlines the 1056 square mile watershed marking reforestation and conservation areas, while a second back cover map shows the watershed with the Moira River and its main tributaries and lakes marked in blue. Dams, reservoirs and drainage areas are also marked.

The booklet was printed in the job printing department of The Ontario Intelligencer.

Point Anne Woman Hurt In Car Crash

Mrs. Anne Welsh, 31, of Point Anne, is resting comfortably in Belleville hospital today. She suffered a compound fracture of the right leg and abrasions and lacerations of the right arm and head in a motor accident yesterday.

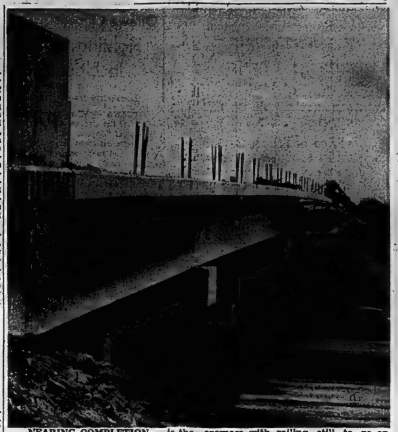
Mrs. Welsh and her husband, Jim, were passengers in an automobile driven by Doug Lucas, of R.R. 3 Belleville, westbound on the four lane stretch of highway number two just east of Belleville. The car was passing a medium truck driven by Clayton Aitchison, of Connaught St., Kingston, when the truck began a left turn, about 8:15 a.m.

Mrs. Welsh, sitting on the right side of the car, was the only person injured. Damaged to the car totalled about $300, and about $100 damages were done to the truck.

Drunk Driver Is Given Month

John Wellington Thompson, R. R. No. 1 Carrying Place, charged with drunk driving on Highway 2 on June 4, pleaded guilty to the charge in county magistrate's court this morning. When Magistrate T. Y. Wills warned him that conviction would result in the seizure of his wife's automobile by the crown and suspension of his operator's permit, he declined to change his plea.

Police evidence indicated that Mr. Thompson had lost control of the automobile and driven up on to the front of a residence, near Belleville. He had been apprehended and held for police by C. W. Lundy of R. R. 2, Brighton. When Mr. Thompson lost control of his car, Mr. Lundy narrowly missed an accident with him. Mr. Thompson, according to police, lost consciousness while being taken to the station in the police cruiser.



Sentence was set at one month in jail.

Driver Change Came Too Late

Gordon Randall Prescott, RCAF Station Trenton, arrested July 13 for driving while intoxicated on No. 2 highway between Belleville and Trenton, pleaded guilty to the charge this morning in county magistrate's court.

According to police, the 22-year-old airman was spotted driving west on the highway along the shoulder. He was stopped by A police car followed, but Prescott stopped before the police cruiser pulled him over. He explained in court that he had stopped to allow his female passenger to take over the driving. Police said the lady was in fit condition to drive.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills sentenced Prescott to seven days in common jail.

SLOW, CONSTRUCTION AHEAD — is the familiar sign along many district highways as a stepped-up construction program is carried out. Above signs are on 401 at the Sidney Street overpass now under construction.

Highway Construction At Peak in District Areas

With an all-time record in construction being carried out this year by the Ontario Department of Highways, motorists in the Belleville area as well as in other parts of the province are seeing their share of the familiar signs "construction ahead" looming up ahead of them.

Even along completed sections of the 401 four-lane highway in the Bay of Quinte area, traffic has been slowed all summer with the construction of two overpasses northwest of the city.

Highway improvements on No. 2 highway east of the city at Millbown are in progress, while in Prince Edward county work on No. 14 highway from Crofton to Bloomfield.

And north of the city paving of a six-mile section of the County paving has been carMadoc county road has been completed, while re-construction of another section of the same road is just now getting underway.

In addition spot paving is being carried out along individual sections of district highways and east of the city in the Marysville and Napanee area construction work is in progress on the Quinte district "missing link" of 401.

In the above area, however, 401 construction is not slowing traffic as cars and trucks are still being routed along No. 2 highway between Marysville and Odessa.

A condition of most highway construction is that traffic be disrupted as little as possible, but in many instances detours are inevitable and there is always the sign "Slow, Construction Ahead."

Northwest of the city the H. J. McFarland Construction Company has since last fall been engaged in the construction of the Wallbridge Road overpass and cloverleaf. On Sidney Street, immediately north of the city work is underway on an overpass over 401.

Two-way traffic on single lanes of 401 has frequently been the vogue at both construction sites.

But construction of the Wallbridge Road cloverleaf is well on the way toward completion with workmen now putting the finishing touches on the overpass structure.

Cloverleaf roadways to allow entrance and exit to and from 401 have been paid out and the first layer of paving completed. Slopes of the overpass ramp are being smoothed and graded.

So, maybe all highway bottlenecks along district highways will be eventually eliminated and there will be no more detours.

Price of Progress

No reasonable person can quarrel with the decision of the Department of Lands and Forests to develop that section of the Prince Edward County shoreline running south from near Consecon towards Pleasant Bay. This is known to many as North Beach.

Whenever a beach area becomes popular, supervision becomes desirable. Unfortunately it is not man's nature to treat other person's property with the respect he would want accorded his own. There may be a few who will pick up rubbish on a public beach as religiously as they would if they had picnicked in their own back yards, but these conscientious people are in the minority. Even if they were not it would require only a few litterbugs to spoil the area for everyone.

The result of government development and supervision of the beach will be to improve its facilities and increase its capacity to serve the many district residents who have acquired the custom of spending leisure hours there during summer weekends.

This development and supervision, however, will cost money and the Department, we think rightly, has adopted the policy of charging admission fees to such areas, so that those who use these facilities help to pay for them.

The charges are modest and there are few families which cannot afford to pay them.

Still, we cannot help regretting another step towards the disappearance of the day when most of the pleasures of the outdoors could be enjoyed by everybody, even paupers. The fact that in many instances, as with the North Beach area, we have robbed ourselves of this privilege by abusing it does nothing to diminish our regret for its passing. It is the price we are paying for our continual growth in population and for the speedy transportation which makes few rural areas truly remote from large urban centres. Sometimes we cannot help wondering whether this so-called progress is always worth the price. Since man is by nature a gregarious animal, and since he is multiplying at such a rapid rate, what we are experiencing here will almost certainly become the common lot of mankind everywhere, on all the continents. But when there are no solitudes, will not the delights of constant companionship eventually grow a little shop-worn?

Uncertain Trumpet

It would be a wise, or a rash, man who could draw any worthwhile conclusions from the results of Monday's election in the riding of Stormont.

True, the Liberals captured the riding from the Progressive Conservatives, providing a recount does not reverse the verdict, which would appear quite unlikely result. However, the margin of 65 votes was small. In view of Conservative reverses on June 18, an argument could be made out for the contention that this was really a moral victory for the government forces in a traditionally Liberal riding. While this may be placing too great a stress on the closeness of the race, it does appear certain that the post-election disclosure of a full-scale foreign exchange crisis has done little or nothing to further diminish the prestige of the Conservatives, below the point to which it had dropped by June 18 from its 1958 peak. We must, therefore, conclude that Stormont has done nothing whatever to forecast the probably results of the next Federal election, if it should be held in the near future.

One point did emerge with considerable clarity. This was that the Social Credit tide has not swept all French-speaking Canadians from their former political allegiances. Sixty per cent of the residents of Cornwall is French-speaking, yet the Social Credit candidate collected a mere thousand-odd votes. This should provide the two old parties with some hopes that they will not be forced to surrender most of the Quebec seats to the Socreds at the next Federal vote. This is heartening news, for a complete divorcement of Quebec from the rest of Canada in the political arena could bring neither Quebec nor the remainder of the country any lasting benefits.

U.S. doctors cannot practise in Saskatchewan without trying examinations. Dr. Gerhard T. Beck of Jacksonville, Florida, aged 33, has been serving as an intern. Now he has gone home. The Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons thought he knew too much to be considered an intern. Doubtless Ben Casey wishes the College's jurisdiction could be extended to U.S. television, so that it could deal with that troublesome Kildare.

Ottawa Offbeat

Fighting Words Probable In Upcoming Session

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — When the Conservative Cabinet got back to work after the election — its ranks thinned by the voters — it had a lot of things to think about.

An election post-mortem had to be conducted. The austerity program had to be worked out. Plans for a new Parliament with a minority government had to be drafted.

In the first couple of weeks [illegible] not much was done. The campaign was a rough rock'em-sock'em affair in which Cabinet ministers were hustled all over the country to shake hands and make speeches.

These men were tired and they trickled back to Ottawa at limping intervals.

By July, though, most were back and hard at work. The post mortem did not take too long before it was handed on to party workers to sort out the details.

The austerity program was rougher. Something like $300,000,000 has come out of government spending this fiscal year and no minister likes to have his budget cut.

The cuts have come, however, and bit by bit this problem is being worked out.

But then came the real problem . . . and they are still working at it.

When the first session of the 25th Parliament begins, 116 Tories will be facing a combined Opposition of 149 members who could, with ease, defeat the government any time they chose to get together.

NO PANDERING

The government is lucky in one respect. Opposition parties so far (100 Liberals, 30 Social Crediters, 19 New Democrats) that is, considering the two of the three groups can defeat it unless the third group abstains from voting — always a possibility.

So there was some thought at the start of Cabinet pondering of bringing in a program in which each minister would appeal — at least to one or the Opposition parties.

This would ensure enough support each time to continue the life of the government.

Politically, this would make sense. It would keep Parliament alive for a full four year, possibly two or three years.

But the word is out now that such a partnership with the Opposition would stick in the craw of several Cabinet ministers.

Several have said, once, parts enough of them that [illegible] began to change. Solid, honest, hard-working men, these ministers are campaigning in Cabinet for a flat, "no" approach.

Back with the Opposition, is their theme. We still form the government and it is up to you to support us, or take us we feel it should be governed."

The only course open, say they, is to bring in a good Conservative program and let their opponents fix as, when and where they will.

WATCH OUT FOR PM

In this way, any legislation which is passed will benefit the Conservatives as Tories think it should . . . and the party will not be hurt by it, either.

And if the Opposition moves against the government in force, and votes it down, the Conservatives can go to the country with the cry that they tried, but the Opposition would not let them govern.

Defeat in the House at an early point would also mean that the government with its well-prepared program as campaign material.

The only hazard in this otherwise good plan, say some ministers, is that Prime Minister Diefenbaker will be hard to hold in check.

Losing his majority in Parliament has taken none of the fire out of this political cyclone-horse.

Instead it will undoubtedly spur him to greater oratorical efforts as he slashed out in the Commons from a semi-defensive position. He fights best with his back to the wall.

A hazard this may be, but nobody in Cabinet will seriously try to hold back Mr. Diefenbaker. He might lash the Opposition into a united position — but he will maintain the best political platform weapon in the country.

So if Cabinet agrees on a fighting program, it should be a rip-roaring session of Parliament which starts in September.

Popular Ride

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

Man has made great strides in the transportation field, but he is responsible for very few more popular than a ride on the gravy train.

Parkinson Had Answer

Hamilton Spectator

With his mixture of humor and bone truth Professor Northcote Parkinson has thrown more light than most on the workings of government and the way they should work. Two years ago, before a Queen's Park committee he produced a new approach to taxation which was simple, sound and probably to the politicians, entirely unacceptable.

Professor Parkinson would determine first what proportion of our collective income, corporate and personal should be handed over in taxes. Governments then prepare their spending budgets on what they have to spend and on the basis of priorities. Unrealistic as such a tax Utopia may be, it is a thousand times more realistic than Canada's problems of the moment. We have embarked, we hope, on a program of narrowing and soul-cleansing confessionary deficits. The government is committed to slashing its spending estimated by a minimum of a billion dollars. That is all to the good if the cuts are made in the right places. The expectation has come from Ottawa that one of these places will be going to be the project for twinning the locks on the Welland Canal. It may be that such a project is opposed without occasioning delay. It is to be hoped that any delays should be taken into consideration in judging priorities.

Above all, the economy drive should be consideration of the cost one to be made of its savings. Should they, in fact, be applied entirely to reducing the deficit immediately or should they be better employed in reducing the burden of corporate taxation? We would not dare to suggest an answer until there has been time to assess the impact of taxation on business. But, in the meantime, there are a deterrent to business expansion and investment. If the military intelligence are correct the goose that lays its golden eggs it could be contributing to the birds' lagging spirits.

Time Favors Two Chinas

Ottawa Citizen

For the moment at least, fears of conflict in the Formosa Strait have subsided. United States military intelligence appraisals of the Communist China's reinforcements and armies on the mainland opposite the National-ist-held islands of Quemoy and Matsu indicate that the assembly of troops is deliberate.

At the same time, President Kennedy has reiterated the understanding between Washington and National China that the mainland will not be undertaken without American consultation. And the U.S. has a inclination to grant consent.

Where the matter now rests, with the two Chinese opponents unlikely to attack each other, and with the U.S. seeking to maintain the status quo, in effect, the U.S. is espousing a two-Chinas policy. At the moment, it is the only realistic program.

It would be too much to expect Mao Tse-tung or Chiang Kaishek, the Communist and Nationalist leaders, to agree to holding hands. Their opinions too deeply committed to the view that Formosa is part of China; neither can afford to recognize the other's independent existence.

But neither man will live forever. And the generation arises both in mainland China and in Formosa, for whom memories will undoubtedly appear less urgent. A new generation of Chinese growing up in Formosa is bound to begin thinking of Formosa as its home, while a new generation on the mainland will wonder why it must go to war to capture a relatively small island more than 100 miles off its coast.

At that time, the two Chinas policy may become effective in law as well as in fact, and the door opened a little toward a settlement of some of the issues that are creating tension in the Far East.

To Your Good Health

Women Are Susceptible To Fingernail Troubles

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What makes one's fingernails crack and split and what can be done? — C.L.

Cracked or brittle nails aren't a problem that is specific, or easy to correct, or treatable by any simple home remedy or dietary gimmick.

The nails are, indeed, part of the skin, or, if you want to put it another way, a part of the outer covering of the body.

I have, therefore, some reason in suggesting that people who have nail troubles should see a dermatologist, or skin specialist. For people in smaller communities where there may not be such a specialist, by all means go to your general physician. He may well find the answer for you — or he may say that if it matters that much, why don't you go to the city and see a specialist. After all, on a day when a doctor may be harassed by an impending childbirth, a heart attack case, a bint of some measles popping out, and many be somebody's fulminating infected toe, he may not be overly concerned about brittle fingernails.

On the other side, anybody who has a fingernail or toe nails can get mighty sick of them, and want to correct the situation for good.

So here are some hints on possible causes.

First, skin (including the nails) varies in texture, toughness, and thickness. In any case, from one person to another.

Second, people who do hard, manual labor rarely have brittle nails. I suppose it's like the rest of us, can "get soft" from sitting.

Third, if one has thin, fragile nails, there's not much point in trying for thick, strong ones, unless you want to change your pattern of heredity.

Fourth, women are especially subject to nail troubles. There are many causes for this.

Exposure to alkaline solutions such as in washing; nail polish; vitamin deficiencies, especially A, D and B; nutritional deficiencies, chronic illness; poor blood supply.

Fifth, diseases, whether of skin or system, such as psoriasis, ringworm, anemia, thyroid deficiency.

What to do? Correct what's wrong. Vitamin supplement if that's what you need; more protein; correction of anemia or thyroid trouble and so forth (of which we have very fine ones) for rheumatism, if you can't suggest anything except the nail and error technique which some others use.

Plain gelatin taken once a day is usually prescribed to help strengthen nails, and there is inexpensive and harmless, if you can stand it.

Dear Dr. Molner: Which should I see first, my family doctor, or an eye specialist? For the last seven or eight weeks I have been getting headaches in the afternoon. I wear glasses for near-sightedness, but the headaches come regardless of whether I am wearing them or not. — E.S.

See your family doctor about the headaches. Go to your eye man for you can't see properly.

People get the idea that the eyes are the most likely cause of headache. This isn't so. For some of the numerous causes, why not read "How To Prevent Headaches"? (That booklet is available to any reader in person for an unstamped, self-addressed envelope and 5c in coin to the Health Editor, Address requests to Dr. Molner care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.)

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told that egg shell calcium is very good for the nerves and helps one to sleep. Some Thoughts On Our Perversity

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Those who insist that they can forgive, but they can't forget, fail to grasp that the essential end in forgiving consists in the forgetting.

Three new novels I struggled to get through and finally had to put up with: "Laugh, I'm Laugh," by O'Hara, "Young Man with a Horn" by Cook, and "The Sound of Bow Bells," by Weidman — all of them dull, pointless and long-winded and all by commercially successful novelists.

It's easy to say of a childless wife, "What a pity she has no children of her own, since she seems to be so good with them" — but many a woman who is "good" with other's children cannot stand up under the pressures and responsibilities of her own.

We used to judge a man by the company he kept; but the modern organization man is just as likely to be the company he keeps him.

What the suspicious-minded fail to understand is the truth expressed in Frank Crane's brief warning: "You cannot be deceived if you trust too much, but you will live in torment if you do not trust enough."

The chief argument against a co-educational college is that it forces the women to adopt the intellectual attitudes of the men — and a woman's mind ceases, and should not, work the same way as a man's.

I have never been able to understand why so many automobiles seem to stall at railroad crossings; and, given that they do, why so many motorists remain in their cars and are killed. Inevitably, there is something most peculiar about the man who stays behind the wheel of his stalled car on a railroad track.

Most discussions about the "appreciation" of art are utterly futile; for, as Vlaminck once said, "Art cannot be explained. It can be shocking; it can be tasted, but not explained."

Advice is never appreciated — for if it turns out well, the recipient will claim that his own ideas; and if it turns out badly, he naturally blames the adviser.

A dictatorship always looks "stronger" than a democracy, until it begins to collapse — and then its disintegration is swift and inevitable, while a democracy gathers strength and power under crisis.

Everybody calls a "sex fiend" is, in nine cases out of 10, some painfully creature who is incapable of sex at all.

I am convinced that heart attacks are much more common among men than among women not because men are more constitutionally predisposed toward them but because women provide both other and their therapy by their mutual confessions of weakness and worry, while men bottle up their deepest concerns until the cork finally blows out.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the summer resort regions, many a man finds that his service and repair garage becomes a marine garage as well, as the mechanics who know about car engines are also pretty familiar with outboards and other boat engines. I was delayed an hour or two the other day having a small engine job done on my car because three people ahead of me had outboard problems which they had lugged up from the town wharf. From my turn came, the job was one of those minor affairs that provide conversation.

"The great trouble," said the garage man, "is that people don't read the little books. Every car that is sold, every outboard engine, every small engine, has a little book that goes with it, clearly and helpfully making it simple for ordinary service and repair and what to do to keep it in good working order.

"It is my experience that not two people in ten read those little books. When I ask them, they say 'Well, as a matter of fact I haven't looked at it yet.' That goes for car owners and boat owners alike."

The books are free from under the hood. As a matter of fact, I hadn't read the little book for the past four cars.

LUNG AND PROFI

Joe Miles has been the city's parking meter repairman for two years now. Here, he checks the balance wheel of a meter.

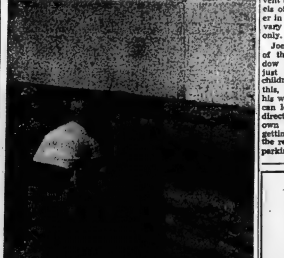
A motorist's nightmare: spare all show the "violation" or "expired" meter mechanisms in the repair shop sign.

Keeping Parking Meters Going Requires Skill and Hard Work

Belleville's 750 parking meters take in about $1,000 per week during the summer, but it is not all gravy. Those meters have to be wound, twice a week, and an average of nearly two meters per week break down. Any delicate machine will break down if it is kicked by as many as a dozen as a parking meter is.

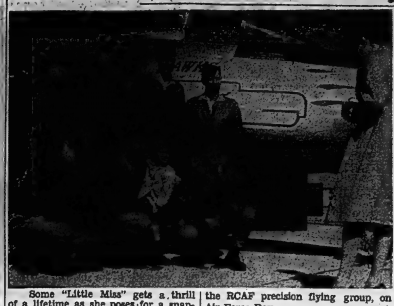
When a Belleville meter breaks, Joe Miles, an employee of the city's parking commission, is the man who has to fix it.

Joe lives on West Moira St. is married, and has one son. He works in a well-lit room in the basement of the city hall. A technician when he accepted the job of caring for Belleville's meters, he has since taken two courses in repairing them. The courses are conducted once per year by the manufacturer, at the factory in Guelph, and are attended by servicemen from all over Canada. Joe Miles got an average mark of better than 90 per cent the last time he took the course.



During his working day, Joe checks any meters reported out of order. If they can be fixed on the spot, he fixes them. If not, he puts replacemnt works in the meter and takes the faulty mechanism to his shop for repair. Every meter is cleaned once every two years, checked over and timed. The meters give three minutes of free time for every hour, to allow for any inaccuracy that may later develop. It takes about an hour and a half to clean and time a meter.

When Joe isn't fixing meters or cleaning them, he may be resetting them. By the addition subtraction or substitution of parts the meters can be adjusted to take different coins, and measure off different times for them. At present all the meters in Belleville, with the exception of some by the Federal building, and on parking lots are being converted to take nickels only. They will all take pennies, but excepting the ones at the Federal building, they won't give any parking time for them.



The meters by the Federal building will give 12 minutes for a penny. In the parking lots, the meters take nickels and quarters, selling parking time up to 12 hours for five cents an hour.

Some of the oldest meters, in service for about 12 years can be jarred to give a few minutes of extra time. Later models are equipped with a rubber shock absorber to prevent this. There are three models of the same make of meter in use in the city now. They vary in interior mechanism only.

Joe's shop in the basement of the city hall, has a window on the Market St. wall, just at the right height for children to look in. Because of this, he is often watched at his work by the children, who can look through the wipdow directly onto his desk. In their own way, the children are getting their own course in the repair and maintenance of parking meters.

This window on the Market St. wall of the city hall gives Ricky Kingsman, 4, of Pinnacle Street, a good view of the work Joe Miles is doing inside repairing parking meters.

Hound Lost 250 Miles Away Comes Home

STOUFFVILLE, Ont. (CP)— Quenelle, an 11-year-old deer hound lost 18 months ago and 250 miles away, has made it back home.

Roy Heaton, her owner, said today he saw a dog plodding toward him down Highway 48 and thought the gait was familiar.

"I stopped and shouted her name," he said.

"She came running to me. I still can't believe it's true."

Quenie disappeared in the winter of 1950 in the Dorset area near Algonquin Park. As often as he could, Mr. Heaton returned to the area to hunt for her. He had bought the dog as a pup and for nine years they had hunted together.

Heaton said there was one sad note to the story. When Queenie vanished, her pup, Queenie Junior, was with her. Queenie came home alone.

Air Show Visitors on Saturday Should Remember Cameras

The Royal Canadian Air Force Show is one of the biggest picture-taking events of the year. Camera-toting visitors will have a wealth of opportunities for slides, movies or snaps in both black and white or color.

With your camera, you can capture the highlight of the day — the gold Sabre jets screaming red, white and blue smoke while pacing through their 30 manoeuvres. Shows are generally climaxed by the bomb-bursts and cross-over, which takes the pilots high into the sky and then brings them swooping down from the four points of the compass to cross paths.

To take pictures of these precision acrobatics, follow the flying aircraft through your viewfinder. Hold the camera firmly, swivel from the waist and press the shutter gently.

Besides the manoeuvres, you'll have a chance to snap souvenir photos of the family's entire visit. Take advantage of the ground displays of R.C.A.F. equipment to snap junior examining a wing, and sister chatting with the pilots. Photos such as these become favorites in any family albums.

Warns Against TV Companies 'Printing Money'

LONDON (CP) — Viscount Hailsham, government leader in the House of Lords, frowned one of Canadian publisher Roy Thomson's proposals to warn commercial television companies that the days of easy profits may be numbered.

The companies could not be permitted to print money as Thomson (a near monopoly) in order to use a phrase, to print money."

Thomson first used the phrase in a speech to shareholders of Kemsley Milington royal commission report on British broadcasting.

LIMIT PROFITS

He said that if commercial television companies did not in their own interest try to limit their profits "the days of their profits may be numbered."

They should remember that is unlikely that Parliament will entrust them to exploit their good margins or extend a near monopoly over the fourth channel," Thomson added.

Whatever the framers of the Television Act 1954 intended "they surely did not intend to set up a commercial monopoly," he said.

The Daily Mail says in a discussion of the future of the government plans to slice grossing profits of commercial television are expected to be announced in a detailed white paper to be issued next month.

Cautious and Hard-Working Czechs Stay Grim As Ever Despite de-Stalinization

Eight years after the war-ended, permanently changed life in East Europe, one fact has not erased, nor even changed, is that Czechs still are cautious. Perhaps, reasoned this third of five satellites on East Europe today, it's because they're still unsure Khrushchev's way is a permanent path for communism.

By RICHARD O'Regan

It typifies Czechoslovakia's under communism in 1952. Six years after de-Stalinization began elsewhere, Czechoslovakia is still the most tightly-controlled, the most slave-secret, the least liberal of all the Communist states in East Europe.

Coming here from other East bloc states is oppressive. Elsewhere, people seem to have regained their sense of humor. Following the grim days of Stalin. Not here.

The atmosphere is grey, puritanical and stolid. It is impossible to tell what people think. The cautious Czechs will hardly say a word to foreigners.

"You have to keep your mouth shut," said a taxi-driver.

On the surface, Prague looks bright and prosperous. Of all the satellite capitals it has the brightest neon lights, the largest selection of consumer goods and imaginative window displays.

There is a busy, hard-working feeling about Czechoslovakia. The skies are striped with black smoke from new factories. People move with purpose.

WOMEN WORK

And everywhere women at work. Women in work pants painting highway posts, women in uniform on the railroads and streetcars, women with picks and shovels digging ditches.

The statistics confirm that Czechoslovakia is the most efficient and, the most prosperous of the East European satellites. It had, of course, the industrial base when communism took over in 1948.

Living standards are lower than in Germany, France or Italy, but nevertheless, the Czech works less hours for a suit, for a pair of shoes, than any East European except the Yugoslav.

And Czechoslovakia has been the slowest to de-Stalinize, and to introduce liberal reforms.

For months a committee has been discussing what to do about the Stalin statute, but nothing has been done.

According to some theories the Czechs should be the ripest for liberalization. They have a pre-war democratic tradition, a sense of national consciousness and the highest standard of living in the Communist world.

How is it that the Czechs are such model members of the Communist camp?

FIND LIFE GOOD

Part of the answer is fast industrialization. Peasant youth, emigrating to the cities, find life better. If they are good workers, they can get new apartments, TV sets, labor-saving kitchens, perhaps a motor-scooter.

"I am perfectly happy," said a youth to whom this correspondent spoke. "I'm a lot better off than my father used to be."

Another explanation is historical. Communism had 38 per cent of the vote in 1946 before the Communists seized power. And there is mistrust of the West for the Munich betrayal, and traditional Slavophilism for Russia.

Finally, Czech caution is notorious. Czech Communists think twice before they say slow and deliberate. They claim their methods prove best the Marxist axiomata that appeared in Poland, Hungary and Poland.

"It may be Czech caution that the Stalin statue is still up," speculated one Western here. "The Czechs probably wonder how long Khrushchev's way of doing things will last. They probably want to wait and see before going to the trouble of tearing the Stalin statue down."

Parole Board Head Suggests Longer Terms

WINNIPEG (CP) — Criminals with long records should receive heavier sentences rather than they do now, the chairman of the National parole board said Tuesday.

W. G. Hurst said at a press conference it was a waste of time to send a man with a long record to jail for less than two years.

"It should be five to 10 years," he said. "It's obvious they are going to commit crimes again."

With the longer sentence, the habitual criminal has an incentive to reform himself and get out of jail on parole.

Mr. Hurst said he would like to see more use made of the habitual criminal provision of the criminal code under which a man with a long record can be sentenced to an indefinite term.

He said 21.8 per cent of Canada's criminals commit 69.4 per cent of all crimes, and yet 89 per cent of prison inmates were for less than two years.

McASKIN—VERMILYEA

Eastminster United Church, Belleville, was the scene on Saturday, June 30, at 4.00 p.m. of a lovely summer wedding when Sydna Helena Vermilyea, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. S. Edgar Vermilyea, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Vermilyea, became the bride of John Frank McAskin, of Ottawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McAskin, at which the Reverend Harry M. Davis, pastor of Bridge Street United Church, officiated before a bedecked pink and white gladioli and white cushion chrysanthemums.

The wedding music was provided by Mr. S. Alec Gordon, guest organist from Bridge St. United Church, who accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Verna Darling, in her rendition of "The Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony, and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by Mr. J. Talbot Ketchenon, of Belleville, the bride was radiant in her pure silk organza over taffeta bridal gown, fashioned in floor-length with fitted bodice having short sleeves and a scooped neckline accented with seed pearls. The gown's full skirt, which fell in soft folds at the front, was accentuated at the back with a double-tier bustle cascading into a chapel train. She wore a headdress of three organza roses centred by simulated pearls and carried a cascade bouquet of pastel pink Sweetheart roses with trailing ivy.

She was attended by Mrs. Margaret Matthews, of Trenton, as matron of honor, sister of the bride, by Miss Patricia Reid of Kingston, and by Miss Judy Vermilyea, also a sister of the bride. All attendants were attired in similar style gowns of silk organza over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodices, scoop necklines and elbow-length sleeves. The sheath skirts were accented by softly pleated overskirts, caught at the waists with small bows. The maid of honor was in shrimp color, the bridesmaids in mint-green and yellow, respectively. They wore close-fitting rose-type hats of silk organza with tiny illusion veils, and carried hand bouquets of white carnations mingled with tinted ones to match their gowns.

The little flower girl, Miss Denise Matthews, three and a half-year-old niece of the bride, wore a white frilled organza frock with fitted bodice and frilled puff sleeves. Her headdress was of white carnations in bandeau form, and she carried a basket of white and tinted carnations matching the gowns of the other attendants.

Mr. Robert McAskin, of Burlington, attended as the bridegroom, and Mr. Ronald Jones of Ottawa, and Mr. Jack Matthew of Trenton, ushered the guests.

The reception was held in the church parlor to which the U.C.W. catered. The bride's table was appointed in the traditional manner with white damask, centred by a three-tier wedding cake, the top tier in the form of a church, and the base misted with white tulle and scattered rosebuds.

Mrs. Vermilyea, the bride's mother, wore a princess blue sheath of embroidered chiffon over taffeta, matching picture hat, and corsage of pink and white carnations, and the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. McAskin, a beige embroidered sheath, with beige hat, green accessories, and corsage of pink and white carnations.

For the wedding trip to the west coast, the bride wore a blue printed silk sheath, with white hat and accessories, and corsage of pink carnations. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. McAskin will reside in Kingston.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Some people imagine that Religion can be used like any other item of consumer goods. All you need do is read for it, take it off the shelf, stir and serve! "Instant salvation," they label it.

But when we use Religion, instead of allowing it to use us, we always end up abusing it.

Some people "use" Religion as a prop to shore up sagging nervous systems. They rely upon it for the security and strength they refuse to achieve on their own. They would like to see God as next best and even a sweet and simple affair. So, they reach for Him like Man Up-stairs," as they would say, reduce Him to their size, and carry Him in their vest pocket — on the left side, nearest the heart, of course!

Others turn to Religion as a respectable means of hallowing their hates — not their love! Because of unhappy temperament, some thrive only in addictive isolation — fenced off from their neighbors.

They need wide barriers and high walls to be happy — because, inside they are not so happy. They flee from the world because they are afraid of it. They cannot abide its open societies, its changing patterns, or the possibility of being persuaded by its convicting opinions.

This kind of religion is "useful" because it is safe — safe from the danger of involvement in the lives and needs of others. But it can only be "used" by "us" — never by "them" — and so, it is really an abuse of Religion.

Still others, the dependent and emotionally immature ones, imagine that they can quickly don a cloak of piety, grab the horns of the altar, and easily acquire fool-proof protection from their daily troubles.

They're looking for shortcuts to circumvent the tough and thorny issues of life. Unfortunately, from what they have heard about Religion from some of its over-eager "salesmen," it appeals to their cowardly feelings, not to their courage. Result: This misuse of Religion makes weak people weaker still.

All three groups are practicing "neurotic religion." All three are involved in a flight from life and reality. They need to be reminded:

Vital Religion cannot grow in egocentric soil.

High Religion cannot aspire to its heights in hearts that are disconnected from other hearts. We need to be attached to, not separated from our fellow men.

Mature Religion cannot appeal to our timidities and our cowardice. It must be tasked to our potential for courage.

This, the Psalmist knew. In a single, simple, penetrating picture, he asks God: "Lead me to a rock that is too high for me!" He wants to stand on his tip-toes. He wants to stretch: to strain his spiritual muscles. And this is what the poet taught, as well: "A man's reach must exceed his grasp or what's a Heaven for?"

Those who "use" Religion never get off the ground. They are too busy sitting on their hands.

WEDDING

HOBBS — GRAY

A lovely, double-ring wedding was solemnized recently in the afternoon at Eastminster United Church, Belleville, when the Reverend Alexander McDowell, minister of the church, united in marriage, Margaret Emma Gray, daughter of Mrs. Hazel Chappell of Trenton, to Milton Francis Hobbs, of Belleville, son of Mrs. Alice Hobbs, before a background of gladioli in pastel shades, and ferns.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Gerald Laughlin, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of blue nylon over flowered taffeta, with blue picture hat or net and sequins. She wore a single strand of pearls with matching earrings, the gift of her bridegroom, and carried a nosegay of pink Sweetheart roses and baby chrysanthemums.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Gerald Laughlin, who was attired in pink nylon with white accessories. She carried a nosegay of baby 'mums tinted blue and tied with pink satin ribbon.

Mr. Gerald Laughlin, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, and Mr. Douglas Way also of Belleville ushered the guests.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Gerald Laughlin, where the bride's table beneath cascading pink and white streamers, was prettily appointed with white damask linens, and a three-tier wedding cake, topped with a tiny bride and bridegroom and flanked by silver candelabra with tall pink candles.

The bride's mother received wearing a blue crepe gown with white accessories, and corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who chose a sheath gown of beige with green accessories, and a corsage of orange gladioli.

Guests attended from St. Catharines and Peterborough; Kingston and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs are residing at 40 Mikel Avenue, Belleville.

Women's Institutes

BAY OF QUINTE W.I.

Following the roll call Mrs. J. Conner had the letter for flowers and cards received while she was a patient in Trenton Hospital. Mrs. C. Stickle also expressed appreciation for plants and cards during her stay in hospital. It was decided to send a shower of cards to one of the members of the W.I., Mrs. Ross Stickle who had the misfortune to meet with an accident in her home. Mrs. Cecil Jeffrey thanked the members for their kindness.

Reports of the W.I. convention were given by Mrs. Don Sandercock and Mrs. Harold Dickens. Mrs. Dunn expressed thanks to both ladies for their fine reports. It was decided that the secretary would be requested to write for cards pertinent to enquire about the possibility of an extension lecture course for the W.I. sometime in August.

Two contests were conducted after which community singing was enjoyed.

Following the pennies for friendship collection, a lovely lunch was served.

Peter McCormick, two and a half years old, of Dufferin Ave., found the blackberries in the garden were ripe yesterday. Like all boys when they see the berries are ripe, he decided to sample some, but first he had to look up and see if the photographer was really going to take a picture.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

COOK-OUT HOSTESS IS FED UP

A cook-out is a very informal way to entertain. But that doesn't mean guest manners should be relaxed to the point of near-extinction.

The charm of a cook-out is that sports clothes are in order and guests can lounge around on the grass and eat and chat in a leisurely way.

The spell is broken, though, when the hosts have to be around later fishing smoldering cigarette butts from the potato beds, rounding up plates that dot the landscape and digging chicken bones from the greensward before the power mower gets to tangle with them.

Surprisingly, manners that appear so elegant indoors often seem to crumble in the fresh air. A guest might never think of grinding a cigarette into his hostess' broadloom. But invite him outside, and he doesn't give a second thought to scarring the lawn which, in upkeep, probably can match the cost of the living-room carpet dollar for dollar.

A neighbor of ours vowed after a big cook-out she had this summer, that from now on all her parties will be black-tie-and-silk affairs. According to her, it's less costly to have a cleaning woman come in and clear up next day after a dancer party than to have a battery of gardeners in after a cook-out, to repair what's left of the lawn and shrubbery.

Most of the damage can be prevented simply by applying the same sort of good manners you ordinarily overwhelm people with in the living room.

At a cook-out it means:

Using ash trays or other receptacles especially put out by the hosts for this purpose. Don't flip still-lighted butts on the grass or into the bushes.

Depositing dishes and leftovers in any clean-up area designated by the hosts. Food and soiled napkins left on the lawn not only a magnet to ants and other insects, it's bad enough when they crash a party, but it can be more disastrous if they're carried indoors on the bottom of a guest's shoe before left sitting on the grass too long.

If you have children along, keep tabs on their activities — so they don't run headlong through flower beds or dig holes in the lawn. Naturally, you wouldn't let them barrel around indoors. At a cook-out, they have more room to romp, but curious parents owe to it that they confine their games to outlying districts where they won't run into guests or step on their tidbits.

Question: My daughter is engaged to a young man who works in our city but comes from another state. I met his parents when they came to the engagement party and visited for the week end. Now they've invited my daughter and me to their home and plan a big party to introduce the rest of their family. I'm a widow and hold a job which I can't leave on the date they've set. I'll need a few days off and can't arrange a vacation until later in the Summer. My daughter thinks it would be improper for her to go without me even though he's fiance's parents have made plans to entertain us. Would it be incorrect for her to meet his relatives without my being with her? — Mrs. A.C., Trenton, J.J.

Answer: It would be inconsiderate to spoil any plans the young man's family may have made. If you can't tear yourself away from your job for the specified period it would be proper for your daughter to visit her future in-laws alone. Naturally, you should send his mother a note of explanation and suggest that you visit her a day or two during your vacation. Perhaps another close relative, such as an aunt or a grandmother, could accompany her in your place so that the young man's family could see that his fiancee's family has put a stamp of approval on the match.

Correction Re U.I. Benefits

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—In a recent column you stated "Benefits now provided when one is laid off due to illness or accident might apply in your case." This is not correct.

However, if a person is taken ill after having established his eligibility for entitlement to benefit, he may continue to receive such benefit.—WM. J. BAGNATO, Ontario Regional Public Relations Officer, Unemployment Insurance Commission.

DEAR MR. BAGNATO—Which means that the layoff must have been due to lack of work, and not illness, if the worker is to qualify for unemployment benefits. Thanks for putting me straight.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—When I wrote before, you suggested I write again. Our boy has grown to manhood in the last nine months, being nearly six foot, and 25 pounds heavier than when he went away.

His maturity is not all physical either. We marvel at the companionship we have with him. For the first time in our son's sixteen years he likes school. Report cards are a thrill, with both terms showing an average of above 70.

There has also been the pleasure of helping to pay his own way. The school allots the pupils, who ask for them, jobs they can be paid for.

Boarding school is not all work. There have been parties, and trips, and visits home. He has made new friends and learned new study habits. To say the least everyone has enjoyed the year and to him home is a wonderful place.

I am still a HOPEFUL MOTHER.

DEAR HOPEFUL MOTHER — Three cheers! You wrote before to say your boy was failing at school. That you were sending him away to boarding school.

Now separation plus a constructive experience away from home has worked the magic. He sees everything in a better light. Thanks for reporting.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—I am 13 and like a boy in my room very much. But I don't know if he likes me because we're both shy when we're together, and don't talk because we both become speechless.

The trouble is my girl friend is trying to make me jealous by saying that when I'm not around she rides on his bike and things like that. I'd like to know how do you think I can get on talking terms so he'll still like me, even though we're shy.

Do you think I should go on believing my girl friend and try not getting jealous?—TROUBLED K. W.

DEAR K. W.—One good way to make conversation is to ask him about his school work, his family or what he likes to do in his spare time. Always take an interest in your companion, whoever he may be, and show yourself friendly and courteous.

Don't let your girl friend worry you and don't ever do things to make her jealous as she is doing to you.

Springbrook U.C.W. Plans Activities

The July meeting of the Springbrook U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. Ivan Fulton, the president opened the meeting with the theme song.

The scripture period was conducted by Mrs. B. McCoy using the Temperance Church of Christ". Mrs. H. Fillen conducted the Bible Study, "Church Members". Mrs. R. Wallace read several passages from The Acts 6:13-21 and 7:54-60.

In her discussion she stated that the early church members were active, disciples and the common people. Three of the questions discussed were: "If we did not have the church today what would happen to our faith?" "Do you believe to be a Christian is to attend a church group?" "Do you think we are in danger today of becoming too critical of the church?" The president thanked Mrs. Fillen for her well prepared Bible Study.

Twenty-five members answered the roll call.

The members were asked about the cards sent and calls made. Cards of thanks were received from Mrs. I. Bristol and Mrs. J. McKeown and Mrs. T. Webb. A note of thanks was also received from Mrs. R. Hutchens from the U.C.W. for the gift on the occasion of her departure from Springbrook.

The president spoke on the First School for U.C.W. to be held at Whitby August 30-24th for The Bay of Quinte Conference and she hoped the Springbrook would be well represented.

The "Fun Fair" held the latter part of June, was enjoyable as well as a profitting evening

Mrs. F. Bateman gave the report for Mrs. D. Young and Mrs. O. Barton on their visits to the Country Home and the hospital as well as people convalescing at home.

It was decided to cater to the Holstein-Friesian banquet and also to the Hickson Sale Barn in October.

Music was supplied by the junior girls composed of Misses D. Broadworth, M. Mumby and D. Pillen. Mrs. G. Williams read a story "The House Paper", by Edna Jacques, Mrs. A. Hall also gave a reading, "I shall not pass this way again." "A Dinner Menu" contest was conducted by Mrs. G. Webb with Mrs. F. Smith being the winner.

After the meeting closed the hostesses, Mrs. A. Hall and Mrs. F. Bateman, and committee, served refreshments.

Three Potato Salads I Like and Recommend

by Mary Moore

These three potato salads will do you good service this summer. Spice the events at which you serve them and make a hole to whom. By doing this you could serve each one twice between now and mid-September and acquire a reputation as a potato salad wizard.

POTATO SALAD — JELLIED:

5 medium cooked potatoes, 6 tablespoons vinegar, 1 small onion, grated, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 1¼ teaspoons salt, dash of pepper, 1 package lemon-flavored gelatin, 1¼ cups hot water, ½ medium cucumber, sliced thinly, 6 radishes, sliced, 3 tablespoons mayonnaise, 3 stalks celery, sliced, ¼ medium green pepper, sliced diagonally.

Dice potatoes; while still warm add add 3 tablespoons vinegar, onion, salad oil, salt and pepper. Mix gently and let stand about 30 minutes in this marinade. Dissolve gelatin in hot water, add remaining vinegar and pour 2-3 cup of mixture into small moulds. Decorate evenly with cucumber and radish slices. Chill until firm. Beat remaining gelatin, after it has thickened slightly, until it appears and fairly thick. Add mayonnaise, remaining vegetables and potatoes. Spoon potato-vegetable mixture evenly over decorated gelatin in bowl and pour remaining Vermouth on lettuce-lined serving plate.

HOT POTATO SALAD (German):

4 slices side bacon, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 2 tablespoons water, ½ cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 3 cups diced cooked potatoes (preferably boil), ¼ cup chopped green pepper, 2 sliced hard-cooked eggs, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley.

Fry bacon. Remove from pan and crumble and drain on paper towel. Saute onion in bacon fat until limp. Carefully add water, vinegar, sugar, salt and pepper and boil 1 minute. Combine potatoes, green pepper, eggs and parsley in serving bowl and pour hot dressing over. Sprinkle bacon bits on top. Serve warm.

By PATRICIA KUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—A schedule packed with public speaking, church and community work and keeping house doesn't prevent hustling, dynamic Jean Newman from enjoying her favorite hobby — oil painting.

The former Toronto board of control member produces more than 30 representational landscapes each summer, often two in one day when travelling, attending the Madoc Art Centre north of Belleville, Ont., or holidaying on the Atlantic coast.

"I'm crazy about rocks and water," said the energetic grandmother who has been without a political office since her unsuccessful attempt to become Toronto's mayor in 1960.

She has also painted several portraits, including one of her husband, lawyer Campbell Newman, and one of her son.

She says that one day when things were slow during a meeting of the Metropolitan Toronto council she even did a sketch of former chairman Fred Gardiner.

Mrs. Newman can recall all the places she has visited simply by rifling through her sketchbook — street scenes in Barbados; the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace; the view from her hotel balcony at St. Raphael in the south of France.

LOST BYELECTION

With all her activities—United Church and social welfare work and politics — it's not surprising that Mrs. Newman is economical with time as well as paint.

"I don't spend more than half an hour on little sketches. And when I do a larger painting, I just clean off my palette with a sketch."

Mrs. Newman's style is clean and open, much like that of the Group of Seven whose work she admires and collects.

Although out of office now, she remains active politically. She ran unsuccessfully as a Liberal in Toronto Eglinton in a February byelection and hopes to try again there in the next provincial vote.

"All I need is 35 more votes," she said, referring to the margin by which she lost to Progressive Conservative Leonard Reilly.

WILL TRY AGAIN

Jean Newman, former Toronto board of control member and unsuccessful candidate in a provincial byelection, will try again for a seat in the legislature at the next election. She's active United Church and social welfare worker, Mrs. Newman, a grandmother, also finds time to do oil painting—(CP Photo).

A teetotaller who campaigned on the liquor banned at public receptions when she was on the Toronto board of control, she is also noted for her concern for injustice and the underprivileged.

Her husband, whom she met at the University of Toronto law school, she graduated in 1925, has described his spirited wife as the "one - woman welfare agency."

Mrs. Newman, who attributes her political drive to her Scottish grandfather, Donald MacGregor Gordon, onetime mayor of Wingham, Ont., first entered public life in 1930 when she was elected to the Toronto board of education.

In 1956 and 1958 she topped the polls for board of control.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Nanette J. — She paints, so she expects everyone to humor her.

Dorothy T. — I think a real friend should feel for her friend.

• • •

Nanette J. — Dotty is 57 and she and I, and our families before us, have always been bosom friends. Now, out of the blue, she decides she's an artist and gives me strict orders not to call her during the day because that's when she's painting.

Her husband fails for that temperament stuff, but not me. I think she's just pushing people around. Her "art" doesn't amount to a hill of beans. She just fell for her instructor's "line," and now she wants to chuck over everything else and just make masterpieces.

She used to meet me for lunch, or just chat on the phone. But last time I called she asked me to get to the point, she had no time. No time for her oldest friend! She'll be sorry, giving up friends for a hobby. She's betting on the wrong horse.

• • •

Dorothy T. — Nan, doesn't understand that this is more than a hobby to me. It's a dream come true — the chance at last to paint seriously.

Years ago it was a hobby. While the children were growing up, I played around with oil paints and was able to be a pal to everybody, including Nan. But now it's full steam ahead. I know I can't kid around any more, if I want to perfect my technique.

I'm not upstaging Nan, I know I'm no Cezanne, but I want to give this the old Army try. My instructor was a judge in a local competition, and one of my still lifes won third prize. So try I have a real talent. A neighbor just paid me $100 for my impression of the willows on her lawn.

My true friends, and that includes my wonderful husband, cooperate. If my request to be left alone bothers Nan, she's no friend.

• • •

The Council: Careful, Nanette, your envy is showing! Can it be that because you haven't the drive to pursue a cultural interest intensively yourself, you begrudge Dorothy her chance to track down a lifelong yen? You sound as though you'd rather have her pick you as her hobby!

Here Nanette has to squeeze her fun out of the same old tube — gossipy phone calls, shopping sprees, canasta and mahjong, matinees and lunch dates — while Dorothy gets hers from a quiet communion between herself and a canvas. That's hard for Nanette to comprehend, and accept.

So a word on friendship. Emerson says friends should be like books, easy to find when you need them, but seldom used. The pursuit of a career need not cause an old friendship. But it will certainly limit it! The old forms of nourishment — chitchat and outings — aren't available to sustain it. It must feed on the momentum of accumulated strength. Current time and energy are sustained primarily for the exciting new venture.

Nanette represents the type of friend who "uses" the other, far and above her right. Dissatisfied herself, she opposes any seeking of satisfaction by Dorothy which doesn't include her. She clings to Dorothy with the unwarranted possessiveness her salvation lies in finding other sources of comfort and release.

Whenever possible, of course, Dorothy should invite Nanette to make one of the odd-time or midday phone calls, if that's such a treat for the latter. There are lulls in the creative process. But, in general, Dorothy's request is reasonable and should be respected.

Dorothy isn't betting on the wrong horse. She's betting on her friends, the real ones who are rooting for her, win or lose, looks as though she'd be betting wrong on Nanette.

Teach 35 Children To Live With Diabetes

By DUNCAN HOLMES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thirty-five British Columbia children will go to camp this summer to learn how to live with diabetes.

The group is a portion of the suspected 35,000 who have the disease throughout the province.

Camps like the one planned this year for Winfield, in the Okanagan Valley, Aug. 14-28 have been operated in other parts of Canada. This is B.C.'s first.

To spend two weeks away from home and enter into camp activity will be a radical step for most in the group, ranging from nine to 18. Cloistered most of their lives in the family circle, the diabetic child often grows within himself. Parents have regarded camps with fear, knowing that without insulin the child could quickly die.

But Vancouver's Dr. John Hunt, assisted by two nurses, a dietitian and six or seven university students, will run the camp. He has planned a program of vigorous exercise, diet and insulin self-administration—always a problem with young diabetics. The drug, a Canadian discovery, is administered by hypodermic syringe.

Dr. Hunt, a general practitioner, has a special interest in diabetics as a result of early training in the field in England. His services are provided free through the Canadian Diabetic Association.

BALANCE ESSENTIAL

Because there is no cure for the ailment, in which there is an excess of sugar in the blood, diabetics have other problems they must master if they are to live a relatively normal life.

The insulin intake must be balanced from hour to hour by food, the amounts of which vary according to physical activity. A doctor can be with his patient 24 hours a day, serving his meals, removing forbidden foods and adding extras as necessary. Camps like that planned for Winfield are part of the answer.

While the children are given subtle instructions on what foods contain how much protein, carbohydrate and fat, they will also be getting fresh air, exercise and a liberal dose of independence.

The Okanagan camp will cost $35 a child, a direct charge to the parents, with the remainder of the $150 budgeted for each camper to be absorbed by the association, now in the midst of a drive to raise $5,000.

Dr. Hunt, also in charge of finding the cash, adds this statistic as a push for his project: "It takes the processed pancreas of 10,000 beef cattle to make one pound of crystalline insulin, which is pretty overwhelming."

Toronto Welcome Wagon Supervisor Former Resident

The local representative of Welcome Wagon International, an organization designed to welcome new families into a community, has recently been appointed supervisor of Toronto area after less than a year with the organization.

Mrs. Marilyn McCormick, of 31 Marselm Road, Richmond Hill, Toronto, joined Welcome Wagon only last September after completion of a course in New York. When she came to the Hill she was the only full-time hostess in the area and had one part time assistant. However, less than five months later she was appointed area supervisor, primarily for her work in Newmarket and Richmond Hill. As area supervisor she dealt with Willowdale, Richmond Hill and Newmarket.

When she was appointed area supervisor last January, Mrs. McCormick had 30 hostesses and assistants working under her and that number jumped to 32 with her promotion to city supervisor.

The organization, founded 36 years ago in the United States, has some 250 accounts in this area.

Mrs. McCormick is the former Marilyn Donovan of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Rushworth, 34 Ponton Street.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JULY 19, 1962

Twenty years ago this log cabin was a derelict, roofless haybarn, near Cloyne. Now it houses a private collection of antiques, near Picton.

Hundred Year-Old Cabin, Moved From Cloyne Area, Houses Picton Antiques

Some people collect antiques, which often look a bit out of place in modern homes, and the Henson's collect houses, and the antique look more fitting. But their collection can match the efforts of Mrs. H. G. Henson, or H. G., Picton, who has gone in for collecting early Canadiana in a big way.

Her first item was a log cabin. In 1941, it had recently been abandoned as a hay barn near Cloyne, on Tee Y highway, because the roof had fallen in, the walls had been exposed to weather inside and out, and termites had been busy in there. Probably the pine, cedar and spruce logs had been cut, and the original building built, in the 1830's.

Since Mrs. Henson had property near Picton, she wanted the cabin there. Hennan Johns, a well known local Indian, was engaged to move the building down over the snow during February of 1941, and reassemble it on the site. Building the new floor and putting up the building, Mr. Johns achieved one of his mathematical triumphs. He calculated the material required for the diagonal flooring necessary and when the job was done, had only the diagonal end pieces left over. The roof is also diagonal, in the centre of the beams.

When the cabin was completed, set on the bed rock of the site, a ten-day job, Mrs. Henson asked Mr. Johns what he thought of her new log cabin.

"Hmmm", he replied, "all my life I've been trying to move out of a log cabin."

HOUSES ANTIQUES

Everything in the cabin now, with the exception of the oil in the lamps and some magazines, is more than 100 years old, and in good working condition. A harmonium, for instance has retained perfect tone through winter and summer, although there is a small hole in the bellows. The foot pedals have been removed, though because many children have been tempted to prove this. The story behind this item is unknown, as is the case with most of the prizes in the cabin. But their age is authenticated.

The large stove has been traced. They were the original equipment in the Primitive Methodist Church, near Hay Bay, now a Quaker Meeting House. When the building was converted to electricity, the lamps went to Mrs. Henson's cabin.

Some other goods are known to be of local manufacture — the clay "creamers," for instance. These bowls, used by farmers in the days before centrifugal separators and stainless steel, were used to separate cream from milk. They were made of local clay, rolled into strips and wound around to form the bowl. They have a good salt glaze, fired in a brick kiln.

A chest of drawers in the cabin may be local. Made of five different kinds of wood, it is most unusual. A cabinet maker has suggested that it was probably made of wood from several older items. It has existed in its present form for at least 100 years.

OLD ENGLISH CHINA

Some items were made outside Canada and brought in by settlers. There's a set of iron-stone china, by Ridgways, English originally, but sent to Japan where it was decorated. The set was then returned to England for sale. The sign is unusual, but this is one of the unmarked series, which indicates it is a rare piece. Made of iron stone, it is of its type. It was brought to Canada by a United Empire Loyalist, fleeing the USA, after the revolution.

Another item of interest is a pine desk, made about 1850. It's still in good working condition. If this one had a beveled decoration on the front, instead of the flower it has, it would be worth a small fortune. There were almost as many beehive models made as the flower models, but the beehive was so unpopular as a decoration it was usually removed, and another picture put in its place.

Since 1959, the cabin has had company on the property, in the form of a modern house. At present the modern house is used as living. (The cabin was never more than a summer cottage), and the cabin as a studio. The property is up for sale, including the cabin, but the antiques do not go with it. They have already been promised to the owner of a tourist camp near Algonquin Park. He already has an old log cabin, and they're planning to buy the genuine antique furnishings for it.

Mrs. H.G. Henson inspects an iron-stone soup ladle, by the fireplace in the cabin. In this picture, only the floor, the roof, and Mrs. Henson are less than 100 years old.

Judge Will End British Holiday To Start Probe

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Pope John has called on Roman Catholics to "be in the front line" of work for European unity, according to a letter made public Wednesday. To realize European unity gradually, "it is necessary to overcome isolation and narrow nationalism," Amleto Cardinal Cicognani, the Pope's secretary of state, said in the letter written on the pontiff's behalf.

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Justice T. G. Norris is expected to fly back to Canada this weekend to prepare for his one-man inquiry into shipping disruptions and labor strife on the Great Lakes.

The jurist from the British Columbia Supreme Court was getting short his holiday in Britain to undertake the investigation.

Labor Minister Starr announced the appointment Wednesday but did not say when the inquiry will begin.

The investigation, established under final labor legislation to deal only with labor unrest and shipping disruptions on the Great Lakes, But within this field, it will have wide scope.

The terms of reference include disruptions, interference with the St. Lawrence Seaway operation, delays and settlements of ships in Canadian and American lake ports, the relationship between ship operators and marine unions, and the "activities and internal operations" of trade unions representing lake workers engaged in shipping and work affecting shipping operations in the Great Lakes system.

SIU MENTIONED

The government specifically mentioned the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) of Canada in the terms of reference. The only union so designated.

The investigation was demanded by the Canadian Labor Congress, backing a new Canadian maritime union in a fight against the maverick Seafarers union, headed by American-born Hal C. Banks.

TO PROMOTE TOURISM

TORONTO (CP) — Ways of promoting Ontario's individual tourist attractions are to be investigated by the Ontario economic council subcommittee on the tourist industry, it was announced Wednesday. William H. Cranston said the five-man committee will try to stimulate public and private sectors of the economy without any significant increase in government expenditures.

Traffic Signal 'Error' Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Pedestrians and motorists alike are getting the breaks on Highway 2 at the intersections of Clarkson Road, Lorne Park Road and Highway 2S.

Highway Minister Goodfellow said Wednesday that contrary to reports published, the signals are working exactly as originally intended.

His department was told the traffic signal shows red in both directions for six seconds at Clarkson and Lorne Park. Mr. Goodfellow said it was planned that way to allow pedestrians time to get across Highway 2, which is wide at both points.

He said the cadet system—in which the cadets do minor traffic control duties routine work till they reach 21—is working well in such cities as Toronto and Ottawa, but does not suit the functions of the provincial police.

ASKS EUROPE UNITY

May Lower Age For Policemen

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario police commission will consider lowering the age for recruits to provincial and municipal forces from 21 to 20.

Chairman Judge Bruce J. S. Macdonald told the commission Wednesday the move would make it possible to offer careers to young men, as they graduated from high school, who might otherwise settle into other jobs.

He said the cadet system—in which the cadets do minor traffic control duties routine work till they reach 21—is working well in such cities as Toronto and Ottawa, but does not suit the functions of the provincial police.

Strike Threat Faces Toronto Waterfront

Local 440 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) Canada, represents warehousemen and miscellaneous drivers, warned eleven companies Wednesday to begin individual settlement talks or face a walkout.

The local, many of whose members operate from Toronto docks, has signed with 15 of the 21 member firms of the Cartage Association, but it has refused to bargain collectively with the others.

Union official Jack Robinson said: "The remaining holdouts will have the choice to settle individually or face a strike."

The 10 companies that settled with Local 440 did so after a wildcat strike during the early days of what developed into a six-week Ontario - wide truck stoppage.

Workers with the firms that settled now earn $1.82 an hour. While the 350 with the 11 other companies earn $1.67 an hour.

British Doctors Doing Harm in Saskatchewan

LEEDS, England (CP) — A former British doctor now practising in Canada says British doctors in Saskatchewan are doing more harm than good.

Dr. Gordon Hepworth, writing in the Yorkshire Post, says the "interference" of British doctors in the Saskatchewan doctors' dispute "prolongs the misery and has only resulted in a further reduction in Saskatchewan's permanent doctors."

"Canadian physicians everywhere resent the influx of British doctors who know nothing whatsoever about the position in Saskatchewan or, for that matter, in Canada. Most (Canadian) doctors feel that the British doctors are coming more for the money than to help the people of Saskatchewan."

Hepworth, who lives in New Westminster, B.C. and graduated from Yorkshire to Canada in 1953, says the basic concept of the controlled medical scheme is "repugnant" to Canadian doctors.

He also says the population is not ready for the scheme.

Winnipeg Paper Wants to Reply To K. in Pravda

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Free Press, one of three Canadian dailies that published Nikita Khrushchev's July disarmament speech in a three-page paid advertisement, has asked the Soviet newspaper Pravda for advertising space to present a reply.

The Khrushchev speech was run for the press office of the U.S.S.R. embassy in Canada at a charge of $2,800, T. S. Malone, publisher of The Free Press, announced he has cabled the director of Pravda in Moscow, asking:

"Would you in return accept advertisement from us for the same amount of money so that Free Press could convey reasoned and adequate reply to Mr. Khrushchev's message for your readers?"

Cooke's Station Gets No License

WASHINGTON (CP - AP)—The Federal Communications Commission has refused to reconsider its decision to deny a renewal of a licence to radio station KAKC of Pasadena, Calif., headed by Donald Cooke, brother of Jack Paar Cooke.

The FCC's broadcast bureau argued that records of the operation of the station by Eleven Ten Broadcasting Corporation showed that Jack Kerr Cooke, former Toronto broadcaster and publisher, illegally exercised control of the station while still a Canadian.

In refusing Wednesday to reconsider, the FCC also turned down the station's request for further hearings and an oral argument on its petition for reconsideration of the case.

Sudbury Union's Property Handed Over to Mine-Mill Pending Dispute's Outcome

TORONTO (CP) — Another legal tussle in the prolonged inter-union battle for control of Canada's biggest local has ended with a warning that it is "on the verge of shooting warfare."

William Estey of Toronto, one of a group of lawyers involved in the struggle for Mine-Mill Local 598 in Sudbury, made the comment Wednesday during a hearing before J. R. Kimber, a master of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Mr. Kimber ordered Sudbury Sheriff Larry Lamoureux to hand keys to the property of the local to a temporary executive.

The decision was a victory for the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) in its battle with the United Steelworkers of America (CLC).

The keys were handed to the sheriff by former Local 598 President Don Gillis when the term of the executive appointed by Steel executive expired June 30.

He said they wanted the property protected until the Ontario Labor Relations Board rules on the validity of a certification vote counted last month. It gave Steel a majority of 15 in the bid to gain control of the local from Mine-Mill.

MINE-MILL CONTROLS

Mr. Kimber's decision puts the property in the hands of a pro-Mine-Mill executive led by Tom Taylor. Only 2,000 of the local's 17,000 members took part in his election.

The order also warned Mr. Taylor's executive not to attempt to dispose of the local's assets without the consent of the court. The rival blocs are still enmeshed in a jungle of writs and counter-writs in the issue of the main battle before the labor board.

Counsels at Wednesday's hearing estimated the local's cash and other assets are worth about $2,000,000.

J. P. Milligan, Toronto counsel representing Mr. Taylor's executive in appealing for Wednesday's order, said it "was a gross act of bad faith" on the part of Mr. Gillis to have left the local without an executive.

"He left a summer camp organized by the local in jeopardy and his actions cut off welfare payments to disabled members," Mr. Milligan said.

Mr. Taylor's executive was legally elected and it is entitled to the use of the local's property."

WANTS KEYS HELD

Mr. Estey said he appeared for three members of the local who have filed a separate action involving Mr. Taylor. He wanted the sheriff to retain the keys until this action comes before the courts next Tuesday.

"We say this warfare is on the verge of shooting warfare . . . It's quite proper for the sheriff to protect the property in the meantime," Mr. Estey said.

R. A. Schiff, counsel for the Gillis group, said the keys should be left with the sheriff until ownership of the property is settled.

"For example, Mr. Gillis and Mr. Ray Poirier, (secretary-treasurer of the old executive) hold deeds to the union halls in trust,' he said.

He added the national-secretary of Mine-Mill also claimed to hold titles to the property.

Mr. Kimber replied:

"I don't feel it is for me to rule on the status of the various parties. The immediate problem is the welfare of the workers."

He ordered the sheriff, represented by Harry Walsberg of Sudbury, to hand over the keys to the property and the local's mail-box entrusted to him, by Mr. Gillis.

Purists Question Legality Of Resignation by Regier In Effort to Seat Douglas

OTTAWA (CP) — Some parliamentary purists are wondering whether Erhart Regier's resignation from the newly-elected House of Commons is legally correct.

Mr. Regier, who had a sweeping majority in British Columbia's Burnaby - Coquitlam constituency, resigned Monday to turn his seat over to New Democratic Party leader — T. C. Douglas.

He resigned by notifying two other NDP members of Parliament and having two more send writs to Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay for a by-election.

The date is a matter for Prime Minister Diefenbaker to decide.

Mr. Regier apparently employed a clause in the House of Commons Act designed to cover the circumstances of MPs wanting to resign when there is no Speaker of the Commons.

POSSIBLY NOT LEGAL

A political source says there now is some doubt as to the legality of the move, and it will have to be cleared up before any decision can be made on setting a by-election date.

A legal authority in Parliament said the portion in the House of Commons Act was designed to cover the case of a Commons speaker who was incapacitated or who wanted to resign himself.

There is no precedent, he said, for a member of Parliament quitting his seat to run in an election and the first meeting of the newly-elected House when it becomes fully constituted with the election of the Speaker.

He pointed to the rules which apply in the United Kingdom Parliament, to which Canada and other Commonwealth countries look when their own parliamentary rule books have a gap.

In Britain, an MP can never resign." His seat can only become vacant by death, by appointment to the Lords, or by accepting some government job which makes him ineligible for Commons membership.

British MPs wanting to "resign" apply to the chancellor of the exchequer for an appointment as steward or bailiff of "Her Majesty's three Chiltern hundreds of Stoke, Desborough and Burnham," or of "Her Majesty's Manor of Northstead.

HAVE NO DUTIES

These positions have no duties or responsibilities—in fact, no pay. But acceptance of the appointments from the Crown makes the member ineligible for Commons membership.

The only case Canadian parliamentary authorities can recall of a resignation to break between election day and the first session of the new parliament involved former prime minister Mackenzie King in 1945.

He was defeated in the general election that year in Prince Albert constituency and Glengarry constituency was opened for a byelection for him by having a government appointment to its MP, W. H. MacDonald, a Liberal who had been re-elected with a comfortable majority.

One other possible legal flaw is Mr. Regier's resignation is being studied by the parliamentary experts.

His resignation was made in the chief electoral officer, who announced he had received it.

However, one of the standard books on parliamentary precedents and procedure, written by Arthur Beauchesne, clerk of the House of Commons clerk J. J. Bourinot, says the resignation should go to "the clerk of the House in chancery."

The situation is complicated by the fact that there now is in Canada no clerk of the Crown in chancery. The duties of that office are performed by the clerk of the Parliaments, who is, in fact, the clerk of the Senate, John MacNeil.

Somali Govt. Rebukes Slayer Of Missionary

The newspaper Corriere della Somalia, which reflects government views, said Wednesday the killing of Merlin Russel Grove, 33, of Markham, Ont., had "no justification at all in these modern times."

Grove was stabbed to death Monday night while supervising enrolment at a Somalia city for courses in English instruction at his mission school in the Somali capital. His wife was wounded seriously.

LAUNCHES SATELLITE

POINT ARGUELLO, Calif. (AP) — A secret military satellite—possibly a camera-carrying Samos or a missile-detecting Midas—was launched Wednesday by the U.S. Air Force.

An old "walking wheel," one of the earliest types of spinning wheels, and a skeiner. Operating the walking wheel was advised as a good occupation for ladies, since it gave them an excellent opportunity to show off their figures. The skeiner contains a still-working wooden clockwork mechanism, which measures off a standard length of wool.

At Old Woodbine

Four Horses Ruled Off

TORONTO (CP) — Presiding steward Clair Smith announced Wednesday night four horses have been ordered off Old Woodbine Raceway and a final warning issued regarding three others.

Smith, speaking for the three Judges at Old Woodbine, said the four horses, all of them Class 34-36 trotters, had given unsatisfactory performances in the third race on Tuesday night's program. The other stewards are Charles Lamb, representing the Ontario Racing Commission, and William Gardner, representing the Jockey Club, Limited.

The three warned horses would be given one more opportunity to satisfy the stewards, Smith said. "If they don't measure up," he declared "they're off, too."

Smith, in his second season as presiding judge at the Toronto track, said there had been 12 "breaks" committed during the eight-race card — "and all of them were made in this one race."

He said the owners had been returned eligibility papers for the hour horses "and told to race them elsewhere."

Leafs Show Interest

EPL Learns Fate Today

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—The Eastern Professional Hockey League learns today whether it will continue in the business of grooming players for the National Hockey League.

General managers from the six NHL clubs will sit in on an EPHL meeting in Toronto which is to decide whether the league will operate again next season or disband.

The meeting is a continuation of last month's session in Ottawa when general managers from Detroit, Chicago, New York, Boston and Montreal worked out a plan whereby their NHL clubs would share any losses incurred by any of the six EPHL clubs. They also approved several cost-cutting suggestions.

Toronto Maple Leafs, who do not have a farm club in the league but share sponsorship of North Bear with the other NHL clubs, did not attend the Ottawa meeting. The meeting was adjourned until the general managers could get approval of the plan from the owners concerned.

FOUR HEAVY LOSERS

The lose-sharing plan was worked out after both New York Rangers and Chicago Blackhawks threatened to withdraw their support from their EPHL farm teams because of heavy financial losses.

Muss Patrick, retired manager of New York, said some concessions would have to be made if the Rangers were to retain their interest in the loop. He said the Rangers dropped $180,000 during the last two seasons in Kitchener.

Chicago's losses in Sault Ste. Marie were not disclosed.

League president John Urie said Wednesday the meeting was being held in Toronto because general manager Punch Imlach of the Leafs wanted to attend but could not if it was held in Ottawa. Observers said Imlach's interest is attending "is a good omen" for the league.

South Hastings Baseball League

Foxboro got a three-bit pitching shove from Gerry Mann on their way to a 7-1 victory over Shannonville in MHBL senior action last night.

The winners drew five passes to their first three batters and went on to score a pair of runs, enough for the win, in the opening inning. Each club scored once in the third and the winners piled on five in the fourth.

Mann struck out eight batters and gave up three walks in going the route for Foxboro.

Billy Hill was the loser, giving way to Dave Lewis after his trio of early walks but coming back in the fifth frame. He allowed two of the Foxboro hits, fanning one. Lewis gave up five hits, fanned one, walked four and hit one man.

Glenn Clarke belted a triple and single while Bill Charlton rapped a pair of singles to spark the Foxboro hitters. Glynn Reynolds, Pete Young and Brian Skinner also hit safely.

Net Stars Beaten by Americans

CHICAGO (CP. - AP) — Canadian hopes were sunk in the second round of the men's singles at the U.S. national clay court tennis championship.

Top-seeded Chuck McKinley of St. Ann,' Mo., took two 6-2 sets to defeat Francois Godbout of Waterloo, Que., Canada's No. 1 Davis Cup player. Keith Carpenter of Montreal, also a member of the Davis Cup squad, lost 6-4, 6-0 to Art Ashe of St. Louis.

Unranked Paul Welles of Berkeley, Calif., staged a fine battle to upset Bill Bond of La Jolla, Calif., 6-3, 7-5, 8-6, rated sixth for the tournament.

Canada suffered another defeat as play opened in the mens' doubles. The U.S. team of Rodney Mandelsam and David Reed defeated Carpenter and Toronto's Harry Fauquier 6-1, 3-6, 6-3.

In women's play, Karen Susman, twice-crowned Wimbledon champion, injured a thumb but returned to action to sweep into the quarter-finals, beating Caro Rogers of Shreveport, La., 6-2, 6-2.

Darlene Hard, the top United States woman player and second seed for the tournament, was upset by 19-year-old Carole Caldwell of Santa Monica 7-5, 6-4.

Australian Wins French Open

PARIS (AP) — Alan Murray, 22-year-old Australian pro, won the French open golf championship by one stroke Wednesday with a one final round for a 72-hole total of 274, 14 under par.

Murray, making his first European tour, had been tied for third place at the halfway point but he made up ground in the final round with a shooting 68-66 and passed Bob Charles, the New Zealand southpaw, who had held the lead.

GREENWICH, N.Y. (AP) — Jackie Robinson says he was elected to baseball's Hall of Fame because he was the first Negro to play in the major leagues—not because he was one of Brooklyn Dodgers' greatest stars.

Robinson made the statement Wednesday in a telephone interview with Gene Looy, sports editor of the Catskill Star.

"I think having been baseball's first Negro got me elected, rather than anything I may have accomplished on the ball field," Robinson said from New York City.

"Any other Negro who might have been the first would have made it if he had contributed anything else in the way of talent," Robinson said.

INDUCTIONS MONDAY

The now 43-year-old, gray-thatched businessman will be inducted into the Hall of Fame at nearby Cooperstown Monday, along with Bob Feller, Edd Roush and Bill McKechnie.

"If I had been white I would have had a better chance to make it (the Hall of Fame) on my playing ability, because I then would have begun my career at the average age," he said.

Robinson said he had no desire to return to baseball in any capacity. He said he never had been approached to manage or coach a big-league team.

"Managing is still one baseball door closed to the Negro," he said, "especially an outspoken Negro like me. These guys (club owners) will never select me."

ON CABARET CIRCUIT—Singer Lena Horne, who has been performing in cabarets and nightclubs since 1940, is choosey about the places in which she appears. Miss Horne, 45, takes in the view from balcony of the Bayshore Inn during a recent appearance in Vancouver. (CP Photo).

Lena Horne Will Take Less Money to Work Some Night Clubs She Really Likes

By JIM PEACOCK

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lena Horne, her lungs tucked beneath a Little League baseball cap and her slim shapely figure disguised by a roomy blue cardigan, was musing at rehearsal about night club audiences.

"They've been pretty consistent for me," she said, recalling 22 years of performing in cabarets around the world.

"I started as a single in cafe society in New York in 1940 and even in those days — let's see, my kids were, still babies — I seemed to sing to a more adult audience.

"In the trade we call it a whisky and wine crowd, I don't mean to be fresh. It just means they don't drink much straight coke. I never was one to attract a teen-age audience."

From across the room at the Cave Theatre Restaurant where she was rehearsing here, Miss Horne might have been a teenager herself.

CHOOSY, ABOUT JOBS

The blue baseball cap, white cardigan, flat - heeled shoes, eyeglasses and beige slims she wore offered a sharp contrast to the sexy — tight pants that wrapped her elegant figure the night before when she kept an audience of 400 so attentive you could hear a whisper.

In either costume, the 45-year-old Miss Horne showed no visible signs of being many years or in the cares of raising two children, Gail, now 25, and Tommy, 22.

Miss Horne, who works cabarets and hotel "rooms" about 22 weeks a year with conductor-husband Lenny Hayton and her own trio of musicians, said she's selfish about the places she works.

"I'm more likely to take much less money to work some place I like," she said, explaining that she limits her appearances to spots like the Coconut Grove in Hollywood, the Waldorf in New York, the Fairmont in San Francisco and the Sands in Las Vegas.

Asked how the Cave in Vancouver falls in with this limousine company on her list, Miss Horne said:

"I worked here years ago (it was 12 years ago) and they treated me kindly. I like it here. I like the room. When I become familiar with a room, it's like a pair of old shoes or a sweater. It's comfortable."

It's difficult, too, she added, applying it to all cabarets.

"There are distractions. The people are probably on their

Canada Has World Support In Labor Field Research

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has won world support for a new international program of research in the labor field.

A Canadian-sponsored resolution aimed at strengthening labor research was approved unanimously at the recent Geneva conference of the International Labor Organization.

The resolution, backed by ILO delegates representing governments, workers and employers, urges greater use of research as a basic tool in planning economic and social programs.

Presented by Canada's deputy labor minister, economist George V. Haythorne, the ILO-endorsed proposal is aimed at the 102 member governments of the United Nations specialized agency, as well as at business, industry, universities and trade unions.

It holds promise of far-reaching consequences, particularly for the newly emerging nations as they dash pell-mell into industrialization, often without clearly understanding the complex human consequences of overnight industrial revolutions.

HUMAN PROBLEMS POSED

"There is a growing complexity of industrial life with related human problems in all of our countries," Mr. Haythorne told the ILO.

"There are important technological changes which very significant human and manpower consequences. There is a need for looking more critically at labor-management relations.

"It is important that then we look critically at the problems involved in economic growth and development, and that we take steps to see that action in one direction is taken in all of our countries."

He said "much greater study and research" must be made on the fundamental problems of the obvious imbalance in the levels of living within and among the world community.

"This research must be undertaken — I must stress — not as a means of avoiding action but rather to help ensure that effective and practical steps are developed and executed."

CANADA TRAINED

The resolution itself called for action in the labor research field from the international level, under the ILO, to the local level throughout the world.

Pakistan complimented Canada for its initiative in pointing up the significance of research "in the formation and development of national labor policies and practical programs for the benefit of labor as well as management."

The resolution may have long-range impact in Canada, with trade unions and big business backing university research programs on manpower problems, labor-management relations and other socio-economic issues, as well as pressing their own research activities.

NEED RESEARCHERS

The ILO resolution calls for:

1. The 102 member nations to bolster their research efforts in the manpower and labor fields; co-operate in international programs of research; encourage free exchange of information on labor conditions; legislation, administrative practices, living standards, individual liberties and employer and trade union rights and responsibilities, and activities of international bodies and associations making on-the-spot surveys.

2. Employer and employee organizations in the member nations to encourage research as a guide to ILO action, a means of improving action and way of implementing ILO operations around the world.

Oceanographic Institute At Dartmouth to Open Soon

By ED WALTERS

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Canada's first oceanographic institute swings into operation this fall year, collecting scientific information about the sea.

The $2 million Institute of Oceanography won't be officially opened until Oct. 25 but advance groups of surveyors and scientists began moving in early in July.

Built at a cost of $1,200,000 on the shore of Bedford Basin near here, the institute is under direction of Dr. William N. English, who left the Defence Research Board to head the new organization.

Under Dr. English will be 140 oceanographers, hydrographers, fisheries researchers, scientists, underwater geologists and engineers. The number will be increased to 300 by 1965.

Operating from specially equipped ships, teams of scientists and surveyors will explore the continental shelves off the east coast and probe the sea bottom in the Arctic.

They will look for untapped mineral resources buried in bottom silt, examine the chemical makeup of sea water to determine its effect on fish and plant life and chart hitherto vaguely known currents and far-northern shorelines.

AID TO DEFENCE

The 1958 International Conference on Laws of the Sea decided that mineral resources of continental shelves—the sea bed out to where the water reaches 100 fathoms—belong to adjacent countries.

This gave Canada, with almost 60,000 miles of coastline, an increase of one-seventh its total land area, a potentially important region for mineral research.

Dr. English says the charting of currents and density layers in the ocean will aid in Canadian defence. A knowledge of different density or temperature than the water above or below it can cause a false echo-sounder and underwater radar used to detect submarines.

One practical problem the oceanographers hope to solve is whether Great Lakes freighters can be operated in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. It has been determined whether these ships, designed for the short waves of the lakes, can withstand the heavier and longer seas of the gulf.

Dr. English says the formation and dissipation of ice in the Gulf of St. Lawrence is also being determined whether these ships, designed for the short waves of the lakes, can withstand the heavier and longer seas of the gulf.

Ninety per cent of the time ocean research doesn't pay off in immediate commercial profits, Dr. English says, but it's necessary to provide scientific information for future exploitation of undersea resources and fisheries.

Engineers were required to design new and better equipment for oceanographic research and theorists were needed to make sure information was put to good use.

The institute, with its 70,000 square feet of office and laboratory space, has machine shops to build equipment designed by the engineers.

Docking and maintenance facilities are provided for an eventual fleet of 10 ships. The hydrographic survey ships Baffin, Maxwell and Kapuskasing are already at work in Eastern Canadian and northern waters and a fourth, the Hudson, is being built at Saint John, N.B.

The research staff is being recruited now and will join the institute in the fall. Hydrographers and technical surveyors are already on the job.

The institute is operated by the marine sciences branch of the mines and technical surveys department. The branch was created April 1 to combine all previously separate ocean study divisions.

AT THE BELLE — Romance was their best shield — William Holden and Lilli Palmer as agents for the Allies fooled the entire German espionage system in "The Counterfeit Traitor", the spy thriller which opens today at the Belle Theatre. Plan to 'Kick' Plane in Tail, Hurry it Along LONDON (Reuters) — Two revolutionary ideas which may put Britain supersonically into the space age are breaking among aerodynamic scientists here.

One is an idea to punch a jetliner along at speeds up to 3,500 miles an hour by igniting the air stream behind its tail. The other is to build a "spacedonkey" to carry spaceshot missiles to the limit of the stratosphere on its back, before pushing them off on their lone journey and then returning to earth.

The external combustion engine is being pioneered by a team at the Royal Aircraft Establishment led by German-born Dr. Dietrich Kuchemann, a British aero-scientist who came to Britain in 1946.

When an aircraft is travelling in the supersonic air forms on its own bow-wave, a wave of high pressure air in the form of a cone ahead of and behind the plane's nose. This air closes behind—the aircraft with a "snap," forming a pocket of highly compressed air.

EXTRA KICK

Kuchemann's idea is to leak fuel into this pocket and then ignite it.

The expanding gases would give the aircraft a "kick in the tail" to push it up to Mach three (three times the speed of sound) and keep it there.

The lower (or carrier) aircraft would be a slim delta-shaped transporter powered by jets and ramjets. It would take off on its own and climb to an altitude of 100,000 feet or more, at 2,000-plus mph, then cruise and cruise in the 2,000 m.p.h. range on its ramjets.

On its back the work-horse would carry a smaller counterpart. The smaller "rider" would be launched, and powered by rockets and ramjets, boost it self to its operating zone. It would then complete the journey at 5,000-plus mph, cruise and cruise landing alone at the other end.

No Feud Like An Old Feud But Not With Joan, Bette

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What fun to have Joan Crawford and Bette Davis working in the same picture.

All you have to do is sit on the set of Whatever Happened to Baby Jane? and watch the sparks fly. Like this—

Davis: Of course you know, Joan, that everybody is going to try to work up a feud between us.

Crawford: I know, dear, and isn't it ridiculous? We're much too professional for anything like that.

Davis: Exactly! And who has time for such silliness? We'll be much to busy making the picture.

Crawford: Of course.

LIKES IT NEAR COOLER

Davis: You know what the word is around New York? That the situation is so bad that the opening room is on one end of the stage and mine is at the other end. Now I ask you, look at those dressing rooms! (They were about 20 feet apart, on each side of the big stage door.)

Crawford: You know the only reason I'm over there is that I like to be near the cooler; it's probably too cold for you.

Davis: Oh no! I adore it cold. I'm liable to move over there with you.

Crawford: And we'll end up the picture with our rooms side by side, fooling everyone.

Davis: I'll tell you one thing I hope this picture does: I hope it brings back women's pictures. The men have had it to themselves too long. But I must admit, we women had it pretty good for 15 years back there.

Crawford: Yes we did. But now everything is war and destruction on the screen.

Howard Homers Dodgers To Win

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

When do you get the winning run on base intentionally?

Never, say baseball purists. Well, almost never, says manager Walter Alston of Los Angeles Dodgers. But when the fellow has already hit two home runs . . .

Anyway, Alston ordered Gordie Coleman walked in the 11th inning of a hair-raiser Wednesday night against Cincinnati Reds with the tying run on second and. The move paid off in a 6-5 Dodger victory when Marty Keough bounced into a forceout.

The win padded the Dodgers' lead in the National League to two games over San Francisco Giants, who managed only two hits — both by Chuck Hiller — off Bob Shaw of Milwaukee Braves and lost 6-0.

Cincinnati manager Fred Hutchinson wished his hurlers had never pitched to Frank Howard. The lumbering outfielder hammered a two-run, two-out homer in the ninth inning to tie the score and hit another in the 11th frame to give the clinching runs. They nullified Coleman's heroics.

GAMES RAINED OUT

Philadelphia Phillies ran their unbeaten string over Houston Colts to 11 games with a 5-3 win. St. Louis Cardinals edged Chicago Cubs 2-1 as Ron Gibson pitched his third straight three-hitter. Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Mets was rained out.

The Dodger win over the Reds was sweet on several counts. It evened the season series between the two clubs at 5-5 and it came just as it appeared the Reds were going to chalk up two straight victories over the Dodgers. It also avenged the defeat on Jim O'Toole, who had beaten the Dodgers twice this year without a loss.

Coleman homered in the second inning and again in the seventh with a man on for a 3-0 Cincinnati lead. The Dodgers got to Jim in the eighth when, with two men out in the inning, Cincinnati shortstop Leo Cardenas booted an infield grounder by Willie Davis and Howard homered to tie the score.

In the 11th, O'Toole, hit Willie Davis with a pinch. Willie stole second base and rode home on Wesley Davis' single. Jim Brosnan came on and served another homer to Howard, his 14th off the season.

The Reds battled back in their half of the inning for two runs and Coleman came up with two out and the tying marker on second. After Alston ordered Coleman walked, relief pitcher Ron Perranoski got Keough on the forecourt to end the game. Don Drysdale was lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Larry Sherry came on, but gave way in turn to Perranoski.

Shaw, who hadn't won for a month, ended a personal five-game losing streak as he tamed the Giants. The Braves jumped on Juan Marichal, who had beaten them three straight times this year, for two runs in the first inning on Lee Maye's homer and added three in the third and one in the eighth off losing rookie Bob Garibaldi.

Gibson, who ran his record to 12-6, lost his second consecutive shutout when Billy Williams homered in the fourth frame. The big righthander stuck out 12 men.

The Cards got their runs off rookie Carl Reverse, who pitched a one-hitter in his last outing, in the fourth on a bases-loaded double by Ken Boyer.

A five - run first inning off starter Bob Bruce was all the Phillies needed for their 11th straight win over the Colts, who have lost 23 of their last 24 games. Dallas Green sent down the Colts with six hits.

JUGGLE PLAYERS

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets have optioned Cliff Cook, third baseman and utility man, to their Syracuse farm of the International League.

Cook, acquired from Cincinnati in May, appeared in 46 National League games with the Mets and Reds and batted .222.

Earlier Wednesday the Mets recalled Robert G. Miller, lefthanded relief pitcher from Syracuse. He had a 4-4 won-lost record with the farm club. The Mets already have one Bob Miller, Robert L. Miller, a right-handed pitcher, on their roster.

Bonus Baby Starring With Leafs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The way he's going with Toronto Maple Leafs in the International League, it won't be long before young Dennis Meeke is back with Milwaukee Braves of the National League.

The bonus infielder from the University of Wisconsin, who did some good relief-pitching work for Milwaukee earlier in the season when Eddie Mathews was on the sidelines with injuries, has played 12 games since he was shipped to Toronto for more seasoning.

In that time, he has hit at a .333 clip, with 18 hits in 54 at-bats, and has nine extra-base hits — six doubles and three home runs. He has driven in nine runs.

Meeke capped three of those 18 hits Wednesday night, including a pair of doubles, as the Leafs whipped Rochester 4-1 and Buffalo 12-3 to gain half a game on the league-leading Jacksonville Suns, who were rained out of Richmond.

The margin still is 8½ games between Jacksonville and Toronto, but the way Meeke is playing things are looking up for manager Charlie Dressen's Leafs.

DOUBLES MEAN RUNS

Meeke's doubles in the second and third innings led to runs and his single came in the midst of a two-run 10th frame that won the game for Russ Heman, working in relief of Orlando Pena.

In other action, Columbus Jets defeated Atlanta Crackers 8-4, and Buffalo Bisons bombarded Syracuse Chiefs 12-7.

A spurious double by Ron Brand and a three-run, 450-foot homer by Dono Clendenon were the big blows for Columbus Jets against Atlanta.

New York Mets' bonus baby, Larry Bearnarth, took another drubbing, leaving in a first-inning, and Buffalo took it from there in the romp over Syracuse. Lee Elia and Larry Cutright hit home runs and Pancho Herrera drove in three runs with a single and a double to lead the 14-hit Buffalo attack.

Campbell Stays With St. Kitts

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Bill Henry, president of St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series, announced Wednesday Ken Campbell has been appointed manager and coach of the club.

Campbell, a native of Montreal, last year was coach of St. Catharines Teepees who lost to the Memorial Cup champion Hamilton Red Wings in the Oshawa semi-final.

The club has decided to continue playing its home games Saturday night after studying the possibility of switching to Fridays. However, later in the season some games may be played Saturday afternoon to escape the effect of Saturday night National League telecasts.

A planned increase of 60 per cent between 1959 and 1965 would raise Sweden's steel production to 3,300,000 tons from 11,900,000.

Cleroux Thinks Very Highly Of Cleroux

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bob Cleroux of Montreal, Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, arrived here Wednesday for his July 28 televised fight with Mike DaJohn of Miami.

"After I take care of Dr. John, I will let the leather of my gloves close Cassius Clay's big mouth," the sixth-ranked heavyweight said.

Clay, of Louisville, Ky., is ranked No. 9

Says Hurler Did Not Have Polio

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The team physician of Los Angeles Angels says pitcher Ted Bowsfield of Penticton, B.C., was mistaken in thinking he had polio.

Bowsfield told newspapermen and teammates recently that he suffered from weakness of his throwing arm.

Dr. Robert Woods says that what actually happened was that the physician who was treating Bowsfield told him, "You've got an arm like a man with polio," and Bowsfield got the wrong impression that he actually had the disease.

Bowsfield's arm did indeed lose strength, Dr. Woods said, but "through physiotherapy and heat treatments and vitamins it regained its power."

Track Coach Prediction

Canada, Two Gold Medals!

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Fred Foot returned home early this week from a fun-filled jaunt to England and hardly had his bags unpacked before he was off on another.

Canada will win at least two gold medals — and conceivably could take three or four — in track and field at the British Empire Games in Australia next November.

"This may be going off the deep end, but I honestly think we have the material for a powerhouse track team this year," the Toronto police department accountant said, "and Canada on track meets are getting better every year and we could surprise a few people in Perth."

Foot had gone to London for two big reasons — to watch his protege, Bruce Kidd, in the British Amateur Athletic Association three-mile event and to scout the cream of England's track athletes.

TWO FOR JEROME

"I fully realize that the Commonwealth doesn't start and end with England, but from what I saw I would have to say that Stanley Jerome, in the sprints and the half-mile in comparison to us, will be the class. He can call Harry Jerome of Vancouver as a double gold on the basis of the sprints. No one in the Commonwealth has equalled or beaten his times."

Foot said also that no one in England is close to Australia's Bill Crothers in the 880 yards. Peter Snell of New Zealand has bettered the world marks for both the 880 yards and 800 metres and he is the likely gold medallist in the half mile at Perth, but Crothers could give him a good run and likely could win a second-place silver medal.

Foot is high on Dave Steen of Vancouver and Emmett Smith, 23-year-old Weyburn, Sask., native who attends Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah. "These two certainly are better in their specialties than British athletes that I saw and they could give any Commonwealth athlete a real run."

CONFIDENCE IN KIDD

Smith, now on a five-week tour of Europe, recently cleared 24 feet eight inches in the running broad jump — more than three feet better than the 21 ft. 1 inch Games standard — and Steen broke his own Canadian men's 35-pound shot-put record last week with a throw of 58 feet five inches.

The Toronto coach isn't worried about Kidd, his 18-year-old distance star, who lost by four yards to Brian Tulloh of England at the AAA championships.

"Bruce will go in both the three miles and six miles at Perth. Before the Games in Australia we might get to Europe for a meet. This would give Kidd the experience he needs.

"Then, with a couple of additional weeks of training and with more importance attached to speed than we've done before, he could take it all. Bruce made an effort to shake Tulloh in the last 880 yards in their races last Saturday, but couldn't do it because he didn't have the speed.

"I will come to him with practically and by November watch him against Tulloh and New Zealand's Murray Halberg."

Faces Array Of Stars

Rate Palmer 2-1 Favorite

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa. (AP) — A field of 171 clouters start a 72-hole test against Arnold Palmer today in the opening round of the United States Professional Golfers' Association tournament. The oddsmakers say Palmer will wind up in front.

The 32 - year - old muscleman from Latrobe, Pa., is a hot 2-to-1 favorite to capture the 72-hole event against an array of stars that includes Jack Nicklaus, who beat Palmer for the 1962 U.S. Open crown, and South Africa's Gary Player.

A drought - breaking rain drenched the par-70 course Wednesday and turned it into a hitter's paradise, which should suit Palmer nicely. He was booming his drives and putting beautifully in winning the British Open at Troon, Scotland, last week.

The rain also enhanced the prospects of other power-hitters. Nicklaus is rated at 3 to 1, defending champion Jerry Barber and Player at 5 to 1, putting ace Billy Casper at 6 to 1 and Don Fosterwald at 8 to 1.

Nicklaus and Palmer were paired in today's round. Nicklaus toured the layout with George Knudson of Toronto Wednesday and each fired two-under-par 68s, Bob Johnston of Montreal is the only other Canadian.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Dick "Bulldog" Brower, the Delaware steel-worker, and later a chiropractor, who is quoted as saying he would rather "break bones than set them," is a sure-man mayhem combo, who takes on quite a wrestling chore here tomorrow night.

He meets Whipper Billy Watson, the pride of Kasi York and the idol of thousands of fans coast-to-coast and nearly and south of the border.

There will be no introductions necessary when the pair climbs into the ring. They may belong to the same union, but their lodges membership differs. You could scarcely call them "biddy-buddies" for I doubt very much if the "Bulldog" would even growl a greeting if he met the Whipper social-wise.

This is no chance meeting. Nor is it the first time the pair has clashed inside a wrestling ring. They are amateur foemen no-to-speak and each holds decisions over the other, no matter the medium operandi.

The "Bulldog" in his few appearances here, has had his own way pretty well, battering and bashing the foemen all over the place, and not averse to tearing down the ring and baiting his foe over the noggin' and surrounding parts with a metal turnbuckle.

That is, until he met the fantastic "Mr. Kleen" in his last appearance here. It was his first defeat in a Belleville ring. The bald-pated, well-apportioned athlete took the Brower punishment for the first time, then turned his fury on the "Bulldog" making him go bye-bye with his overhead backbreaker. The crowd loved it.

But tomorrow night's tilt has a little more at stake. It will be a grudge battle in the strictest sense of the word. I am told that after their last Toronto meeting the Whip was not satisfied with the decision and asked for an out-of-town venue for the next meeting.

And it will be fought in a Belleville ring tomorrow night. It should be the two-man classic of the current wrestling season. Both the Bulldog and the Whipper will go all out for a victory and there will be no quarter asked nor given.

And don't miss seeing this big boy Bruno Sammartino who makes his debut here on the same card. This is the lad(y)-luck who has fought the best of them and developed a large fan following. Recently he almost snatched the world championship (NWA) from the current holder, Buddy Rogers, in Maple Leaf Gardens before 19,000 howling fans. He meets-strutting Bob, the 60 per cent of the Stanley tag team!

SENIOR HOCKEY

Word from Kingston has it that friend Harold Langabeer and a group of four other "directors" have asked the OHA that a senior hockey league be formed in Eastern Ontario on a "skimp-the-wealth" basis.

It appears the Kingston group would enter a club "should the Eastern Pro Loop be gone forever." Apparently Langabeer et al. want no part of the Windsor-Chatham salaried players idea.

I don't believe the Kingston organization would go for the OHA meeting's suggestion that senior "A" be born with entries from Western Ontario, North Bay, Sudbury, Sault Ste. Marie and Belleville.

And where would the OHA get an Eastern Ontario senior grouping? It couldn't room-and-board good intermediate "A" hockey last season. Napanee's fine team flopped. Kingston's playoff entry didn't draw peanuts. The Belleville Pepsis drew peanuts but no salt.

They say September is the month of miracles. So we'll just wait and see what the hockey gent brings—if anything.

SORRY, GENTLEMEN!

A typographical gremlin got his nefarious work into this column the other day when the pilot devoted its space to the overlooking of boats ruling handed down by the Department of Transport.

The paragraph which included "motorboat owners were stopped by RCAF officers who asked to see our plates" should have read "RCMP officers", not the gentlemen in air force blue. This column regrets the error and trusts the fly-boys were not "boycotted" by their many boating buddies.

Koufax Stays on The Bench

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers pitching star Sandy Koufax must remain on the bench until his ailing hand has healed, a specialist says.

Dr. Tryvis Wilson, an expert in vascular disturbances, prescribed rest and drugs.

The news came as a blow to the Dodgers, whose lead in the National League race is being threatened.

Koufax, who has a 14-5 record, tried to pitch against Cincinnati Tuesday and was knocked out of the box in three first innings. It was the first time Koufax had been scored on in 14 innings.

Dr. Wilson reported Wednesday: "Koufax is suffering from a diminution in the amount of blood flowing to the index finger of his left hand. He will be part of a series of drug tests to expand the arteries in the area."

REDS BUY NUXHALL

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds Wednesday bought the contract of former pitching regular Joe Nuxhall from their San Diego farm club of the Pacific Coast League. In PCL play this year, the left-hander has been a standout with a 9-3 record, seven completed games, 71 strikeouts in 99 innings and knocked out of the box in three first starts.

Score 11 Runs In Inning

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

For nearly three months, the hard-hitting Los Angeles Angels stayed in the thick of the American League pennant race despite a poor pitching staff.

Until a week ago, manager Bill Rigney could get only 10 complete games from his hurlers in 82 starts. During that time he was forced to go to the bullpen 208 times.

But in the last seven games, four of the Angels' seven starters went the distance and, wonder of wonders, two of them did it on successive nights.

Don Lee, who hadn't won since June 27, pitched a four-hit, 5-0 shutout over Detroit Tigers Wednesday night, 24 hours after teammate Ken McBride blanked out the Tigers on three hits.

The shutouts enabled the Angels to stay within 3½ games of the first-place New York Yankees, who shellacked Boston Red Sox 20-4.

Minnesota Twins, aided by an 11-run first inning, trounced Cleveland Indians 14-3 and Baltimore for third place, 5½ games off the pace. Washington Senators took a 6-5 decision from Chicago White Sox and Kansas City Athletics mauled Baltimore Orioles' six-game winning streak with a 6-2 triumph.

Felix Torres, the latest Los Angeles batting sensation, drove in two runs with a single and double while extending his batting string through 15 consecutive games. The rookie third baseman, batting a torrid .426 during the streak, also has boosted his average to .229.

It was the sixth straight loss for the Tigers, who had two bat-ting practice session before the game but failed to get only four singles off Lee.

Home runs by Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra and Bobby Richardson highlighted the Yankees' 18-hit attack against four Red Sox pitchers. Mantle drove in four runs with a pair of homers, Berra three.

Yankee rookie Jim Bouton yielded 11 hits, including a home run to Pete Runnels, but coasted to his third triumph. Bill Monbouquette suffered his ninth defeat.

Grand-slam homers by Bob Allison and Harmon Killebrew featured the Twins' 11-run first inning, during which seven of the 14 batters who faced pitchers Barry Latman and Jim Perry hit safely. Never before had a team hit two grand-slammers in an inning. Earl Battey also homered in that frame.

Killebrew later added his second home run and 24th of the season, giving him seven homers in his last seven games. The Twins' 15-hit attack enabled Dick Stigman to breeze to his fourth victory in his first start since 1960. He fanned 11 of his former Indian mates.

Bennie Daniels, beaten 10 times in 12 previous decisions, pitched five-relief in a brilliant hurling duel against Ray Herbert of the White Sox. Successive doubles in the ninth inning by Harry Bright and Chuck Hinton accounted for the game's lone run. It marked the Senators' first win in six with Hinton tied for driven in the winning run for the Senators.

Bob Giggie, in his first major league start, not only outdueled Baltimore's Jack Fappas, but scored the lie-breaking run that ended the Orioles' seven - game losing streak. Giggie reached first on an error by Baltimore shortstop, was sacrificed to second and Jerry Lumpe's single.

Giggie, a right-hander, needed help in the ninth frame when he gave up singles to Brooks Robinson and Rohd Landrith. John Wyatt came in with runners on first and third and made pinch - hitter Charlie Lau hit into a game - ending double play.

Lots Of Give, No Take

Peterborough Shuts Out Kenmors

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The Peterborough Fannings won a baseball game here last night on a give-and-take basis and after all you cannot blame the Bill Cowley crew.

The difference between the Pets and the Kenmors was that the winners took what was offered them — and the former band failed to help themselves.

The Fannings, behind Al Wade's seven-hitter, blanked the Kenmors 2-0 and held them to their first-place top tie with Kingston in the Lakeshore League senior division.

When the Kenmors did get chances to break the egg they got lost on the base-paths and the alert Petes promptly picked them off. Two Fanning double plays helped, too.

There times the Kenmor runners were caught between the sacks after they had started home. But on them missed Wades' third strikes and their mates missing in the batting ches. The Pete pitcher walked three.

Plate-wise, the best the Petes could do was five hits off three Belleville pitchers, two of these whiffing eleven and the trio giving up six walks.

Only one of the Fannings runs was earned coming in the fifth to break a scoreless tie and a tight hurling duel. Murray Taylor singled was sacrificed to second and scored on Wade's right-field single.

Mather's walk, Hill's single and a pair of passed balls off Lefty Reid's delivery, one the run-scorer, gave the Fannings their second marker in the sixth.

Reid, who started, hurled airtight baseball for five innings giving up three hits and walking two. He struck out eight and walked two.

Langford took over in the seventh after Reid's control wavered, and lasted an inning and two batters. Mahoney's single and a walk sent him to the showers and Gordie Vaughan took over in the ninth to put the fire out.

Ricky Locke's towering first inning triple appeared to get the Kenmors off on the right foot. He started for home on Gogre's infield hit and was run down. Wade nipped a two man on rally in the fifth whiffing two to end the threat.

Singley's sacrifice and Pollard's walk put the runners on second and third in the seventh then Hunter walked to load the sacks. But Locke grounded out to end the uprising.

Goyer reached second on Petes loss error in the eighth. Mavely whiffed and Carr was hit by a pitched ball. But Goyer was run down between second and third and that was it.

Locke's triple and single and Gogre's two singles paced the Kenmors, Carr, Mcgon and Fothwell hit singles.

Overcome 13-7 Defeat

Argos Shade Tiger-Cats

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Mitchell kicked a 30-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter to give Toronto Argonauts a 23-20 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats as the two Eastern Football Conference clubs opened the pre-season exhibition schedule.

A crowd of 23,887 Wednesday night saw the Argos, beaten in the league final last season by Tiger-Cats, come from behind twice to win and fourth quarters with two touchdowns by Dick Shatto, Mitchell's field goal and a single by Dave Cline to overcome a 13-7 lead by Hamilton at halftime.

The game was a typical exhibition affair with coaches Lou Agase of the Argos and Jim Trimble of the Tiger-Cats experimenting freely with rival benches of 50 and more players each. The Argos, however, were mainly with their first-string players after the Ticats built up their halftime lead.

Defensive halfback Jim Rountree opened the scoring at 11:18 of the first quarter when he intercepted a pass from Hamilton quarterback Joe Zuger of Arizona State and ran 68 yards for a touchdown. Cookie Gilchrist converted Rountree's touchdown but missed on the two by Shatto.

Bob Jeter, speedy half-of-fullback from British Columbia Lions in a trade, scored two touchdowns for Hamilton on passing plays in the 23-yarder from Zuger and another for 10 yards from Bernie Faloney, both on the final plays in the first and third quarters.

Don Getsbo, the league scoring champion last season, converted both touchdowns and added two field goals of 32 and 29 yards in the second quarter.

Halfback Gerry McDougall, picked up by the Argos in a trade for linebacker Bobby Kuntz, showed only briefly but was effective. Kuntz, also used sparingly offensively, carried the ball three times for a net gain of four yards.

9 Trotters Clash in Rich Race

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Three-year-old trotters get their chance to race for big money tonight when eight colts and one filly clash in the $56,422 trot-ters Futurity one 1 1-16 miles at Yonkers Raceway.

The futurity is the first event of the triple crown, which also includes the Hambletonian at Du Quoin, Ill., Aug. 29 and the Kentucky Futurity at Lexington, Ky., Oct. 3. Of the top three - year - olds only Impish, 1961 juvenile champ, will be absent from the Yonkers field.

Off his recent straight-heat victory in the Cane Pace Consolation Cup at Goshen, N.Y., A.C.'s Viking has been made the 8-to-5 choice.

Tie Bobcats For Playoff Spot

Juniors Thump Flyers

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Rollins Juniors, trailing 8-3 in the ninth inning, rallied for nine runs to whip the RCAF Flyers 14-9 at Station last night.

The Juniors' win, their second of the week over the loop's top clubs, pulled them up into a tie with the Bobcats in the third and final playoff spot. Bobcats play host to the Flyers tonight to wind up the regular schedule but a postponed game between Rollins and the RCAF will be played here, on Monday night.

The Flyers, who have clinched second place, appeared to have the game all wrapped up until Howie Cole's control went on him in the ninth. He walked the leadoff man and winning pitcher Bob Ebbler got an infield hit. Cole walked the next three batters to force in two runs. He left with the bases loaded and his club ahead 9-7.

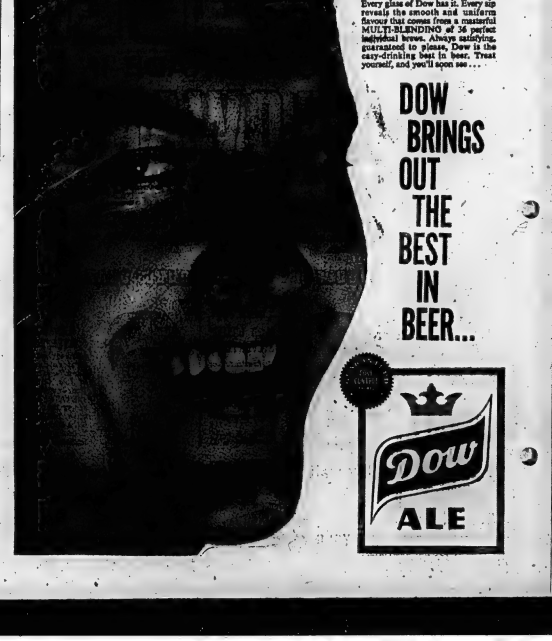
Mike Ratushniak was brought in but Weston greeted him with a solid single, driving in a pair to tie it up. Robitaille also got an infield single and McGuire drew the Juniors' fifth walk of the frame. Gardner's single plated two more and Ebbler did the same for the final 14-9 score. It was Ebbler's second hit of the inning.

Pete Weston had slugged a three-run homer in the third, and McGuire had blooped a four-bagger down the line for one run in the sixth, for Rollins.

Flyers got two in the first, on a pair of hits and an error, plus four in the third on two hits, a hit batter, two errors and a walk. D. Cole doubled and scored on an error in the fifth and later clubbed his sixth homer of the year, with Mitts on via a bunt, to open up the 8-3 lead.

Bob Ebbler pitched the win, although he gave up a total of one hit in every inning, totaling 13 in all. He struck out four and walked just a pair.

Bill McCauley worked the first six, loser Howie Cole two innings plus, and Mike Ratushniak finished up for the Flyers. They gave up 13 hits, fanned eight and walked nine, six by Cole.



Pete Weston paced the Rollins batters with five runs batted in on a homer and two singles. Bob Ebbler poked three singles, Gary Duggan a double and single and Joe Robitaille two and single. Mitts and Gardner, Don Gardner and Pug Kellar had singles.

Argentine Fascist Group Brands Jews, Eggs Prince

By RONALD ARIAS

BUENOS AIRES. (AP)—Youths with arms raised in the Nazi salute walk in and out of the headquarters of the Tacuara organization in Buenos Aires.

The name was stenciled on an inscription scrawled across the walls of a cemetery:

"El Eichmann fue, flea, death to the Jews."

A 20-year-old university student complained to police she was kidnapped, burned with cigarettes and a Nazi swastika was carved on her chest. Tacuara was linked with the incident.

Some 15 youths were arrested —and later released—for an egg attack on Prince Philip during his visit here several months ago. The youths were members of Tacuara.

Tacuara also was investigated in connection with the recent killing of Norma Melena, 21, during a march in support of the law faculty of the University of Buenos Aires.

Thus far no charges have been filed against any Tacuara member for action in any of the cases. Their identity is no secret; last year, less than an hour was needed for police to hand in most members' the routine questioning.

CAN'T PROVE IT

"They know all about us," says Ludi Barbieri, a Tacuara leader. "We're either too smart for the police or we've got nothing to do with the attacks. So far, nothing can be proven."

Police say they are investigating. The anti-Semitic incidents provide few clues. When a restaurant was machine-gunned by persons in a speeding auto, no one could describe the vehicle. When police bombs are exploded, no one can say who set them off. When Jewish students are molested going to or from their schools, teachers are reluctant to take action.

Tacuara was formed in 1955. Its members took the name from the Argentine cowboys' word for lance. Legally, they are under the Nationalist Civic Union Party, which drew only 2,284 votes in the last national elections.

Chief of the Tacuara, is Eduardo Uribury, 24, a kindman of ex-dictator Joe Felix Uriburu, who ruled Argentina for two years in the early 1930s. He says:

"We are fighting for a one-party system in Argentina and the abolition of foreign control over its economy—whether it be by England, the United States or Israel."

Some estimates place the membership as high as 7,000. Most are from middle class families and many are members without their parents' knowledge.

The government apparently does not feel any action can be taken at this time. Said the ministry of interior:

"We are doing all we can to investigate the cases, but the situation is not clear as to these organizations. Communism, however, is a greater threat because it has the help and backing of a world power. The other does not."

Astrological Forecast

For July 20

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Temptation to "quit early" is not inspired by common sense. Stick to details until you are sure you have all the facts. Then you can relax and enjoy peace of mind.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Many ideas presented, but it is up to you to choose the best. Be discriminating. Stand up and be counted as an individual and with the crowd proves costly later.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Achievement is key, and it is best accomplished via the "light touch." Be grouchy is worse; approach. Don't look for humor, artistic appreciation. Provide these and your day is successful.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Time to put "foot down" and do some things for your own personal pleasure. This gains respect from others, however, self-sacrifice today is apt to lead to derision.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Those who work with you demand great attention. Flash your personal magnetism and Leo showmanship, but be diplomatic. Those who can't "keep up" could be resentful and turn to "gossip-grinding."

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23): Comments made by professional associate should not be permitted to "rile" you. Day when it is best to do more listening than talking. Your abilities will speak for themselves.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): No time for brooding; instead a day for gaining strength, making plans for future. Stay away from those who "drain" you emotionally. Ask yourself what it is you desire and wait for an answer!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Make distinction between "small talk" and actual deception. Emotions run high and you could become involved in triangle situation. Tonight this could become very clear! Maintain poise.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Trying too hard creates tension, defeats your purpose. Relax. Do what you know must be done. But don't hang on every word and deed. Much in your favor, if you let it "come through!"

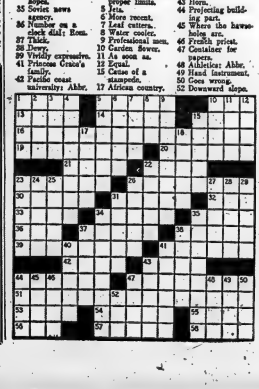
Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): New approach advised. Breaking away from established patterns means you undergo some inconvenience, but the trouble is worth it. Strive for greater individuality, independence, self-expression.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Emphasis on money affairs, but you must not fall into trap sacrificing quality for so-called "bargain." Demand the best and you will receive it. Wait on direct action.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Cycle up, and tonight you can prove it! Sense of humor should be brought into play. You should enjoy company of those who admire you, appreciate your abilities. Give of yourself and others will respond!

* * *

If Today Is Your Birthday - - - clear up details during this month, for added responsibility, greater income due next month. You will want to be "ready." Year when major cycle ends and you prepare for new one - - - with favorable indications.



* * *

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Aquarius, Pisces, Aries. Those who attempt to "force" their way are due for disappointment today. Charm, sympathy, appreciation for the finer things in life dominate.

Congressional Election Pits Kennedy and Party Against History's Trend

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy and his Democratic supporters will be waging a struggle against history this fall as they seek to preserve and enhance their strength in a fickle, unpredictable Congress where party labels sometimes are mere masquerades for regional alliances.

Thirty-eight of the 100 Senate seats and the entire 437 seats in the House of Representatives will be at stake in mid-term congressional elections Nov. 6.

While Democrats control both Houses, history has shown that only once since 1856 has the party in power been able to prevent a setback in the mid-term fight. That was in 1934.

Kennedy himself has acknowledged to his fellow Democrats that this year "history is not with us." But despite his fight with the American business community and the country's worries about unemployment and recession, Kennedy's own popularity is reported by a variety of polls to be high. He plans to play an active role in the congressional campaign.

The Republicans take heart from the historical trend. Though they have been without an effective leader since Richard M. Nixon was beaten by Kennedy in the 1960 presidential election, they have polled former president Dwight D. Eisenhower out of retirement as the party's official spokesman.

SOME SWITCH

Democrats control the Senate with 64 seats to the Republicans' 36. Democrats also rule the House 263 to 174. But many of these Democrats are staunch conservatives and have bolted on occasion, with Republicans to crush some of Kennedy's vital legislation.

While some observers, and election experts cautious, think Republicans can hardly expect to win control over Congress this year, Kennedy's supporters fear that a strengthening of the conservative philosophy could delay and wreck more of the president's programs and put him in a precarious position when he seeks a second term in 1964.

Under the American system, the entire House of Representatives comes up for re-election every two years. Senators are elected for six-year terms with one-third of the chamber coming up for re-election every two years.

Aside from the new line-up in Congress, Kennedy also may be affected by state battles. Of the country's 50 governorships, 36 will be up for re-election Nov. 6. These include such important states as California, New York and Michigan. Out of these three states may come the next Republican presidential campaigner against Kennedy in 1964.

TEST FOR NIXON

Out west, Republican Nixon will be attempting to stage a political comeback by battling Democratic Governor Edmund (Pat) Brown for the California governorship. If Nixon wins by a good margin, his prospects for a return to the national arena in 1964 or 1968 will be enhanced. A stunning defeat could end his political career.

In the east, Republican Governor Nelson D. Rockefeller will be seeking re-election in New York and a great avalanche of votes could strengthen his ambition to take over the national Republican leadership.

Also with his eye on the national Republican spot is George Romney, the smooth, successful automobile manufacturer making his first bid for the Michigan governorship.

Election of all three by decisive margins would be considered a sheep blow to the Kennedy team. It also could provide the framework for an interesting struggle when the Republicans seek a presidential candidate in 1964.

Montreal Mountain Castle Cut Into Two Mansions

MONTREAL (CP)—Timmins House has become an architectural oddity. It was cut in two.

The castle atop the mountain in suburban Westmount was in danger of being demolished a year ago because it was considered unstable. Then architect Stanley Shenkman hit on the idea of converting it into two separate mansions.

Now a 23-foot gap separates the two sections of Timmins House.

The huge home, a blend of Norman and Tudor architecture, cost gold mine millionaire Noah Timmins $500,000 in 1930. It has been empty since his widow died six years ago. Taxes alone are $19,000 a year and it seemed just too big to sell.

Shenkman wanted to demolish it and subdivide the property but Westmount officials frowned on the idea. "It would have been a crime," said Mr. Shenkman.

He came up with his solution after the property was acquired by Mountain Top Realties Inc., of which he is a director.

ONE PART SOLD

Before separation the house contained 250,000 cubic feet of space compared with 17,000 for the average Canadian home. It had about 54,000 square feet of land.

Now it has two parts, one smaller of which Mr. Shenkman calls the "kitchen house" because it was the servants' wing. Yet, this part is still a big 14-room home. It has been bought by Pierre Salbaing, a Canadian Liquid Air executive, for $110,- but what it would cost to build today.

The asking price for the larger, more baronial portion of Timmins House, which survived surgery with its grand staircase, porte cochere and stained glass windows intact, is $150,- 000. It has 12 rooms and four bathrooms.

The remodelled "kitchen house" boasts an enormous living room with one of Montreal's most spectacular views. It was part of the banquet-size dining room in the old house. The rest of the original dining room was scooped out to provide space between the two houses.

CONVERTED PANTRY

The new dining room was Mrs. Timmins' pantry. The old kitchen, with its restaurant equipment, has been converted into a breakfast room.

Buckingham Palace. A modern kitchen has replaced it.

The Ontario sandstone, wood and Scottish slate from the demolished portion and from the coach house were used to face the walls left by the split. The coach house, another building on the property, has been bought by lawyer Jon Robinson for $70,000.

So carefully has the wood, stone and slate been matched that it is difficult to distinguish the 1962 construction from that of 1930.

Mr. Shenkman said the castle is a marvel of steel-reinforced concrete and solid masonry, completely fireproof. The pipes are solid brass, one-eighth of an inch thick and as good as new.

"Even the walls consist of double layers. There's brick, then a foot of space, then a second brick wall, making every wall in the house a foot and a half thick."

HOUSE DIVIDED—Unable to sell Timmins House, located in Montreal's Westmount district, realtor had the building cut in two individual mansions. Built in 1930 at a cost of $500,000 by mining magnate $500,000 by mining magnate contained 250,000 cubic feet of space. The smaller part has sold for $110,000 and the asking price of the larger is $150,000. (CP Photo).

ARREST POLICE

LA PAZ (AP) — Two Bolivian policemen have confessed taking part in a $220,000 (in coin) payroll robbery a year ago in which three messengers were killed, police announced Wednesday. They said Hugo Tellez, a law student, was under arrest with the two policemen, Hugo Fuentes and Marcial Fuentes. Other members of the band are being sought.

Polygamy on Way Out In Southern Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters) — Polygamy, once the accepted custom throughout Southern Rhodesia, is under pressure today from a fast-growing band of educated women clamoring for "one man, ones wife."

There are an estimated 31,320 polygamous marriages in Southern Rhodesia in an indigenous population of 2,675,779. The ratio of marriages in the population averages 1.1 wives a man.

But the African woman today is as deeply involved as any man in the changing pattern of life in this self-governing British colony. New cultures, Christianity and the impact of industrialization are forging new social structures to replace tribal laws and customs.

In the old days, when tribal wars kept down the proportion of men, polygamy ensured that all women were provided with a mate. Each wife was allocated her own hut in the village, and there was a definite division of labor.

The men cleared the bush for cultivation, the women worked the land and reaped the crops. Money economy was unknown. Each family grew food for subsistence was produced.

KEPT SILENT

Rigid custom forced the wife into the background. They dared not speak unless first addressed permission from the men.

But Western standards have brought many changes to Southern Rhodesia in the last 70 years.

Letters appearing in the African press now condemn polygamy and the writers emphasize that the women do not want it to continue.

Most letters stress that for the African women, the days of confinement in the home are over, that the tradition of their predecessors cannot continue and that they want to be treated as equals or men.

Bridesprice, or "lobola," is still paid, however, and some of the old customs remain, even when the young African couple choose a religious wedding.

Christian women are trying to get their husbands to make wills so that if widowed they will be provided for adequately. In the old days, a widow was generally taken in marriage by one of her husband's brothers.

Hopes Brighten For Settlement In Saskatchewan

Doctors' New Stand Is Welcomed by Govt.

SASKATOON (CP) — Hopes have brightened for a solution to Saskatchewan's medical care dispute.

Health Minister W. G. Davies said in a television broadcast Thursday night the CCF government will "bend every effort" to reach agreement with doctors boycotting the government's compulsory, prepaid medical care insurance plan.

As the end of the third week since the July 1 start of normal medical services, about 150 doctors met secretly Thursday in Regina to discuss developments said doctors were optimistic for the first time since they started their boycott.

The provincial cabinet met Friday.

In his television address, Health Minister Davies said abandonment by the college of a demand that the act be suspended is a "significant step forward."

"I am hopeful that we may now make progress towards a resumption of normal medical services."

Dr. H. D. Dalgleish, president of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, said talks between the two sides "wouldn't be very long drawn out." If the government accepts proposals he outlined Wednesday,

He told the provincial CCF convention that the college council had asked to be invited—doctors would go back to normal practice after the legislature passes proposed amendments at a special session.

Doctors withdrew normal services with the July 1 start of the government plan. About one-third of the college's 625 private practitioners are providing free emergency service for 44 of the province's 154 hospitals.

EXPECTS BACKING

Harry Link, president of the CCF Saskatchewan branch of the New Democratic Party, said he expects overwhelming support from convention delegates for the government's stand. The convention was to debate resolutions on the medical care insurance plan today.

In other developments Thursday Dr. Dalgleish said the college has started to assist doctors in need of money because of the boycott.

Dr. A. D. Kelly, executive director of the Canadian Medical Association, has said the province's doctors have lost $1,000,000 in fees since the boycott began.

Mr. Davies said the professions is prepared to subsidize doctors who need it.

Dr. Dalgleish said "we've had some donations from the public" to help finance the program.

Meanwhile, Dr. Arthur Peart of Toronto, assistant general secretary of the CMA, said an impartial group of physicians has been formed to arbitrate disputes between Britain, are practising in the province for limited periods on contract. Another 12 British doctors hired by the commission are expected by the province in September.

Gen. Norstad Quits as Chief Of NATO Forces

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy accepted today the resignation of Gen. Lauris Norstad as supreme allied commander in Europe and chief of NATO forces.

The White House had nothing to say immediately as to a successor.

Reports were circulating that Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the U.S. joint chiefs of staff, might replace Norstad. But there also was talk of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, now presidential military adviser.

Norstad has held the supreme commander position with headquarters in Paris since 1956. He is known as a strong advocate of increasing unity among the Western European allies and between them and the United States.

U.S. CUTS OFF AID TO PERU RESULT OF COUP

Plantation Workers Strike Against Junta

LIMA (AP)—Workers went on strike in the interior and more street clashes erupted in Lima Thursday night as pressure mounted on Peru's military junta to bow and abdicate.

The United States dealt the military rulers a blow by cutting off millions of dollars in U.S. aid. Speculation arose that under the barrage of foreign criticism the junta might install a figurehead civilian president, but the military did in Argentina.

An American sugar company official said 75 per cent of his firm's plantation were shut down Thursday by a walkout of workers loyal to Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, leftist but avowed anti - Communist presidential aspirant who was the principal target of the military takeover.

Jack Ducoa, executive vice president of W. R. Grace and Company, said workers on his firm's other plantations in the rich northern farming area were also striking.

"That's heavy Aprista country," Ducoa said, referring to Haya's popular Revolutionary Alliance (APRA). So far he said no violence have been quiet.

VIOLENCE FLARES

Workers in Lima generally ignored the call to join protest strike called by the APRA-dominated Peruvian Confederation of Workers. But violence flared at night as police clashed with hundreds of students shouting "liberty! liberty!"

The students and others gathered in downtown streets and Plaza San Martin to taunt police with shouts of "down with military dictatorship" and "we want freedom."

Youths set a bus and several automobiles afire. Several store fronts were smashed before merchants could slam down steel shutters.

The demonstrations thus far have not represented a serious challenge to the military rule of 56-year-old Gen. Ricardo Perez Godoy, commander-in-chief of the military high command.

But sources in and out of the government said the junta was feeling the pressure of the United States and other American nations for a return to constitutional government.

Non-op Unions to Wind Up Testimony to Board Today

MONTREAL (CP) — Unions representing Canada's 160,000 non-operating railway employees are to conclude their arguments today before a conciliation board studying their new contract demands.

The three-man board set up after negotiations between the unions and the railways broke down last February, then will adjourn to start preparing its report.

The seven railways involved in the joint bargaining presented their final arguments to the board Thursday and charged the unions are seeking "such obvious facts as the financial position of the industry and the general economic situation."

Pierre Taschereau, counsel for the CPR, told the board that the 15 CLC - affiliated unions bargaining for the non-ops have asked for a shorter work week, salaries are in any way leadquate when compared with what workers get for similar work in other industries.

Speaking for all the railways, he said, the union used misinterpreted figures in order to try to justify their wage demands and a half-hearted attempt at rationalization to explain their job security proposals.

The CPR's counsel, W. R. Jackson, also said the unions have made no case for a wage increase and blamed the union-railways' attack on their job security demands.

The plan as outlined by the unions originally would limit the railways to the employment of employees with five or more years seniority to one year.

Mr. Jackett said a proposal of that type is inacceptable.

The unions' proposal became "completely and utterly

Supt., Woman Battle Thugs One Jailed, 2 in Hospital

KINGSTON (CP)—Three persons were taken to hospital and a fourth to jail Thursday following a stabbing at a lunch canteen in Lake Ontario Park.

In satisfactory condition in hospital are Park Superintendent Harry C. Revell, with a stab wound in the stomach; and Winston Towner and John Wilson, both about 20. The youths served the downtown streets and Plaza San Martin to taunt police with shouts of "down with military dictatorship" and "we want freedom."

Youths set a bus and several automobiles afire. Several store fronts were smashed before merchants could slam down steel shutters.

The demonstrations thus far have not represented a serious challenge to the military rule of 56-year-old Gen. Ricardo Perez Godoy, commander-in-chief of the military high command.

Fire Rating
Tweed Forest District

H.O. Stewart, City Business Man, Dies

With a total of 13 fires burning, the Tweed District Lands and Forest holds the record for the province.

Two new fires were reported today in South Canonto township near Quinn and Norway Lakes. Others are burning in Mayo township near Gilmour Lake and Limerick township near Lake.

Rainfall for the month to date is .39 inch. The normal is 1.38 inches.

Two of the fires were caused by campers, one by lightning while the other is being investigated.

Extreme dryness is causing the fires to burn deeply into the ground, officials say. This necessitates much extra ranger work.

The hazard rating today was placed as extremely high.

Four Youths Charged in City Court

Four Belleville youths were charged in city court this morning with "wandering around in a public place, not having any apparent means of support, and not being able to justify their being in the place where they were found." The charge is usually referred to as vagrancy.

The youths are Stanley Jack Bailey 17; Ronald Cross 18; Donald Roy Boomhour, 21, and Carl Rossan Haines, 18. Each in turn pleaded guilty to the charge on which he had been arrested, about 2:30 a.m. July 19.

Police evidence indicated the youths had been wandering the streets of the downtown area, and on private property behind Front St. stores, since before midnight of July 18.

They had been cautioned several times by police officers, who had been keeping a close watch on the area since several outdoor vending machines had been damaged recently and an oxy-acetylene welding torch had been stolen from the back of a truck that evening. The tools had been found in some bushes.

Trenton Said Using Water At All-Time Record Rate

TRENTON—Public Utilities commissioner James Page told the utilities commission yesterday that Trenton was using water at an all-time record rate. On July 17, 4,449,600 gallons were pumped. Right now, the casing factory is working full steam, and uses around 300,000 to 400,000 a day.

Commission chairman Charles Hall said that he had noticed residents watering lawns at all hours of the day.

Mr. Page said that water consumption at the airport was over the normal rate of a million gallons a day by around 80,000 gallons. Mayor MacDonald said that a high ranking RCAF official had mentioned to him (in a strictly unofficial way) that "someone" had called up several times in the past three weeks and asked that the RCAF go easy on the consumption of water. Mr. Page said that the call had not come from his office.

In all events, Mr. Page said that the increased use of water was not affecting this point and that the situation would be relieved when the canning factory starts up in Trenton in the near future.

The Canadian Section of the American Water Works' Association has sent an Award of Merit to the commission in recognition of the local group's outstanding safety record in its water operations.

Carter's Electric was awarded the contract for the supply of an 8 inch water main on McCoy Street, between Front and Dundas Sts. Contract price is $7,563.25, more than a thousand dollars lower than the next highest bidder.

The chairman and manager were authorized to sign an agreement with the CNR, by which the utilities would get permission from the railway to lay a 12 inch line across property in the vicinity of Wharf and Bay Sts. The line will be supplied to the Trenton Cold Storage plant.

A letter from the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, asking for comments on a request from the Bata Shoe Co. of Bata Alpha Chapter of Trenton, that the railway and the local utilities co-operate with the security in putting on a Hydro Showtime, got the comment from the chairman, "We've done that in the past, and that's enough. Pass it back to the Hydro people."

Commissioners agreed to give certain work gang members the status of "crew leaders," and 10 cents an hour more, for the performance of special duties.

PUC Members Told to Pay Up Or Lose Hydro

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities office staff is no respecter of persons.

At yesterday's meeting of the utilities commission, commissioners members Mayor James MacDonald and Clifford Baker admittedly ruefully that they had received notice on their bills that "if they didn't pay their hydro bills, hydro service would be out on!" Both commissioners wrote their bills in their pockets and promptly forgotten them. After receiving the notices, they paid the bills, pronto.

Chamber Plans To Erect New Building

TRENTON — At a directors' meeting of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce yesterday, it was decided to go ahead with plans for the erection of a permanent chamber office. Jack Goodman, chairman of the building committee, has been instructed by the chamber council with a request that Victoria Park on Division Street be leased to the chamber for a 99 year period. Directors voted unanimously on the site, after a comparison with another suggested site . . . directly east of Victoria Park Hall. It was felt that Division Street, forming part of Highway 33, and as such, a connecting link with Highway 401, was the superior location. There is no, there is every possibility that the second bridge for the town will be built in the immediate area leading to a great deal of tourist travel on Division Street itself.

If council is in accord with the chamber suggestion, as to the office location, and agrees to lease the park, contractors will be asked to put on the erection of a 30 x 30 building, which would include a general office, (which could be used as a board room for chamber meetings), a private office for the secretary manager, two washrooms for the convenience of the travelling public, a small storeroom and a place where tourist literature could be displayed.

Estimated cost of the building is between five and six thousand dollars, with $6,000 as a goal.

At the present time, the chamber pays $65 a month office rent, and the directors feel that a permanent office would soon be made up from this, after the initial outlay.

Mr. Goldberg suggested that many public-spirited citizens might care to make donations, or even loans, (at low, or no, interest) for the project. Some might even buy lifetime memberships, as their contribution.

Mrs. Helen Upper asked that signs be placed at strategic points, directing tourists to Mount Pellon. She questioned the thinking of whoever was responsible for placing the plaque, commemorating Samuel de Champlain's sojourn on Trenton's mountain, in Bayshore Park. Mrs. Upper said that as far as she knew Champlain had never set foot in Bayshore Park.

Mrs. Upper said that Roy Cornish, editor of the Trentonian, had said that he would be glad to prepare a fishing guide to this area. She said that the small pamphlet could be placed inside the recently printed Trenton brochure.

It was pointed out that experienced fishermen might deliberately shun areas pointed out as "good fishing grounds."

On the subject of the brochures, Mrs. Upper said that it was time the chamber got down to thinking about next year's. She said that since the low town was in search of, and would presumably decide upon, a new slogan for Trenton, the present brochures were obsolete.

Chamber secretary, Nostrand Sprague, agreed that brochures for next year, should be in the hands of the chamber by Jan. 1, so that they could be sent out to sportsmen's shows. He said that in other centres, the chamber prepared and printed the brochure and charged costs back to council as "tourist promotion" expenditure.

Mr. Wright, who has served recently as an instructor at Picton army camp, will assume his new duties on September 1.

IN MEMORIAM

KIRKPATRICK — In loving memory of my dear husband Fred, who passed away July 20th, 1958.
His smiling way and pleasant face,
No one can ever take his place.
God took him home, it was His will,
And died believing he would.
But in my heart he lives with me,
Some day, we know not when,
We'll clasp hands in the better land.
Never to part again.
Surrounded by friends, I am lonesome.
Always remembered by wife Jeanette and family.

Death Chances By Snake Bite Said Slim

TORONTO (CP) — The massasauga rattler is the only snake in Ontario capable of killing humans—but the chances of it doing so are slim, the Royal Ontario Museum says.

Its tiny fangs will not penetrate clothing and the rattler, a timid reptile does not go out of its way to attack, the museum said Thursday.

The massasauga made headlines across Ontario Wednesday when a 10-year-old Detroit girl, Nora Jean Armitage, died en route to hospital eight hours after she had been bitten by a rattler.

Treatment recommended by the museum, and taught to boy scouts as part of their basic training, might have saved her life if symptoms of snake bite had been detected earlier.

The treatment: Apply a tourniquet above the fangmarks to stop poison from spreading; cut a V-shaped gash across the bite and, after letting the wound bleed, suck it clean of remaining poison.

Anti-venom to combat the bite is available in all hospitals in the Ontario Sage area.

The massasauga, a reptile that rarely exceeds 2½ feet, has a broad triangular head and a grey-ish body with brown blotches running down the back. It is found mainly near swamps and low ground in the Georgian Bay area and a few are found along the shores of Lake Erie and Lake Huron.

Gold Holdings Drop Sharply During June

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's official holdings of gold—part of the foreign exchange reserve—took a sharp drop during June but informants say there was no major significance in the fact.

They described it Thursday as a return to the normal 30-60 ratio between gold and United States dollars which has been the customary policy for holdings in the exchange fund.

During June, gold holdings in the fund fell to $889,000,000 from $915,000,000, while U.S. dollar holdings rose to $1,139,700,000 from $979,200,000.

However, $950,000,000 of the dollar holdings represented the $300,000,000 loan from the International Monetary Fund and $200,000,000 received in a currency switch with the U.S. and National Bank of Canada in the last week of June to bolster the exchange fund.

Not counting those two special deals, the gold-dollar ratio in the fund was at about the usual 30-50 division with gold holdings somewhat more than half.

In fact it is said that the spring and early-June drain on the fund had been met in the first instance by drawing down the U.S. dollar holdings and that when the opportunity arose in June, gold was sold to restore the balance.

Girl Killed, Eight Hurt In Collision

PAGWA, Ont. (CP)—A two-year-old Indian girl was killed and eight other persons injured Thursday night when two railroad cars collided head-on near this rail stop about 150 miles west of Moosonee.

Canadian National Railways, investigating the crash on their main line 17 miles west of here, said Audrey Wesley was killed in the crash.

Five Indians returning from a chest x-ray clinic were riding in one of the cars, and two CNR railway employees and two railway technicians with the department of Indian affairs were in the other car.

Maj. William Scroggins, in charge of United States Air Force base at Pagwa, said he was notified of the wreck early today. No hour after it occurred.

Maj. Scroggins sent two doctors and 20 men to assist in taking the injured persons to the base hospital.

The four most severely injured were flown by the air force to Kapuskasing Hospital.

They were identified as: Victor Pratt, 35, Miss Rae Neshawbis 35, Jan Hulweski, 75, and Mrs. Margaree Wesley, 21, all of Nakina, 75 miles west of here. Mr. Pratt is an employee of the department of lands and mines.

Miss Neshawbis is a nurse, and Mrs. Wesley is the mother of the dead girl.

Mr. Hulweski is employed by the CNR.

Mr. Wesley, father of the dead girl, and his wife.

All but Mrs. Wesley were treated at hospital and released.

conference and a commission statement indicated about 307 doctors are now out on strike call.

This figure includes 180 working under the emergency service program, the 80 hired on short-term contract, 23 in clinics and some 28 believed to be giving some kind of service outside the act.

Dr. Dalgleish said the college's total membership of 8,225 included some 600 doctors who were in private practice before July 1. The balance included 200 salaried doctors and about 75 who were retired, on leave of absence or dead.

Dr. Peart said a "conservative estimate" was that the province might lose one-third of its private practitioners.

CONTINUE INTERVIEWS

In London, Saskatchewan government representatives continued to interview applicants for northern practice in the province. It is also reported there were about 100 applicants for short-term practice in the province.

In Saskatoon, Dr. Richard Nollmeyer of Rosemand, Mont., suggested there might be whole new recruitment of the University of Saskatchewan medical faculty of Canadian doctors in institution.

Dr. Nollmeyer, a member of the three-man executive board at Montana State College, was here to tour the university hospital and college of medicine.

He said there have been active consideration in the U.S. of a move to build a three-state medical school serving Idaho, Montana and Wyoming and "the present situation gives a good ideal opportunity to bargain with the entire medical staff (at the university)."

British Labor peer Lord Taylor, an architect of the United Kingdom health plan, told a rally of about 1,000 people here great patience and hard work is needed before a final solution is found to the Saskatchewan dispute.

LORD TAYLOR

Lord Taylor, who came as a guest of the Saskatchewan government, said in his address he said he has had talks with both the government and the doctors. He was to meet again with Dr. Dalgleish today.

To Make Limbs For Deformed German Kiddies

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (CP) — A Grand Rapids doctor is going to Germany to develop artificial limbs for 5,000 children born without arms and legs because of a rare abnormality that has been traced to a tranquilizer.

Dr. Charles H. Frantz, an orthopedic surgeon, said Thursday he will examine many of the children and help German doctors devise limbs for them.

The abnormality, called phocomelia, was traced to a drug called thalidomide which was taken by German women in early pregnancy. The drug has been barred from Canada and the U.S.

Henry Tom Scores Hundred On Timed-Fire Pistol Target

To any marksman the magic score of 100 is something rarely seen in handgun circles. In fact, some consider that they have reached the happy hunting grounds if they can achieve a 90 to 95 on any of the targets fired for the national match course.

Henry Tom of the Quinte Marksmen Club captured the magic number on a national match course fired over Wednesday night on the Quinte Marksmen range near Redners-ville this week when he was firing the 10-yard timed fire target, the second of three in the national match course. It was the first time that any marksman had scored this high on this target, usually first shot shooting started to find an avid following of sportsmen about three years ago.

The score was shot by Tom with his 22-Standard Supermatic Trophy pistol, a 22-calibre target pistol specially designed for target shooting. The weapon sports such refinements as adjustable weight in the butt to balance to just the point where the individual shooter finds it easiest to hold; a muzzle brake to reduce the effects of recoil so that the sights do not jump in this target sling.

Currently Tom scores among 89 on his slow fire target, possibly the most difficult of the three targets because it is fired on a 50-yard range against the timed and rapid fire strings. Perhaps the first future will see the posting of the magic 100 score by the young shooter in this target sling.

New Toronto Woman Tells Tale of Fraud

TORONTO (CP) — A New Toronto woman testified Thursday that when she told John Bobby, 43, her house needed painting, he painted it, then moved in for six months and defrauded her of $500. Bobby was committed for trial for fraud.

Mrs. Rose August said Bobby had no job when she met him in the winter ago, but he told her he was concerned in big business deals involving stolen goods.

In August, 1959, he promised her a return of $500 in a week if she would give him $500, the mother of three told the court. She said Bobby gave her a series of bonds stolen years before in Kingston would be changed and the bonds cashed, she said.

She said Bobby told her she was now worth $50,000 but did not give her the $500.

Later she advanced him another $700 and was persuaded to sell her $1,200 mould car to finance another deal.

Bobby proposed marriage, she said, and the two were married in Napanee by a magistrate, but she learned later he was already married.

Mrs. August said she owns property at 14,251 Keele, from a Buffalo bank account and sold two insurance policies worth $10,000 for $4,500 and gave Bobby the money after he begged for it in a hotel.

He also defrauded her 70-year-old father of $3,500, she said.

Compromise Seen Possible In Algeria

ALGIERS (AP)—The leaders of Algeria's guerrilla fighters were reported today to have worked out a proposed compromise in the quarrel dividing the new nation.

There was no official word of what the compromise provided. But one informed source said the guerrilla army's second-in-command, Col. Houari Boumediene, would propose that:

1. The government would be headed by a six-man political bureau of the National Liberation Front, the FLN, divided equally between the rival factions of moderate Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda and radical Deputy Premier Ahmed Ben Bella.

2. Ben Bella would head the radicals on the politburo, but Ben Khedda would be shelved. The moderate members would be Deputy Premiers Belkacem Krim and Mohammed Boudiaf and Interior Minister Lakhdar Ben Tobbal.

3. The politburo would lead the FLN as a political party into the constituent assembly elections in September, which Ben Bella probably would continue it in charge of the government.

The reported compromise proposal was worked out at a meeting of the guerrilla leaders Lakhdar Medea, in the mountains southeast of Algiers.

Jagan Charges Effort to Delay Independence

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (CP)—Premier Cheddi Jagan Thursday night accused the British government of trying to delay independence of British Guiana by proposing to submit reports on the Georgetown riots to the United Nations.

He said such delaying tactics can have fateful consequences" and "further delay will not only be unjustified, but dangerous." His statement came amid fears within this territory but will also cast doubt on the loyalty of the people about the value of Commonwealth connection."

British Guiana became a self-governing colony last year, Dr. Jagan now demands complete independence.

Last February, violent demonstrations against some of the left-wing Dr. Jagan's tax policies broke out and Georgetown was severely damaged by fires. British troops had to be called in to quell the riots.

The British delegation to the United Nations was offered to submit the report of a royal commission appointed to look into the riots to the United Nations commission on colonialism.

Board Reserves Judgment in Inco Dispute

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Labor Relations Board has reserved judgment concerning the bargaining agent for the 15,000 employees of the International Nickel Company of Canada, Limited at Sudbury.

The last arguments on the fights between two unions to represent the workers came some three years after the fight began.

Fighting for the rights are the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) present bargaining agents, and the United Steelworkers of America (CLC).

There was no immediate indication as to when the board would hand down judgment.

A side battle still to be decided concerns an action by the pro-Steel faction within Local 598 of the Mine-Mill to gain control of some $100,000 assets in cash and property.

ARBS INVALIDATE

Mine-Mill has asked the Labor Relations Board to invalidate a certification vote cast between Feb. 27 and March 1 this year. Steel won the vote by a slim 15 votes.

Judge Rejects Postponement Kennedy Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge has turned down an attempt to postpone a $450,000 personal injury suit on grounds that President Kennedy is, in a legal sense, in the military service.

The suit, against Kennedy and others, stems from an auto wreck during the 1960 Democratic national convention in Los Angeles, at which Kennedy won his party's nomination.

A defence lawyer sought the postponement Thursday on the grounds that Kennedy, as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, is protected by the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act of 1940.

Superior Judge Emil Gumpert said he does not believe the president is covered by the act.

The judge said if Kennedy's testimony is needed, there is no reason why his deposition cannot be taken.

Four delegates to the convention read Oct. 27, 1960, charging they were injured when a campaign car allegedly hired by Kennedy collided with another vehicle July 12, 1960, during the campaign.

The delegates all from Mississippi, were Rev. Ernest Hugh Daily, Circuit Judge Walter O'Barr Jr., William H. Austin, a farmer, and Mrs. Jennie Lee Hills wife of a political colleague. They were riding in the campaign car.

A pre-trial hearing is set for July 30.

Don't Fence Him Out

About 1850, a man lived in a small wooden shack beside a small pond in the United States. This man had borrowed the use of the land from a friend, and built the shack himself, of materials worth slightly more than $12. He lived a quiet life of contemplation and wonder, growing beans for his food and drinking the water of the pond. He boasted that he could live for a year on the salary for six weeks of work, and he never worked any more than he had to.

To most of his contemporaries, he was an irresponsible good-for-nothing. He asked nothing of society, and made no visible contribution to it. If he were living near any Canadian community in these days, he would be run out of the area as fast as the authorities could find, or pass, a law to make him conform or move on.

Society is now big enough, and dictatorial enough, that people are not permitted to ignore it. A man who chose, for example, to walk from Belleville to Vancouver, begging his meals, or catching them in wayside streams, probably would be jailed before he left Ontario. A man who wanted to live in the woods and be left alone, would be pursued by tax collectors and building inspectors even if he could keep the door-to-door salesmen off. He has a spoiled child, society demands recognition.

The man of the 1850's mentioned earlier was Henry David Thoreau. He borrowed the land on which he built his shack from Waldo Emmerson, one of the greatest of Americans living at the time, and one of the very few people to know Thoreau, and appreciate him. Thoreau himself may have been the greatest of all American philosophers. He paid no taxes and went out of his way to disobey laws of which he disapproved.

In the organized society of today, with the emphasis on respectability, there might somewhere be room for a Thoreau to retire into his thoughts. It might still be possible to live outside society without going into hiding. But it would not be if our lawmakers set their minds to the problem.

Katanga Still Stubborn

Katanga, starting its third year of secession in the same spirit as its first, broke its promise to the UN by parading 2,000 troops instead of the token force of 300 agreed upon.

The parade was to celebrate Katanga's independence from the rest of the Congo. Another way of saying it is that for two full years the richest part of the Congo has refused to share its wealth with the remainder of the country. While the UN stands on the brink of bankruptcy trying to bring peace to the Congo, Katanga refuses to contribute taxes to the country's coffers.

U Thant, the UN Secretary-General, has indicated that he wants the Security Council to re-examine the Congo situation and perhaps give him new instructions. At the same time he has assured Britain he has no intention of resorting to force to end the Katanga secession. Surely, though, a resort to force is justified under some circumstances. But the UN has no funds to finance a war.

We Ignore Worst Threat

We live in an age of facts and figures. Cancer and tuberculosis societies are willing and anxious to give us the death toll due to their pet diseases every year, and the ban-the-bomb groups will tell their tale of statistical woe whether we listen or not. Perhaps this is why we have become so blase about the doom descending on the human race from all quarters.

Any electronic brain will tell you that doom is due soon after the year 2100 AD. In that year, if no previous disaster alters the situation, the world will contain, according to normal increase of population figures, something close to fifty billion people. There just is not room for that many mouths on this little ball of mud.

But the figures themselves mean little or nothing to the average man. Fifty billion does not sound like too many more people than the three billion we have now, simply because both numbers are too large to have any real meaning. We think of millions of dollars and billions in the same breath, without realizing that a million dollars in $1,000 bills would make a wad eight inches thick, a billion would make a wad 667 feet thick.

The constant interchange of those thousand little courtesies which imperceptibly sweeten life, has a happy effect upon the features, and spreads a motley evening charm over the wrinkles of old age.—Washington Irving.

Nazis' Forgery Mill

Milwaukee Journal

In Block 19 of the Sachsenhausen concentration camp, just north of Berlin, a group of 40 or 50 inmates forked a double bliss every so often and performed one of the strangest assignments of the Second World War. They passed newly-printed British bank notes — of £5, £10, £20 and £50 denominations — up and down the lines, creasing them, rubbing them between their palms, dog earing some of the bills and piercing others with a pointed wire.

The purpose was to give the notes the look of wrinkled, respectable age — one the final process in the greatest counterfeiting operation of all time. Up to 400,000 separate British bank notes were turned out each month at the Sachsenhausen camp, of such superb quality that Swiss banks and even the Bank of England passed them as the real thing. More than £100,000,000 in bogus British currency was produced by the Nazis throughout the war. Some still is in circulation around the world, although the Nazis fell, since the war, have changed the size and color of their bank notes.

* * *

An English journalist, Anthony Pirie, tells the story of this fantastic scheme in "Operation Bernhard," which is available in book now. The book title was the code name for the counterfeiting project, taken from the first name of Bernhard Kruger, a lawyer, head of the forgery workshop of the Nazi security service and the man in charge of bank note production at Sachsenhausen.

The Nazis got the idea for "Operation Bernhard" late in 1939, early a few months after the start of the war. There were many problems. The main effort of the Nazi secret service concerned bill in the first place, for British notes were largely held to be forgery proof.

With Germanic thoroughness, the security service tackled the problem. Genuine £5 notes were sent to various chemists and technical colleges for analysis of the paper stock. It was found that the paper was made entirely from linen rags. A secret paper factory was set up near Berlin to duplicate the British stock.

Meanwhile, other genuine £5 notes were enlarged to 20 times their size, as models for the engravers. The seated figure of Britannia and the upper right-hand corner of the note gave them the most trouble in reproduction. The German agent seven months to get an engraving that matched the original, detail for detail, on a Model enlargement. Scrutiny under the microscope revealed this figure as a "bloody Britannia".

Block 19 at Sachsenhausen became a concentration camp within a concentration camp, with high wooden and barbed wire walls enclosing the complex. Twenty-four security officers were made on any person entering or leaving the secret paper factories. Only the top specialists of Berlin, Each skilled worker was watched by a secret agent, posing as a trainee.

Finally came the great moment — the test of the first £5 notes were printed, finished, eyes. An agent was sent to a Swiss bank where he asked help in deciding whether he had been given a batch of counterfeit British notes. The Swiss banker sent back a reply in three days — he notes unquestionably were genuine.

The agent still pretended to be uncertain — would the bank please check them? A report with the Bank of England, so he said, would be helpful. The Swiss bank replied that they already had. The German counterfeiters rubbed their hands gleefully.

The bank notes were separated into three grades of quality. The best went to the intelligence agents in enemy countries or in neutral countries, and diplomatic pouches. The second best went to the black market; or were paid to collaborators, and the third grade was spent on unimportant transactions. Careful lists of the were kept of serial numbers and other data.

Most of the currency was spent in occupied Europe. There, it was found, depended how much of it got to Britain itself. As the tide of war turned toward the Allies, more of it came involved in "Operation Bernhard." Some went to personal fortunes. In the last months of the war, Sachsenhausen inmates were paid in bills in lieu of British bank notes, but Pirie's book does not estimate how many were turned out.

Test Talks Safety Valve

Christian Science Monitor

We are glad to note that the United States still is willing to walk the second mile in the tedious East-West nuclear test ban talks.

Sir Michael Wright, who has led the British delegation in Geneva has arrived in Washington to find out if there is any Western position. His presence may help catalyze thinking on this much-pondered problem.

It is hard to imagine what new considerations, or what emphasis could be made, short of abandoning insistence on adequate inspection, that would elicit a fruitful response from the Soviet. Nevertheless, talks as these East-West talks often seem, they are keeping a valve for communication open.

They are one of the safety valves for international tension in an age of nuclear stalemate. That is why it is worthwhile to re-examine the Western position once again to make certain everything reasonable is being done to keep the valve from sticking.

Moreover, it would be dangerous to allow national thinking on this important issue to flow only in channels of assumed futility.

Negotiations of a successful ban depends, as always, on the good faith of both sides. So far, the Soviets have given little evidence of this.

Nevertheless, the continuing pressure of non-nuclear nations, the uncertain peril of a spread of nuclear weapons to some of these nations, and the shifting tides of international politics, are factors in the Soviet attitude toward a test ban as well as in that of the West.

Also, the technology of inspection is by no means without ground blasts, there are hopeful signs that this problem may not be quite as formidable as has been thought. The sticky issue of on-site inspection before a ban may yet be resolved to the satisfaction of both.

It is these elements of fluidity within the over-all test ban picture that make it important to think the Western position through carefully. One of the result is only a strengthened conviction that there is little new that can be said. Western negotiations will be able to go to Geneva after the recess knowing exactly what ground they stand upon and why.

Aid for Education

Ottawa Citizen

Among the other things that Ottawa, as a national capital, lacks is a zoo. Since a zoo has scientific and cultural value, could not the National Museum, or the National Art Gallery do it? The federal government could spend a little education in this way coaches conveyed the excursionists to Cobourg.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam J. Boldrick of Denison, Texas, spent yesterday here with friends.

Strictly Personal Research Into Pressing Need

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Following a recent article of mine on the need for basic educational research in the United States, I received an interesting manuscript from Paul H. Davis, a college consultant in California.

Davis points out that while we spend a half-billion dollars a year in industrial research — to compete with Russia, which has more than 1,000 men in chemical research — the physical sciences are not the only ones in need of study. As a result, our industrial progress is enormous, compared with theirs.

But in educational research, the opposite is true. "We in America," says Davis, "have but little educational research where teams with men of many different disciplines work together, exploring the nature of learning and teaching."

Russia, he tells us, has a enormous educational research system, centralized in the Academy of Pedagogical Sciences, with its eight institutes in Moscow and many branches throughout the Soviet Republics. These institutes pick the best men in the country, and have no budget problems.

"Clearly the Soviets are focusing thousands of quality men and unlimited funds on educational research," Davis observes. "They have over 45 experimental schools for testing and perfecting innovations and inventions."

He then quotes a Ken State University professor as criticizing our educational needs: "We need more male teaching at the elementary and secondary level, higher standards for both teachers and students, many more school buildings, better salaries for our teachers, but far more important than any such needs, we need educational research."

By educational research is meant "five years of depth, both empirical and rational conducted at many institutions, staffed with competent men and diverse disciplines — psychologists, physicists, mathematicians, physicists, chemists, biologists, neurologists, and educators."

The method of organization, he suggests, would draw heavily on the methods used by our land-grant colleges, where a trilogy of researchers, students and county agents have revolutionized our entire agricultural industry at the front of the world."

We still know so little about the learning process that many of our notions about schools are virtually wasted. The Russians recognize that the investment in brains and learning is the surest and most permanent way to achieve national progress. We spend extraordinary sums on classrooms, laboratories, libraries and gymnasiums — but the processes and goals of education, themselves, are defined or well understood. We should run our schools at least as sensibly as Union Carbide runs its business.

Need Gall Bladder To Eat Poly-unsaturated Fats

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had my gall bladder removed a few years ago and was told not to eat any fat or bran foods.

However, I would like to know if the new poly-unsaturated fats would have the same detrimental effects? — Mrs. H.

Removal of the gall bladder takes away a necessity in which we store a extra supply of bile — a digestive juice from the liver. With the gall bladder absent, we still get bile from the liver, but we can't save a reserve supply for use in some special moment of need.

Bile is especially necessary for digesting fats. Some of us, because of individual variations, or differences in taste and habitual diet, eat normally whether the gall bladder is still with us or has been removed.

Others, after gall bladder removal, may find it more comfortable to eat less fat, and to avoid fried foods. That's about the whole story.

Now what about "animal fats" and "poly-unsaturated fats." Both are fats, but they differ in digestion of either type. There may be some practical difference as to which type of fat needs more bile, but if so it has not been called to my attention.

Rather, the scientific question is that animal fats in excess quantities may be detrimental, over a period of some years, to the arteries, and result in our prosperous part of the world, in hardening. This has come used to diets rather high in animal fats, which are the expensive ones.

Maybe, so current thinking goes, we should switch over in the long run to reduce our costly animal fats and substitute the vegetable fats and poly-unsaturated oils. I think the accumulated evidence does not bear this out.

But it is for the sake of our gall bladders that I write you.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that if a girl doesn't have the three-day measles in childhood, there is a danger that she will be unable to have children later in life — in other words, that having three-day measles give some sort of immunity? I'm confused.

I can see why you're confused.

The real facts are these: Having three-day measles (also known as German measles, or rubella) in first three months of pregnancy does increase the risk of various deformities in the baby.

Having three-day measles in childhood does help to prevent deformity if a pregnancy occurs, against having the disease in pregnancy. Since practically it is a mild disease otherwise, some people expose young girls to three-day measles deliberately, which is not without logic. (Re-searchers may not yet have been able to get a vaccine against three-day measles.)

Note to T.R.: No, I don't see any general harm in taking one sleeping pill per night, if you need it. But I most sincerely urge you to make your part to learn to control or combat the "nerves," because sometimes people begin telling themselves that on special occasions they "ought" to have an extra pill. Two pills lead to three, and so on. One sleeping pill is certainly better for us, physically, than two-and drinking sleeplessness. But it's still better to learn to sleep without the pill.

Of all the problems that pediatricians encounter in children, insomnia is the commonest. I'll learn the newest methods of treatment for this pest, write for the booklet, "The Commonest Pest, Pinworm," enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover handling. Write to Dr. Molner to The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 136, Dundas, Ill.

Older Houses Hard to Sell

St Catharines Standard

The problem of the older home is not confined to individuals, and all communities have to face up to it. How hard to sell — and it often becomes the seed of urban decay and blight.

The chairman of the royal commission on banking and finance, Dana Wilgress Porter, recently pointed out that some people have real difficulty getting their money out of older houses because potential buyers cannot obtain sufficient financing So the potential buyer prefers to buy or build a new house, usually in the suburbs, for which financing is generally available on low down payments

The other course is that the potential buyer is someone who buys the old house as an investment, and secures financing, and turns it into apartments or rooming houses. In some cases — certainly not all — this is the first step towards decay.

Chief Justic Porter suggested at the hearings that there was a "well worth while" if mortgages were made available more freely for the purchase of older houses

The suggestion was not viewed with enthusiasm by an officer of one of the major insurance companies—and by the insurance industry which controls much mortgage money and, in 1961, held 44 per cent of all residential mortgages in Canada. He objected to lending private funds into "used houses" when there is the amount available for new housing, and this, he said, means employment and income in Canada.

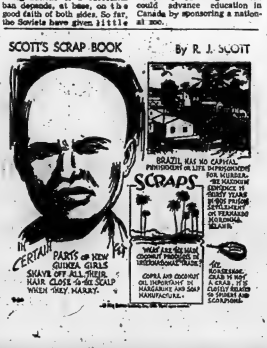
The Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association is now, however, suggest that if NHA loans are extended to "older houses" — and isn't that a terrible expression! — they should be restricted to bona fide purchasers who intend to live in the house, as suggested in the case of the 80 per cent of the selling price, which is a lot more than can be obtained on a house without normal mortgage sources.

It is quite right that life insurance official said, that diverting mortgage money to older homes would cut down the amount available for new homes. It might, therefore, slow down employment. But isn't there a limit to the number of new homes any community can build, unless it is growing at a rapid pace? Should suburbs spread out as homes be built, simply because the money is easy to obtain? Should suburbs spread without a virtue in itself?

The move out to the suburbs, which is spurred by easier money, leaves behind it neighborhoods, perhaps not all serious now, can be tragic later. Many of the finest homes in the older residential areas, gradually become sub-standard. Before long they become blighted areas, and then we soon hear talk of urban renewal plans — for which both public and private funds are required. Possibly the problem could be eased if it were easier for people to buy, live in, and properly maintain the older homes.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK



People with ideas have no respect at all for the sanctity or privacy of the ignorant. Somebody is always bolting up new and disturbing ideas which, thanks to the devastating impact of radio and TV, are made acceptable to the most ignorant of people can hardly escape.

It is, in a sense, an invasion of privacy. The ignorant are free to preserve his ignorance if he is happy in it. Some of the happiest mortals I have ever known were the most ignorant. And they weren't all hillbillies back in the bush, either, in fact, I have known professors and lecturers in universities who knew everything about something and nothing about everything else to such an extent that they were massive in their ignorance. A happier man you could hardly imagine. Because of their wisdom in one field of knowledge, they were respected and well rewarded. They wore with assurance and urbanity of the intellectual. Indeed, they were a little lofty.

But they didn't know one fish from another. They could identify a .22 calibre from a .45. A tree was a tree, and the first that it was a particular kind of tree was of no matter to them. If they walked in the woods, they saw nothing but the place to put their foot n[illegible] inoranemes, completely and utterly impervious to an idea such as an orchid or a glowing gorgeous fox snake.

Traders' interest in the stock was somewhat dampened following disclosure that the company had been asked to look into the manner in which the frenzied trading in the stock was started and that information on the company's copper find was released. New Rabbit Freeze-Pack Plant To Operate Near Cherry Valley

PICTON — Prince Edward County is to have a new industry and it is a pioneer one in Canada.

Flo-Freeze Rabbit Industries Ltd. is the name of the industry and it will specialize in rabbits for Canadians to enjoy a delicacy in quick-frozen rabbit meat, with the whole rabbit and whole for roasting. It is planned to also sell it over the counter in the fresh stage.

Willard Eves is president of the new venture, with Winston C. Hicks as vice-president, Howard Mallett as secretary-treasurer, and H. J. McFarland and Dr. Robert Clapp, directors.

Work has commenced on a packing plant, on Mr. Eves' farm, about one mile west of Cherry Valley. It will be a 44 x 56 foot building on concrete block construction, following plans approved by the Department of Agriculture.

It will be equipped with the latest type of equipment for freezing and packaging and it is hoped to start production in September.

When in operation it will be government inspected and produce such plant under Federal supervision.

As to the price of rabbit meat, Mr. Eves states that in stores, prices usually run with the round steak class. "It may take some time to educate the public to eat rabbit meat; but we feel that once tried, there will be a growing market, as few meats are more delicious', Mr. Eves said.

The plant is designed to process 2,000 rabbits in an eight-hour shift, but if we hit 2,000 rabbits a day, we will be well satisfied, Mr. Eves said. "When we get up to 5,000 rabbits a week, we will have about 15 persons employed".

Two special breeds of rabbits will be raised for the industry. They are New Zealand White and Californians, which are large, meaty animals.

Mr. Eves has six hundred of these at his farm. Since it is not possible for him to produce a sufficient supply, there will be contracts for those interested in raising rabbits for the firm. This can be done on a part-time or a full-time basis and offers an opportunity for many in the county. They will be glad to meet anyone interested, Mr. Eves said.

The industry fulfills a long time dream for Mr. Eves. He has worked on the project for several years and is confident that it can be made a great success. He has visited rabbit packing plants in the United States and said between 50 and 60 million pounds of rabbit are packed annually in that country. It is hoped to see Canadians enjoy rabbit meat in various forms, as much as it is enjoyed in several other countries.

Will Begin Fluoridation On July 1st

PICTON — With no organized opposition in sight, it appears that fluoridation of the town's water supply will begin on July 31. A petition with ten per cent of the names of voters is required in order to force a vote on the matter, under the Fluoridation Act.

The matter was discussed by town council seven months ago, with members being in favor. Since that time, there has been practically no discussion of the topic and Deputy-Town Clerk, Harold McLoughlin stated yesterday that no petition to force a vote has been received.

Councillor Robert Walmsley, chairman of a committee which brought in a report of the resolution, stated that in the eventuality that a petition is presented, he would personally introduce a motion to amend the bylaw which was passed until a vote could be taken.

The report gave strong reasons for action as a health measure and the rising incidence of dental decay.

Picton Public Utilities estimated the cost of necessary equipment as $4,000 to $5,000. The continuous cost of adding the compound varies with the extent of the fluoride compound used but would probably be in the range from ten to fifteen cents per person per year or around $800 in Picton.

Strike Forces Truck Branch To Close

PICTON — The recent strike by the Teamsters' Union, which held up a great part of Ontario's trucking industry for six weeks, is given as the cause of Argosy Carriers Ltd. leaving Picton. Increase in wages makes it economically impossible to continue operations in Picton. Starting on July 23, the firm will service Picton district from its Belleville office, the company stated yesterday afternoon. The local staff, which was forced to go on strike, will be kept on but eventually, it is said, Belleville Art Dearman has been named as manager of the combined operations and will continue to reside in Picton.

Will Construct New Building For Bank

PICTON — Plans are now under way for the construction of a new building to house the Bank of Nova Scotia in Picton. It was announced yesterday that on August 20, the bank will move to the former brewers' warehouse on Bosa Street while the present building on Main Street is demolished and a modern structure erected. It is expected to be completed early in 1963. The former warehouse is being remodelled at a cost of $20,000 to meet insurance standards and specifications. Contract for the work has been awarded to the McFarland Construction Company, L. G. Allan is the manager of the branch.

Speedboat Events Planned

PICTON — Speed and more speed appears to be in the offing for the coming fans. Entries are coming in for the International outboard regatta being held on Sunday, Aug. 5, on the Harmsworth race site, east of Picton. This event is sponsored by the Prince Edward Yacht Club and succeeds the Harmsworth race. One of the features is a marathon.

A second speed boat event will be the 1962 Canadian stock outboards championships to be held on August 26, on North Bay, near Consecon. These are sponsored by Picton Outboard Club. Hillier township council, which recently took over the beach as a supervised park, has promised co-operation.

Hillier council on Tuesday night discussed final details in regard to agreement with taking over the beach from the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. The department is to be asked to make a change to permit overnight camping there. There will be a charge for use of the beach in order to cover costs of erecting sanitary facilities, cleaning groups and general upkeep. The beach has been over the popular holiday spot followed misuse of the facilities by a section of the public.

Grass Fire Sweeps Over Several Acres

PICTON — Lightning is believed responsible for a grass fire which swept over several acres on the farm of John Jones, near Demorestville, on Wednesday night. Softball players, along with many local residents, raced to the scene and battled two hours before the outbreak was controlled. Adding fury to the fire were evergreen trees which burned with a giant puff. Halls were rolled on the grass to form an effective barrier.

Women Must Not Put Career Before Marriage Says Wife Of Business Executive

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Jeannine Beaubien, wife of a Montreal business executive and a mother of four who has a "36-hour-a-day career" in the theatre, has no sympathy with women who "keep their noses in all day" but somehow still don't keep their minds alive.

Wife of Aluminum Company of Canada's vice - president Claude Beaubien, she is perhaps better known in Montreal for founding one of Canada's most successful theatres.

Five years ago she dinned behind it and is currently rushing for a fifth anniversary production of James Thurber plays).

CHILD ACTRESS

"I got caught up in a full time job," says Mrs. Beaubien, who has spent the last three years of hard work she would like to forget sometimes to take over her executive tasks. "It's like running a company, without company."

Mrs. Beaubien's qualifications run at night, but work goes on all day. The hours for the arts will prevent her from wandering too far from the theatre.

An amateur actress herself, she was in her own words "born when she was seven. Since then she has "experienced every facet of the arts, studying painting, designing, music, ballet and ceramics, but my greatest music and accomplished pianist, she organized her first concerts at La Poudriere.

Before her marriage Mrs. Beaubien was active in Montreal amateur theatre and she was placed secretary of the La Poudriere," productions. Two years ago she became the first Canadian woman to receive fellowship from the London Royal Society of Arts.

FAMILY COMES FIRST

The attractive hazel - eyed brunette has series to "work in the theatre around her personal life." Her first duties are to her husband and his work and her family — three boys and a girl. An executive's day can't divorce herself from his business, "unless she wants to divorce her husband."

But she admitted there were times when the theatre came first. She recalled an incident when she was entertaining 16 guests for dinner and an emergency call came from the theatre. Half an hour before curtain time an actress had been taken to hospital with appendicitis. Just as dinner was to be served, Mrs. Beaubien fled from the scene and took the part of a 17-year-old girl in the play.

She believes women should not put a career before marriage, but women who tie themselves completely to the home are "absolutely terrible." This attitude she believes is detrimental to modern family life. "A woman can fill her life with so many aspects."

The Experts Say

Salad Dishes Provide Healthy Summer Meals

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP) — The average person's nutrition requirements do not change from winter to summer, says Mrs. Ann Bodley, nutrition director for the Milk Foundation of Toronto.

In fact, additional calories were often needed because of increased physical activity during summer months.

This did not mean hours of slaving over a kitchen stove for the homemaker. Summer is the season she can spend a minimum amount of time in the kitchen yet be imaginative with the great variety of fresh fruits and vegetables available for salads, Mrs. Bodley advises.

A meat or dairy product served with a fresh salad provided all the necessary protein for good eating.

Casseroles made with a protein base of meat, fish or cheese were excellent for providing variety from the usual meal.

They could be made in the cool of the morning, refrigerated and then popped in the oven an hour before serving.

An easy and tasty casserole Mrs. Bodley recommends is made as follows: Mould 1½ pounds hamburger into a loaf and freeze; pour one can spaghetti, one car Italian - type spaghetti sauce and one can mushrooms over meat and put in oven. It takes from 1½ to two hours for the meatloaf to thaw and cook.

Hot meals are "purely habit," not a necessity during summer months although they do create variety, she says.

Sandwiches, especially those made with protein fillings such as cheese, meat, fish and egg were nutritious and also excellent for variety.

"There is no more reason to be in breakfast - skipper in summer than in winter."

Minimum breakfast requirement would be fruit or juice, cereal with milk, and whole grain toast.

"We all have a sweet tooth, but cakes, pastries, potato chips and gooey desserts are non-essential. These have their place, but only after other good foods and if the waistline will permit."

Ready - prepared drinks are often thought of as standard fare for summer, but imaginative drinks which can be made with a milk base are far more satisfying, says Mrs. Bodley.

Soft drinks only provide "empty calories," that is, calories but no other nutrients.

"Butteroot" is made by mixing equal portions of buttermilk and apricot nectar.

To make "grape frost," mix equal portions of buttermilk and grape juice and top with a scoop of ice cream.

"Lime refresher" has two tablespoons of lime concentrate in one cup milk. For "ginger pear ade," combine one - half cup milk, one - quarter cup of sugar and a pinch of salt. Add two pints of lime sherbert just before serving. The recipe makes 20 half - cup servings.

French Beach Fashions 'Are In Man's World'

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — It's a man's world in the newest French beach fashions.

The boyish look emerges as the outstanding trend for the inside - the - ankle bathing suits during the vacation months.

Girls look like counterparts of cowboys in low-slung "frontier" pants, tea-paloon hats, and Sam Brown belts, or like counterparts of men in the 1900 Maxe Sennett bather shop gatherings, wearing long-legged, one-piece, striped bathing suits with short horizontals haircuts.

SUSPENDERS YET

The former Dior designer launched sombrero hats, suspenders, triangular kerchiefs knotted on one shoulder, and low - waisted trousers and skirts. A new fad was born. Sportswear creators immediately developed St. Laurent's original theme, and set the stage for the entrance of thousands of European "cowgirls."

Even the fashion in female figures is changing.

Girls with curves a la Brigitte Bardot are considered unfashionable this summer as the girls with boyish figures. The new "ideal" figure has small flat bosoms, no hips and long straight legs.

At St. Tropez and along the Cote d'Azur, women are wearing hip pants and abbreviated brassiere bodices which leave a wide expanse of bare midriff exposed.

FILM INSPIRATION

The second leading trend among these "Eves in Adam" fashions is the 1900 theme, inspired by the current French film, Jules and Jim, The film's star, Jeanne Moreau, is largely responsible for the popularity of fashions that take their inspiration from the turn of the century.

QUESTION:

Do you have a recipe for canning prepared cherry pie filling? I tried your raspberry pie filling last summer and it was very good. I generally buy the 20 lb. pails of cherries for freezing and would like to try a pie filling recipe, if available. Also, does the oven, please, if I melt butter in my cake pan with a cherry pie filling upside-down cake come out of the pan O.K.? I tried one today near butter and had to spoon the hot filling out. I just greased the cake pan as far as ordinary cake — but it tasted very good . . . Eileen Y.

ANSWER:

The cherry pie filling is based on the same method as the raspberry pie filling given in July 1960 which you used. I have made the necessary changes as follows:

1 cup water, 1 to 1¼ cups sugar, 2 tbsp. (2 tablespoons) quick-cooking tapioca, ¼ teaspoon salt, red food coloring (optional).

Heat oven to 375 deg. Fahr., having bottom turner on only. Soak tapioca in the water for 5 minutes. Then add the sugar (amount depends on your sweet tooth) and salt and in a large saucepan bring to boiling point, stirring. Add the pitted cherries and red coloring. If used and bring to full rolling boil, stirring. Pour into sterilized quart (32-oz.) jars, filling them full. Seal to within ½ inch of light. If spring-top jars are used do not lower clamp. Stand jars on pan without water 2" apart. Put pan catcher juice which bubbles out of jars while being processed in oven. Process in oven at 375 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes. Pan containing jars should be on a low rack in the oven. When processing time is up open oven door and let jars remain in oven until bubbling has stopped — about 10 minutes. Remove carefully and tighten seal. Do not invert jars to cool. Disregard and discard juice in pan. When jars are cold carefully wash them without disturbing seal. Jars are not quite full.

NOTE:

Do not be tempted to substitute cornstarch for tapioca. Yes, melt 2 or 3 tablespoons butter in bottom of baking dish before turning in cherry pie filling. When upside down cake is baked, loosen sides with knife, invert on large serving dish and allow to rest for 2 or 3 minutes to let all of the syrup run out of pan over cake. Then lift off pan.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Ada C. — I don't want her to help me so much, but she insists.

Mrs. F.C. — Nothing's too much for me when it comes to my son's family.

* * *

Ada C. — If you want to know what the expression "to kill someone with kindness" means, you should watch my mother-in-law. She insists on babysitting for us, even when we don't want to go out! She's over at our home more than at her two daughters'. We can well afford a paid baby-sitter. Her overexperience puts me in an embarrassing spot.

In the first place, she seems to upset our children when she takes charge. They become wild and unruly. We'd much rather have a "professional" in charge. But there's another problem. Mother C. swoops. And then later she talks to others about my housekeeping. I find closets disarranged, jewelry and personal belongings disturbed. Her remarks about me have come back to me. Frankly this area of our home is none of her business.

* * *

Mrs. F.C. — I'm not hurt by Ada's criticism. She talks that way because she doesn't know the difference between having a stranger around and a loving, loyal member of the family. Once she tries the professionals she wants, she'll be only too glad to accept my devotion.

My daughters don't need much help. Their children are older than Ada's, and Sam's. And I'm sure Ada's children are better off with me than with a teenager who watches clock and count-up the dollars. The children are used to me, Ada can even plan a long trip with Sam, and have no worries.

As for snooping, that's ridiculous. I admit that when I'm chilly, I go to the closet for a sweater. And if I see that Ada has something new, I'm delighted. A stranger, on the other hand, would be envious.

* * *

The Council: What's causing the trouble here? Is Mrs. C's lack of respect toward her son and daughter-in-law. She is treating them like pawns in a chess game, moveable at will until stalemated. And it's Ada who's now calling, "Stalemate," to end Mrs. C.'s advantage.

Hiring an outsider to babysit would offer certain benefits for Ada, not now available. She could apply lock and key wherever she wished (except on refrigerator and television set!) and no explanations needed. She'd have more privacy. In her absence she'd have peace of mind leaving a trustworthy person in charge of a businesslike job — even to the point of scheduling her time. She could tell a youngster who confesses from a bad dream: And if persistent, the youngster should stray to a buffet and rummage, or to a closet and settle, said employee is most unlikely to talk. Keep mum about Ada's boo-boos in the purchasing department.

Not so, Mrs. C. Seeing a new coat in the front closet, won't be said, "What happened to last year's tweed?" Won't she be tempted to add, "I could have used it"? A possessive mother can't help passing judgment at every turn, whether it's child-raising, use of spare time or expenditure of money. Nobody asks her. At times they might like to. She's no slouch. But nobody gets a chance to express his or her preference. She proceeds as though "Mother Knows Best" is Article 1 of The Constitution.

This relationship has enough rich ingredients, however, to rise into a delicious one, with better measuring and balancing. For Mrs C., the measuring still includes a large amount of holding back, or restraint. What you, Mrs. C., have conceived of as kindness, Ada finds oppressive. Your attitude toward her possessions, as well as her children disturbs her. You are nosy and inconsiderate about the former, too lenient and emotional with the latter. So, continue your laudable willingness, but play hard to get for a while. And when you appear, regard Ada as a grateful handed-down, not as an irresponsible child you must set straight.

MAIL CALL

Question: I would appreciate your advice about the following incident. A Mother's Day program was held by a club made up of young women, to which members of members were invited as guests. The program took the place of the group's regular monthly meeting.

Usually, at each monthly meeting, a plate is passed among the girls, and the money deposited in the treasury. As the mothers of the girls were our guests, I felt it was not correct to pass the plate in front of them. Don't you agree? — Mrs. J.G., Fairview, N.J.

Answer: Passing the plate on such an occasion might seem like an invitation to guests to make a contribution. A box marked "Members' Donations" placed near the doorway, would be a more inconspicuous way of collecting fees when outsiders are invited to take part in a club program.

Question: When someone compliments a woman on her appearance, should she say "thank you," or "but aren't we acknowledgment? I get flustered when this happens, and while I want to show that the compliment is appreciated, I don't want to give the impression of being gushy or overwhelmed.

Answer: It's always polite to say "thank you" when someone gives you something. A compliment may graciously be acknowledged the same way.

Question: When attending a dinner or a reception being given for someone, is it necessary to stay until the honored guest leaves? My husband and I went to dinner at a friend's to meet her visiting aunt, who seemed tireless. After midnight, we finally had to leave. I hope we didn't offend anyone, but we had a baby-sitter to consider, and we want to stay in her good graces, too. — Mrs. S.C.R., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: If a guest has to leave before a party officially breaks up, it should be done quietly and with a short, but gracious, apology to the hostess. It's better manners to wait until the guest of honor departs, but if he or she doesn't make a move to do so after a decent interval, it's permissible for others to leave, but without attracting attention.

Wife Preservers

Encourage your youngsters to help with the housework by giving them differing jobs and times which seem important. For instance, let Suzie turn the percolator instead of always setting the table.

How Should The Groom Reply?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: — Could you please publish in your column an example of the groom's reply to the toast to his bride?—GROOM-TO-BE.

DEAR GROOM-TO-BE — Well, how about this:

"I agree heartily with what Mr. Brown has said. I think Mary is the nicest girl in the world, and I know I'm lucky.

"The night she said 'yes' to me I walked home on air and I haven't hit the ground since." Hope I never do!

"I want to thank all of you for coming and helping us celebrate today. We are grateful for the beautiful gifts you have given us to help set up housekeeping. Between you and me I'm something of a cook myself, and I'm going to share in the fun of using those interesting kitchen gadgets and fine table silver as well as all the other gifts which will constantly remind us of your good wishes.

"We want to say a special thanks to Mary's parents for providing this lovely wedding. Also I am grateful to my own father and mother for their encouragement and help.

"When we move into our own little love nest, we want you all to come and see us. Perhaps I won't find it quite so hard to know what to say then as I am finding it right now."

(Tell a joke. Relate an incident. Make it personal and sit down soon).

Sunday School Lesson

When Is Man Patriotic?

By ROY L. SMITH

For the man who truly loves his country there comes times when it is an extremely difficult thing to know what is, and what is not, patriotic.

It is easy to join the crowd, carry the flag, burn the torches, vote the party ticket straight, and be a part of the majority. There is something just a bit comfortable about being on the popular side, avoiding criticism, being free from persecution, and side-stepping the difficult arguments.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for July 22, "JEREMIAH DISCOURAGES FALSE PATRIOTISM," Jeremiah 18, through 19: 20; 1-2; 27 through 28; 37; 38: 1-6.

But are these things always right? Is it not true that the man who serves his country best is the one who speaks the truth about it, seeks to correct the wrongs within it, and who seeks to deserve the help of God in solving the nation's problems?

IS HE A PATRIOT?

Is that man a patriot who, because he hates his country's enemy, shuts his eyes to the evil that flourishes under the protection of his flag? Is that man a patriot who refuses to face the facts, believing that God is under some kind of obligation to him and his countrymen?

AN OLD FASHIONED PATRIOT

As a young man, the Hebrew prophet Jeremiah felt the call to perform in the prophetic office, and quite understandably cringed at the thought. Those were difficult and terrifying days.

The Babylonian armies were riding from one triumph to another. The Babylonian king had a grandiose scheme for bringing all the Middle East into subjection, defying and defeating Egypt and living off the spoils of the world.

The little Palestinian states had been brought under the wheel, one by one and only Judah remained free. No one knew better than Jeremiah did that any promises of help from Egypt were no better than an illusion. In warning the nation he said, "Pharaoh is a big noise."

In view of the fact the situation presented the nation with a grim choice — rebellion or death — Jeremiah pled with the government and the people to save themselves by accepting the Babylonian yoke.

It would have been so much more pleasant to have assured the nation that Jehovah would come in their defense once again. But in all honesty the young prophet could not believe that could happen. To him it seemed inescapably plain that nothing but dreadful doom could be won by rebelling, setting up alliances, and going to war against the unseen odds. Better by far, he assured his countrymen, to surrender than to die.

It was perfectly clear to Jeremiah that a nation guilty of such sins as his entangled the Hebrews had but one hope of escape from the foes by which it was surrounded. God could not come to the assistance of an evil nation. Therefore Judah had to clean up her own backyard. She had to repent of her adulteries, make right her social wrongs, and present herself before God a penitent and cleaned nation.

The best defence of our American democracy is a revelation of our democratic policies, that will bring them into harmony with the will of God.

It is hard to sing "God bless America" if we are thinking of our crowded divorce courts, our army of juvenile hoodlums, the army of seven million chronic and helpless alcoholics, the multitudes of little children who are shut off from a fair chance at an education, the corrupt political machines that govern city after city, the blighted slum areas of our great cities, the incredible sums that are being spent for the trip to the moon while millions walk the streets unable to get employment.

The nation's best defence is to open the doors of opportunity so that there need never again be any second class citizens, to restrain the liquor traffic that is intent on creating any army of ten million alcoholics, lay down a line to the cigarette manufacturers and say "No Further!"

Any nation's strength consists of that inner strength that arises from character and self-discipline.

MINERS ON STRIKE

HARLAN, Ky. (AP)—Approximately 200 coal miners are on strike at 17 mines in Harlan County, in a dispute over vacation pay. Many of the mines are truck operations. A United Mine Workers spokesman said the men refused to work because the companies "failed to pay for vacations this year and have attempted to reduce wages."

Trudeau Equipment Appointed J.I. Case Distributor for Eastern Ontario District

On June 21st, the J. I. Case Company announced the appointment of Trudeau Equipment as exclusive distributor for their entire line of wheel and track machines. This distributorship includes a full range of dozers, loaders, backhoes, and earth movers in both light and heavy lines of industrial and utility models.

Trudeau's will sell and service the J. I. Case line of machinery. They have been handling this line for the past four years from their location on the Foxboro Road and have, during that time, gained considerable knowledge in product and the marketing of it.

Trudeau Equipment is owned and operated by Trudeau Motors Limited, but is kept completely separated from the automobile business. An entirely separate location and specially trained personnel makes Trudeau Equipment a single unit. The majority of their personnel have been specially trained at the J. I. Case Factory in Racine, Wisconsin, U.S. Their shop is equipped with all the necessary and latest tools and equipment as necessary to analyze and repair all types of diesels and hydraulic machines.

The shop is supported by a complete stock of industrial and agricultural parts, sufficient to make immediate repairs to any machines.

The service department is supplemented by a mobile service unit which is equipped with special tools and testing equipment to make on-the-spot repairs which may often be many miles from the repair shop. This type of service which is offered by Trudeau Equipment is considered to be of great value to the operator in avoiding or at least minimizing down time.

Trudeau Equipment also operates a fleet service. This enables them to offer immediate delivery of any size of machine from the factory to dealer and from the dealer to the customer. The sale it permits the same service for a quick, economical servicing and repairs.

From the Belleville location Trudeau's also sell their service a full line of J. I. Case drilling, baying and harvesting machines, as well as many miscellaneous items. From this location the complete line of Land Rover four-wheel drive units are handled. Trudeau's also carry a large stock of Land Rover parts for quick delivery.

The company also handles an additional line of hydraulically operated equipment manufactured by the Atlas Polar Company in Toronto. This equipment is sold under the trade name of Hiab. This Hiab unit is especially desired by operators who have loading jobs in lumbering camps, bush areas, or by building contractors.

On June 21st, the J. I. Case Company made Trudeau Equipment its exclusive distributor for all of Eastern Ontario, including Ottawa, and a portion of Quebec province. This appointment has prompted Trudeau Equipment to expand to an additional location. This new location is conveniently located in Ottawa, at 1174 Heron Road. This location is also operated as a single unit of the Equipment business. Trudeau Equipment in Ottawa has probably the best equipped service shop in the business. A few of their repair machines include heavy lathes, electric arc and acetylene welders, hydraulic presses, power saws, gauges, jigs, and complete steam cleaning and painting booths.

This equipment will enable Trudeau's to do any type of repair to any make or model of gas or diesel equipment. Trudeau Equipment in Ottawa is also equipped with a mobile unit which is available, on call, for on-the-spot repairs.

Trudeau Equipment is looking forward to extensive development in both the Belleville and Ottawa areas. In Belleville, the firm is operated by N. R. Elston, manager; Bruce Brindle, service manager; Lyle Mater, parts manager; plus fifteen employees consisting of agricultural and industrial salesmen, mechanics, and float operator.

The newly formed Ottawa division has as its manager A. L. Trudeau; Mr. Pilot, parts manager, and Mr. Collier, service manager, plus salesmen, mechanics, and truck operators.

Trudeau Equipment feels that they are now equipped and ready to offer the public the best line of machines, the best deals, and the most efficient service in the business.

Trudeau's extends an invitation to the public to come in and inspect their new location, inspect their operations, and talk over future J. I. Case Equipment needs.

Polio Increase Causes Rush For Vaccine

HULL, Que. (CP)—Hundreds of Hull-area residents are flocking to clinics for doses of Sabin oral polio vaccine as the district's polio case count for the year has climbed to 10.

Provincial health unit officials reported confirmation of two new cases Wednesday, both involving three-year-old boys who were sent to a Montreal hospital with suspected polio.

The 10 cases of paralytic polio are compare with only one this year in Ottawa, across the river.

Neither of the two youngsters had been given Salk vaccine shots. None of the eight cases reported earlier had been immunized by the Salk vaccine.

Biggest Radio Telescope Obsolete Before Finished

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's biggest movable radio telescope has been declared obsolete even before it could take its first sounding in space.

In junking the project Wednesday the defence department cited rising costs as well as rapid advances in space technology.

Provincial health unit officials reported confirmation of two new cases Wednesday, both involving three-year-old boys who were sent to a Montreal hospital with suspected polio.

Since 1958, the government had spent $41,700,000 of the $126,200,000 voted by Congress for the research station at Sugar Grove, W. Va.

Construction progress to the point where access roads were built in remote areas, the site graded and the turntable completed.

The telescope, standing 700 feet high and weighing 50,000 tons, was to listen for signals from any life on other worlds.

Unable also as radar, the 600-foot dish-ile antenna, was to be capable of mapping the surface of the moon, bounce signals off Mars and Jupiter and explore outer space in preparation for deep space probe experiments.

Defence Secretary McNamara decided to halt construction after an intensive study determined that the need for certain research "had been substantially reduced by major advances in science and technology."

REVOKES MEASURES

ATHENS (AP)—A series of emergency measures decreed during Greece's 1946-49 war against Communist rebels, including a provision for search without warrant, was revoked Wednesday by a legislative committee acting for the recessed parliament. A ban on the Communist party, however, was retained.

Last Street-Piano Builder In England Suggests One As Perfect Gift for a Man

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP)—Give him a barrel-organ for Christmas.

Canadian-born publisher Lord Beaverbrook received one for his recent 83rd birthday. The late King Feisal of Iraq bought one for his wife. The Countess of Darnley ordered one for her drawing room.

Antonio Tomasso, the last street-piano builder in England, supplied all three instruments and suggests them as the perfect gift for the man who has everything.

Tomasso repairs jewelry for his bread and butter, but his real love lies among the squalky pianos that crowd the back of his North London shop.

He occasionally builds a street-piano from scratch, but usually compiles it from parts salvaged from a series of aged wrecks. Then he builds in whatever 10 tunes the buyer wants, and sells the result for £400.

'DEAD BUSINESS'

"It's really a dead business," Tomasso said sadly, "I only keep it up because I love it."

Tomasso, 50, stands at the end of a long line of street-piano manufacturers starting with Italian relatives 130 years ago. His grandfather set up shop in London in 1860, and his father continued the art until his death 10 years ago.

Tomasso makes a careful distinction between barrel-organs—which are wind instruments using reeds and which are truly extinct — and his products which are properly known as street-pianos.

The street-piano has a limited range—only 40 notes compared with an ordinary piano's 88—and has only three sharps and three bass strings. Selections must be re-scored into simpler keys, and necessary remaining "black notes" must be dealt with by a process Tomasso affectionately calls "faking."

Some street-pianos look and sound like concert grands, but the typical version is smaller and sounds tinnier. Hammers are activated by steel pins placed around a drum which is turned by a crank, as in a giant music box.

Tomasso bent forward and started to turn the crank. He smiled broadly as the metallic music filled the shop and spilled into the street. Once or twice he winced, and shouted above the din:

"See? That's where I had to fake a bit."

After the First World War, street pianos cost about £50, and were common in London. Now they are rare and expensive, and have become toys of the reminiscent rich.

BUILDS STREET PIANOS — Jeweller Antonio Tomasso, 59, still builds street pianos in his London, England, shop, a trade practised by his family for 150 years. The pianos, selling for £400, play about 10 tunes and are described by Tomasso as the perfect gift for the man who has everything. — (CP Photo).

U.S. Govt. Extends 'Dry' Help Program

NEW YORK (AP)—As the federal government moved to extend its emergency drought program benefits to 67 counties in three north - eastern states, a New Jersey farmer looked down on his six-inch-tall corn and remarked:

"They can send men around the moon, but they can't make it rain."

The farmer, Edward Cuesa, raised his hand by his chin to show how high the row of corn on his Hunterdon County farm should be by now.

"It's bad," he said. "I've never seen it any worse."

Hunterdon is one of five counties in New Jersey to which Agriculture Secretary Freeman extended federal drought program benefits Wednesday.

Freeman made similar declarations for 34 counties in New York and 18 additional in Pennsylvania. Last week he had extended this aid to 32 other counties of Pennsylvania. Three other counties in New Jersey were named for such aid previously.

Performance

Rated tops, with choice of V-8 or 6 cylinder engines ranging to 225 H.P. Widest selection of transmissions—standard, automatic, four-speed floor shift and overdrive. Chosen by many police forces and cab companies.

Comfort

Proved to have more interior room than any other domestic "family" car. Well shaped, firm seats reduce travel fatigue. Greatest headroom. Easy entry and exit. Driving position and visibility considered excellent.

Reliability

Proved Lark to be rattle-free, weather-tight, quiet running. Unique, full-frame design provides excellent rigidity. Engines rated dependable and trouble-free. Victory in First Trans-Canada Rally proved Lark's reliability.

Economy

Careful consideration of gas mileage, low maintenance requirements, overall reliability of car, low cost of repairs, hail-on fenders and Canada-wide service facilities earned Lark top honours as a most economical car to operate.

Dollar Value

Judges examined all manufacturers list prices against the respective car and selected Lark as the car that gives most per dollar. It was noted Lark's basic price was lowest except for one model, which was a few dollars less.

Public Acceptance

Lark sales have increased 100.3%. Satisfied customers across Canada are reporting thousands of miles of trouble-free driving, lower operating costs and superior, all round performance.

Clay Feels Khrushchev May Utilize Berlin Crisis To Impede European Unity

By SAUL PETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—President Kennedy's personal representative to Berlin feels Premier Khrushchev may be using that perennial crisis to sow fears and differences among the Western allies and impede European progress toward political unity.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, who commanded the 1948-49 operation that broke the Berlin blockade, says he notes substantial improvement in West Berlin's situation at the moment and adds he sees no immediate change in prospect.

But he cautions that Khrushchev conceivably might risk war over the city, not because he wants free West Berlin that badly, but because "he wants to destroy the movement toward political unity in Western Europe."

Clay advanced his views in an exclusive and unusually illuminating interview in New York with The Associated Press, the first half of which follows in question-and-answer form.

Q. Will your mission continue for the duration of the Berlin crisis?

A. I don't think we know. The president has asked me to continue as an adviser and obviously that is very little service to give as long as we stay in the position of status quo. As far as Berlin is concerned there has been a substantial improvement.

Q. In what way?

A. Well the morale of the people has returned to normal and in fact I think they are probably more determined than ever to hold out. The economy of the city has recovered from the initial shock and looks like it is on the move again.

Q. But the basic situation as between the West and the Russians?

A. It remains unchanged and I don't see any immediate change in prospect.

Q. What do you suppose was behind Khrushchev's recent proposal, which we rejected, that Western troops in Berlin be replaced by Norwegian-Danish or Belgian-Dutch plus Czech-Polish forces?

A. I think Mr. Khrushchev would like very much to get the allies out of West Berlin, the presence of the Allied troops there and the rapid development of the city has, of course, made it a veritable citadel of freedom behind the Iron Curtain which he would like to destroy. Now this proposal to replace the allied with the troops of other armies very much sense. We are in lions, of course, doesn't make Berlin as a result of victory in war. This is not a right which you can transfer to other nations.

Q. Why do you suppose Khrushchev brought it up? Is it some sort of a gambit?

A. Yes, I think it's to show before the world—that he is willing to compromise and find a settlement. He has several times said he would be glad to see West Berlin made into an international city. Now by that he means a city completely free and independent but having no connection with the Federal Republic of Germany. And of course a little enclave like West Berlin, entirely behind the Iron Curtain, would quickly fade away if it did not have its connections with the federal republic.

Q. Khrushchev said that the possibility of war over Berlin is "ever more ominous." What do you think?

A. I would say that the possibility is entirely under his control of Mr. Khrushchev. Only if Mr. Khrushchev takes aggressive actions to destroy the city, to lessen the authority and responsibility of the allies, will war become a possibility or a threat. . . .

Q. But your general feeling is that tension has lessened and the possibility of war is lower?

A. The important tension which existed between the U.S. and its allies and Russia has abated. The constant needling of the allies by the Soviets and East Germans has stopped. . . . The general atmosphere is not as more free of tension than it has been for some time. . . . On the other hand the tension between the East German and the West German in Berlin has not abated. . . . Of course, the Soviet government has already indicated its considerable apprehension over the growth of the Common Market and over its movement toward political unity. It has always been their view that these kinds of movements could be stopped by creating new tensions, new apprehensions, new fears. I have a feeling that their actions against Berlin have this in view. For this reason, and since the alliance continues to grow very strongly towards eventual political union, I am inclined to believe that we may expect further pushes from Mr. K against Berlin. . . .

Q. You think, then, if he does do anything about Berlin it's primarily with an eye toward undermining the Western alliance?

A. There is a possibility that to stop the development of Western European political unity he might even be willing to risk war. It is certain he wouldn't risk war just for Berlin. . . .

Q. Khrushchev and other Communists have been repeating word for word the Warsaw pact declaration of June 7, that unless the West agrees to sign peace treaties with both Germanies, the East will go ahead on its own with all the consequences that it involves. Does this sound to you like a new ultimatum in the making?

A. This ultimatum has been one that has existed since 1958 and it now is 1962. I would suppose that there will come a time when Mr. K does have to go ahead with a peace treaty. Even if he does he could put in the reservations which would protect the rights of the allies in West Berlin. If he doesn't why, of course, the peace treaty would lead to very grave consequences. I don't know when he is going to sign this peace treaty, if ever, I can't get excited because he talks about it again since it has been a constant threat—since 1958. I also think it is very important that we must remember several things about this Berlin situation. One—I think a very important one—is that we gave up almost half of what is now East Germany for the position which we hold in Berlin. There wouldn't be an East Germany of any consequence if we had not given up the territory which we had captured in exchange for the position which we hold in West Berlin.

Q. You are speaking of the wartime agreements?

A. Yes. Under these agreements, too, the only troops allowed in West Berlin were Allied troops. We have lived up to that. On the other hand, the Soviet government started raising an East German army very quickly and they have stationed that army in East Berlin. We have never stationed any troops from the Federal Republic of West Germany in West Berlin. Now as a result of all that certain basic commitments have been made publicly and solemnly, and negotiations cannot break away from these firm commitments. There are not very many. They are basically two. First, we will maintain Allied right of access on the ground and complete freedom of access by the air. Second, we will maintain the viability of West Berlin, meaning freedom of movement for persons and goods into West Berlin. Third, we have stated that we will maintain our garrisons in West Berlin as long as the people of West Berlin want them. We have also agreed with the federal republic not to recognize any other government as speaking for any portion of the German people other than the federal republic until the German people themselves have selected in free elections a government of their own. We have also agreed to support the future reunification of Germany finally, and I also think very importantly, we have said that we intend to support the lessening of the ties that exist between West Berlin and the federal republic.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, JULY 20, 1962

Old swimming hole below Lazier's Dam in the north end of the city is always well populated despite water pollution signs posted nearby. Picture taken yesterday shows a dozen or more kids having a dip in the river.

City Sanitary Inspector Robert Westlake reposts pollution sign along river at Lazier's Dam. "The kids tear them down as fast as we can put them up—and go right on swimming," he says.

Pollution Signs Irk Swim Kids So What Goes up Comes Down

Belleville kids just don't believe in signs!

At least that's the belief of the city health department which has been putting up pollution signs along the Moira River, since the middle of June.

And just as often as the signs are posted, the kids pull them down again—and go right on swimming.

This is despite the fact that "Danger, Water Polluted" signs are kept posted on both sides of the river.

Moira River Conservation Authority officials noted that at the 401 Highway river bridge, and at Canniffon the last tests for pollution indicated the river was okay for swimming in those areas.

As far as can be learned, the Conservatives have just about decided not to put up a case date to oppose Mr. Douglas. The Liberals have indicated they will contest the byelection but the Conservatives do not. But Social Credit officials in B.C. have said they will contest the byelection.

The Conservative source said the government is likely to follow the gentlemen's rule that the election of a national party leader is facilitated in a byelection when defeated, as Mr. Douglas was in Regina, in the general election.

If Resignation Held Legal Douglas May Soon Get Seat

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservatives are unlikely to stand in the way of the early election to the Commons of the New Democratic Party leader, T. C. Douglas, if legal doubts are cleared away, a government source indicated today.

The legal question concerns Erhart Regier's resignation from the Burnaby - Coquitlam seat in British Columbia which Mr. Douglas hopes to win uncontested in a byelection.

Normally resignations of MPs are sent to the Commons Speaker, but there won't be a Speaker for the newly - elected Commons until Parliament assembles.

In view of this, Mr. Regier—financial critic for the old CCF in the famous since 1952—sent his resignation to two other NDP members elected on June 18 and had two other MPs for his party send official notification of the need for a byelection to Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay.

The House of Commons Act says that the two members to whom a member tenders his resignation must be the two who notify the chief electoral officer.

This could be raised as a flaw in the proceedings when Parliament meets.

REGARDS AS LEGAL

Mr. Castonguay regards the resignation as legal, but some parliamentary authorities quote British and Canadian precedents in saying that a newly-elected MP cannot resign between election day and the first meeting of the new Parliament, which is expected to assemble in late September.

As far as can be learned, the Conservatives have just about decided not to put up a candidate to oppose Mr. Douglas. The Liberals have indicated they will contest the byelection but the Conservatives do not. But Social Credit officials in B.C. have said they will contest the byelection.

The Conservative source said the government is likely to follow the gentlemen's rule that the election of a national party leader is facilitated in a byelection when defeated, as Mr. Douglas was in Regina, in the general election.

Lords Reject Abortions to Stop Deformity

LONDON (AP)—A plea that the pregnancy of mothers who take thaken the drug thalidomide be terminated so their children are not born with deformed arms or limbs failed in the House of Lords.

Baroness Summerskill, herself a physician, raised the question of what may be done for women who had taken the drug during early pregnancy. Several hundred deformed babies already have been born and more are feared.

Lord Dilhorne of Towcester, the new chancellor who ranks as highest legal authority in the land, reminded her Thursday that under English law pregnancy may be terminated only to save the mother's life.

Lady Summerskill retorted that in 1936, when a judge had given this ruling, nobody could have envisaged the time when it was possible for inadequately tested drugs to be given to a woman who would afterward give birth to a severely crippled child.

If it was known that a child was perhaps going to be born with no arms or legs, or neither, then on compassionate grounds the pregnancy should be terminated, she said.

The lord chancellor said there is not enough basis for predicting that abnormality will persist. The drug was withdrawn last November.

Deformed Baby Made Ward of Children's Aid

KITCHENER (CP)—An armless baby with small, malformed legs, a cleft palate and probably a congenital heart defect has been made a permanent ward of the Waterloo County Children's Aid Society.

Judge J. R. H. Kirkpatrick, in handing down his ruling at a family court hearing Thursday, said he was taking the step because the two-month-old child would be difficult to care for and because the strain could undermine the mother's health.

Judge Kirkpatrick allowed reporters to attend the hearing provided no names be made public.

After the hearing, the baby's father said outside the court he felt the baby's malformation had something to do with pills his wife took during pregnancy.

A drug named thalidomide, withdrawn from use in Canada about six months ago, has been blamed for similar malformations among babies whose mothers took the tranquilizer.

The mother, described as under a severe strain, has never seen more than the child's head. Both parents agreed in court that they wished the agency to take care of the baby, their first.

Judge Kirkpatrick said he was making the wardship permanent. However, the parents might apply to have the baby back if they wished in the future.

Society Director Wilson Hunsberger said the baby will be placed in a foster home with an experienced foster mother until provision is made for its placement in an institution.

Catholic and Protestant Collaboration Is Possible In Quebec School System

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's public school system is likely to remain divided between Roman Catholic and Protestant sections but increasing attendance will be paid to areas where collaboration is possible.

This was the consensus that emerged from discussion Thursday at a public hearing of the Quebec royal commission on education, a hearing highlighted by the first appearance before the commission of members of Quebec's Roman Catholic hierarchy.

Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec and Bishop Georges-Leon Pelletier of Trois-Rivieres attended the presentation of briefs from the Council of Public Instruction and its Catholic committee.

The Catholic committee, comprising the 22 members of the Quebec ecclesiastical hierarchy and 22 laymen, and the 25-member Protestant committee are the governing bodies of their respective schools. The two committees together make up the Council of Public Instruction, but have rarely met together in nearly a century of existence.

"Now that we have been invited to bring you together today, I respectfully hope you will meet more often in future," said Msgr. Alphonse-Marie Parent, chairman of the royal commission.

Bishop Pelletier said that in the domain of executive action the obstacle of size can be overcome if the Catholic and Protestant committees are permitted to delegate their powers to smaller executive groups and sub-committees, and if a joint executive is set up to deal with matters on which joint action is possible.

"We want an executive able to act on its own," Bishop Pelletier said. "As things are now, everything, even purely administrative matters, has to be referred back to us and it takes too long to get things done."

L. N. Buzzell, chairman of the Protestant committee, said Catholic and Protestant authorities could work out a common curriculum in science and mathematics. They could set up common science laboratories and sport facilities for their schools, especially in small communities, and could elaborate common policies for financing education.

Asked if the hierarchy would object to non-confessional institutes of the kind mentioned by Mr. Buzzell, Archbishop Roy said he sees no objection to the same facilities serving both Catholic and Protestant children.

Seaway Traffic in June Set Record With Big Jump

OTTAWA (CP) — Boosted by heavier iron ore traffic and extra ocean freight, cargo business on the St. Lawrence Seaway hit an all-time high last month.

The rise is traffic boosted seaway toll cargoes so far this shipping season to 20,297,208 tons, almost 15 per cent higher than in the April-June period last year.

The international seaway, which includes the all-Canadian Welland Canal between Lakes Erie and Ontario, showed hefty gains in upbound traffic—cargo moving westwards into the lakes. But eastbound traffic—from the Montreal-Lake Ontario seaway was lighter than in 1961.

UP TRAFFIC HIGHER

In the Montreal-Lake Ontario seaway route, upbound traffic jumped 29 per cent to 2,094,094 tons, but downbound traffic fell 11 per cent to 1,935,987 tons.

Welland Canal upbound traffic shot up 1,023.7 per cent to 1,312,-000 tons, while downbound traffic rose 3.3 per cent to 3,226,470 tons.

Said the Seaway Authority:

"The increase in upbound traffic is due generally to extra shipments of iron ore from the lower St. Lawrence ports to Hamilton and Lake Erie and to an extra number of ocean vessels carrying coal, grain and general cargoes into the Great Lakes."

The record was hailed by seaway experts as a promising sign of improving toll revenues for the Seaway Authority. Under the authority charges toll dues on ships and cargo to earn enough money to amortize the capital costs of building the seaway between Montreal and Lake Ontario and deepening the Welland Canal.

Canada plans to scrap tolls on the Welland Canal and has gained American approval for their suspension.

Announcement of the suspension of the Welland tolls—promised during the election campaign by Prime Minister Diefenbaker—is expected later this month.

Canada and the United States will review the toll structure in 1964—five years after the seaway began operations.

The toll level was at after a joint U.S.-Canadian team estimated the potential traffic patterns over the entire 50-year amortization period — an estimate that has not been borne out by actual traffic.

However, seaway experts feel that the international waterway may recover from its slow but successful start, thus aiding in the long run what it lost in initial period of operation.

Browne May Ask New Election

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Solicitor - General Browne has indicated he may petition the Newfoundland Supreme Court for a new election in the federal riding of St. John's West.

An official recount of votes in the June 18 election Thursday confirmed his defeat, but reduced the margin of Liberal Richard Cashin to 24 from 45.

"There are several courses open to me," Mr. Browne said in an interview. "A petition can be made to the Supreme Court (of Newfoundland) on various grounds."

He declined to elaborate on grounds for such a petition.

Mr. Browne had led election night, but the armed forces vote gave Mr. Cashin 12,679 votes to the cabinet minister's 12,654.

Teen-Age Canada

Steel Bands 'The Most'

By JACK HUTTON

ACCRA BEACH, BARBADOS — Your young Canadian girls sat wide-eyed here under palm trees that would have graced a Hollywood film set, listening to a different form of teen-age music.

The difference? The musicians before them were playing In The Mood—using nothing but steel drums transformed into instruments.

Pretty Cathy Beattie of Montreal, summed up what her friends thought about West Indian steel bands; "They're wonderful! So much different than I imagined from the records back in Canada."

For more than two weeks your reporter has been roving around this small island (21 miles by 15), finding out the different life that a Barbadian teen-ager enjoys.

The beaches are wonderful, and it's great fun swimming in the breakers. But I wish more than anything else that you could somehow hear and watch a real steel band in action as Cathy and her friends did.

Montreal now has one steel band in its downtown area. And many Canadians get a chance about once a year to hear a touring steel drum band in the larger cities.

But wait until you have the thrill of hearing up to 30 young men play Stardust in a march tempo on drums which somehow add up to a liquid flowing beat that reminds one of playing with water glasses.

The story of steel bands is one which illustrates how easily the tag of juvenile delinquency can be fastened on young people. Here's how it happened:

Early in 1945 a Trinidad musician was playing a bamboo bass drum with an orchestra when it broke. He quickly improvised by beating the empty gas tank of a truck behind him —and steel drums were on their way.

The official celebrations for VJ Day—the end of World War II—came too abruptly for all of the local musicians to have bamboo instruments. So many experimented with empty biscuit containers or whatever they could bang upon.

The next big discovery was the fact that different sounds can be obtained by hammering a paint pan from the inside outwards, leaving different bumps and hollows. (Try it and you'll see what I mean).

New gimmicks were appearing so quickly by the end of 1945 that a tremendous rivalry developed among followers of the different bands. Musicians were rarely involved in the battles that followed, but the tag of "juvenile delinquency" was easy to hang on them.

This disappeared almost 12 years ago in the first interband competition. That was the night when a group known as the Casablanca Steel Band—none of them able to read music—rose from obscurity to the world public and played a flawless Chopin's "Nocturn in E Flat."

The young visitor to the West Indies today can easily find any number of groups able to play arrangements that would stump most Canadian groups playing on standard instruments. And imagine the arrangements on drums ranging from 40-gallon barrels to small saxophones.

Can you try the same thing? Believe it or not, you can. Most music stores can order a small inexpensive steel drum for you (get a sophano which has more notes) and you'll find all the scattered notes clearly marked.

Down here the metal is heated first and then carefully hammered into the shape that you see.

The next step is to buy a steel band record and listen to the way in which the "lead" drummer plays the tune. If you want to get ambitious after that, find a bigger barrel and try tuning it to a lower scale. Good luck.

TEEN CHURCH VIEWS

I was interested to find that the Barbados Advocate has just conducted a poll of teen-agers and found most agreeing that the church today should not take an active role in influencing public actions.

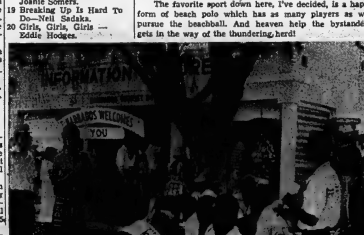
All of the students—who were at a junior college level—summed up their feelings in the phrase: "Let the Church set the example. If we like it, we follow."

These young Barbados people agreed that religion had a meaning for them. But they were reluctant to agree that they would follow edicts laid down by their church on nuclear disarmament, politics or other controversial questions.

WEST INDIAN HITS

Well, what do you know! Elvis Presley (our friend) is just as big a hit among Barbados teen-agers as he is in either Canada or the United States.

I perused this week's hit parade for Barbados teen-agers and found that Elvis' record "Follow That Dream" is just a squeak behind their top tune, "I Can't Stop Lovin' You" by Ray Charles.



Other favorites here: "The Stripper," David Rose and his orchestra; "It Keeps Right On A-Hurtin'," Johnny Tillotson; "Rodes are Red," Bobby Vinton; "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance," Gene Pitney; "Playboy," Marvelettes, and "Cindy's Birthday" by Johnny Crawford.

I'd never believe it. Diners here in one calypso or native tune in the Barbados Top 10. Everything in the list this week is brand spanking new from Tin Pan Alley, a few thousand miles west.

SUMMER SPORT

Every country has a favorite summer sport for its teenagers. How does Barbados compare with Canada's 10 provinces?

The favorite sport down here, I've decided, is a haphazard form of beach polo which has as many players as want to pursue the beachball. And heaven help the bystander who gets in the way of the thundering herd!

Canadian teen-agers have a wonderful opportunity to learn about our West Indian neighbors from authentic Steel Band music.

"Well—I guess that nice Mr. Tweedy didn't have time to stop and chat with us this morning."

Kidd Says Plans Not Definite

TORONTO (CP) — Runner Bruce Kidd says a London report that he has set his sights on a post-graduate course at Oxford or Cambridge is a little too definite.

"I'd like it, but it's only one of innumerable possibilities," he said Thursday.

Kidd had three years to go in his political science and economics course.

Recently in England he ran a close second to Bruce Tulloh in a three-mile event at White City Stadium.

The London Evening News quoted him later as saying he was impressed with what he had seen overseas and "obviously there is more to learn in Britain than at home."

The Royals blanked the Orioles 12-0, scoring eight runs in the last inning, in a Bantam baseball league game at the Alemite Field.

The winners outhit the Orioles 9-3 with Ted Clarke pitching the win and Vern Ingram the loss.

Race Buff Put Bite on Fan, Police

MONTREAL (CP) — Judge Paul Champagne of municipal court has ordered a complete medical and physical examination for Roy Culverhouse, 36, who appeared on charges arising from a brawl at Blue Bonnets Race Track July 12 when a special constable's finger was bitten off and a patron's thumb severely chewed.

"In view of the brutality of the act I would like a complete report on both the mental and physical condition of the accused," Judge Champagne said Thursday in postponing sentence to July 25.

Culverhouse, a race horse owner from Brantford, pleaded guilty July 12 to charges of grievous assault, assault with intent to maim and disturbing the peace by fighting.

Jacques Dansereau, lawyer for the race track, told the court Culverhouse got into a fight with a patron during which he "nearly bit off" the man's right thumb.

In a later battle with four track constables, Culverhouse bit off the second finger of Const. Guy Lafond. Mr. Dansereau said Culverhouse's finger later was amputated at the second joint to avoid the possibility of infection.

Culverhouse was ordered held in custody for examination.

CHICAGO (AP) — Top-seeded Chuck McKinley and No. 3 Joe Douglas powered their way into the quarterfinals of the U.S. national clay court championships.

McKinley defeated Bill Higgins of Lubbock, Okla., 6-1, 6-3. Douglas, former Stanford quarterback, dropped the first set to Clark Graebner of Lakewood, Ohio, 4-6 and trailed 5-2 in the second. Then he won 11 games in a row to take the final two sets 7-5, 6-0.

Douglas squares off today against Juan Couder of Spain, the No. 2 foreign seed. He advanced with a 6-3, 6-1 victory over Clifford Buchholz of St. Louis.

Scores 'Hip' Hole-in-One

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Bill Perkins of Sarnia can probably add another chapter to golf's catalogue of unusual shots.

Perkins sliced a tee shot into the rough on the fourth hole at the Sarnia Golf and Curling Club Tuesday evening. He grabbed an iron, hoping to blast his way out.

Meanwhile, another member of the foursome, Bob McGeown, was standing about 20 yards in front of Perkins, his back turned. The ball disappeared.

"Where did it go?" asked McGeown. "I took a swing at something."

"I think it might be in your pocket," replied Perkins. "Look and see."

McGeown looked. It was.

The foursome called a conference, decided not to penalize Perkins for his unorthodox shot and declared McGeown an unnatural course hazard.

One-Armed Driver Back In 'Harness'

McLean, who had been driving standardbreds in Toronto since 1947, was harnessing and revived at the new defunct Thornhill track 12 years ago, lost his right hand at the wrist when it was caught in a snowblower on his farm near Port Elgin, Ont., last winter.

He drove two races Thursday night and picked up a second and a third.

His closest brush with victory came in the sixth race when he drove Frolic Hanna Dean, owned by A. A. Greer of Glanis, to first driver Mac Bobbe Huntress won with Irish Mick, an 11-year-old gelding.

Howard Hawks Reminisces About Faulkner's Movies

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The obituaries for William Faulkner said little or nothing about his writing for films, a phase of his career of which he was not particularly proud.

Yet the Nobel Prize winner spent a lot of time in the Hollywood studios, largely because of director Howard Hawks. They worked well together, perhaps because both were free-wheeling mavericks with scant regard for the system.

Hawks reminisced in his Paramount office this week about his long association with Faulkner:

"We first got together in 1932 or 1933, when I read some of his work. I was much impressed and I showed his work to Ben Hecht and Charlie MacArthur. They and Alexander Woollcott and others around New York started talking about him, so I think I had a part in his discovery as a writer.

DESCRIBES MEETING

"I bought a book of his and asked him to come out to the coast to work on a movie. He came into my office, very quiet, and I described my name. 'Yes, I've read it on a theater,' he replied.

"He didn't say anything, so I started talking. I must have talked for 40 minutes, outlining the way I saw the screen play. Still he didn't say anything and I finally asked him what he thought. He said it was okay, and he would be back in five days.

"By this time I was getting mad, and I said, 'Do you need five days to think about it?' He said, five days to write it. Then I left better and asked if he wanted a drink before he went. He said yes, I like a drink.'

Apparently one drink led to another—and another. The two became fast friends, and Hawks recalled:

"The next morning I woke up at my house and I saw him fish a cigar butt out of a glass of night-old beer, empty the glass and then he went to work."

STARRED JOAN CRAWFORD

Faulkner finished the script in seven days. He and Joan Crawford became available and she was assigned to the film, "Today We Live," though there wasn't a woman's part in it.

Faulkner wrote in the Crawford part in a few days, and it was shot as Today We Live.

Hawks' other credits with Faulkner include Road to Glory (Fredric March, Warner Oland) in 1936, two post-war Bogart-Bacall films, To Have and Have Not and The Big Sleep, and The Land of the Pharaohs in 1955.

"But he also did scenes for Air Force and other pictures of mine when I needed help," said the director. "Whenever he needed money—which was often in those days before paperback books—he'd call up and ask me for a loan. I'm waiting for him to do."

"His work habits were good. He wrote fast and didn't drink while he worked. When the job was over, that was it. Now can I get tight? I'd say yes, and he would."

Balding Has Close One

TORONTO (CP) — The defending champion, one former champion and one of two low medallists advanced into today's third round of Millar Trophy Match play for professional golfers.

Al Balding of Toronto, fourtime titleholder met tough competition Thursday from Gord DeEast of Toronto but blotted the 18th hole to win one up and go on to a 3 and 2 afternoon victory over Vic DiMarco of Toronto.

Former champion Bill Mahwhinney, Bob Panasiuk and co-medallist Alvie Thompson, all of Toronto, also went into the third round.

Thompson, a 36-year-old assistant professional won 4 and 3 to eliminate another former Millar champion, Bob Cunningham of Toronto, in the morning contest and stopped Bruno Murray of Kitchener Rockway 4 and 3 in the second round.

Thompson established himself as a real threat with five subpar rounds Thursday on top of his qualifying 68. He meets Bob Kozak of Niagara Falls, Ont., today.

PAYS TRIBUTE

Kozak said, after Thompson's second win Thursday: "Thompson might win this tournament. He's got the shots. He is a terrific player and I'll have to play my best to beat him."

Kozak ousted Fred Swarbrick of Toronto and Bob Rothmel of Brantford Thursday after qualifying with a par 70.

John Davis of Burlington, Ont., third low qualifier with 67, meets Orest Spooner of Toronto today. He won both Thursday matches comfortably — defeating Hal Butler of Oshawa 4 and 3 and Dave Govan of Toronto 3 and 2.

DONATES STOCK

CHICAGO (AP) — Financier John William Cox said Thursday he has given a substantial amount of stock in New York Yankee Stadium to Rice University in Houston, Tex. Cox, a 1927 graduate of Rice, said he made the gift this spring "because of the educational opportunity I got there opened the world to me and I'll always be grateful." He estimated the gift will provide an income to Rice of more than $1,000,000 in the next 16 years.

Will Operate-No Names

EPL Minor, Minor League

TORONTO (CP) — The Eastern Professional Hockey League will operate next season, but some of last season's entries are doubtful starters.

EPHL president John Urie of Ottawa announced Thursday that the league will stay in business and that four National League clubs will sponsor entries.

His announcement was made after a closed meeting among EPHL officials and general managers of five NHL clubs, which have used the minor pro league as a farm system.

The only NHL club not represented was Detroit Red Wings, who sponsored Sudbury Wolves last year but don't intend to this year.

The other non-sponsoring club is Toronto Maple Leafs, whose manager-coach, Punch Imlach, told Thursday's meeting Toronto would help with players but would not spend a cent towards financial support of any EPHL team.

IMLACH ELABORATES

Imlach left the meeting in company with several Sudbury directors, but said later in an interview:

"I don't intend to spend $50,000 to tell anyone how to run a team. If the people in Sudbury want a team, we'll help. But it's their team and they pay the shot. If I'm going to lose $50,000 a year, I'm going to spend it on junior hockey right here around Toronto."

Urie would not say what teams will be in the league next season but Hull-Ottawa Canadiens and Kingston Frontenacs are considered to be almost sure starters.

Rumors that North Bay Trappers, supported last season by all the NHL clubs, will hold gained strength Thursday with the announcement that North Bay general manager Lou Passador is leaving to join New York Rangers.

The other two clubs in the league during the financially distressed 1951-52 season were Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Thunderbirds and Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers.

APPLY FOR FRANCHISES

Urie said three cities in Canada and the U.S. have applied to join the EPHL but he declined to identify them.

"They are currently in other leagues," he said. "Until things are definite I just can't divulge which cities they are."

One rumor was that Windsor, Ont. is one of the three. The operators of the club there are reported to be dissatisfied with the Ontario Hockey Association Senior group in which it operated last season on a shared-profits basis.

It was also decided at the meeting there will be no salary limit but each team may sign only 15 players. Each team will be allowed two players more than 25 years of age, three between 23 and 25 and nine under 23. This is in line with the league's policy to be a development stage for the NHL. The goaltender may be any age.

Wren Blair, personnel director for Boston Bruins and former general manager of the Frontenacs, announced that two Kingston veterans, Orval Tessier and Jim McCarthy, have been sold to Portland of the Western League. The Bruins sponsored Kingston last season and have a working agreement with Portland.

Canadians Do Well At Bisley

BISLEY, England (Reuters)— Cpl. R. J. Purdy of Camp Borden, Ont., won the Daily Mail Trophy and a £30 cash prize after three tie-breaking matches in the Bisley meeting.

When the competition was originally fired Monday, 70 competitors made the highest possible score of 50 for 10 shoots at 300 yards and had to shoot again Thursday. They all fired five shots, resulting in a further tie between six of them who put every shot to the bullseye.

The six were Purdy, Wing-Cmdr. J. A. Gordon of Penhold, Alta., and four British marksmen — C. A. Cullimore, Lord Swansea, R. D. Greig and Maj. J. H. Smith. On a second tie shoot, with three shots each, Purdy, Gordon and Cullimore gain made the maximum possible.

On the third shoot, Purdy won the trophy by putting all three shots into the bull while his two opponents dropped one point.

RETAIN TROPHY

Canada kept the trophy in the Senior Overseas match, beating Guernsey by 30 points. They were the only teams entered for the match.

Canada's team of 12 scored 1,118 out of a possible 1,200 at 500, 500 and 600 yards. Capt. C. M. Brown of Camp Borden scored 99.

Lieut. Gerry Ouellette of Windsor, Ont., won the Elkington Challenge Cup for the best aggregate this week at the long ranges. His scores of 48 and 49 at 500 yards and, 43 at 1,000 yards, with 10 shots in each case, gave an aggregate of 140 out of a possible 150. This was one point better than the runner-up, A. C. Hunt of Britain.

Other scores included: Cadet Lieut. Norman Earke, Cornwall, and Capt. C. M. Brown, Camp Borden, 133.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

I checked it out. There is no truth in the story that Gerry Joyce is going to give his first and third base coaches the night off when Pat "Perfect Game" Maracle gets the next starting mound assignment.

The baseline mentors weren't scuffing any streams of sweat at the jobs Tuesday night when "Ole Slitting Bull" Little-Big-Horned the Bobcat palefaces, executing them all with cunningly-sharpened tomahawk strikes.

One rumor had it that Marse Robert Temple, looking familiar in a Bobcat uniform, went on the diamond to see if the base-bags were in position. It seems none of his players got the chance to find out for themselves.

The calamaic chapeau goes off to the ageless Mohawk, who, it is claimed, is 34 going on 45 the next birthday. I am told by a close friend of Pat's that this Jack Benny of the softball diamond has celebrated the anniversary of his 29th birthday at least four times.

Be that as it may. Point Anne's Satchel Paige proved beyond a doubt the other night that his good right flipper has lost none of its rubbery quality. 'Tis said he had a sore shoulder.

In fact it could be as Pat told me one night at Ox Point when I talked with him after he had tossed a one-hitter, "Too bad, I pitched nine innings in the Back-Fifty League down home before tonight's game. I might have had a no-hitter."

He wasn't bragging when he said it. Those who know Pat know that is true. He had more "stuff" bottled up in his goody starboard flipper than a dozen hitters could shake a stick at. Sometimes, though, he didn't know it he could uncork it properly.

But uncork it he did Thursday night. He declawed the Cats in almost monotonous fashion. He had them probing, poking, prodding and pushing let alone swinging at balls that weren't there the most of the time.

The stoical Indian went about the business of, mowing down the Bobcats in ruthless abandon. He set down nine of them in a row at one time on strikes and on another occasion sent eight Tabbies back to the dugout like a parade of wooden soldiers.

Around the sixth and seventh innings the press-box habitues were holding their breaths. Afraid of jinxing the no-hitter, if not a perfect performance, they desisted from mentioning the fact. That is an unwritten law in press-box circles.

But they moaned-groaned in the seventh when Bobcat Frank Murray lined a hot drive over second. "There it goes," they mumbled, then clutched their tonsils. Jackie Elliott, the second hero of the piece, got his glove on the ball and knocked it in the air. He fell, shoved out his ungloved hand and snatched the ball before it hit the dirt. It was a sensational effort.

That was Maracle's closest approach to being double-robbed of a no-hitter and a perfect performance. The Joyce outfield, like their baselines coaches could have used yoyos to pass away the time. The infield wasn't worked to death either. It snatched six infield pops as they fluttered groundward and tossed the remaining batter of the 27 eligibles out on an infield grounder.

Maracle deserved all the accolades that came his way after his record magnificent. I don't know how many decades he has been out there cavorting on the slab for one team or another, mostly Point Anne. I, with a lot of others, and there were softball veterans, felt that somewhere in the dusky Maracle's carcass was the perfect game. The question was, could he get it out of his system. He did eventually.

Maracle has several no-hitters, one-hitters and two-hitters to his pitching credit. He has faced the top softball hurlers of the province, including the Judds, Johnsons, Zuks, Sparrows and others. He has been beaten by them—and defeated them.

Maracle's perfect game performance is the second in the history of the Belleville and District Softball League to my knowledge. Back in 1951 Jack Reid hurled a perfect game while playing for the Belleville Meteors against a Bakelite team at the Airmile Field.

But the top honor actually goes to Maracle. In my books any guy who can pick a number between 26 and 44 and say "that's my age," then go out on a softball mound and throw a perfect game, deserves the leather and gold medals—and a throne in softball's hall of fame.

Tribe Back In Fourth

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was a typical Yankee series. First they beat you with pitching. Then Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, beat you. Before you recover, some of the boys at the bottom of the batting order beat you.

That's the old formula New York Yankees used in sweeping a three-game set from Boston Red Sox, extending their winning string to seven games and finishing a 13-game road trip with a 10-3 won-lost mark.

Ralph Houk's Bill Skowron and Clete Boyer, the sixth, seventh and eighth men in the Yankee batting order, took the star roles Thursday as the Yanks bombed Boston 10-4.

The ealy Los Angeles Angels and rebounding Minnesota Twins refused to yield ground in the league race, however.

TRAIL NEW YORK

The Angels remained 3½ games back with a 2-1 victory over Detroit Tigers while Minnesota got three - hit pitching from Jim Kaat and two home runs from Bob Allison in an 8-0 rout of Cleveland Indians. The victory pushed Minnesota, which had entered the game in a tie with the Indians, into sole control of the third-place, 5½ games back of New York.

Baltimore Orioles beat Kansas City Athletics 7-3 in the only other league game.

Ralh Terry's four - hit, 1-0 shutout started the Yankee stand in Boston. Maris followed with a tape-measure home run and four runs batted in during a second-game hitting delay. Boyer and Howard each drove in three runs and Skowron added a couple Thursday. Howard got his on a triple and two single. Boyer and Skowron each hid a homer and single. Boyer's 12th homer of the season capping a decisive five-run seventh inning.

Jim Pagliaroni and Bob Tillman had homers for the losers. The Angels came from behind with two runs in the seventh inning to hand Detroit its seventh straight loss. The Tigers, shut out in two straight games, have a string of 22 3-0 scoreless innings with an unearned run in the fourth frame.

OPENS WITH SINGLE

Jim Bunning (9-6) had a three-hitter going into the seventh, which Tom Burgess opened with a single. A wild pitch and two outfield flies produced one run. Albie Pearson's single, a stolen base and Billy Moran's single accounted for the winning run. Eli Grba (6-5) got the victory.

Allison had a single to go with his two homers and drove in four runs in leading Minnesota against Cleveland. Veteran lefty Kaat (9-9) allowed only singles to Bobby Phillips, Willie Tasby and Tito Francona in breaking his five-game losing string. Vic Power, a one-time Indian, stole home against his old mates.

Charley Lau lashed two homers and drove in four runs for Baltimore as Orioles beat Kansas City. Jackie Brandt also had a sixth-inning, two-run homer for the winners. Knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm (4-6) got the victory after taking over for Steve Barber in the seventh inning with the score tied 2-2.

Take Playoff Fight Lead

Bobcats Down Flyers

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

The Bobcats moved back into a two-point lead over Rollins Juniors in their fight for the B. and D. softball league's final playoff spot last night by defeating the RCAF Flyers 8-7.

Bobcats have completed their part of the schedule with six wins and 12 defeats. Rollins have won five and lost 12 and must win against RCAF here Monday night to force a sudden death playoff against Bobcats. If that game is necessary it will be played Tuesday.

With the Flyers playing loose ball afield, the Tabbies jumped into a 7-0 lead in the first three frames last night. RCAF rallied twice, scoring four in the fifth and three in the eighth, but Bill Old's crew plated singletons in the seventh and eighth to cop the important decision.

Starter Bobby Green pitched his thing straight win, going the route. He gave up nine hits, struck out ten and walked only one man. His mates' only two errors cost him three runs.

Mike Ratushniak was the loser, allowing six hits. His mates made five errors and all figured in the scoring. He fanned three and walked two.

The Cats got two in the first on a walk, a throwing error on Murray's sacrifice, a passed ball, Hughes' fly, and Brown's ground out. An error, Crawford's infield hit and Green's two-run single made it 4-0 in the second.

Hughes singled to ignite a three-run rally in the third. Two errors later it was 5-0 and Boyay singled to score two more. An error, passed ball and Brown's ground out plated a run in the seventh. A walk, D. Murrey's infield hit and a passed ball scored Bobcats' final run.

Corscadden, H. Cole, Mowatt and Drake had hits in the Flyer fifth with two of the runs crossing the plate on an error. Drake, Alexander and Kennedy hit safely in the eighth with the last run scoring on an error.

Bobcat hits went to Frank "Shiner" Murray, with a triple, Hughes, Bob Green, Wayne Bovay, Floyd Crawford and Doug Murray with a single apiece.

Roger Drake doubled and singled twice for Trenton, giving him six hits in two nights. Doug Alexander had two singles, Len Mowatt, Will Kennedy, Corky Corscadden and Howie Cole one each.

RCAF Flyers: Mowatt lf, Drake lb, Alexander ss, H. Cole cf, Kennedy c, Richard 3b, Corscadden 2b, Boomer rf, Hathaway p, H. Cole rf, Mann (p.h. 9th).

Barnum Tops Palmer, Nicklaus

50-Year-Old Leads Pro Tourney

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa. (AP) — John Barnum is 50, grey - haired and slightly paunchy. He hit golf's touring trail only occasionally.

So it was more than a little surprising Thursday when Barnum barged into the lead in the first round of the United States Professional Golfer's Association tournament, firing a record four-under-par 66 and leaving such greats as Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus in his wake. Palmer and Nicklaus were among a group at 71.

It was one of Barnum's finest rounds, but the veteran professional from Belmont, Mich., isn't expected to be among the top finishers when the 72-hole event winds up Sunday. The tough competition and four-day grind are expected to wear him down, leaving him easy meat for Palmer or others in the star-studded field of 172 starters.

Barnum, who needed only 28 putts for his round, held a two-stroke lead over another old-timer, Chick Harbert 47, George Bayer, Frank Stranahan, Bob Goalby and Doug Ford were tied at 69.

Don January, the 1961 runner-up, Paul Harney, Lee Elsegetl, Dick Hart and Joe Campbell were deadlocked at 70.

LEADS CANADIANS

George Knudson of Toronto, was the leading Canadian with 35-37—72. Al Johnston of Montreal was 36-36—78 and Bill Rinkicki, former National Hockey League player from Winnipeg who plays out of north Reading, Mass., was 36-36—77.

Barnum's 32-34 was the lowest ever scored competitively over the 7,046-yard, par-70 Aronimink course in this suburb of Philadelphia. It was also the best first round by a seconded in the PGA, converted from match to medal play four years ago.

It clearly wasn't Palmer's or Nicklaus' day. They were both back from putts because the crowd by a crowd estimated at noise of amateur photographers 17,000. Palmer twice had to step disturbed him.

'The Cat' Will Join NY Rangers

TORONTO (CP)—Emile (The Cat) Francis, former National Hockey League goaltender and coach of Guelph's junior Royals for the last two years, will join New York Rangers this year.

It was not announced what job Francis will hold.

The announcement that Francis will move to New York was made Thursday by Muzz Patrick, general manager of the Rangers, who was here to attend a meeting of the Eastern Professional League.

There was some speculation Francis would replace Doug Harvey, who resigned after last season as coach.

Sugar Ray Signs to Meet Downes

NEW YORK (AP) — Aging Sugar Ray Robinson, five times world middleweight champion, has signed a contract to fight Terry Downes in London Sept. 25, boxing agent Dewey Fregetta said Thursday.

The 10-round bout originally was scheduled for June 26, but Robinson suffered a hand injury.

Downes once held the European , Massachusetts - New York version of the world middleweight crown, but lost it to Paul Pender of Boston earlier this year.

Dodgers Lose, Giants Win

Pirates In Grappling-Irons Range

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

It is beginning to look like 1960 all over again for the aroused Pittsburgh Pirates. By winning 25 of their last 37 games, the Pirates have pulled to within 2½ games of the league - leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

Pittsburgh manager Danny Murtaugh is using the same old reliable formula that worked two years ago—scramble, never quit and wait for the late-inning home run. Then call for little Elroy Face.

Dick Stuart hit a home run and two singles in the Pirates' 5-4 first-game victory over New York Mets Thursday night. Bob Skinner contributed a game-winning homer in the 10th inning of the Pirates 7-6 second-game victory. Bill Mazeroski of the Pirates hit a homer in each game.

The victories enabled the Pirates to gain ground on the Dodgers and the second-place Giants. When the Dodgers lost 4-3 to Cincinnati Reds, their lead shrunk to one game over San Francisco, a 7-5 winner over Milwaukee Braves.

CARDS STILL TRAIL

St. Louis Cardinals also picked up a game on the Dodgers, but still trail by 5½ in fourth place after shading Chicago Cubs 2-1.

The Pirates, who have beaten the Mets in 10 of 11 battles, had trouble in the second game. The first was a breeze for Bob Friend, who threw a five-hitter. But the second was a different story despite a four-run Pirate spurt against Joey Jay-Hook in the second inning.

Pittsburgh came from behind twice to tie it up before Skinner settled matters with his home run into the left-field stands leading off be 10th. Face, who took over in the ninth, won his seventh game of the season.

The Dodgers took a 3-2 lead into the ninth inning, but relief man Ron Perranoski couldn't hold it. Manager Walter Alston called for Perranoski after starter Johnny Podres, walked the leadoff man in the ninth. Don Blasingame's sacrifice and a single by Don Zimmer tied the score. Eddie Kasko's triple with two out won for Bill Henry.

ALLOWS ONLY PAIR

Brilliant relief pitching by Bob Bolin, who allowed only two hits over the last five innings, saved the day for the Giants in the wrapup. It was the fifth straight win for Bolin.

The Giants were crippled during the game. Mike McCormick, the starter, had to leave after he was hit on the left forearm by Joe Torre's line drive in the fourth. First baseman Orlando Cepeda was thrown out of the game for arguing a third-base call in the fourth frame. Second baseman Chuck Hiller was hit on the right arm by a pitch in the fifth.

Willie Mays hit his 28th homer for the Giants in the third game and No. 36 and Lee Mays No. 4 for the Braves.

Three pitched balls by catcher Dick Bertel in the same inning, one short of the National League record, gave the Cards their tie-breaking run in the seventh inning of the first game.

The Phillies breaking a 2-2 tie with three runs in the eighth inning while Chris Short and Jack Baldschun held the fort in relief. Short pitched to just one man in the seventh inning, but was the winner because he made pinchhitter Carl Warwick hit into a double play and then left for a pinch hitter in the Phils' winning rally. Hal Woodeshick was the loser.

Riders, Stamps Show Form

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP) — Calgary Stampeders appear to have come up with a great running mate for plunger Earl Lunsford and wide man Ed Buchanan.

His name is Jim Dillard and he can go either inside or outside.

Thursday night in exhibition football play against Montreal Alouettes, the Oklahoma youngster from Oklahoma State University took the ball 13 times, scored two touchdown runs and piled up a mighty 216-yard total rushing as the Stamps won 30-26.

Dillard was good for close to a first down every time he carried the ball, averaging 9.7 yards a try.

Calgary found the soft spots in Montreal's front wall and rolled for a total of 423 yards along the ground behind the sure and steady quarterbacking of Jim Walden. Buchanan, swinging to the outside, picked up 84 while Lunsford drove for 95 on his patented low-angled runs up the middle.

A 32 - yard burst through centre by Dillard also set up a field goal from 30 yards out by George Hansen.

WALDEN SCORES

Before a crowd of 19,486, second best this season's average attendance for scheduled games, the Als were all the way at quarterback with rookie Sandy Stephens, the club's big cash investment from Gophers. He tossed three touchdown passes to sophomore end Mary Luster and also played covering 25, 23 and 14 yards — but his lack of experience, and at times finesse, was telling.

Montreal fullback Don Clark broke free for the longest run of the game, scampering 97 yards with a stand behind for a touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Bobby Jack Oliver added three converts and there was a touchdown single by Hugh Pitts, a 260-pound 20-year-old from St. Thomas.

Bob LeBlanc, Montreal's defensive middle guard, was carried off the field on a stretcher in the second quarter and a preliminary room by the bench said he suffered torn ligaments in his right knee. Surgery at Yarmouth, N.S., will be sidelined for an indefinite period.

The following chart is for the period from Saturday, July 21st, to Sunday, July 29th.

Al Wagar and Perumba had two hits apiece for Pepsi's. Murray Young, Never, Harvey, Campbell and Swan shared the others.

Junior Day's three-hit pitching sparked the loop-leading Trudeau Motors to a 9-0 victory over Woods-Horlock Juveniles at CNRA Park last night.

Day gave up singles to Malloy, Smith and Jury in a fine pitching chore. He struck out 13 batters and did not walk a man. His mates gave him errorless support.

Woods and Malloy toiled in a losing effort and their mates booted the ball around for no less than 11 errors. They gave up seven hits, whiffed one and walked five.

Trudeaus scored their runs in pairs, in the first, second and fifth innings, and made it decisive with three in the fourth.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Under Tito's amended Communist doctrine, 17,000,000 Yugoslavs are said to be living outside anywhere else under the Red flag. But the government is not without problems. In the second of five articles on East Europe Today, an Associated Press reporter explains Tito's present dilemma.

By RICHARD O'REGAN

BELGRADE (AP) — Marshal Tito's shiny brand of Communism is in trouble—but Yugoslavs are confident the old partisan leader will lead them out of the woods once again.

To the visitor from other Communist countries, Yugoslavia looks remarkably prosperous.

Japanese radios, German automobiles, American foods, Italian clothes, Scotch whiskies and Swiss watches are in the shops by the thousands and in the provinces. You don't see them elsewhere in Red Europe.

Stores are crowded and the streets bustling with activity. There are no permanent shortages.

In short, you could be in a capitalist country. The chinese signs of communism — slogans and marching organized crowds, Communist party information classes — are scarcely evident.

ACCOMPLISHED MUCH

Tito accomplished this with a bold break with Communism, with U.S. aid, and a great deal of hard work.

Tito found Russia's centralized state control of the entire national economy would not work. He therefore adopted certain practices flowing in capitalism—such as the principle that men need incentives to work and an economy must operate by supply and demand or stagnate.

This is one reason you get fast service in Belgrade restaurants. If business is good, the waiters share the profits. Similarly, salespeople in stores try to satisfy you. Every shoe they sell means profit for them. Under Soviet communism, it is the state, not the worker, that gets profit.

Tito's system has worked well to a degree. Seventeen million Yugoslavs certainly are better off than any people anywhere else under communism.

But there is trouble beneath Mr. Tito's surface.

There is inflation. Plant directors and workers distributed too much of the profits to themselves and plants are in debt to each other.

YUGOSLAVIA IN DEBT

Additionally, Yugoslavia has debts of $800,000,000 a broad, much of it to Italy, Germany, Britain and other West European countries. The country is spending more than it is producing.

In an effort to solve his problems, Tito has issued strict new regulations which, if it will be recalled, have been largely distributed. He has put a tight lid on the flow of foreign capital, making it harder for Yugoslavs to travel abroad.

Finally, Tito was to force more peasants into co - operative farms and away from private crop shortage this year.

This dilemma that these are state controls don't set too well with Yugoslavs.

Tito's own generation of factory directors, engineers and "managers" and a Western diplomat here. "They want to keep going ahead, making as much money as they can. They don't want to go back to the lines of Russian communism.

CAMPBELLFORD

Seek to Buy Land for Motel From Council

CAMPBELLFORD — At the regular meeting of the town council, Mr. Stafford O'Keefe, on behalf of a group of interested persons, including Mr. Neil O'Keefe of Campbellford, requested that council sell them a parcel of land at the corner of Highway No. 30 and Trent Drive. The group offered to purchase approximately five acres, about 600 feet on Highway 30 by 580 feet in depth, at $500 per acre.

They proposed to build a motor hotel at an estimated cost of $150,000. A banquet hall, a swimming pool, and 30 units for rental are included in the plans.

Council favored the plan but felt that the cost of services should be investigated and the matter of water services considered by the Public Utilities Commission. The delegation requested immediate action, and it was promised that if possible the required information would be obtained in 24 hours.

Mr. Griffiths, after making a request for services to a lot on the former Bland farm was assured that the general government committee would consider the matter. Mayor Rutherford suggested that the property in the area should be annexed to the corporation.

COMPLAIN OF SPEEDING

Mr. Doug Pickering and a number of other residents of Front St. North, complained about speeding in the area and the disregarding of "Stop" signs. Other residents on other streets, including some council members, concurred in the complaint regarding dangerous driving practices in town.

Police will be instructed to make a special drive to stop speeding.

Mr. Tim O'Ray, King St., asked for sewer facilities on behalf of himself and Mr. Wilmink, agreeing to pay the required fees for the installation. It was decided to grant the request.

Miss Ona Arnold protested a notice received by her asking her to remove a fence she had placed to protect her property from trespass by persons parking cars on her lawn. Mr. Ibey, the clerk, stated he had written the letter in response to a request by the mayor, who stated the fence is on town property. Subsequently Miss Arnold was visited by Chief Baird.

At a later time the fence was torn up by a neighbor, who afterwards apologized and offered to rebuild the fence.

Miss Arnold stated that she felt discriminated against, as in her opinion there are too many fences outside the property lines in town. Eventually the general government committee was authorized to investigate.

PLAN PARK

Mr. Ralph Nuttall asked for a renewal of the lease of the property south of the town's dump to the Campbellford Sportsmen's Club. This was granted. Mr. Nuttall implied council to the public meeting on Thursday night at the parish hall when plans for a large public park will be unveiled.

Commendation of the chairman of the road and bridge committee, Deputy Reeve Tanner and the employees of the town was expressed by Messrs. Hilton Beatty and Benor for the work done on the Grand Road sewer.

Council endorsed a resolution of the town of Clinton requesting mail delivery, in all urban municipalities regardless sot size.

The town will tender on the resurfacing of the cement bridge below the CNR overpass at the south end of the town.

Upon request of Mrs. Don Grant for the purchase of two lots on Stanley St., at the price advertised last year ($325 per lot) council agreed to sell the lots.

CHOOSE CENTRE SITE

The council chose the Kennedy Park property as the site for the new proposed Memorial Centre. This property is on Saskatoon Ave., just south of the CNR track.

An increase in police salaries by $2.50 per week per man, as recommended in the police committee's earlier report, was made retroactive to July 1st.

The Public Utilities Committee was requested to install a mercury vapor light at the corner near Bell's Service Station and the road and bridge committee was instructed to install a catch basin near Joe Lalonde's home, Grand Road, and a rail on the sidewalk near the corner of Simpson St. and Bridge St. West.

Graham Bell, chairman of the water advisory committee of the Moira River Conservation Authority, and Authority field officer Michael Chubb, view low water conditions at the Cannifton dam. Water on the upstream side of the dam is three feet below the concrete.

Marcel Lambert Of Edmonton May Be Speaker

By JAMES NELSON

One of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's most critical decisions is to decide on a man to nominate for the $20,000-a-year job the gargoyle represents — the speakership of the House of Commons.

The gargoyle's gavel symbolizes the Speaker's position as presiding officer of the elected House, — although the Speaker doesn't use a gavel. The blind eye represents the speaker's power to refuse recognition to an MP who seeks the floor — a power exercised only rarely.

The Speaker is elected by the House of Commons, on nomination of the prime minister, usually seconded by the leader of the official opposition.

LAMBERT POSSIBILITY

Speculation currently centres on Marcel Lambert, 41, an Edmonton lawyer, Rhodes Scholar and veteran of four years overseas service in the Second World War who was taken prisoner at Dieppe.

Others mentioned include Paul Martineau, 41, former Crown counsel of Pontiac District in Quebec, who was deputy speaker at the end of the last Parliament, and Theogene Ricard, 53, deputy whip for the Conservatives and parliamentary secretary to Mr. Diefenbaker.

The job calls for, a bilingual man, this time drawn from French - Canadian stock. Since 1900 MPs of French and English stock have alternated in the post. Speaker in the last Parliament was D. Roland Michener, defeated narrowly for re-election June 18 in St. Paul's constituency in Toronto.

PASSES FARM BILL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives passed Thursday a stripped-down farm bill that does little more than continue existing programs for wheat and corn programs for another year. The bill, a substitute for the strict-control program defeated by the House last month, now goes to the Senate.

Water From Lake Reservoir Will Raise Moira Level

Low water conditions in the Moira River above the Cannifton Dam are expected to be relieved slightly within the next 96 hours following release of more water from the Lingham Lake Reservoir on the Black River north of Madoc.

Yesterday, Graham Bell of Marmora, water advisory committee chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority, and Michael Chubb, field officer for the Authority trekked to Lingham Lake and further opened the water control valve at the base of the dam.

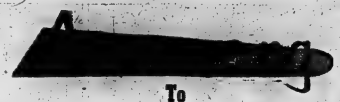
Yesterday, also, Roy Pound, owner of the Cannifton, Dam, promised Mr. Bell that he would today remove leaky stop logs from the dam and repair them. This will temporarily lower the water level still further. If, after these repairs are made and extra water from the Lingham Lake Reservoir reaches the area, the water level still remains low, the valve at Lingham Lake will be raised still further, to increase the water flow still more.

INCREASE FLOW

The valve was opened three inches about a month ago and was raised to eight inches yesterday allowing about two and one-half inches more water to flow downriver.

A combination of factors, ranging from low rainfall to leakage at the dam resulted in the water above Cannifton dam dropping three feet since Sunday and with intakes uncovered residents along the river toward Corbyville found they were unable to pump their normal domestic supply.

As result the Moira Authority officials made the trip in to Lingham Lake to reset the valve and thus allow more water down the river.



It was expected at least 48 hours would elapse before the benefit of the increased flow would be noticeable at Cannifton.

REPAIRING DAM

No water is currently being used at the Cannifton mill which is now being rebuilt following last spring's fire. However water above the dam is escaping through stop logs, through a fish gate and through crevices in the rock at the west end of the dam.

Mr. Chubb said the river above the Cannifton Dam is now no lower than it was at its lowest two years ago.

But lack of rainfall has resulted in there being less water in the Lingham Lake reservoir than at the same time last year. The present low level of the Moira was not reached in 1961 until about a month later in the year.

U Thant Calls Katanga Heads Lot Of Clowns

UN Secretary Wants New Mandate in Congo

HELSINKI (Reuters) — Hitling out at the situation in The Congo after Katanga province, U Thant, acting United Nations secretary-general, said Friday he doesn't know what he can do "with such a bunch of clowns."

"I have tried to get (Katanga President) Moise Tshombe and the central government to negotiate but without any results," Thant told a press conference in this Finnish capital, adding his remark about not knowing what to do with the "bunch of clowns."

Thant spoke out before flying to Copenhagen, Denmark, en route to New York following a tour of European capitals.

Discussing the thus - far fruitless, central government - Katanga negotiations to form Tshombe's breakaway province within the loose Leopoldville regime's rule, Thant said:

"Mr. Tshombe is a very unreliable man. He is very unpredictable man. The same can be said of his colleagues, Mr. (Godefroid) Munongo, who pretends to be the interior minister of Katanga, and Mr. (Evariste) Kimba, who pretends to be the foreign minister."

Thant said he would convene the UN Security Council to ask that the UN stay in the Congo or at least, a renewal of the mandate for the force that the UN had not been authorized to launch military operations and civil war.

There have been recent suggestions that the UN use force to reinstigate mineralrich Katanga with national President Joseph Kasavubu's Leopoldville government.

REACH FINAL AGREEMENT ON NEUTRAL LAOS

Approval Is Given Pact by 14 Lands

GENEVA (CP)—The foreign ministers and delegates of 14 countries met here today in final plenary session and gave formal approval to an agreement that would restore Laos from the cold war arena by neutralizing the tiny Southeast Asian kingdom.

The agreement includes a declaration of independence and provides for the withdrawal of foreign troops from the war-torn country, Wednesday it had been approved by working delegates to the 14-country conference.

Today, the foreign ministers and delegates from East and West realized full agreement and accepted the documents that would make a neutral Laos possible.

The agreement, to be formally signed Monday by the foreign ministers of the 14-country conference on Laos including Russia, the United States, China, is the form of two documents—the agreement and the protocol.

OTHER STATEMENTS

The main documents include a statement of neutrality by the new Laotian coalition government headed by Prince Souvanna Phouma and the call for a declaration by the 33 other members of the international conference recognizing and respecting this non-alignment.

The meeting was opened by Foreign Secretary Lord Home of Britain, chairman of the session, who along with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko of Russian is co-chairman of the conference.

Lord Home, in opening the meeting said: "Today we are realizing complete accord on an agreement which all of us here helped to draw up."

The opening item was closed to the press, but an authoritative source said the British Foreign Secretary turned to Souvanna Phouma after the agreement was reached and said:

"Your Highness, this is a joyful day . . . I believe we can especially say that this agreement will be a contribution to world peace."

IS MAJOR ACCORD

It put the seal on one of the few major accords to be reached East and West in the last decade.

The agreement calls for withdrawal of all foreign troops from Laos within 75 days of its signing, except for a small French contingent training the Laotian Army.

The United States has several hundred military advisers in Laos and Communist North Viet Nam has an estimated 10,000 troops there.

Withdrawal will be supervised by the International Truce Control commission composed of Canada, India and Poland.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Rain has ended over western sections of the province and is expected to end in eastern Ontario by noon today. The disturbance will be followed by a gradual clearing to forecast regions. Cloudy with showers ending this morning, clearing this evening. Sunny with little change in temperature Sunday. Winds southwest 20, becoming northwest 15 to 20 this afternoon, light Sunday.

Plan Inquest In Snakebite Fatality

TORONTO (CP)—An earlier decision that an inquest into the death of a 10-year-old girl from a rattlesnake bite this week would not be held has been reversed and the inquest tentatively scheduled for next week.

Chief Coroner Dr. H. B. Cotnam of Ontario said Friday the inquest will likely be held at Bracebridge, Ont., Wednesday into the death of Nora Jean Armitage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Armitage of Grosse Pointe, Mich.

Coroner Dr. A. D. MacKenzie of Barrie had ruled no inquest was necessary but Dr. Cotnam said Dr. MacKenzie now has talked with us and agrees with our decision to hold an inquest."

Dr. Cotnam said Dr. MacKenzie should have conferred with the chief coroner's office before making such a decision.

The cause of death was of course accidental, but the girl did not die as a result of normal causes and therefore an inquest must be held," Dr. Cotnam said.

The girl was bitten by a rattlesnake near her family's cottage at Coghenhoe Point, 12 miles northeast of Pembangal, Ont., Monday afternoon. She died en route to hospital by boat.

The rattlesnake is believed to have been one of the Massasauga species, the only known poisonous snake in Ontario.

Dr. W. G. Brown, Ontario's deputy minister of health, said Friday the girl would not have died from an injection of antivenom even if she had been bitten by a snake. He said only allergy sufferers would react unfavorably to the serum.

Two vacationing U.S. doctors did not give the girl serum because it was not established she had been bitten by a snake and they feared it might produce ill effects.

Ontario Doctors Told to Explain Medicare Issue

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Ontario Medical Association has urged doctors to "explain" the province's 8,000 doctors to accept a personal responsibility in explaining the Saskatchewan medicare controversy to the public.

In a letter to the doctors, Dr. Patrick Bruce-Lockhart of Sudbury urged doctors to talk to patients "in their meals or parties" at every opportunity.

Dr. Bruce-Lockhart's recommended doctors read an article in the July 7 edition of the Financial Journal from which they "will be able to see that the opposition to the Saskatchewan act were specifically and deliberately designed to talk a community into a doctor to practise outside the act."

Dr. Bruce-Lockhart said Saskatchewan doctors had three choices: They could emigrate, they could leave the province, or close their offices.

In taking the third choice, he said, they have not only provided emergency care, but have established medical services under an emergency plan.

Dr. Bruce-Lockhart said the OMA would not be willing to accept a compulsory medical insurance plan in Ontario.

Would Make Donation of Blood Price of Montreal Parking Ticket

MONTREAL (CP) — Senator Savio Fournier, a onetime Liberal leadership hopeful, announced plans to run again this October, said Friday that if elected he will make personal political party say motor-parking violations. The parking ticket would be able to avoid paying by donating blood to the Red Cross.

"The Red Cross will stamp the ticket Wednesday and the city will annul it," he said.

Senator Fournier, defeated by Mr. Pearson in the 1958 election, won in the last municipal election, when he ran under the banner of the Greater Montreal Rally. Tuesday announced formation of a new party called Le Parti Metropolitain de Montreal.

He said Friday he is prepared to unite this campaign with the forces opposed to the Drapeau regime.

Mayor Drapeau, cochairman of the Civic Action League split with the league to organize the Civic Party of Montreal before the last election.

Friday Senator Fournier said he already has held meetings aimed at unity with his municipal political enemy Pierre Desmarais, president of the Civic Action League.

He also said he plans to call on Lucien Croteau, head of the provincial Rally when Mr. Fournier was elected mayor in 1957.

Another plank in Mr. Fournier's platform is a daily tax of 25 cents on some 120,000 workers employed in Montreal but not residents of the city.

He said the money would be a contribution towards the services the workers receive that are paid now grudgingly by Montreal residents.

The employers would make the deductions from the pay envelopes of the non-residents . . . he said.

British Health Service's Aim Wider Than Medicare

OTTAWA (CP)—As a vehicle for government intervention in the health care field, Saskatchewan's controversial Medical Care Insurance Act bears little mold compared to Britain's national health service.

Experts in the field say there is a fundamental difference of approach between the two plans. In Britain, the scope and purpose of government - controlled health services runs much deeper than in Saskatchewan.

As many countries of Europe had done earlier, Britain set up after the Second World War to establish an integrated structure of the country's services, part of the Labor government's "cradle-to-the-grave" program of social security.

The primary aim of the Saskatchewan plan is more limited—it simply seeks to insure patients against inordinate costs of illness.

Britain's National Health Service Act of 1946 makes the minister of health responsible to Parliament for seeing that top-quality health services of every kind are available to everyone needing them.

Saskatchewan's Medical Care Insurance Act, passed by the provincial legislature last November, provides a commitment of six to eight members to administer what is essentially a plan for prepayment of doctor bills.

The Saskatchewan government contends the commission is independent, although it reports to the cabinet rather than to the legislature. This is one of the points cited by Saskatchewan doctors to support their argument this is the first step toward socialization of medicine.

Meantime, the board said the permanent answer to such problems with nationwide events appears to be in assuring nonpartisan protection of broadcast rights. It said it has advised both networks that the board is considering full hearings.

Three other announcements by the BBG:

1. The board and the publicly-owned CBC will go to court to seek a judicial interpretation of the law which bans programs of a partisan political nature only on election day or the two days preceding it. The BBG has received complaints that the CBC violated the board's own interpretation of the regulations on the Saturday before the federal general election of Monday, June 18.

EXPECT NEW OUTLETS

The governors, asked by the CBC to review its privately-owned stations to join a proposed new French-language radio network to replace two existing hook - ups operated by the corporation consider getting national coverage with television. The purpose of the BBG is ready to earmark radio frequencies for such a network.

3. The board said only that it will give "continuing consideration" to problems connected with CBC and other applications for new TV stations. This was taken as a reference to the CBC proposals, announced earlier this week, for a CBC-owned policy in setting up any new "second" TV stations across Canada.

In outlining that scheme in his annual report, CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet said he would mean that once new CBC sta-

Kennedy to Make Medicare Defeat Campaign Material

NEW YORK (CP)—President Thus Kennedy in the campaign battle faces the difficult task of firing at the Republicans without hitting some of his own rebellious troops. The already bitter unity of the Democratic party may suffer in the process.

While there have been sharply divided feelings on medical care for the aged, the single vote did not reflect the feelings of the seekers with Democrat colors.

Democrat Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, for example, said he favored the proposed but was voting against it in fear of the cost. He said on a highly touchy issue for no good reason.

As originally formulated the Democrats would have provided health care benefits for the aged under the social security system, to which employers and employees contribute. This was designed to cover about 85 per cent of the estimated 17,500,000 Americans over 65.

To gain Republican support, the program was altered to provide for those not covered by social security through a voluntary insurance participation by private health insurance groups.

The plan would have provided most hospital costs for the aged but no doctors' fees or drug costs, except in the case of drugs administered in hospital.

The patient would have been required to pay $10 a day for hospital stay with the 40 Democrats the first nine days in hospital, but then could have benefited for another 51 days free of charge. Other benefits included

BOARD TO FORCE ALL TV STATIONS TO AIR GREY CUP

Four Broadcasters Face Court Hearings

OTTAWA (CP) — The Board of Broadcast Governors unwrapped Friday what may prove to be its most controversial package of decisions since it was created 5½ years ago, to govern both CBC and private radio and television.

Four stations—not identified—will be charged with violations of BBG broadcasting regulations and will be tried summarily. The board gave no details. But it said in some cases the alleged offences include case "disregard" of BBG rules in law.

Until now, the government-appointed board has not stepped beyond what called "warning and reprimand" in enforcing the law. The court cases will be the first of their kind in Canadian broadcasting history.

If found guilty, the station licenses would be liable under the Criminal Code for a fine of up to $500, three months in jail or both. The BBG also has the power to suspend station licences, but indicated it will not use it in these cases.

HALF-TIME CUP

In a second unexpected move, the board proposes to use its legal machinery to compel what has failed in solving the hassle over TV broadcast rights, figuring every television station in Canada to carry the Grey Cup football game on Aug. 18. It is coupled with a BBG announcement of a tentative settlement on sharing revenue from advertising if the CBC and private networks cannot agree.

The BBG indicated it was intervening because of a breakdown in the deal announced last December under which both networks would carry the telecast. Under that agreement, revenues are owned by the CTV and station CFTO-TV, Toronto.

Meantime, the board said the permanent answer to such problems with nationwide events appears to be in assuring nonpartisan protection of broadcast rights. It said it has advised both networks that the board is considering full hearings.

Expect Report On Non-op Pay By August's End

MONTREAL (CP)—A conciliation report that could have a critical bearing on whether Canada will be facing the threat of a strike by 100,000 railway workers in two months should be completed by the end of August.

The three-man board responsible for drawing up the report Friday completed two weeks of hearing arguments on new contract demands served on seven Canadian railways by the 15 CLC-affiliated unions that began for the huge group of non-operating railway employees.

The final stages of the hearings saw the railways again use the word bankruptcy to describe their fate if what they called a shocking settlement is forced on them while the unions warned that the workers will not be pushed around.

OPPOSE DEMANDS

At stake in the dispute are wages and job security for some fringe benefits. The railways adamantly opposed all the union demands.

The hearings ended exactly seven years after the unions first served their formal demands on the railways.

Most of the time was devoted to a summing up by the union delegations.

Frank Hall, veteran chief negotiator for the railway unions, the railways arguments had reached a low in cynicism and accused the railway of recklessly ignoring their responsibility to labor-management relations.

Mr. Hall said the unions' job security demand—target of the bitterest railway attacks during the hearings—was based on a principle: "We want to solve the problem faced by long-time employees tossed on a scrap heap by technological developments."

The unions again defended their demand for a 35-cents-an-hour wage increase as being fully justified in view of salaries in the so-called high-paying goods industries.

Railway workers not involved in the actual running of trains, now earn an average of $1.81 an hour, which is cents below a government-determined minimum of wages paid in the durables.

A major argument by the railways during the hearings against a wage increase was that they are now entering a period of intense competition with other methods of transportation and that they could afford to be burdened with extra labor costs of only $20 million.

Light Smoker Is Just as Likely To Get Cancer as Is Heavy One

LONDON (Reuters) — The light smoker is just as likely to develop lung cancer as the heavy smoker and both are more likely to get the disease at this age—in the late 50s—a pathology professor reported today.

Prof. R. D. Passey of Leeds University reported in the medical magazine, The Lancet, on studies into the smoking habits of 499 men with lung cancer.

He said the disease developed at approximately the same age in those who started smoking early or started late and that the amount smoked made little difference.

The average age for starting was 17; the average number of cigarettes smoked daily was 23; and the mean age for discovering cancer was 57.

Passey also suggested that the climate and air pollution played an important part in developing lung cancer.

"In South Africa, where the average white male is one of the heaviest smokers in the world, the age - specific death rate from cancer . . . is, if anything, less than in Denmark where the average male smokes less than one-third of the number of cigarettes," he said.

Fire Rating Tweed Forest District

The rains came to the Tweed Forest District last night and fire rangers relaxed in appreciation.

It was the heaviest rainfall since early June, officials said, but the monthly fall is still below normal.

The rain was general in the district. There was just a trace of snow in isolated places.

Other recordings were: Tweed .54; White Lake .36 and Pierwa .31.

The district fire hazard was rated as low today.

RECORD MELTS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Two Charlottetown youths, Jim Phillips and Angus Houston, Friday claimed a world record for beating an ice cube back and forth between 2,556 fences before it melted. They said they broke the record set in Lake Placid, Wednesday by two youths who said they tossed an ice cube 1,700 times before it melted.

Gas Service Starts on Highway 401

Gasoline companies awarded contracts for the operation of gasoline service centres along the 401 Highway are losing no time in getting temporary facilities into operation.

Two firms which will ultimately operate gasoline and restaurant facilities in the Newcastle area are already selling gasoline. Access roads to them are paved and light standards are going in for night lighting of the areas.

At neither area, however, is there evidence as yet of a construction start on the permanent service station, restaurant and rest room structures.

West of Trenton gasoline companies are not far behind in their preparation for offering gasoline sales.

In both areas access roads to and from 401 Highway are being graded in readiness for paving and undoubtedly sales of gasoline will be offered in the near future.

The 401 service centres are to be located along the four-lane highway on six separate 30-mile spaces apart and will undoubtedly be welcomed by motorists whose gas gauges are beginning to show the "empty" sign.

Judge Praises Non-op Chief, Frank Hall

MONTREAL (CP)—The chairman of a federal conciliation board has paid tribute to Frank Hall, veteran chief negotiator for Canada's 100,000 non-operating railway employees, for the qualities of leadership he has shown in years of union work.

Mr. Justice Ivan Rand is perhaps appropriate for me, on behalf of the Canadian people whose non-service has this board I am, to pay a tribute to Mr. Hall for the very able service that he has rendered to those whom he has represented before boards of conciliation on so many occasions," Mr. Justice Rand said.

"During those years the members of the unions have gained an ever increasing standard of living and the credit for that should, I think, be given in large measure to the qualities of leadership displayed by Mr. Hall . . .

"When the history of our time comes to be written, it will, I think, be recorded that Frank Hall always sought conscientiously to discharge the heavy responsibilities of his office and that he has always made a contribution to the welfare of his fellow citizens."

BRITISH HEALTH

types of dental surgery.

Drugs, ordinary dental services and fillings, dentures and eye glasses are excluded. These are covered under the British plan, which provides a full and complete range of health services.

The British plan is financed mainly through general taxation. However, there is a small weekly premium paid by employers and salary earners.

NO CHARGES

Since coming into force the British plan also has acquired a new principle. It pays for such things as drug prescriptions, glasses and dentures. In Canada such things are considered luxuries such charges are called deterrents. The British have abolished largely to eliminate abuse.

The Saskatchewan plan is financed through a combination of premiums, sales tax and earnings from the Crown corporation and individual income taxes.

There are no deterrent charges.

In Saskatchewan, doctors are paid on a fee-for-service basis at a rate of 85 per cent of the official schedule of fees adopted by the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Doctors in Britain are paid on an "capitation" basis—so much each year for each officially - assigned patient. They get the same amount whether they see a particular patient once or 100 times.

Specialists in Britain are paid by salary and are based in hospitals. General practitioners are not allowed to work in hospitals. Patients requiring hospital care are turned over to specialists.

SOCIALIZATION

There is no such rigid separation of general doctors and specialists under the Saskatchewan plan.

It is part of the over-all British aim of integrating all health services into a single monolithic structure.

Another indication of the ominous nature of the British Medicare plan is that it is responsible for such matters as hospital construction and establishment of group clinics.

Under the private insurance option a patient could elect to take his benefits through a private insurance plan. He would have given a choice of 45 days of hospital benefits without the initial $10 payments for the first nine days, instead of the 90 days $125,000 higher than the 1961 target. $20 in initial payments.

Town Organizations Approve Recreation Commission Move

PICTON — Another step in the move to organize recreation under one body and possibly engage a full time recreation director was taken Thursday night, Twenty-eight persons, representing 14 service organizations attended a dinner meeting at the Royal Hotel. H. J. Colliver presided as chairman of Rotary Youth Committee.

Donald Maddocks, district representative, Community Programmes Branch, Ontario Department of Education told of the assistance which could be expected from that branch.

There was a round table discussion, and it was decided to meet again in one week's time to give representatives of the organizations an opportunity to contact their groups and determine if they will back the proposal.

It is expected at the next meeting a committee will be named to meet with town council to ask a by-law to set up a recreation commission to work out a program which might be feasible.

Horticultural Groups Hold District Meet

PICTON — Many members of the local Horticultural Society were among 260 members who attended the District 7 annual meeting, held in Colborne.

Societies represented were Brockville, Gananoque, Kingston, Collins Bay, Napanee, Picton, Belleville and Stirling.

At Lakeview Park, where members enjoyed a box lunch, civic greetings were extended by Alderman Cecil Bint, while vice-president William Frost extended the Gananoque society's greetings and introduced leaders in local activities.

District Director for No. 3, Mrs. J. S. Shepherdson, of Kingston, expressed appreciation of these courtesies and also welcomed the members. She introduced Phil Dodds, president of Prince Edward County Society, who spoke on the incoming district director, Mrs. Dodds paid tribute to the untiring efforts of Mrs. Shepherdson while filling this office as also the years past ten years, and noted the great progress which had been made. The $40,000 memorial to local societies in Ontario, he said, was the British Empire's most improved home surroundings, many public pianistas and sculptures in parks and local church grounds and buildings. The motto of the society was the motto — "Make the world a little bit better and a little more beautiful because you have lived in it."

Secretary of the Ontario Horticultural Society, Russell Gomme, Ontario Dept. of Agriculture, praised the district societies on their work and spoke in appreciation of the enthusiastic leadership which has been given by Mrs. Shepherdson.

One of the most beautiful parts in Canada, was the consensus of members after a visit to Parkwood, the home of Col. R. S. McLaughlin, in Simcoe Street, Oshawa. Opened especially for this group, the gardens presented a scene from the pages of a seed catalogue.

When a second visit was paid to the gardens at night, there were gasps of amazement and delight as the illumination transformed the garden into an unbelievable scene of beauty.

Motorists Benefit From Gasoline War

PICTON — Motorists have been benefiting from a "gas war" between Picton service stations. It began as a weekend war but has since affected prices throughout the week. Suggested price for standard is 40.9. Tuesday two stations were asking 30.9 cents a gallon. Others were asking 32.9, the price current during the week.

The reason is given for the "war" except that a price dip by one merchant is met by another.

For some time past, some stations have been promising to "regular" customers and this led a non-privacy to reduce the price. While dealers are not the happiest people, the motorists are, and the general order is to "fill-er-up."

REACHES OBJECTIVE

TORONTO (CP) — The 1962 Easter Seal campaign reached its objective of $1,000,000, it was announced Friday. Mrs. Smylie, president of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, said the final goal was $125,000 higher than the 1961 target.

Muskie Leaps Into Boat Hits Man, Dives Back

CAMPBELLFORD — Two Ohio men, James Palmer of Akron and James Fox of Kent, have a fish story to tell their friends in the United States, but they are doubtful their friends will believe it even though it did happen.

Friday night the two men started back to their cottage after catching several pike. It was dark and the water was calm as Mr. Palmer opened his 7½ horsepower motor wide open to skim across the water at Percy Boom.

He could see the dock at Tall's Percy Boom Lodge, where they were heading, outlined against the shore.

Suddenly, a fish which they believed was a muskie, leapt into the air directly in front of the boat. It struck Mr. Fox on the side of the head as the boat sped along.

Mr. Palmer saw the fish coming at him out of the corner of his eye as he sat in the rear of the boat operating the motor. He ducked throwing himself forward. The fish sailed over his head and crashed onto the seat beside him, breaking his fishing rod, which was resting against the seat.

The fish bounced and splashed over the back of the boat, into the water, angrily for a moment, then disappeared into the darkness.

The two were somewhat unnerved by the experience, but hesitated for a time to tell of it because they thought that nobody would believe it.

The practitioner in the area related a somewhat similar experience that happened to him and his wife a year ago, when a pickerel followed a lure in the same area leapt into his boat. "Any way," he said, "I believe it. Nobody could think up a story like that."

The two men had the fishing rod repaired Saturday in Campbellford and headed out to troll for the elusive muskie.

EVERYBODY SING — "Be at the Belleville Fair" chorus, a group of Belleville Fair directors under the leadership of Glen "Mitch" Daugharty (left), strain vocal cords (and the neighbors' ears) to the limit. After the first attempt fair president Carl Thompson declared them joint winners of the hog-calling event and announced that a contest would be held to see what local singers and musicians could do about putting the words to music.

Fair Board Plans Contest In Singing of Theme Song

"Be at the Belleville Fair,
Meet all of your friends there.
Have so much fun that you
Won't want to go home.
Won't want to go home.
Have so much fun there,

That ditty, sung in calypso style and set, more or less, to the music of "The Wreck of the John B.", is the opening chords of the Belleville Fair's theme song.

The local fair board will be doing the song to promote both the Belleville Fair and the development of local folk singing talent, president Carl Thompson stated last night.

SPONSOR CONTEST

Discouraged with the fashion in which an impromptu chorale group organized amongst the members of the attraction committee handled the song, the board is sponsoring a contest, open to any group, for the best version of this song, of which there are two more verses.

Fifty dollars has been offered as the prize for the best version and each group entering will be allowed to use its own originality as far as the presentation and music is concerned, Mr. Thompson said.

The first audition for the entrants in this folk song contest will be held on August 2nd at the grandstand in the fair grounds. At this time the best two entries will be selected and their versions recorded for playing over radio station CJBQ from then until opening day of the Belleville Fair. At that time the winning entry will be chosen. Besides the cash prize the winning group will also have the opportunity of being a part of the grandstand show each night at the fair.

Those entering the contest do not have to be professional or semi-professional entertainers, Mr. Thompson advised. Actually the idea of the contest is to see if perhaps a group of teenagers or amateur folk singers might be able to do the best possible job, he explained.

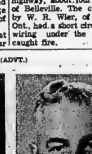
"The whole contest should be a lot of fun for people and this is one thing which we like to have at our fair — lots of fun," Mr. Thompson said.

The full version of "Be at the Belleville Fair" will appear in a display ad in Monday's edition of The Ontario Intelligencer. Entries or enquiries regarding the contest will be received either at radio station CJBQ by Phil Flagler or Jim at The Ontario Intelligencer by Doug Phippen.

Breaks Pole, Damages Car

The city of Belleville lost a hydro pole last night, about midnight, when Barry Cooper, 25, of 55 Alexander St. clipped it off with his car. Mr. Cooper had been driving east on Victoria Ave., when he reached across the car to his jacket, on the other side. As he reached his car veered off the south side of the street, and clipped off the hydro pole in front of number 85 Victoria Ave.

Damage to the pole will cost about $100. Damage to the car was estimated at about $200.



Injured In Car Crash

Lawrence Edward Boyle, 21, of Centre St., Belleville suffered facial lacerations and possible head injuries late morning in a single car accident, on Bridge Rd., two miles east of Stirling, at 4 a.m. He was rushed to Belleville General Hospital, under the care of Dr. Briggs, of Stirling. His condition is not considered serious.

Two Fire Calls

Belleville's fire department answered two calls early today, neither serious. At 4.29 a.m., a call came from D. Welbanks, of Dundas St E., that a rug was burning. The fire had been caused, apparently, by a dropped cigarette. At 7.11 a.m., the fire department was called out to a car fire on number two highway, about four miles east of Belleville. The car, driven by W. R. Wier, of Waterford, Ont., had a short circuited some wiring under the hood and caught fire.

Suggest CBC Build More Radio Stations

OTTAWA (CP)—The Board of Broadcast Governors has suggested that the publicly - owned CBC build more of its own radio stations rather than rely so heavily on privately - owned affiliates to achieve complete network radio coverage.

The BBG said it is ready to recommend a government allocation of unoccupied radio frequencies for CBC use, so the corporation "will not be impeded in its progress toward its long-run objective."

The suggestion was offered by the BBG to the current sticksess in negotiations under which the CBC gets its domestic Trans-Canada and Dominion radio networks and instead build the National network. The French network would be left intact.

To set up the new radio system, the CBC has asked the governors to make affiliation a condition of licence for 61 privately - owned radio stations across Canada. The network also would take in 24 CBC-owned stations.

Under the CBC proposals, the following privately-owned stations in Ontario would be affiliated to the consolidated network:

CJKL Kirkland Lake, CNJR Blind River, CKGB Timmins, CJIC Sault Ste. Marie, CHEX Peterborough, CJCS Stratford, CJSS Cornwall, CHOV Pembroke, CFOB Fort Frances, CFJR Brockville, CKCR Kitchener, CKLY Lindsay, CJET Smiths Falls, CKWS Kingston, CKSO Sudbury, CFCH North Bay, CHOK Sarnia, CFOR Orillia, CFPL London, CFOS Owen Sound, CKTB St. Catharines, CJBQ Belleville, CJRL Kenora, CKAR Huntsville.

Prohibit Boy From Running Boat for Year

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP)—A 12-year-old Toronto boy, vacationing with his family here, has been forbidden by juvenile court to run a motorboat in Ontario waters for two years.

He was convicted of dangerous operation, running at night without lights and throwing a firecracker at a police boat.

The boy was charged July 9 after a provincial police patrol boat was bombarded in Georgian Bay with firecrackers thrown by three families from an unlighted boat. The juveniles were not aware that the other craft was a police boat.

Property Owners Request Fence-Building Change

TRENTON — Fenceviewers while carrying out their duties in the country and settling disputes between farmland owners about fencing lines, in all cases, feel they are supposed to set the fence line as close to the established boundary line as possible. Fenceviewers are appointed by township councils and are paid for their time.

Three fenceviewers in Murray Township spent several very confusing hours one day last week, trying to establish a fence line across four adjoining properties. These properties are divided by a winding creek. By tradition, properties divided by a creek, are divided at a point midway in the creek itself. Owners of the four properties in question have followed tradition, by attempting to build a wire fence half way across the creek and down its entire length. This presents problems. In winter, the ice forms around the wire fencing and in the spring, out goes the ice, and out goes most of the fencing. The fence is built again, and with the coming of winter, and the following spring, the process is repeated, and so on ad infinitum.

After a long run, the fenceviewers decided to instruct the property owners to stick with the old system. The fence must be put up again, sparg in the centre of the creek.

Two of the property owners, Mr. and Mrs. Hysler, appeared before Murray Township council last night to ask a change in method of fencing besides that decided upon by the fenceviewers could not be found.

Mrs. Hysler said that she had spent a great deal of time in the summer picking barbed wire from the water, where it fence out of the creek to make it's safe place for her children to swim.

The middle of the creek fencing has driven cattle to the Cows, owned by the neighbor living across the creek, have got into the habit of crossing the creek and munching on the Hyslers' well-tended lawn. The fence doesn't seem to deter them much, Mrs. Hysler told council. She further added that been able to eat a meal together since the ditch knew when. Someone must always be on the lookout for marauding cows, a result of which, the whole family missed church on account of the wailing bovines.

Mr. Hysler said that he wanted to find a peaceful solution to the whole business. He doesn't want to fight with his neighbors. He would like to buy enough land from the one neighbor on the right or to sell the same neighbor enough land for him to erect a fence. Just so the fence doesn't have to be built in the creek.

Maybe an electric fence could be strung along his side of the creek.

Council advised the Hylers to seek the township solicitor's advice in the matter. Councillors, for as far as councillors know, the fenceviewers have the final say in the locating of a boundary fence - - - outside of taking the matter before a county judge.

Present at the council meeting were Reeve Douglas McMaster, Deputy Reeve Fred Bryers, Councillors Leo McAuley, Ron Webb and Norman Findlay, and Township Clerk Angus Gunter.

Council had other pressing problems to consider, too. One of these was a bill from the Trenton Fire Board for $2,00 and another from the village of Frankford $900, representing costs to the fire services of fires fought in Murray Township and Frankford fire departments.

Mr. Bryers told council that he had it on good authority that Frankford was only charging Sidney for its bill $87.50, the "old" rate per fire,

Labor Force Swells

Yesteryear's blessed events are today's unemployment statistics.

That fact was brought forcibly home to any person who carefully perused the latest figures on the Canadian labor force and the number of jobless—the first such report since the June 18 Federal election immediately preceding which Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the country the unemployment problem was "licked."

Although there were 197,000 more Canadians working in June than in May of this year, the number of unemployed dropped by only 35,000. The working force had increased by 162,000 in a month and it is estimated that teenagers seeking work accounted for 95,000 of this increase.

This number was substantially higher than the number of young people joining the labor force at this time in recent years. A moment's figuring will reveal that most of these young people were born during the years 1942 to 1946 and thus represent just the first wave of that crop of babies which came during, and more especially after, the Second Great War. We thus have here a special factor whose influence will be felt in the Canadian employment picture for several years to come.

Moreover, one would not expect that the full effect of this influx of students into the labor force had been felt by the time the June figures were compiled. Senior secondary school students seeking work are likely to increase the labor force still further when July figures are compiled.

Some of these students, of course, will resume their studies in September. But, at the same time, many of the 70,000 who obtained work almost certainly accepted temporary jobs which will end with the coming of fall. It is somewhat disturbing to learn that there are 25,000 teen-age Canadians who desire to work but have been unable to obtain jobs. What percentage of this number do not expect to return to school, we do not know. But there is nothing more discouraging for a young boy or girl than to discover that nobody seems to want the talents he has developed through what, to him, appears a life-time of application to studies.

We have heard much about the need to increase Canada's population, in order to provide our industries with larger markets for their products. We have been told of the benefits which accrue from growth. Now we have this fonazna of well-to-do workers, most of them Canadian-born and almost all of them Canadian-educated, needing little instruction in adapting themselves to the Canadian work-a-day world. Let us hope that we can tap the wealth that lies in their talents and that we shall not let them deteriorate in forced idleness.

The Deformed Babies

Commander John Kerans, Conservative member of the British House of Commons, wants Parliament to authorize euthanasia, or mercy-killing, for babies born without arms or legs as the result of their mothers having taken the sedative thalidomide.

A scientist has estimated that the world will have 5,000 such deformed children as the result of use of this drug and the United Kingdom expects 800 of them before August.

It is easy to understand the motives which prompt Commander Kerans, but the practical difficulties in authorizing any such action are immense. Obviously, mercy-killing could only be carried out with the consent of the parents. What parent would authorize such action before having seen the extent of the deformity? How many parents, having seen their child, would find it in their hearts to pronounce the death sentence? These are agonizing points which must be considered, altogether aside from the question of the morality of mercy-killing.

Much more practical, it seems to us, is the suggestion of Lady Edith Summerskill that the government authorize doctors to perform abortions where the mother has taken thalidomide. Whatever may be the ethical differences—and some maintain there is no difference between abortion and murder—there can be little doubt but that many a mother will be eager for an abortion which may save an unborn deformed child from suffering, while few, indeed, would be those who would find it in their hearts to deliver their live babies to the executioner, even if they were convinced that this would, in fact, be the greatest kindness.

It is notorious that the memory strengthens as you lay burdens upon it, and becomes trustworthy as you trust it. — Thomas De Quincey.

Government Turns Deaf Ear To C.B.C. Plea for Funds

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The CBC is losing money . . . and blaming it on private television.

The annual report of the corporation for 1961 said there was a loss between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 (why can't they be sure?) because the CBC was no longer the only television operating in Canada.

It further said that private television interests — both stations and the new CTV network — had stated they needed to earn more money.

When self-supporting commercial operators say they need more money it means only one thing . . . they are going to get more money.

What's the CBC reaction? Their quality will suffer, they say. Or they will have to cut down on their air time.

Or — they will ask the government for more money.

The CBC gets a fair amount of money from the government (which is you, Mr. Taxpayer) as it is.

The corporation's annual report states that in the last three years it has got extra cash below the amount granted by Parliament to the extent of $17,460,000. This has been returned to the Receiver General.

At some other place in the report it is stated that it expects that what Parliament grants is in excess of what it needs a year.

WHERE'S THE GOOF?

So this means that the CBC has balled the ball to the tune of millions out of $210 millions in the 1959-61 period.

How could they have slipped up so badly, some people want to know.

While private radio and television interests are making all right, — most of them making a profit every year — the CBC has managed to go through $192,500,000 of the taxpayers' money in three years.

For the most part, the corporation admits this money is spent in "necessary programs" which no sponsor will buy.

If a sponsor won't buy it, who will?

Even the corporation's own board of directors has had to keep on some of the programs which will end with the coming of private television at public expense.

The board has told the CBC to "watch the language" and has drawn up a "good taste" code for it. The watchdog language is cut from it. Judging by letters and telephone calls received from time to time, the public could just as well do without the code.

And the public feels it has room to beef because it is paying the bills.

ROOM FOR WORRY?

One must assume they are not appear to be concerned about the situation is CBC President Alphonse Ouimet.

He says the national radio and television service is just as essential now as it was when formed more than 25 years ago. They will press on.

Union Not Merely Dream

By Diessl and Drukenbrod

The Fourth Congress of the European Movement in Munich has confirmed once again that most of those holding responsible positions in Europe are no longer hesitant to carry the idea of the unification of Europe into the sober realm of practical realization.

Of course, from time to time fourteen years of the history of the European Movement, it is supra — national organization whose object is the political unification of Europe, the Munich Congress, was more than a conglomeration of professionals and lectures held by idealists and dreamers. The majority of the 500 delegates who came from all parts of Europe — amongst them also a number of representatives of East Bloc countries, who now live in exile — are active politicians, statesmen, ministers, parliamentarians, diplomats and high civil servants, who will be able to exert an influence in their countries.

The "British Question", particularly the entry of Britain into the European Economic Community, was one of the basic issues of the Munich Congress. The harmony in French-German relations which in former years had always been referred to as the essential prerequisite for European unity, was no longer mentioned once. It was taken for granted. Indeed, relations between these two nations, which by some uninformed people had so often been called "arch-enemies", were never so amicable and good as they are today. All the more passionately implored by the other representatives of Europe were the British dynamics that they should make their influence felt in favor of Great Britain's joining the Continent.

A special accent was given to the Congress by the fact that apart from an official delegation from Spain there was also a group of exiled Spaniards headed by the ambassadors and ministers of the ambassador de Madariaga who submitted a resolution for the incorporation of Spain into the European Community of Nations.

The result of the Munich Congress finally was the appeal to the European nations to recognize the historic significance of the unification of all Free Nations and to develop a spirit of European solidarity". A memorandum is to be submitted to the governments of all countries that participated in the Congress.

The Munich Congress participants were in an optimistic mood, for in the fact that the initiative of the European Movement has, for years throughout all of Europe, with the action of East Bloc countries, no less as in practically the world that for the majority of European countries a official identity card will be considered to be sufficient instead of a passport. If in fact the special Belgian Ex-Foreign Minister Wigny describes the future United Europe as a Europe of people and not one of statesmen and diplomats; however, the German President of the EEC Commission, Professor Hallstein, reiterated the responsibility for the realization of the "United States of Europe" to the politicians, statesmen and diplomats, whom he demanded

Otherwise the price of garden vegetables remained firm with carrots, beets and onions selling at a nickel a bunch. Cauliflower brought up to 25 cents a head, while there was a scattering of green peas at 10 cents a quart. Wax and string beans sold at 10 cents a berry box.

At least one farmer is taking no chances on flight lingered gentlemen pestering the family car. On the market this morning a home-boosted mechanical chariot stood placidly at ease in a line of vehicles. Wrapped around the handles of the doors and connecting bolt, was a heavy chain, which in turn was fastened with a heavy lock.

Stretching Your Neck Helps Cervical Arthritis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I would appreciate information on cervical arthritis — how it is treated.

This is arthritis of the cervical vertebrae — some or all of the bones which are in the neck.

Usually it is the degenerative or declining type that is characterized by a slow change and not, fortunately, the fulminating, crippling, destructive form.

The edges of the bone thicken gradually, resulting in stiffness and, quite important, sometimes exerting pressure on nerves. This can create certain symptoms which the patient may not connect with the cause.

Pain in the neck, or pain when the neck is turned far, is obvious. There may also be a spasm of the neck muscles — a wry or stiff neck. Or at times pain may be reflected into the arms or shoulders even though the back itself is comfortable.

There may be giddiness on bending the head backward.

There may also be a sense of tightening or numbness in the fingers, or be patient wonders, "What's wrong with my hands?" when the problem is really in the neck.

This particular arthritis seems to be more troublesome in the early hours of the morning. Changing position in bed, or raising or lowering pillow levels often helps. The trouble as a rule disappears after the patient is up in the morning.

Other than the simple pain relievers, the principal treatment is neck traction, a simple physiotherapy procedure that can be done at home. A head halter, fitted with a chin support, is worn exert a moderate pulling action, draws the neck bones apart a little.

Short periods of this traction often give remarkable relief, whereas all the wrappings, salve or other things applied to the outside of the neck do little if any effect at all.

Practically every beginning doctor's help in the pathology to get the sort of halter and weight required, but then you can do it yourself. Remember, however, that violent manipulation of the neck can exaggerate your distress and, at times, even be dangerous. Just be gentle.

Dear Dr. Molner: Why no publish a leaflet on Buerger's Exercises? I have read of them in people past 50, or 60.

In essence the exercises are extremely simple. Also, especially useful to people who have impaired circulation in the legs. I do tell people how to do these exercises in my leaflet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." (This leaflet is available to anyone in return for a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 5c in coin to cover printing and handling costs. Send requests to Dr. Molner, in care of this paper.)

Dear Dr. Molner: In the enclosed article it says that two parents with Type O blood can have a child with Type A blood. I always thought Type O was a recessive blood group. I wonder if there was an error in this article. — K.S., age 15.

How right you are.

Here is a complete list of the blood groups possible in children from various combinations of the parents' types:

O plus O must be O in the child.

O plus A can be O or A.

A plus A can be A or O.

O plus B can be O or B.

B plus B can be B or O.

A plus B can be any type — O, A, B or AB.

A plus AB can produce children of any type except O — that is, they may be A, B or AB.

Fall My leaflet, "The Lost Secret of Reducing" tells how to get rid of it the easy way. For your copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Ontario Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 666, Toronto, Ont. Enclosing a long self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover handling and postage.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the nesting boxes in view of our cottage verandah has been occupied several years by wee members of the tit family, tall swift birds, steel blue on the back and white on the breast, who seem to have made a snug mobile conceived by art as well as by nature to withstand the silence all spring and summer in the air around the cottage.

This year the nest has a brood of four, and it had been a pleasure to watch the parent birds showing the wide world to the young, now that they are out of the box. Professional ornithologists will doubtless have something to say about some of the behavior of the six birds in the family that is the neighborhood, returning time after time, the downtown area. One alderman suggested that the merchants would be willing to pay part of their customers' parking fees.

There a few words in regard to traffic problems. I believe that the most practical location for a new bridge across the River would be alongside the existing Upper Bridge, by purchasing the O'Flynn property at the north end of the bridge and part of the Moore Basement property on Front St., making the existing upper bridge for northbound traffic only, and the new one for southbound only and tie together with the proposed widening of the North Front St. overhead bridge, would greatly relieve the traffic congestion in that area. This would be far more important at the present than a new bridge at College St.

Sir Francis Drake attacked the Spanish Armada off the English coast, July 21, 1588. Philip II of Spain had sent 132 ships, 33,000 soldiers and seven to attack England. Storms at sea and the attacks of Drake's ships destroyed the Spanish fleet between July 21 and 29. Only 54 ships were able to return to Spain.

Thanks Expressed By Salvation Army

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

May we through the columns of your newspaper make public acknowledgement of the support given by your publication and for the generous response of the people.

Indications are that the appeal will again be successful nationally when delayed campaigns are completed and all returns are in. This gives cause for gratitude to God.

The part played by your papers in bringing the appeal to the attention of the people is fully recognized. Final figuring is not easy, therefore it is essential that the public be made aware of the Salvation Army's needs, its purposes and its methods.

Suggests Another Location for Parking

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Having been in business on Front Street for a long time, I wish to express a few thoughts on the timely topic of civic street parking for the downtown area of the city. It is common knowledge that the merchants, property owners and professional personnel in the downtown section pay a large share of the city's taxes and should receive considerable if not all the benefit and responsibility of the proposed new parking area is a very good one, but the price of purchasing these valuable properties on Clarke St. and Campbell St., combined with the cost of demolishing levelling and paving of the whole area is the objection: be a very excessive proposition.

There is another location which I believe would serve the purpose in every way and perhaps at about one-third of the cost. I refer to the Goodman property, formerly known as the Jimmie Roy Brewery premises, situated just north of the Capri, Hair Stylist and the former Seldon's Drug store. This area would provide almost the same parking accommodation as the proposed one if it were combining with a much needed improvement on the East bank of the river from the foot bridge northward to the vicinity of the Bridge Hotel.

I am sure the property owners in this area would gladly donate their river bank properties for this purpose. This would create a very decided improvement to the appearance of the river bank and greatly facilitate the flow of water during the spring freshet, thus in a manner of speaking, killing two birds with one stone. It is possible that expropriation proceedings might be required for some parcels in either location.

Perhaps in the not too distant future it may be necessary to have some free parking in seconds apart, to the nesting box, almost alighting, then with a quick jerk, to wait and swerve like aimless arrows to the entrance hole. As the parents teaching the young that the nest is now no longer their home, but their home is now the whole wide sky, clear down to the Carolinas and the Gulf of Mexico, where they will winter.

I think it is sheer play, rejoicing in the feeling of life, for I cannot believe in teaching them, think of the existentialists and the novelists, of our time and the attacks of Drake's ships destroyed the Spanish fleet between July 21 and 29. Only 54 ships were able to return to Spain.

1833—The first railway in Canada was opened, running from La Prairie to St. Jean, Quebec.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

William Ellsworth Witter was teaching in a district school near his home in Le Grange, New York when, one day in the fall of 1878, the first line of the hymn, "While Jesus Whispers To You", came to him in a moment of inspiration.

He was busy with some outdoor chores near the school at the time and, according to his own story later, the hymn "sang itself" to him, line by line, until he had set down several stanzas.

Horatio Palmer, the hymnist-composer, asked Witter one day to contribute a hymn to a collection of religious songs he was assembling, and Witter submitted this one. Mr. Palmer set it to music, it soon found its way into the hymn books of the day, and was taken up by evangelistic song leaders. Ira Sankey, it is said introduced it in England when he went to the British Isles to hold revival meetings with Dr. Dwight L. Moody.

A few years after the hymn was written, Mr. Witter gave up his school teaching to enter the ministry.

A Lift For Living

Too Many of Us Satisfied With Hazy View of Life

By Dr. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

In every classroom teachers will tell you how few of the students really listen. They may all be sitting with their eyes open. Some have a look of grand indifference. Others have a kind of hazy stare of wonderment. Then there are the few who have a searching intensity in their gaze. They are the select few who belong to what Halford Luccock called "the aristocracy of the attentive." They are the ones to whom you will follow up to explore the subject further. From this group come the inventors, the discoverers, the real scholars.

So is it with a congregation as the gospel is being preached. All those present may have their eyes open — more or less — but only a few have that intentness of gaze which indicates that their attention is really focused and they will follow the subject further. In our prosperous American university, there is a custom that after the hour-long service those who wish to ask the preacher any further questions may go with him to a room and talk it over. That is an excellent provision, for a sermon is designed to raise questions even more than to settle them. A good sermon should start the hearers on the search for more light.

CONTINUE TO LOOK

The sad thing is that so often we stop with just a vague hazy view of Jesus Christ, himself. Practically everyone has a general impression of Jesus. We know the beautiful story of Bethlehem and the Golden Rule which He taught us. We are familiar with the parables of the Prodigal Son and the Good Samaritan. We know that Palm Sunday commemorates Christ's royal entry into Jerusalem; Good Friday, His crucifixion; and Easter Sunday, His triumph over death. But comparatively few there are that thought as Christ long enough to comprehend the sweep of His teaching, to peer into the meaning of His atoning death or to see the bridge between His life and ours.

Or consider how hazy is our view of the Bible. We have a general impression. We have some general, vague ideas about the "Good Book," as we call it. But have we focused our study on it long enough to get the amazing facts of the story of Eden? Do we see the sweep of the whole drama of Israel's history from the patriarchs through the law and the prophets, through the exile and the exile down to the coming of One whom 400,000,000 of us call the Christ? Do we understand the unfolding of revelation, the apostles' work in each period it was right to say, "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," while in a later period the divine order was, "Love your enemies"?

How many adults do any consistent, connected study of God's word? Our attitude toward Bible study is very much like that of the young college sophomore who found himself sitting next to a distinguished astronomer at dinner. She did not know who he was, but when she asked him what he did and he replied that he taught astronomy, she exclaimed, "How interesting! We studied that last semester." So we have the superficial sophomoric idea that we finished Bible study when we were in our teens — as if any one could exhaust the riches of interest hidden beneath the pages of the Holy Book.

VIEWS ARE HAZY

So, too, our views of our fellow men are hazy. We see our brothers not as individuals, but as a vague mass called humanity.

The tragedy of those vague views is not merely that we miss the satisfaction of knowing them; but these half-views and half-truths are so dangerous. When our view of the Bible is so vague, any little flippant skeptic can toss us out of the ark of faith into the sea of doubt. When our view of Christ is so hazy, we can be misled into following almost any erratic interpretation of Him. When our view of the church is so partial and parochial, any little parish squabble can shake our belief in the Body of Christ. When our view of humans is so unclear, we can be so cruel. The person with his opinion does not focused in a spiritual peril to himself and others. He needs to see life clearly and see it whole.

We are eager to see more and more. We travel more to see the world. We spend more time with television. But we might profitably spend a few minutes in prayer and ask: "Are you looking more and seeing less?"

Recall the blind man whom Jesus healed. Jesus touched his eyes and asked, "Do you see anything?" The man looked up and said: "I see men; for they look like trees, walking." The Great Physician laid his hands again on the man's eyes, and "he looked intently and saw everything clearly."

Do we need Christ's second touch?

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

We think of toes as essentials for walking or (for birds) hopping and perching, however, they are very useful for many other purposes. When a wise crowned sparrow kicking dead leaves in order to find weed seeds underneath. Perhaps you have seen an osprey catch a fish with its feet and fly off carrying the prey in its rough talons as we would carry something with our hands. The great horned owl feels a rabbit or opossum in its mind takes while bearing it apart with its beak. Woodpeckers, nuthatches, and brown creepers cling to perpendicular surfaces by their feet and chickadees hang from twigs by their toes like acrobats.

Several birds use their feet for shovels. A gentle, is a short-legged, heavily built diving bird that can paddle its toes which are webbed and all point forward. It needs to be a burrower gradually dug out by its own feet but sometimes made by a petrel, a longer-legged bird also web-footed sea bird that always does its own digging.

Most many of us see puffins and petrels, but kingfishers are quite common. The feet which cast to coast across Canada wherever sand-banks and water are in close proximity. They are odd looking birds with very big, crested heads, huge bills, exceptionally short legs, and feet so small that we wonder how they can be useful. Yet, these tiny feet are properly equipped. Three of the feet toes point forward. The inner one is very short; the other two are connected for half their length, forming a broad, flattened sole. With this shovel, the kingfisher is able to dig out earth to make a long tunnel for a home in a bank.

Have you ever seen birds paddling in water to get up speed before taking off? Coots, grebes, and several kinds of ducks have feet made to act like water skis. Coots' feet are extensively large, with long toes furnished with flaps of sheet-like skin. Grebes' toes have flat, scalloped edges, making them artistic stilts for patter-ing over the top of the water, or to use as paddles when swimming. Ducks have all their toes joined together with a similar web of skin and several species find this arrangement good not only for swimming but also for walking on the surface of the water.

U.C.W. Meet At Summer Cottage

HALLOWAY — The meeting of the Halloway United Church Women was held on July 19th, at the summer cottage of Mrs. Harry McMullen, on Moira Lake, with a good attendance.

The "Messengers," formerly called "Mission Band," were also present, and a picnic lunch was served at noon, which was enjoyed by all.

Following this the Messengers presented a short but impressive service.

Scripture was chosen from St. Mark 1:14-18 and read by Frances MacKenzie, and Janet Wilson gave a meditation on the Scripture.

The offering was received by Susan Wellman and Susan Robson.

Boys' recitations, the "Sees of the Bible," were given by Steven Hough, Gary Wilson, Ted, David, Robert Huffman, Bruce Kennedy, Glen McMullen, and a dialogue by the girls was presented by Marilyn Kennedy, Marlene Tufts, Linda and Caroline Wilson.

Frances MacKenzie, on behalf of the group, thanked Mrs. McMullen and Glen.

Hymns used were "Jesus Loves Me," and "God Sees the Little Sparrow Fall."

Following this, the youngsters enjoyed swimming.

A business period, conducted by the U.C.W. president, Mrs. Huffman, included reports given by Mrs. Hough, treasurer, and Mrs. E. Tufts, on behalf of the Messengers.

Motions to have outstanding bills paid were made.

The next meeting to be in September, at the home of Mrs. A. Stanley.

Women's Activities

SCOTT'S U.C.W.

STH SIDNEY — Scott's United Church Women met at the home of Mrs. Harry Perry on Thursday evening. There were 11 members and two visitors present.

The president, Mrs. Carmen Frost, opened with a call to worship and prayer and the singing of a hymn. Mrs. Ross read the 23rd Psalm responsively the meditation.

There were 13 cards sent and 13 calls made.

Mrs. Pollard centred her program on "Africa."

Mrs. A. Martyn read 1 Corinthians 13.

Mrs. Pollard said in part, "if we have charity which is unselfish and kind we will not worry about wars, bombs or terrible things to come. Love is the language everyone understands. Jesus is the incarnation of love. That is why He appeals to all manner of men. Followers of Jesus are known by their love for one another." Knowledge, wealth, skills, ability to love are nothing without love. Henry Drummond says "the greatest thing in the world is love."

"A missionary in his meditation said that though he had the ability to preach, the skill of a surgeon the technique of an agriculturist and the knowledge of a teacher he couldn't accomplish anything for God "if I have not love for people he was with'"

Mrs. Allen Sine read the character in the Study Book, but first called on Mrs. Edison Sine for a report of the work done since the last meeting. Mrs. Sine said "we can't do much to aid the cause of the refugees; but, when 13 small rural churches unitied in their effort they were able to accomplish a great deal. They brought out a refugee family, provided a furnished home, secured a job and established them in the community.

Mrs. Allen Sine's topic was "the rural church and the difficulties it faces in these changing times and other topics were the isolation, dwindling members, the hazards the farmer faces to secure adequate help, the higher cost of living, the future of the youth to obtain living, and the scarcity of ministers.

The offering was taken and Mrs. Cooper closed the meeting.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Edison Sine, served lunch.

California Challenges Europe In Quality Wine Production

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Sonoma, Calif. — The sun showed ghostly in San Francisco's morning fog rolling in like smoke. The shoggirls and stores in their summer dresses and their short-pleated town hills prodigious hills, spoke heels bushed by Sarah in T. Magnin paper bags.

We checked a shiny new factory out of the Hertz garage and pointed it northward across the Golden Gate Bridge. You run out of both fog and city quickly here; soon we were among the low green hills of Marin County and beyond in the sometimes flat, sometimes rolling, but usually green Valley of the Moon.

This is the most colorful of the several historic wine lands of California, home of an 11th century rebirth given the title of the largest cultivated food crop. Sonoma is where the storied California Republic was born in 1846. Among the towns rated are the northernmost of the early 19th-century Franciscan missions, and the carefully preserved home of the Mexican military governor, General Vallejo, who became an American patriot.

We drove up a mountain road and emerged on a height above a gracefully terraced vineyard. This is the property of Beringer Brothers, a private plumbing of James D. Callahan, who has devoted it to Italy and paper industry tycoon, who started it six years ago to make "the finest table wines can be as good as Europe's great ones, if not greater — when He's satisfied it has been done and sells his carefully fermented wines at $2.00 gallons a year at $6.00 a fifth. That's about the price you'll pay for a table wine produced in this country.

THE QUESTION

The question of Bordeaux Burgundy et Cie versus Sonoma and Napa Chars is a ticklish one with Californians. Hamond Beringer, who is largely in the hands of Ralph Bradford Webb, a college-bred chemist who is the first person to call winemaker in the Italian Swiss Colony commercial. He gave us a short course in le difference, vive or not.

To make a comparison, California labels its table wines with the varietal grape name (cabernet sauvignon, pinot chardonnay) rather than the European system under which the type may be associated. Unlike many other countries, the United States is not bound to do this by treaty. But it does so as a matter of choice and is going to establish the American types. The bottle battle is mainly Cabernet — 20,000 tons of all U.S. wine is produced here.

Last changing names be considered begging the question. Webb pointed out that the tasting of wine can be highly personal. Connoisseurs have been fooled in blindfold tests about half the time. To get the most consumer's mind, Hazzell and Beringer frankly copy European bottles and labels and cork their bottles instead of screw — capping them, though some expects say it's all the same.

Webb admits that Europe — particularly France — is ahead of us in the experience and breeding of grape types. There is also a difference in soils that may or may not produce a better wine from the same grape. But U.S. techniques produce a greater consistency of quality, and California's uniform climate makes virtually every year a vintage year.

We drove over to St. Helena and the huge old Beringer Winery, one of only seven on the public which together draw an estimated 1,000,000 visitors a year. Jacob and Frederick Beringer started here in 1876 and built a monstrous Victorian-Rhineland mansion that duplicated the family castle on the Rhine. The brothers are memorialized by stained glass doors. They are, of course, the same reason, in medieval manner.

Beringer's is a traditional old country winery, one of the few (less than 10 per cent of U.S. production) producing wine by long natural aging. It goes on in limestone caves on the property, dug out over a 10-year period by pick and coolie. These caves are the largest in the United States, and the walls are covered with velvety black moss which throws off the oxygen essential to natural processing.

Beringer has some magnificent hand-carved oak casks made in the Black Forest centuries ago. They are prized because they are irreplaceable; you can't hardly get no one so do that kind of work today. The casks are oval so more wine touches the wood surfaces during aging.

Like the other wineries, Beringer suffered its share of misfortunes. The 1906 earthquake buried much wine production and left cracks in the walls that are still visible.

Then there was prohibition. The wineries survived by producing grape juice and medicinal wines. As everyone knows, there were a lot of sick people around in those days.

WEST HILL

Friday, July 13 baseball game—King George versus West Hill. The game was rather one-sided because the West Hill players were aged 7 to 10 and the King George team were ages 8 to 13. Although the West Hill team was beaten 33 to 3 they played a very good game and the King George playground hopes that West Hill will give them a return match on a more even basis. This game was an exhibition game.

Tournament Day at King George playground was a big success with 40 children participating. The checker king was Ron Rountree. The winner of the bean bag toss was Doug Hanna. The tug-on cricket champs were Gary Hannah and Joe Scott.

Supervisor: Jane Ketcheson.

BAYVIEW SCHOOL

On July 18, a "Doll and Boy Day" was held at Bayview school playground. At one o'clock the children decorated the picnic tables, upon which the many dolls were exhibited, with blue and white paper streamers, and also decorated a "throne" in honor of the doll to be chosen "the most beautiful." A parade began at 1.30, and this having been completed, a "Scavenger Hunt" took place at 2.00 o'clock. Later when the teams had returned from their "hunting," a peanut scramble ended Bayview's "Special Event."

The supervisor was assisted in the judging by Brenda Mallinger, Julie Ball and Dennis Lee.

Winners were: Marlene Adamson for the smallest doll; Laurie Hewson for the largest doll, Pam Mallinger, for the most beautiful doll, Janet Ward and Linda Hewson for the most beautiful dolls, and Rhonda Green and Jean-Marie Scanlan for the most unusual dolls.

The winners from the boy's exhibit, composed mostly of model airplanes, were: Jim Gillespie, Gary Smith and Jerry and Gord McLellan. The youngest team to be the scavenger hunt included Addie Bell, Ronnie and Jim Poulton, Dennis Dill, Jeff Helm and Lorne Latchford. Winners for the peanut scramble were Jeff Helm and Dennis Lee.

Readers' Saturday Column

by Mary Moore

Question: I enjoy your recipes and liked very much those I made from them every day. I wonder if you could help me? I decorate wedding cakes, and I am running out of ideas. Do you know of any book I might be able to get that would give me ideas and also that I could give to show brides so that they could pick out their own ideas, on how they would like me to decorate their cakes? - - - Young Widow.

Answer: I can help you and other cake decorators. A book entitled "Aleco Simplified Cake Decorating" by August Thomsen & Co., 490 Woodward Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y. (I think) it costs under $2.00) is one. Another is "Decorating Cakes for Fun and Profit" by Richard Snyder and costs about $4.00 and would have to be ordered through your local bookstore. It is published by Exposition Press of New York City. Good luck. -

Question: I do like your recipes. Am trying the strawberry and pineapple jam today, also frozen strawberry jam. Would you kindly give a recipe for canning strawberries, also black currant jam? - - - I. C. E.

Answer: You did not give me your name and address. If you had I could have mailed you the method. Now it is too late to can strawberries but here is the recipe for BLACK CURRANT JAM.

Wash, top and tail black currants and measure 6 cups. Add 5 cups of water, bring to boil and cook gently, uncovered, until tender - about 20 minutes. Add 6½ cups sugar, bring to boil and boil uncovered for 5 to 8 minutes or until it will jell when tested on cold plate or until when a spoonful is tipped up two drops will form and run together. Pour into sterile jam jars and coat with clean melted paraffin, adding a second coating when first is cold.

Question: Would you please tell me how to make red currant jelly? - - - Ann B.

Answer:

RED CURRANT JELLY

Wash and remove red currants from stems. Measure. With potato masher crush one layer of berries in flat-bottomed preserving kettle. To make juices start, add ¼ cup water for each 4 cups berries. (An 8 cup-batch of berries is ideal. Do not make a bigger batch). Continue crushing berries until all are added. Boil gently until tender - about 10 - 15 minutes. Pour into jelly bag and allow to drip - preferably overnight. Do not squeeze bag. Measure. Bring to boil. At once add ¾ cup sugar for each 1 cup measured juice. Boil until when spoonful of jelly is tipped above kettle 2 distinct drops form at edge and then "sheet" together. This indicates jell-stage is reached. Pour into sterile jelly glasses. Cover with clean melted paraffin, adding second coat when first is set.

Mother's Helper

SOAP SUDS can be used for many things other than washing. Make them thick, add food coloring, and they'll become frosting for mud cakes. Whipped up in the same way, they'll serve as effective finger paints. And the clean-up job is so easy!

BREAKFAST AT MONTREAL

"What is there given by the gods more desirable than a happy hour?"—Cebullus.

Suddenly, most unexpectedly, my husband asks me to attend a breakfast appointment with him. And where? Montreal!

But of course! -

In order to attend, we leave Belleville during star-clad morning hours, to face a rather eerie, haunted motoring world. It is a world of car-less. Only phantom-like motels filled with sleeping guests, give evidence of cars, yet still they clattered about them. It is like speeding through an unpeopled world.

Almost imperceptibly, we drive into a pale distant lustre; the first sign of sunrise. How unreal, dreamlike, to witness this amazing miracle-ritual of beauty! The St. Lawrence River faithfully, unhurriedly records (however temporarily) exquisite hints of gold, pink and blue that caress, yet lessen, yellow lights like stars, sprinkled about its shores.

Anticipation mysteriously envelopes trees which slowly emerge with glistening, newly green leaves. The roadside grass is dew-jeweled. Sapphire lavolins spike dancing meadows where green grows. Daisies frost ripened fields. Stray whisps of milk-white mist creep numb-like over tiny inlets in stately fashion. The sky and river deepen, drenched in rosy-pink and cerise. The sunrise is unfurling today.

Still no traffic. Even now, none in Montreal environs. Nor in the city itself. Except while service water-wagons (trucks really) whose forceful spray washes the streets. Every tram, reflect in watery lines, tall, colorful business, city buildings beneath the sky's freshly tinted blue and rose; a Chinese water-color in the heart of Montreal.

Here we park the car. We gasp over familiar buildings, now dwarfed, crouched beside the new Bank of Commerce building. Its slim shaft of steel, chrome and glass makes a looker-upper feel like falling down to see its towering, dizzying height.

But, Dominion Square with its familiar scarf of green and pensive benches reaches us just as city chime and bells announce the appointed breakfast hour and suddenly all the music of the ming (and heart) is set a singing for such a propitious day to a wedding anniversary.

Believingette: Before our Montreal departure, we drive by which mammoth "in-coming and out-going" transcontinental planes, from the second story balcony that extends the entire length of one side of the gargantuan, rectangular, five-story structure of the Dorval airport terminal, where signs are printed in Spanish, French and English. The dark-haired saleslady in one of the International gift shops says "I've yet to explore this building in its entirety. In fact, I've never been higher than this second floor. And I've been here since November. It's much too big; there just isn't enough time; other than for me to get here and leave in time to catch my car-pool, since I live in the city. Never been in any of the restaurants either; too expensive a daily diet. I bring my own lunch".

Crowds throng entrances. Greetings of welcome or farewell fill the air. What fun to meet some one (though we did not) from Belleville here, unexpectedly. As did Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Finlayson, 118 Queen Street, meet Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Wishart, 154 Dufferin Ave., in a departmental store in Copenhagen, Denmark, on a recent tour abroad. As did Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Bateman, 155 Bleecker Ave., meet Mrs. R. C. (Dorothy) Walsh, 238 Bridge St., at the Calgary Zoo (last year). As did Mr. and Mrs. Alan Sprague, 245 Victoria St., meet in a shared taxi in Rome, a Toronto cousin of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Porter, 15 Mt. Pleasant Road. "Though my husband and I met on Broadway recalls Mrs. J. N. Yanover, 196 Bridge St., friends of ours from New York were constantly meeting many New Yorkers they knew, as we sat at a sidewalk cafe in Rome . . ."

Have you had any similar experience? Do tell us about it. (Send letters in care of this column to the Ontario Intelligencer.)

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Raphael G. — I don't want her to leave all decisions to me.

Cherry G. — He's the smart one. Whatever he decides is O.K.

* * *

Raphael G. — I want my wife to take some interest in the important plans I'm trying to make to protect her own future. But she throws up her hands, shrugs her shoulders and says she'd rather leave that kind of thing to me. When I try to discuss things like insurance, a will, Wall Street or real estate she refuses to join in. She either walks away or changes the subject to something flighty.

This is no way for a 40-year-old woman to act. Right now I'm in the throes of negotiating for some life insurance. Even though the rates will be high at my age, it will be a wonderful protection for Cherry and our sons. I have an agent calling next week and I insist that she be present, listen to, ask questions and participate.

Cherry G. — I leave all the business and serious matters to Rafe. That's a man's domain. As a woman, I have absolutely no head for such complicated considerations.

Whatever Rafe decides is O.K. with me. He's the brains one of the family. I can't see any use for more insurance anyway. We have a policy for the car, and something for fire and theft, I think. Mr. Somebody, allsation Insurance. For the future there's Social Security and it's just a bunch of words — term, endowment, group. I'd rather leave it to Rafe. End of the discussion. Even as a child I walked away from my parents when they talked about dull things like mortgages, taxes, estates. I knew my father would handle everything beautifully.

* * *

The Council: Flattery will get you nowhere, Cherry! Calling your husband brainy in contrast to hopeless, helpless Nellie-you doesn't mask the fact that you are a slacker.

Life is catching up with you, Cherry. There are cooks who specialize in fluffy omelets, but they must also know how to make a hearty barley soup. A cash-in-hand bridge-player can't yearn limit herself to decking how many ruffles to put on the bedspread. She must look into the Gemite situation, too, and the backflow in the basement. She can't flutter her hands and roll cow-like eyes in helplessness.

Raphael has not been called for an end to Cherry's run-out bill. "You can do it so much better, darling," is being answered by, "You can do it all right, too, girlie." We second his motion for Cherry to be a voting member of the council on insurance, drawing to the sales pitch of the agent.

Dismissing the problems of Cherry's future by relying upon Social Security is like sticking her head in the sand and saying, "Tell me when it's all over." Does Cherry realize that if Raphael dies before she reaches age 62 and after her children reach age 16 the payments won't be available? Does she know that a policy for $10,000 is worth $10,000 (in the event of death) the minute the first premium is paid, whereas it would take years to accumulate that amount in a savings account? This releases savings for a few here-and-now needs. How many women know, also, that money paid to a beneficiary is not taxable?

Cherry need not run from the subject as a morbid one because it involves death. The terms of a policy can take the sting out of life, too, for Raphael can turn to it as a source of comfort during his retirement years.

We're not presenting the case for insurance, so much as the case against a woman's deliberate disinterestedness. The future, Cherry, now so comfortably vague and distant, can turn into the present any minute.

Youthful Swimsuit

Tempting, luscious colors glow on young, knitted swimsuits fashioned of synthetic yarn. Designed for the sub-teen girl, the suit's richly colored fabric refuses to sag or stretch and comes in such combinations as hot pink on a lime background or royal blue with orange.

These bright shades are marvellous in a sun and sand setting.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LOWE

A RUSTIC, BUT HECTIC, WEEK END

Question: My husband and I are recuperating from a very exhausting week end. Friends invited us to their Summer home in the country for some fresh air and relaxation. We had plenty of the former, but I'm afraid, very little of the latter.

"Relaxation" consisted of being routed out of bed at seven in the morning so we could down a fast breakfast then hike a mile to a nearby sanctuary so we could hike five miles more on a nature tour.

After lunch — we walked back, naturally — next on the agenda was a trip to a lake for a swim and a romp with the children. This consisted of a softball game with males versus females, then youngsters versus oldsters and any number of other wild combinations.

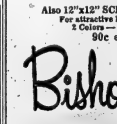
I was on the verge of collapse by dinner time, which turned out to be a cook-out for which we all foraged for twigs and performed sundry other duties before being permitted formally to relax over a medium-burned steak.

The next day was almost a repeat, except that we were taken on a drive through the countryside after lunch. It was a welcome relief after a few fast sessions of volley ball and badminton that we were "invited" to join in order to work up an appetite for a midday picnic. If I had had enough strength, I would have gladly hiked into town and sent myself a telegram saying I was urgently needed at home to greet a just-arrived maiden (and mythical) old aunt.

The point of this sad recitation is this: Shouldn't house guests be given some time off for good behavior? Most weekenders die everything their hostess has planned, or is it permissible to let them have a well-earned snooze occasionally? Your answer will determine whether or not we go away for any more week ends this Summer. — Mrs. R.A.C., New York City.

Answer: Too often, an overambitious hostess confuses regimentation with hospitality. Like a social director, she thinks that every minute has to be filled with activity for her guests to have a good time.

While she may have some sort of a program mapped out, a considerate hostess does leave some time free for a guest to take a nap, lounge around or even take a walk — so he can commune with nature alone instead of in a crowd.



But if the schedule gets too hectic, it's permissible for a guest to beg off from some of the activities. Naturally, well-behaved house-guests can't shun all the planned projects, like picnics and other outings. Guests also are expected to join in the family meals and at the times specified. But if a guest doesn't feel like playing tennis a 9 a.m. high noon in the middle of the morning or taking day sun, he may properly speak up and suggest that others enjoy such sports while he takes a siesta.

Of course, a guest just can't go off on his own and ignore his hostess' wishes completely. But, on the other hand, her plans should be flexible enough to allow for alternatives when the prospects aren't inviting to your guests. Time is a precious week end requires some planning, but it should take into consideration the desires of hosts and guests equally.

Successful Living

Alcoholics Can Be Helped

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I have been married 21 years and have three children (two grown up and away now).

My husband is an alcoholic. He lies not only to me but to every one. He also never knows when he has enough drink.

Eleven years ago our home was destroyed by fire. He didn't have the insurance back into a home but spent it foolishly. A year later we bought a new car for $1,900. I lived in a state for nine years. He has no sense of responsibility. I worked so hard that I paid off my half and as a result I had to have a heavy operation, yet he treats me like a floor mop.

At times there wasn't enough to eat, yet every penny went on liquor. I feel he had no decent upbringing. No mother to guide him. My two older children left as soon as they were through school as they couldn't stand his drinking and I never could dress them like they should have been.

I feel I can't take any more. I would appreciate it if you can give me the address of a marriage counsellor. I wanted to go to our minister. He scared me when I was frightened and didn't go, but this is final now.—UNNERVED.

DEAR UNNERVED—Have you stuck because you thought you could raise him? What a losing battle!

He has finally outgrown your patience and left you completely drained. Twenty-one years of struggle with a mate who never got over his unhappy childhood calls for superior, personal treatment.

Alcoholism can be treated and controlled. Even older persons can be helped to see the light—some of them. So go with my blessing to the Children's Aid Society, 63 West Adelaide Street, Belleville, which counsels on family problems as well as when children are involved.

DEAR DORIS:—I started dating this guy and at Christmas time he proposed to me. My parents know how we feel but they are not too crazy about our plans.

You see, this guy is in the navy. He will be out next year and then we plan on getting married. He used to drink quite a bit but now has quit because I gave him no choice and besides he wants a happy marriage.

My parents feel he's just no good, although he's really making something of himself in the navy. I love this guy very much and do want things a little happier around here, but my parents are trying so very hard to break up us.

I sure hope to have some solution, Doris, to my problem, because right now I'm A WRECK.

—"A WRECK."

DEAR WRECK:—Perhaps you are the anchor your sailor needs. There's time to show whether he can chart a sober course.

Your parents will change if he proves he has. Just stick by the ship. By next year you'll know whether he has really made a wreck of things—or whether it's clear sailing.

DEAR DORIS—I am in my early teens (14) and a boy (15) has asked me to go to a dance with him. It is my first date and I suppose you realize I am a little nervous.

If he goes to kiss me when he brings me home, should I let him?—FIRST DATE.

DEAR FIRST DATE—If you weren't nervous you wouldn't be human. But no kisses; not this time. You will show poise by refusing. With a smile.

The Golden Years

Retired Spinsters Can Find Things to Do by Using Wits

By THOMAS COLLINS

The single woman who is coming up to retirement will have all the fears and frustrations most such women have . . . it shouldn't.

There's no need for it if the woman has the will to live, says Mr. Collins.

"I retired with a handful of nothing," said a spinster to another morning as she sat on her back step and looked out at her three years since she got her pension. "I wasn't satisfied, and I hadn't been taken out by a man in 30 years. I knew nothing except how to clerk behind a department store counter. I had no savings except a $185 a month retirement income and a four-room apartment in an old house in an old section of town. No family. No friends to speak of.

"But I had a parakeet. So did a fellow in the next block. The family wanted to take a vacation. They offered me $2 a week to board their parakeet.

Ten parakeets would be $20 a week. Two dogs boarded at $7.50 each would be $15 a week. Two cats at $5 each would be $12 a week. The spinster began using her mind.

SENT POSTCARDS

"I sent out postcards to families in a favorable radius of my apartment, offering room and board to pets. I got permission from my landlord to build a wire enclosure for three dogs in the back yard. I figured I could clear out my dining room and handle everything else I got there . . ."

She didn't make money over-night. It took about a week's rancid, during which among other things, she learned she had to send postcards to walk-in to-do people instead of ordinary ones. And during which she learned that a stock of pet foods, dog leashes, cat beds, bird cages, etc., etc., should be placed on shelves in her dining room — brought a good deal more.

"I was talking to a vet the other day," she said, "I may have to move my stand-board across into here twice a week to treat pets, paying me a commission on my stand-board system for vets who come to him . . ."

The spinster had learned how to do it with parakeets. If she had a back yard where the law and neighbors allow it, she can start a dog kennel and breed Collies, or Boxers, or Great Danes. She can start a book-shop, an antique shop, a gift shop, a candy shop — again, if she will use her wits. And one of the ways to make money is to specialize in a company of, say, three regular customers. In the case of an antique shop, one might be buying, one the selling, one the promotion and management.

The cash outlay needed to start a candy stand shop could be met better from the thrift savings of three women than one. And the women possessed a considerable retirement income to support them until they could wait for profits to start rolling.

OTHER POSSIBILITIES

Some other possibilities:

The retired spinster as book-keeper, willing to work for less, and with small real estate offices, insurance, pulp agencies and such. Not big ones, but small ones at the outskirts of town where rents are hard to beat long, but the jobs are there.

The retired store clerk should follow suit.

The retired teacher can look to the private schools (which often have no retirement age), the textbook publishers, to the encyclopedia companies and to the largely untapped field of teaching in a man's prison.

In the main, the retired

Kremlin Must Believe West Will Use Force to Resist Drive to Evict the Allies

By SAUL PETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The man who broke the Stalin-era blockade of Berlin says the Kremlin must understand that the people of the West will resist with force if the Russians go too far in their drive to evict the Allies.

"Unless we make them understand where they are going to be met with resistance, one of these days they are going to go too far and we're going to have no choice but war," says Gen. Lucius D. Clay, President Kennedy's special representative to Berlin.

But Clay is optimistic that war can be prevented and that some day—he puts no date on it—there will be a reunified, free Germany. Clay's views are set forth in an exhaustive question-and-answer exploration of the continental Berlin crisis. This is the second of two sections of the exclusive interview with The Associated Press.

Q. General, before you went over last September you said you thought there might be some room for give and take toward a Berlin settlement. made clear you felt this might be a time for investing out basic rights. Do you still feel that way?

A. I think there is room. If the pride of the regime running East Germany is at stake, and policing the highways that they would insist on taking over this transportation, and if their troops now doing it, then there is a way to work out that and made an international highway. It could be set up under international law that there be freedom of movement on the highways, that they be policed by international police for both allies and Germans. I would think that kind of a thing we could well accept.

Q. Has this area been explored?

A. This is one of the areas which we have explored. I am sure, with our allies. I have not yet explored it with the Soviet government because the talks have not progressed to the point where I would make the talks indicate that there is some desire to give and take on both sides, these are still talks only between the United States and the Soviet Government. The United States cannot take the final position in these talks until it has also reached an agreement with its British and French allies. And, of course, I think we must add with the general concurrences of the federal republic.

Q. In West Berlin there are two instances of what in my new Soviet aggressive move?

A. The crackdown on any prompt allied reaction has been greatly improved. And for another many contingencies there could be and would be instant reaction. There is a situation in which the contingency plan would require immediate action in Berlin. There are also the cases which are so close to the isolated case of open armed war as to require perhaps a period of study and consideration before instant action. . . . I would think that if there were any real tampering with the free movement of goods to and from Berlin and for goods to and from Berlin, that before we use a physical means we would resort to economic blockades, perhaps even physical blockades rather than to go to open action. . . . If the allies wanted to respond to a blockade of Berlin with a military blockade of the Communist countries it could be very effective and tremendously cool.

Q. What sort of move on their part would be the most serious reaction on our part—in other words, a threat?

A. You've got to differentiate between the moves to blockade Berlin and the moves to get rid of it to fold up. The latter would probably start with action we could be met, at least in its initial stages, with counter measures in the economic field. I would add that. On the other hand if they were to start a movement of physical forces to stop allied movements on the highways, then you would have a situation in which it would seem to be our response would almost have to be physical.

Q. Generally, you feel that you and the (Kennedy) administration are in agreement on Berlin policy?

Changes in Communism Do Not Affect Concepts Of Class War, Domination

Editor's note: There is growing pressure for change in the Communist theory of coexistence with the free world. Does it mean a change in Communist tactics? Is the Communist drive for world power relaxing? In this final report on Communism today, AP correspondent Richard O'Regan sums up his own and the remarks of other observers on the changing complexion of the conspiracy.

By RICHARD O'REGAN

PRAGUE (AP) — Are there cracks in the Iron Curtain? Is real evolution occurring in communism?

At a tour of Communist East Europe, you will hear many diplomats expressing the view things are changing in Russia and East Europe.

These changes, they say, may be bringing communism closer to the West in thought, politics and economics.

But these changes do not mean communism has abandoned its conviction of class war and world domination, the diplomats add. They believe, they add, cannot let down its guard.

What are the changes? First, communism has found you cannot run East Europeans by Stalinism, the midnight knock of the secret police is dead. The new principle is persuasion.

Second, people who work and work and get little in return will revolt as they did in Hungary, Poland and East Berlin, throughout East Europe. So there now are more things to buy in the shops, more housing, although still many shortages. In the office is better than in Russia itself.

Third, there is more scope for individual expression and more personal freedom, in Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland, you can even criticize the regime, provided you don't propose doing away with it.

Fourth, there are attempts, particularly in Czechoslovakia, to stimulate working incentives and the theory that people all won't fit into one mould. Would it be correct to say that communism is approaching some of the ideas and practices of Western capitalism? I posed this question to a group of Europeans Communist writers, who replied:

"Let's not say that. Let's rather say that communism is becoming more humanistic. If there is good in capitalism, we will use it—without the capitalists."

In other words, the Communists don't intend to allow individuals to own the sources and means of production.

But, as popular pressure builds up through English, French and Italian goods. They need Western products to build up their own industry.

The wealth, ideas and technology of the Common Market," said one Western diplomat, "are too much for Communism. Russia and the East European satellites must keep up with it, or collapse."

Science at Work

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: High atmosphere, cloud sampling and the moon.

HEATING MECHANISM

Some variations in satellite orbits apparently are due to heating of the earth's extremely tenuous upper atmosphere ranging from 180 to 1,000 miles high.

This heating comes not just from direct sunlight, but seemingly also from a "particular wind" of particle streaming from the sun.

CLOUD HARVEST

Swedish and American scientists have set out to capture samples of curious "clouds of silver" at night from 60 miles high over Scandinavia but not over some other areas as far south.

Rockets equipped with special collectors will take samples from 53 to 72 miles high. Scientists hope to learn whether the clouds contain water vapor, and whether the water forming their nucleus comes "from the earth," from space, or both.

The moon messenger, nicknamed Greencheese, would be spherical, 6 inches in diameter, and would contain a crew of rodent to return it home.

Mick Stick Waves Yanks To 3-2 Win

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CARVER, Sports Editor

With all the talk of "lively balls", "special hats" and whatnot, there are many baseball buffs, particularly of the old school who insist Babe Ruth was the greatest slugger of them all. I go along with that.

Mickey Mantle is a great player—in my books far greater than Roger Maris is ever-will be. Mantle and Maris have one thing that the Babe didn't have. That is the television proof that all baseball stars above before they go out to play.

The Babe and Mickey have something in common too, a love of kiddies—and a wholehearted sincere appreciation of their moppet fans.

The Babe worshipped the youngsters. He visited them at school, at home and in hospitals. Once he drove sixty miles before an important game to see a crippled youngster who was an ardent admirer.

He formed and helped form "little leagues." He gave his time and money to baseball-minded youngsters—and others too. He was their idol.

Much has been written and aired of the feat and its effects on Maris who slugged out 61 homers last year to top the Babe's record, albeit over a schedule of 164 games.

You read and heard "columns" of copy anent the tension, pressure, the unending hounding by sportswriters and radio and television newsmen of Maris before and after he attained his record.

He has failed—or had failed up to a short time ago—to live up to 1962 home-run expectations. Of late, though, he seems to have hit some sort of stride, but the fact doesn't seem to have improved his public image any.

The following is part of a column written by Gary Lautiens, sports writer of the Hamilton Spectator. It speaks for itself:

"Does an athlete owe an honest performance to the public and nothing else?

"A career in anything must be based on integrity to be worthwhile but cold-blooded devotion to duty isn't enough. It is like a fire which burns brightly but gives off no heat. It is cleverness without wisdom. Routine without humanity.

"Take the case of Sessio Kovacs, a 16-year-old Hamilton girl who believes that when good people died they go to Yankee Stadium, not heaven. The Bronx Bombers are her heroes. Recently, with her father, Susan made the six-hour round trip to Detroit to watch the Yanks play the Tigers in what turned out to be a 22 inning classic.

"Two things climaxed the exciting trip. The New York victory and a book which she was able to get autographed by most of the Yankee players.

"Only one player turned her down—Roger Maris.

"By chance Susan found herself eating breakfast at the next table to the home run king. Politely she asked him to sign his name and he brusquely turned away. Afraid he may have been annoyed because of the disturbance while eating, Susan then jetlessly walked in the hotel lobby for Maris (who was with Bob Cerv) to finish. There were perhaps 10 or 15 other youngsters waiting too.

"Maris and Cerv appeared 15 minutes later and coldly pushed through the hero-worshipping children and teenagers, refusing to smile let alone sign.

"I have no quarrel with a man who argues with sports writers, flares up at other athletes or tries to excuse bad manners on the grounds of concentration. I don't agree with that sort of nonsense but I wouldn't make a federal case out of it.

"But for a man to insult and ignore young, starry-eyed customers who make possible his fat living is a little too much. Maris, a former refrigerator lubricator with some skill as swinging a bat (and not much of that this year), should be taken aside by the Yankee manager and given a lesson in deportment. Hurting kids is hardly big league."

Angel Wings Still Soaring

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Put another halo around the heads of those soaring Angels from Los Angeles. They haven't run out of miracles yet.

By scoring eight runs in the fifth inning—the biggest in their two-year life on this planet—the Angels gave manager Bill Rigney another heavenly evening Friday night.

The Angels' 8-5 victory over Cleveland Indians left them the most active dissenters to any notion of a New York Yankee runaway in the American League pennant race.

Although the Yanks powered their way to their eighth straight win, beating Washington Senators 3-2, the Angels are only 3½ games back in second place.

The Yankee triumph served to emphasize again Mickey Mantle's role as their most valuable player. He contributed a two-run homer and two singles.

Earl Battey, a goat in the eighth inning when his error permitted Baltimore to tie the score, emerged the hero with a two-run homer in the 10th inning that gave Minnesota Twins a 5-3 decision over Baltimore Orioles.

The Twins tightened their hold on third place, trailing the Yanks by 5½ games.

RARE BATTING SLUMP

Detroit Tigers broke out of a prolonged batting slump with 16 singles and 12 runs and snapped their seven-game losing streak by trimming Kansas City Athletics 10-3.

Boston's outfield went on a spree of extra-base hits. Carl Yastrzemski, Lu Clinton and Carroll Hardy belted one Red Sox bomb Chicago White Sox 8-4. It was the White Sox' fourth straight defeat.

The Angels handed the Indians their eighth straight defeat before 23,083 fans at Los Angeles. Willie Tasby's three - run homer in the fifth frame gave starter Bob McDowell, recalled Friday from Salt Lake City of the American Association, a comfortable working margin. But it wasn't until Julian Javier ran into a wild streak in the fifth inning. Lee Thomas' homer accounted for the last three runs of the big fifth inning.

The Tribe staged a mild threat in the ninth when Chuck Essegian homered. They had two men on and the tying run at the plate before the Angels finally snuffed them out. Bo Belinsky got the winner.

Mantle's 19th homer and Hector Lopez' sixth gave the Yanks all their runs as Whitey Ford won Washington's five-game winning streak. Whitey Ford was the winner over Steve Hamilton, although Whitey complained of tiredness after seven innings and gave way to a pinch hitter, Marshall Bridges finished.

TIES THEIR STORE

They were all set to put the goat's horns on Battey of the Twins because his grounder let the easy pop foul by Terry Adair in the eighth inning. Adair then singled and scored unearned run that tied the score 5-5.

However, Battey came up in the 10th after Harmon Killebrew walked and Bob Allison sacrificed, moving pitcher Jumbo Orlando Martinez to second. Battey hit his second pitch over the left-field foul pole off loser Hal Brown. Ray Moore was the winner.

In addition to Battey's homer, the Twins also had one by Zoilo Versalles. Jackie Brandt and Brooks Robinson homered for the Orioles.

Norm Cash hit two of Detroit's six homers, his 34th and 35th of the season. The first was hit off loser Diego Segui and the second off Bob Giggie, a drive over two fences in right field that traveled about 460 feet. Chico Fernandez got his 12th. Dick McAuliffe his 8th. Bill Bruton his 10th and Bob Farley his fifth. Jerry Lumpe homered for the Athletics' Don Mossi went the route with an eight-hitter for his eighth victory of the year. Yastrzemski hit two homers for the Red Sox. He added a double and knocked in three runs. Clinton tripled with the bases loaded and Hardy hit a two-run homer. Dave Schwall won his fourth game with relief pitching help from Dick Radatz. John Buchardt lost.

Balding Walloped 7-5 By Davis

By DENNIS ANDERSON

TORONTO (CP)—John Davis, a 31-year-old Burlington professional, and Frank Whibley, 36, Kitchener, were regarded as favorites today after playing plausible roles Friday in the Millar match play golf tournament.

Davis walloped defending champion Al Balding of Toronto 7 and 5 in Friday's quarter-final match, while Whibley stopped highly - rated Alvie Thompson of Toronto 3 and 2.

In the other quarter - finals, Bob Panasiuk of Toronto took Ron Capra of Hamilton to the 19th hole and a win, while Moe Norman of Toronto knocked out Roy Romain of Oakville 4 and 3.

Before meeting Whibley Thompson had shot three match rounds and one qualifying round of sub-par golf over the rolling Uplands course.

Whibley, who emerged the victor from a bitter morning match with Philippe Giroux of Pickering, Que., said after stopping Thompson:

"I played pretty well against Alvie, except on the greens."

RAIN SOAKS GREENS

A heavy rain which began just after Thompson and Whibley teed off soaked the greens and made putting slow and tricky.

Whibley had little to say about Giroux's match, although he appeared unruffled when the 32-year - old French - Canadian walked off the 18th green and green without the traditional handshake.

An accidental ruling at the 12th hole cost Giroux half of his two-hole lead when officials decreed him out of the bushes because he had moved the pin to place the ball on the fairway and given him a better chance of dropping his putt.

ADJUSTS PIN

When Giroux adjusted the pin at the 12th, Whibley said: "That's going to cost you the hole."

Giroux, angered by the accusation, removed the pin and bowled it like a birdie to apparently win the hole.

However, when Whibley and fellow official Jack Hunter arrived they ruled Giroux had broken the rules and awarded the hole to Whibley. The Kitchener pro, then one down, went on to win the 13th, 14th and 15th holes and move into the 4 up and 3 to play lead against Thompson.

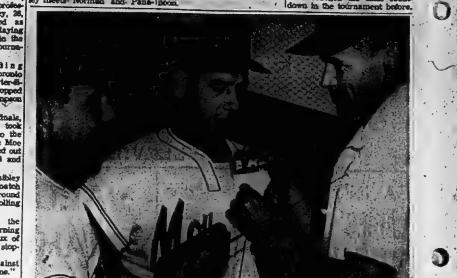
Ted Giroux removed the pin when it failed to incline favorably after the first adjustment and then bowled it sideways two putts he would have won the hole and been three-up at that point.

Tucker said later "it wasn't a ruling I would've made, but when Whibley called him on it we had to enforce it (the ruling) is in the book."

IS PHILOSOPHICAL

Balding was philosophical after Davis, who shot 69 to par with Balding in the qualifying round, put him out of the tournament.

Balding who conceded a six-foot birdie putt on the par-three 10th—said the Burlington pro "played better."



"He had so many one-putt greens I didn't want to spoil his record, so I gave him that one."

Davis, two holes up after eight, added another on the 9th. Balding trimmed the gap while Balding rimmed the cup with his three-footer.

Davis took the next four holes to win by seven at the 13th.

In today's semi-finals Whibley is scheduled for the afternoon.

Only Whibley and Normas have reached the final round-down in the tournament before.

Who Muzzled the Referee?

Watson Muzzles Bulldog

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Dick "Bulldog" Brower has had his moments. He had a big one last night. But that is all it amounted to.

He thought he had pounded out the third-fall and bout victory over Aspirin Whipper Billy Watson.

It looked like he had. He was handing the Aspirin Whipper terrific punishment on the ropes. Referee Bert Maxwell got in close to get better observation. He got more than that.

A fist shot out and caught the gaudy arbiter an inch above—or was it below?—the belt buckle. He went down, and rolled about the ring.

On his feet again he looked around a moment, first at the triumphant "Bulldog," who was muscle-strutting for fan fare, then at the prone Whipper.

He didn't hesitate. He clutched down and lifted the Watsonian arm in victory.

Then the Bulldog realized what had happened. The strut of triumph turned into typical Brower berserkian fury.

He charged at the Whipper and the arbiter. Watson, a little groggy from his aspirin pounding took a lot more. The furious Bulldog ripped into him with fists and feet flying.

Enter one, Bruno Sammartino, who wrestled in the semi-final.

Bruno jetted into action and it is doubtful if the "Bulldog" knew what sort of tornado hit him.

Summartini butted, bashed and batted him all over the ring until he thought discretion the better part of valor—and hightailed it for the dressing room.

The Bulldog took the first fall, after giving the Whip some terrific armlock punishment. He finished him with his overhead backbreaker after 4 minutes of topflight wrestling.

Watson made short shrift of the Bulldog in the second fall. It took exactly one minute. He softened him with a couple of stiff jolts to the jaw and his famous "Commando Unconscious" hold did the rest.

Summartini, a handsome Atlas-built boy, took the measure of 300-pound Big Bob Stanlee in the two-fall semi. Stanlee refused to stop pounding Summartini on the ropes after repeated warnings and was disqualified after ten minutes.

The good-looking Italiano finished the job with a backbreaker after eight minutes of the second fall.

The crafty Japanese matsman, Turo Sunuro, put the popular Sam Steamboat on the ice in the opener after 20 minutes of colorful judo with other-ropes judo chops.

Yanks, Reds Clash Today

Clay KO's, Lavorante In Fifth

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Undefeated Cassius Clay of Louisville, Ky., knocked out Alejandro Lavorante of Argentina in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-round fight Friday night, fulfilling his prediction to the round.

The 20-year-old Clay, weighing 198, ended the fiery match in 1:48 of the fifth, sending the towering Argentine to the mat twice, the last time for the full count—although referee Tommy Hart didn't actually bother to count the full 10. Lavorante weighed 208.

This was the 19th straight victory for Clay and his 12th knockout.

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—The world's two greatest track and field teams, the United States and Soviet Russia, clash today in the first day of a two-day meet which could produce both world and attendance records.

America is favored in the men's division, Russia in the women's.

Total attendance for the two afternoons is expected to run well over 100,000, the biggest crowd for a track meet in the United States since the 1932 Olympics at Los Angeles.

This is the fourth time the nations have met in a dual meet. The United States men won the three previous meets — 128-109 in 1958, 127-108 in 1959 and 134-111 in 1961. The Russian women won 63.44, 67.40 and 68-38.

The United States maintains the two meets are separate, but the Russians like to lump the men's and women's scores together and thereby claim three over-all victories.

League Boss Approves Coach-To-Mound Radio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Minor league chief George M. Trautman Friday put his stamp of approval on radio communication between a baseball manager and his pitcher.

He termed as a "worthy experiment" the electronic communication between beach sitting manager Jack McKeon of the Vancouver Mounties and his mouthmen.

Using a translator - type transmitter, McKeon has passed on his attacking signals and other advice to his batters the last two nights — and the Mounties beat Tacoma 8-4 and 3-0. The pitcher picks up the signal on a small shirt pocket set.

Dodgers Take The Cubs

Mays, Giants Beat Off Bucs Attack

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Mays, a notorious streak hitter, is off on a hot run blaze. It couldn't come at a more appropriate time for the San Francisco Giants in the National League.

Willie batted his second homer in as many games Friday night as San Francisco beat Pittsburgh Pirates 6-3 and kept the pressure on the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

The victory kept the Giants a game back of Los Angeles, 8-4 victors over Chicago Cubs, and also gave the Giants a little more edge over the third-place Pirates, 2½ games behind San Francisco and 3½ behind the Dodgers.

Roman Mejias' two-run ninthinning single gave Houston Colts a 4-3 decision over St. Louis Cardinals, Cincinnati Reds beat New York Mets 3-1 and Milwaukee Braves and Philadelphia Phillies split a doubleheader. The Braves took the first game 7-3 and the Phils the nightcap 3-2.

HAS MOST HOMERS

Mays' homer, which came with none on base in the first inning, was his 37th of the season, giving him the major league lead. He also doubled and scored twice.

The Pirates, who had won 20 of 26 starts going into the game, could have taken over second place in the league race with a victory. A crowd of 37,705—the largest at Pittsburgh's Forbes Field in two years—was on hand.

Willie batted his homer off Pirates starter Vernon Law and Willie McCovey produced what proved to be the winning run with his double in the fourth. Jack Sanford (12-6) got the victory but was relieved from Don Larsen in the seventh.

The Pirates' Roberto Clemente reached the 100-hit mark in 97 games with a double and single.

The Dodgers' Tommy Davis drove in four runs with a couple of singles against the Cubs and became the first major leaguer to reach 100 runs batted in this season.

LOSE EARLY LEAD

The Cubs got off to a 2-0 first game lead. Ernie Banks' two-run homer tied it and Davis put it out of reach. Willie Davis' second with one on the Dodgers' 200th stolen base this season in the fifth inning got the victory but had to have help from Ed Roebuck in the eighth.

Houston struggled back from a 2-0 count and finally pushed it out against the Cards on the strength of Mejias' base-loaded single in the ninth. Dick Farrell (4-12) struck out 12 men in going the distance for the victory.

Stan Musial had a double and a single, driving in two runs and pulling to within two of Mel Ott's National League RBI record. He also advanced to 1st on the wild pitch that scored Mejias from third.

Lefty Jack Curtis shut out the Phillies on four hits after relieving Lew Burdette in the third inning.

Art Mahaffey (13-8) slipped only three hits, including a homer by Hank Aaron, and struck out 12 men to whitewash the second for the Phils. He scored the tie-breaking run after tripping in the 68th inning.

Gordie Coleman's 19th homer of the season, with one on in the second frame, was all the backing Joey Jay needed in pitching Cincinnati past the Mets. Frank Thomas' homer leading off the sixth inning prevented a shutout.

Blue Bonnets Bets Doubled

Thoroughbred racing was revived in 1996 after a lapse of eight years. Average nightly betting rose to $926,116 from $261,-115. Total attendance was up to 359,115 from 266,056.

Palmer Five Strokes Back

Ford Leads Pro Tourney

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa. (AP)—He's five strokes behind the leader, three are 12 players ahead of him and seven more tied with him with only 36 holes to play, but Doug Ford doesn't think he's out of the United States Professional Golfers' Association championship.

Palmer's commanding 67-66 start, what he considered a poor round, were typical of the blonde that his mates call Arbroke. Pat, strong men of the most exciting figures in sports.

"I don't feel like I'm out of the tournament yet," he said before heading into today's third round.

It was one of those awful rounds — like a nightmare all day. I had three birdies and an eagle and I should score better than a 73 with that. Im glad I got away with it as well as I did."

Palmer's 73 over the hilly, tree-lined course at Aronimink Golf Club was one that would have broken par for the prize shooting for this big prize.

FAKES LEAD

Ford, whose customary description of his shots is "crooked as a dog's hind leg," fashioned a two - item U.S. Open champion, Gery Player of South Africa, and Jerry Barber, six-foot-five, 240-pound former pro football player from Miami, Fla.

At 140 were Bob McCallister, Clemmons, N.C.; Bill Casper, who seemed slightly dazed to find himself among the leaders, and Billy Burky, 23-year-old John Barnum of Belmont, Mich., who shed his illusions about golf during the first-round lead.

"My nerves caught up with me, that's all I said they would," Barnum said after shooting a second - round 76 on top of his opening 66.

Barnum's 66, a record for the intermediate course, was matched twice Friday—by Middlecoff and McCallister. Player shot a 67 and six players fired one-under-par 69s.

Toronto's George Knudson held his position atop the Canadian standings. He had a 75 Friday, added to Thursday's 72, for a 147 total. Johnny of Montreal also had a 75 for a total of 151.

One player who won't be around for today's third round is Dave Barden who won the title last year. The 46-year-old Californian said all along that the hilly, treacherous course was just too big for him. We wound up with 79-77—156, one stroke too high to qualify for the last two rounds.

Soccer Pros To Lodge Protest

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League plan to lodge a protest with FIFA—the world soccer organization—because of what they call unethical practices by several clubs in England and Scotland.

A similar protest is to go to the secretary of the football association in London.

Harold Ballard, president of the EPSL, said in an interview Friday night many clubs from the English and Scottish leagues approached players of Hamilton, Toronto City and Hollinger clubs asking them to play for them.

He said the teams should have approached players through the clubs who owned them.

Canada Wins Team Cup At Bisley

BISLEY, England (CP)—Canada won the Macdonnon Trophy, a major award for team shooting, at the Bisley National Rifle Association matches.

A special 12-man team picked from the 16-man Dominion of Canada Rifle Association team scored 1,200 out of a possible 1,200 Friday, shooting at 900 and 1,000 yards.

Scotland scored 1,099, England 1,093, Ireland 1,090 and Wales 980.

Clouds moved slowly across the face of Bisley Friday night while the last shots were being fired at 900 yards. While the men came back to London with the first drops fell and the rain began to fall. Tents, already progressed, Sodden wind-flags hung straight down, making it impossible to judge wind changes.

Top shot on the 15-man Canadian team was Wing Comdr. John Gordon of Penhold, Alta., with 83 out of a possible 100. Other members included: Capt. Clifford Brown, Capt. Clifford James and Maj. Bill Gilmour, all of Camp Borden, Ont.; and Lieut.-Gerry Ouellette of Windsor, Ont.

Kenmors scored all their runs in the third, against Dave Smith, who pitched one-hit ball for the visitors. Bill Moxon gave up four hits on the Belleville hilltop.

Kenmor runs were scored when Pat Asselstine singled followed by a wild pitch, walk and error. Dave Smith drove a hit and Pierce's triple banged the Brockville markers.

Tokyo Bound? Bring Your Own Bed!

TOKYO (AP) — The biggest problem facing 2964 Tokyo Olympic planners revolved around beds—or the lack of them.

There aren't enough here to go around, they won't be in two years, Mayor Ryotaro Azuma of Tokyo said Friday.

He believes however, his "most difficult" problem would be more difficult if only the Westerner slept on the floor as the Japanese do.

The total estimated 30,000 foreigners would come here for the Games but that by opening day only 6,000 beds would be available.

He added at a foreign correspondents sub luncheon that 10,000 beds could be located in Olympic district areas, some as far as 100 miles away.

Despite the bed shortage, he said, hotel prices would not be raised very much because the Tokyo government has the legal force to control prices."

The mayor estimated total cost of the Games, including a network of main arterial roads, at about $2,000,000,000.

Alouettes Punter Gets 'Kick' Instuctor

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference announce they have arranged for a punting specialist from the United States to tutor Marlin Fabi, a 240-pound youngster from Alliance, Ont.

Coach Perry Moss said the 20-year-old Fabi will report next week in Joliette, Que., with Zeke Bratkowski as a specialist coach at the University of California at Los Angeles.

"Fabi is punishing his power, to the fullest," said Moss. "He's only operating at about 60 per cent of his potential and we hope Zeke can improve him."

Fabi, who played at St. Thomas last season, averaged 40.8 yards Thursday night in Montreal's exhibition game with Ottawa Rough Riders. But coach was not booting the ball nearly that far. The Calgary punter-receivers played him deep most of the time and fielded the ball after it had rolled for a good many yards.

Meanwhile the club learned that defensive middle guard Bob LeBlanc will be sidelined for at least two weeks. He suffered torn ligaments in his right knee Thursday night.

Movie Column

Knotts, Man and Mackerel In Animated-Live Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Dr. Ivy would you rather be a fish?" Television's Don Knotts has just that choice in his first starring role in movies.

Right now Don is spending his vacation from the Andy Griffith show making Mr. Limpet at Warner Brothers. Don's co-man in the title. Also the fish. This is a part-animation, part-live action movie in which he transforms from man to mackerel.

As soon as he gets out of the ocean, he'll go back to the third season as deputy Barney Fife on the Griffith show. He doesn't mind his position as supporting actor (he won the Emmy twice for his first two years with the series.)

"It's a good show to be identified with," he explained. "People don't just like the show; they feel very strongly about it. That kind of acceptance isn't very easy to find.

Offhand you wouldn't tab Don as any candidate for stardom. He has a face like—well, it is a little fish-like. His physique amounts to a strapping 125 pounds. He has managed to work almost steadily for the last dozen or so years—five years on the Steve Allen show, two with Andy.

"I think there's more competition for the guys who are tall, dark and handsome," Don observed. "People are always telling those guys, 'Gee, you ought to be in the movies.' A lot of them try, and Hollywood is filled with good-looking men.

"If he wasn't urged into acting, how did he get the part?

"It's a mystery," he admitted.

"Neither of my parents were in show business. I grew up in West Virginia, and that ain't exactly Broadway.

"My mother tells me I wanted to be an actor from the time I was 4. I started a ventriloquist act when I was 10, and there was no stopping me then."

At The Park

MONSTER RAVAGES [illegible] IN BARRIE

A winged behemoth so huge that it darkens the sky in flight; the monstrous beastie worshipped by the incestuous beast and is unlikely to save the world from its destructive forces, are but some of the exciting elements that add to the lift "Mothra" that the spy-level of entertainment further. A Toho production for Columbia release, the thriller is due Monday at the air-conditioned Park Theatre in Tohoscope and Eastman Color.

"Mothra" tells the strange story of a sacred egg on a remote, fantastical island whose guardians are the Alleas, beautiful young women only two feet high. When the Alleas are kidnaped by an adventurer who plans to exhibit them around the world, the egg hatches into a gigantic insect larva which visits destruction on Tokyo. Attack by atomic beat rays only speeds its metamorphosis into an adult moth of colossal proportions. In its magnificent form lie war on mankind becomes even more savage.

"Mothra" is said to be a splendid example of special effects wizardry in all its astounding virtuosity, including in such technical spectacles as breaking an ocean liner in half, crushing houses as if they were eggshells, uprooting skyscrapers, smashing bridges and wrecking dams. Mothra's transformation from egg to insect larva and then emergent from a colossal cocoon as adult moth are said to be handled with amazing credibility.

Principal talented players in "Mothra" include Franky Sakai, Hiroshi Kotsumi, Kyoko Kagawa, Emi Ibeh and Yumi Ioh. Shinichi Sekizawa's screenplay is based on a story by Shinichiro Nakamura, Takeshi Fukuaga and Yoshie Hotta. RECOMMENDED FOR ALL.

Five New Polio Cases In Hull Area

HULL, Que. (CP)—Five new polio cases were reported in the Hull area Friday as health officials launched mass immunizing doses of the Sabin oral polio vaccine.

There now have been 15 confirmed polio cases in the Hull district since mid-June. Up to the end of last week only 32 cases had been reported in the province, 19 of them in Quebec.

The new victims are a 22-year-old man and two 11-year-old girls from St. Andre Avellin, a 14-year-old girl from Hull and a small boy from Comfort Point.

Sabin vaccine clinics opened here Wednesday, hours after two new cases were confirmed. They administered 13,841 doses of vaccine in the first two days.

Health authorities said none of the polio victims had received Salk or Sabin vaccine previously. One death has occurred.

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twelve 50th week: An astronaut's way of feeding before, a medical passport, and kidney research.

BANKERS AND ASTRONAUTS

Astronaut John H. Glenn, Jr., ate from a plastic squeeze tube, according to him his mouth, during orbit. Now, the same idea is being developed for modern, easy feeding of babies during travel by car or plane, or on picnics. Similar tubes are equipped with a clear, plastic bulbous attachment to be attached to the tube.

Just the right amount of fruit, vegetable or other food can be squeezed into the spoon.

MEDICAL PASSPORTS

To ensure proper emergency medical treatment at home or abroad, you can carry a medical passport that is a size and information which a doctor or hospital should know about your own health.

The pocket-sized document can contain data on treatment for a heart condition, for diabetes, epilepsy, or other disorders, as well as giving your blood type, allergies, and results of x-ray and laboratory studies.

Issued by the Medical Passport Foundation, Inc., New York, the passport is provided to physicians and hospitals at cost.

LOLLIPOP REWARD

You may be setting an unwise precedent in rewarding or bribing a child with a lollipop or cookie, says Dr. Morton B. Glenn of New York City.

Food regarded as a reward in child or adult life could tend to encourage obesity. "The harassed mother who says to her two-year-old, 'If you'll be good; I'll give you a cookie,' is probably starting a habit that could ultimately result in her child's having a shorter life span as an adult" due to obesity.

Canada's Foreign Exchange Crisis Set Off By Slow Fuse Burning for Several Years, Much of Economic Dynamite Still There

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The economic explosion that caused Canada's foreign exchange crisis this spring was touched off by a slow fuse 11 years ago.

Moreover, much of the dynamite is still there, its potential force diminished only slightly by the government's new and hefty program for giving the Canadian dollar new muscle and bolstering the country's shrunken reserves of foreign exchange.

The dynamite consists of the fact that for nine years Canada hasn't earned enough abroad to meet the foreign payments it must make — for imports and also for things such as earnings of foreign investors and the tourist expenditures of Canadians abroad.

This gap between Canada's foreign earnings and expenditures is called the International balance of payments deficit. In the 12 years 1950-61 — a period relieved only once, in 1952, by a payments surplus — there was a cumulative deficit of more than $9,700,000,000.

INFLOW DRIED UP

One thing kept the country out of the poorhouse: the willingness of foreign investors to pour their capital into Canada for new factories, oil wells and mines, loans to provinces and municipalities, and purchases of Canadian industrial stocks and bonds. These foreign dollars provided the funds to finance the deficit on current payments.

What happened this year? The basic problem was that, while the payments deficit continued, the inflow of capital dried up and eventually turned into an outflow of capital. The deficit was met only by drawing on Canada's foreign exchange reserves.

This situation was made worse by uncertainties over the future of the dollar's exchange rate, even after it was pegged May 2 at 92½ U.S. cents.

The new crash program of austerity aims at reducing some of the payments deficit, thus cutting the Government's own budget deficit and restoring confidence among foreign investors so that their capital will start flowing back into Canada.

PARTIAL SOLUTION

The government has described its program as a temporary one. It hopes to reduce the balance of payments deficit by some $300,000,000 a year. This would go only part way. Last year's deficit was $1,097,000,000 and in this year's first quarter it was $363,000,000—an annual rate of around $1,250,000,000.

Thus much of the potential dynamite of a payments deficit remains in the economy. The government has indicated it hopes to reduce this explosive potential, and to defuse the rest of it by maintaining an economic climate "hospitable to foreign investment."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has spoken of "longer - term measures" to be introduced — presumably after the new Parliament meets — to improve the balance of payments position. He has referred to a combined support drive and "protected measures" for reform" to promote greater industrial efficiency and competitiveness.

A fundamental problem is to develop expansionary policies that won't touch off a recurrence of this year's foreign exchange crisis. The temporary new belt - tightening policies are virtually the opposite of expansionary measures.

The last few years have seen a slowing down of the nation's growth rate. Real output per person, expressed in constant dollars, fell by 1% in 1961 compared with $1,893 in 1957. In the previous four years it had risen from $1,854 in 1953. At the same time unemployment rates have been high, and in the next few years the labor market is due to be hit by a surge of capital investment designed to spur the economy. The other is the new attraction of booming European economies. Common Market, apparently seen as a U.S. investors as a more profitable field than Canada.

The government is hoping that a good deal of the push behind the investment drive will be generated by the dollar's discount. A discount in dollars was the dream of exporters during the many years the dollar was at a premium in terms of U.S. currency.

EXPORTS WORTH MORE

Exporters of commodities explain why a discount is important. The sale price of most exports is quoted in terms of U.S. dollars or other foreign currencies. When the Canadian dollar was at a premium, it meant that the Canadian dollar return on a ton of newsprint, for example, was less than a U.S. investor as a U.S. dollars. Now that the dollar is at a discount, an export sale for $1 U.S. means $1 Canadian in an exporter's pocket.

When it comes to import prices, the same situation applies in reverse. Imported goods were relatively attractive when the Canadian dollar was at $1 in American goods could be bought for with 96 Canadian cents. Now it takes $1.08 in Canadian funds.

Presumably the new exchange rate tends to reduce the amount of import buying that would otherwise be done. It makes alternative Canadian goods more attractive and more competitive — depending how much higher - priced imported materials go into the Canadian product.

IMPORTS STILL HIGH

But things apparently don't work out quite so simply. In the first four months of this year, imports were 14.5 per cent higher than a year earlier. Yet in April an importer had to pay almost six per cent more for the same goods than he did a year earlier to cover the difference in exchange rates.

Whether or not the price factor will become more effective in inhibiting import buying remains to be seen. However, a big new barrier to imports has been thrown up by the government's "temporary" tariff surcharges of five to 15 per cent on just over half the goods Canada imports.

Another impact of dollar depreciation is on living costs. Its full effect may take months or years to be felt. Government spokesmen say these rises will be fractional its critics estimate a rise in prices of as much as 10 per cent.

Canada's exchange rate problem this year and the rapid draining away of foreign exchange reserves held in the government's exchange account attracted public interest to a question that previously was of concern mainly to a relatively few economists and financial experts.

DOLLAR STAYED UP

The move to a fixed exchange rate on May 2 produced a situation radically different from the previous period of nearly 11 years when the rate was "floating."

During that period, an imbalance between money flowing into Canada and money flowing out — whether capital or current payments — was reflected in changes in the exchange rate. The rate simply mirrored the forces of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. The government's exchange fund was used mainly to smooth out short-term fluctuations, not to push the rate up or down against market forces.

The large deficits on current international payments during that period would normally, expected to force down the exchange rate on the Canadian dollar — and drive it down at a premium as high as 5% cents in August, 1957 — because of heavy inflows of foreign capital which created a demand for Canadian dollars in the exchange market.

Through that period, foreign exchange reserves showed no marked changes apart from a gradual build - up of official holdings of gold and U.S. dollars in the exchange fund.

RATE CLOSELY REINED

Now, however, the pegging of the exchange means the government is committed to ensuring that the rate doesn't vary more than one per cent above or below the fixed parity rate of 92½ U.S. cents. This is done by buying or selling U.S. dollars from the exchange fund to influence the rate.

Thus the exchange reserves, instead of the dollar's exchange rate, bear the brunt of any imbalance between payments and flows and outflows of money.

Before the dollar was pegged, however, the government announced a policy of using the exchange fund to influence the exchange rate. In his budget speech June 20, 1961, Finance Minister Fleming said the government was prepared to use the fund to buy U.S. dollars in order to move the Canadian dollar to a "significant" discount.

The Canadian dollar, then close to $1 U.S., slipped by a discount which, by early spring of this year, had reached 3½ cents. For three months it appeared likely to remain at that level — in effect, a kind of unofficial exchange rate — but finally the downward pressure became too great.

Some of the pressure was attributed to speculators and to dollar traders who gambled that the rate would go lower.

Over the course, the supply of U.S. dollars on the exchange market fell sharply, and the exchange fund was used to meet the shortage.

RESERVES DRAINED

In the first four months of the year, foreign exchange reserves fell by some $400,000,000. Then, in early May, the outflow of reserves turned into a flood — $116,000,000 in the first two days of the month. Just before midnight May 2, the government announced the exchange rate was being cut to 92½ cents and pegged there.

Some time during the course of the election campaign, the drain on the exchange fund mounted again. Prime Minister Diefenbaker said later that not only had the inflow of foreign capital dried up but an outflow of capital had developed, adding to the demands created by the continuing deficit on current international payments.

When the austerity program was announced on Sunday, June 10, it was shown that the reserves of foreign exchange had fallen by nearly $400,000,000 since June 1 to some $1,100,000,000.

The government lined up $1,000,000,000 in foreign loans and stand - by credits for the exchange fund — a move designed to prove to everyone it had the resources to hold the exchange rate at its pegged level.

INTEREST RATE UP

The belt - tightening program of reduced government spending, tariff surcharges and sharp cuts in tariff exemptions for tourist purchases was intended to have a strong effect on the exchange fund and increase the Canadian dollar's attractiveness. A related move by the Bank of Canada produced an increase in interest rates to attract foreign capital back into Canada.

Just how effective the new austerity program will be remains to be seen. One sign in its favor: the dollar has remained close to the 92½ - cent mark. Another is that the recent $1 billion permissible limit of one per cent below or above the fixed rate of 92½ U.S. cents.

Canada didn't always have its exchange rate pegged. It was pegged, however, the government announced a policy of using the exchange fund to influence the exchange rate. In his budget speech June 20, 1961, Finance Minister Fleming said the government was prepared to use the fund to buy U.S. dollars in order to move the Canadian dollar to a "significant" discount.

three times the average of the previous four years. Another $250,000,000 went for purchase of new Canadian stock and bond issues. Trade in existing Canadian securities issues brought in a net $320,000,000 to foreign hands.

OFFSET DEFICIT

All this new foreign capital flow outweighed a deficit on current international payments for 1960. The exchange reserves fell 11 years those figures kept the dollar at a premium above the U.S. dollar.

The strongest of these forces was the foreign capital, moving in to set up new industries, buy shares in existing industries or purchase bond issues of provinces and municipalities which were to help New York money market to raise funds.

During the 11 years 1950 - 60, the net investment in Canada by foreign - controlled enterprises averaged since $460,000,000 a year, and hit a record $645,000,000 in 1960. An average $460,000,000 a year in stock and bond issues was sold abroad — as much as $796,000,000 in 1957.

Meanwhile, except for 1952, the country's deficit on current international payments moved slowly but relentlessly upward. It mounted from $698,000,000 in 1955 but the next year nearly doubled to $1,366,000,000 and hit a peak of $1,504,000,000 in 1959. Last year it was just a bit over the $1,000,000,000 mark.

COYNE SOUNDED ALARM

The balance on current payments is made up of two parts — one reflecting merchandise trade, and the other a group of so-called "invisible" transactions.

There was a merchandise trade surplus in 1952 and in other marginal surplus in 1954, but there was a deficit every year thereafter. The merchandise deficit mounting to a peak $728,000,000 in 1956, and then declining until last year there was a $173,000,000 surplus.

But the deficit on "invisible" items in the red has grown steadily. For the last seven years it has topped the $1,000,000,000 mark. It's caused by a number of things, including freight and shipping payments to foreign carriers, and tourist expenditures by Canadians abroad.

But the largest factor has come to be the snowballing payments of interest and dividends to foreign investors who put their capital in Canada. In 1950, these payments were $384,000,000 — larger than the earnings of Canadian capital invested abroad. Last year the difference was $361,000,000.

Alarm over the situation was sounded for about two years by James E. Coyne, Bank of Canada governor until his resignation over the summer following a government's unsuccessful attempt to force him out.

LIVING BEYOND MEANS

He said Canada was living far beyond its means on borrowed capital, and he repeatedly called for government policies to correct this before the day of reckoning arrived. He urged restraint and the payments deficit — should be cut so that Canada wouldn't have to rely on foreign capital.

The government decided against many of the policies Mr. Coyne advocated, But it made some moves towards the goal he sought.

In his spring budget in 1960, Mr. Fleming warned provinces and municipalities about the dangers of borrowing in the U.S. market. In his baby budget in December that year, he increased withholding taxes on earnings paid foreign investors to deter Canadian borrowing abroad.

Finally, in his 1961 budget, he announced the government's policy of using the exchange reserves to push the exchange rate to a significant discount. The main purpose of the move was to improve the competitive position of Canadian trade — encourage exports and deter imports.

The repercussions of that step, and of others taken since, are still being felt.

Italians Show Biggest Gains In Population

OTTAWA (CP) — Italians showed by far the sharpest gains in the Canadian population between 1951 and 1961, jumping by 165 per cent to 450,331 from 169,945.

This was shown Friday in a report released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics giving final population counts of the 1961 census by ethnic groups.

English, Irish, Scottish and Welsh, the largest ethnic group, rose by 19.2 per cent to 7,996,699 in 1961 from 6,709,265 10 years earlier. However, this group in 1961 made up only 43.8 per cent of Canada's total population of 18,238,247, as compared with 47.3 per cent in 1951.

The second largest ethnic group—French — increased 29.3 per cent to 5,540,346 from 4,319,167. But it also declined—to 30.4 per cent of the total population as against 30.8 per cent in 1951.

English, Irish, Scottish, Welsh and French in 1961 made up 74.2 per cent of the population, down from 77.7 per cent in 1951.

POWER GERMANS

Immigration was largely responsible for the increases in Italians and for lesser increases in the number of Germans and arrivals from other European countries.

Dear Henry—My little boy of 5 is fascinated by matches, strike-anywhere matches, watch the flame and then to sniff the match. How can I keep him from playing with fire?—MOTHER OF A FIREBUG.

Dear Mother—Build him a bonfire and, under your supervision let him play with it all he wants. It doesn't matter if he burns himself a little; it will do him more good than harm. And to top it off, give him a lecture on fire and its dangers and read him a few Smoky the Bear or Sparky the Firedog stories.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—My boy friend is jealous. I can't even have any fun with any other boys or he says he will drop me. What will I do?—ALMOST DROPPED.

Dear Almost Dropped—Drop him before he drops you. You've got a right to look over the market. You don't have to stick with a jealous one.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—My girl friend is a nice girl but I was up at her house and I made her believe I killed her fish. She went into a tantrum and ran out of the house and went to a woman across the street and told her because her mother wasn't at home. Is this right?—DISAPPOINTED.

Dear Disappointed—This is very, very wrong. You don't have to test her mental reactions. Only do that before you are going to marry her.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—How can I get my mother to agree to go camping. My father and my brother and my little brother all want to but mommy says no.—LISA.

Dear Lisa—You would all like to go camping, and have lots of fun. But your mother and I have the feeling that the only thing you are going to see with is eating.

Assure your mother that you will hil help and you will be off.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I have a 6-year-old brother who is forever telling on me for little things I did to him. My father gets mad at me and I always end up getting a whooping.

When he does something bad I feel sorry for him so I don't tell. Should I tell on him, so it seems I never can reason with him. What can I do?—SOFT HEARTED.

Dear Softhearted—If these little things are big enough to get a whooper, I would say they are big enough not to do them again.—HENRY.

Work Four Days On Amendments To Medicare Act

Expect Final Touches To Accord Made Today

SASKATOON (CP)—The Saskatchewan medical care dispute was expected to be settled today.

Reliable sources said the province's doctors and the CCF government were on the verge of agreement after four days of negotiations. The key was draft legislation to amend the Medical Care Insurance Act.

Informants said finishing touches should be put on the agreement today. They said this would be followed by formal announcement of settlement.

Most Saskatchewan doctors boycotted the act by closing their offices when the scheme went into operation July 1.

The act set up the compulsory, prepaid medical care insurance plan, which the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons said exerted too much government control over doctors. The college is the governing body of Saskatchewan doctors.

It was understood the new draft legislation embodied most of the principles outlined in a settlement proposal made last Wednesday by the college president, Dr. H. D. Dalgleish.

Poets Again Defy Law, Elements Read Poem Dedicated to 'Rules'

TORONTO (CP) — The poet returned to Allan Gardens, ignored with a stirring manifesto in free speech and a copy of the Song of Solomon to read about in defiance of the elements and the law.

Rain delayed the resumption of public poetry readings, broken off nearly two weeks ago by police who said they were forbidden in the mid-town park.

An afternoon shower splashed manuscripts and kept the audience cowering under trees until Milton Acorn, a 36-year-old carpenter, stepped from under a tree, opened a Bible and began reading from the Song of Solomon.

The hymn excepts religious speakers from the proviso that they explained to a soaking audience of about 100 persons.

As the rain let up, Mr. Acorn turned to one of his own compositions and it was then that the law arrived—a sergeant and a constable walking slowly across the grass as the poet read:

"I shout love.

I shout love even though it might deafen you, . . ."

LISTENS TO POLICE

He stopped to listen to what the officers had to say, then continued as he read:

"I shout love," he shouted. "Love."

Then Tom Arnett, a 31-year-old member of the group named himself poet laureate, a position usually written for the occasion.

"Listen kids!" he said.

"We don't read on your front lawn."

We prefer to watch poetry construcle.

"We can't read to our own back yards;

"Such luxuries poets just don't rate.

The policemen meantime established that the yards are not back yards, poets were not permitted to perform in Allan Gardens and the words needed no summonses.

Poets Acorn and Arnett both said they were ready to go to jail for their belief that poetry belongs in public parks.

Council Meets To Authorize Liquor Vote

City council will hold a special short meeting this afternoon, at 4.30 p.m. to pass a bylaw authorizing a vote of electors on the sale of liquor in licensed dining rooms and licensed lounges. Last week, council decided to put the question to the public in a referendum, which will cost the Chamber of Commerce nothing, who requested it some $3,500. The vote will be conducted at the regular polling places by members.

The questions are, whether citizens want the sale of liquor in licensed dining rooms, for consumption with meals, and whether the citizens want the sale of liquor in licensed lounges.

Also during this afternoon's meeting, council members are expected to give third and final reading to a bylaw providing for the repair of the roof of the Memorial Arena.

Cars Damaged Result of Accidents

A rash of minor accidents was reported in the city over the week-end. No injuries were reported and damage in each case was slight.

The heaviest damage occurred on Saturday, Police said a car driven by Collin James Donald from Brampton was proceeding north on Charles Street, failed to stop at the stop sign and collided with a vehicle driven by William G. Grant of 40 Gordon St. Belleville who was westbound on Victoria Avenue.

Mr. Grant was checked at the office of Dr. F. R. Ross and released. Damage to Mr. Grant's vehicle was estimated at $200 and approximately $100 to the Donald car.

Damage in the amount of $400 resulted in a three car collision on Saturday in front of Cash and Carry Dairy on Pinnacle Street. There were no injuries reported.

According to police, a car driven by Donald Hubbard of 73 Hunswood Drive, Belleville, was about to pull out from a parking space in front of Cash and Carry Dairy. A vehicle driven by Robert Earl Lloyd, 30 Franklin St. Belleville, stopped to let Mr. Quickert enter the parking space. A third vehicle driven by Donald Wayne Wheadon of R. R. 3 Trenton, failed to see Mr. Lloyd's vehicle in time and smashed into the rear of him, forcing Mr. Lloyd's car ahead and into the path of Mr. Quickert's car which was coming out of the parking space.

Damage estimated at $450 was caused by a two car crash at the intersection of Dundas Street East and Haig Sidroad on Sunday. No injuries were reported.

Police said a car driven by Wilfred Whiteman of 125 Lingham-Street, Belleville, was proceeding east on Dundas Street when behind another vehicle driven by Gerald Whitemangel Frankford.

It is alleged Mr. Whiteman started to turn left to cross over to Haig Street when his car struck the left rear corner of his vehicle.

an "entirely premeditated military provocation" by the Indians, aimed at culling off the Chinese post there from a road to the rear.

The broadcast said Indian and Chinese troops exchanged fire for half an hour before after the Indian troops began shooting.

Chinese guards broke off firing, but Indian soldiers continued shooting intermittently for two hours, withdrawing to their radio said.

It said:

"To ensure tranquility along this sector of the boundary, the Indian side must immediately withdraw from our territory all aggressive armed points and intruding troops," the broadcast said.

The Ladakh region lies in the poorly mapped area where India's Himalaya frontier meets China's Sinkiang province and Tibet. Ladakh is under Chinese domination. The Indians claim control about 14,000 of the 15,000 square miles in northern Ladakh, disputa. Red China also claims about 46,000 square miles of territory India considers its own.

India met a stiff note to the Chinese Embassy in New Delhi charging Red troops opened fire at the Chip Chap area and also near Lake Pangong Tso 70 miles to the north on the same day.

The note said Indian soldiers did not return the fire at lake Pangong and only began shooting at the Chip Chap valley when "in the face of continuous provocation" they were forced to return the fire in self defence.

The broadcast said the Chinese used light machine - guns and mortars in the Chip Chap valley area. Casualties in the Chip Chap incident. They said one Indian soldier was killed by a bullet; the other apparently was more seriously wounded.

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Indian Prime Minister Nehru today said India has to be "wide awake" in the Ladakh area where two Indian soldiers were wounded by Chinese troops Sunday.

He said "it is a serious situation" but "I am still confident" about at Indian troops in the Chip Chap River valley of Ladakh.

Asked by reporters whether he considered the incident marked a reversal of Chinese policy in the Himalayan border dispute, Nehru replied:

"I cannot say. Anyhow we have to be wide awake."

SOUTHAMPTON, England (Reuters) — The leader of the former Tristan da Cunha islanders here today chosen Sicsup advance party to return to the volcanoed South Atlantic island to see if it is habitable.

Many of the 269 persons evacuated from the lonely British island after the volcano erupted last year are homesick for Britain's damp climate and strange way of life. They now live in an abandoned RAF camp.

Willie Repetto said Sunday he hopes six of the men in the party will be given jobs by a South African canning firm which fishes off Tristan. The other six would work on the island to restore it for habitation.

Repetto said that if the men decide the island is safe, most of the 250 will return. If not, they would try to adapt themselves to Britain.

White Cane Club Holds Annual Picnic

On Saturday afternoon the annual picnic of the White Cane Club was held at Victoria Park. Although the attendance was not as large as usual for the picnic, those who were present had a most enjoyable afternoon. Miss Pat Baverstock, president of the club, gave everyone a warm welcome.

Norman Hall and Mrs. Sprague of Trenton, chairman of the Hastings County Advisory Board for the Blind, were guests in the group briefly, stating that although the Lions Club of Trenton and Belleville executive, he expected that they would continue with their annual dinner for the White Cane Club.

A variety of games occupied the afternoon and suitable prizes were distributed to everyone. A trio composed of Arlie Scott, Clarence Morris and Ted Rowe sang, The Gelly Girl.

The elimination ball race was won by Mrs. Doris Lloyd. Clarence Morris won the horseshoe pitching for the men and Helen Wraithmell for the women. The balloon contest was won by Arlie Scott, first; and Ted Rowe, second. John Towner was the winner for the men in the shoe kicking contest and Mrs. V. Wade for the women. The two teams tied in the bucket brigade game. Clarence Morris' team won over Arlie Scott's. The spot race was won by Pat Baverstock.

All agreed that it was a fine outing, although the weather was cool and windy.

Eden Says Lloyd Got Harsh Deal

LEAMINGTON, England (AP) — Sir Anthony Eden is suggested that Selwyn Lloyd got a harsh deal when he was dropped as treasury minister on July 13.

Eden, now the Earl of Avon, thus indirectly criticized Prime Minister Macmillan, who succeeded him as Conservative prime minister.

"But Mr. Selwyn Lloyd has been harshly treated," Eden said Saturday. "But I have no doubt that he will serve the party again in high office."

Lloyd, who served Eden as his foreign secretary at the time of the Suez affair in 1956, was dismissed by Macmillan after his stern financial measures proved unpopular.

"If there was a failure of presentation, this is surely a delicate matter which concerns his colleagues almost as much as the chancellor," Eden told a meeting of Young Conservatives.

Green Fearful Propaganda War May Ruin Parley

GENEVA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Green of Canada said Sunday there are signs a propaganda war is building up over disarmament and this would ruin honest negotiations.

Green said in an interview he has learned there are "many suggestions" the 17-country disarmament conference now in session here should adjourn in September when the United Nations General Assembly meets in New York.

He said he will stress in his speech to the conference Tuesday the necessity of keeping negotiations under way once a start was called for in a statement of disarmament principles unanimously adopted by the 104-member General Assembly last fall.

There has been no formal proposal for such a recess at the conference, which recently resumed sessions after a summer vacation, but Green learned about the move Friday at a Canadian reception for delegates to the disarmament talks and the concurrent 14-nation conference on Laos.

A "UN propaganda exercise" would add nothing to disarmament prospects especially when it is remembered that the General Assembly has already endorsed continuous negotiations, Green said.

"We don't want the conference to get in a state where it is gradually going downhill with everyone getting less interested. There is a danger of some delegates becoming professional negotiators."

Green said Canada will press for end to nuclear tests despite Russia's announcement that it will resume them.

Thirteen Lands Guarantee Neutral Laos

By MOSHEN ALI

GENEVA (Reuters) — The neutrality of tiny Laos was formally guaranteed today by the signatures of 13 other governments including External Affairs Minister Green of Canada.

Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko, co-chairman of the Laotian conference, was the last of the 13 delegates to put his signature to the international accord produced by the talks.

"This concludes our last and most successful session," Gromyko said as he closed the conference.

The Laotian government, 14th nation represented at the talks, has issued its own declaration pledging itself to a neutral existence and the pledge was reaffirmed today by its neutralist prime minister, Prince Souvanna Phouma.

"We will do everything to keep Laos prosperous, independent and neutral," he said. "I am deeply touched and I beg you to accept once again the gratitude of the Laotian government and the Laotian people as a whole."

Souvanna recently took over as premier of a coalition government in the Southeast Asian Kingdom which has been wrecked by years of fighting between right-wing and pro-Communist forces, with East and West each assisting the rival factions.

Peru Workers Stage Strike Against Junta

LIMA (AP) — The powerful Workers Confederation of Peru began a country-wide strike today to protest the overthrow of constitutional government by a military junta.

The Junta had threatened prosecution for "agitators" and others provoking illegal work stoppages. Early reports indicated government pressure had blunted the strike's effect.

Public and private transportation appeared normal in the capital, although many drivers indicated they might halt work later depending on the "climate."

Gen. Ricardo Perez Godoy, chief of the Junta which seized power last Wednesday, met with some 70 labor leaders earlier in a bid to prevent a paralyzing strike. Most of the union leaders agreed not to join the strike.

However, the confederation controls most of the nation's labor force and it remained to be seen how effective a stop work call would be.

The confederation is controlled by the American Popular Revolutionary Alliance (APRA), the political organization of Victor Haya de la Torre, leading candidate for the presidency in the June elections which the military annulled.

SPEAKS TOMORROW

Sunday, police buried teargas bombs and sprayed colored water into a crowd of 300 women demonstrating against Peru's military Junta in Plaza San Martin.

Rocket-Armed Egypt Fears Israel Reactor

CAIRO (Reuters)—Field Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer, the United Arab Republic's prime minister, said today the U.A.R. Air Force is in control of almost the surrounding skies and its armed forces are the strongest in Africa and the Middle East.

Amer, who also is vice-president, spoke at a military parade marking the 10th anniversary of the revolution which overthrew King Farouk.

President Nasser stood with Amer as the performance ended as the U.A.R.'s new rocket-armed four of which were fired in the desert Saturday were displayed in the parade. They were mounted on trailers and drawn by army trucks.

The war minister said the country faced the Arab world in Israel, which he described as an "imperialist base" and a "threat to peace."

The fact that Israel has an atomic reactor "which is functioning obscurely, leads us to believe she will use it for aggressive purposes," Amer said. "That is why we must be ready."

Nasser told a rally here Sunday that he will open West-ern aircraft making jet aircraft.

Nasser also told the rally, attended by a crowd estimated in the hundreds of thousands, that Britain issued an ultimatum to the Yemen government in mid-September after the 1952 officers' coup.

Lord Avon, who as Anthony Eden was Prime Minister and Foreign Secretary at the time, denied Sunday any thought that the British government issued such an ultimatum.

Fascist Rally Wreckers Fined

LONDON (AP)—Fines were imposed today against 36 persons arrested during fighting wrecked a Fascist rally of Sir Oswald Mosley's followers Sunday in Trafalgar Square.

The fines ranged up to £3 each in charges of assaulting behavior, assaulting police and violating police regulations designed to prevent trouble.

The Bow Street courthouse was packed for the parade of the accused that included men in business suits, others in sandals, beards and long hair.

One of the first to appear before the magistrate was a student.

"I plead guilty to insulting behavior," Another shouted:

"I plead guilty to defending the honor of British soldiers killed in the last war."

Gen. de Gaulle Ponders NATO Appointment

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle has gone out of his way to embarrass France will not rubber-stamp the appointment of Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer as the next supreme commander of NATO forces in Europe.

There appeared little doubt that France will eventually endorse President Kennedy's choice, but de Gaulle made it clear he will not be hurried into it.

The impression clearly from de Gaulle's office showered praise on Gen. Lucia Norstad whose position as supreme commander is disclosed Friday. It conceded that his successor "somewhere should be another American, then Britain."

"The French government is currently examining the proposed with the American government has made to it . . . as to Gen. Lemnitzer's successor. The decision of the French government on this matter will be taken in one of the next cabinet meetings."

If approved, Lemnitzer's appointment will not be confirmed as quickly as Washington—and the NATO secretariat —may have expected. The cabinet normally meets on Wednesdays.

Kennedy named Lemnitzer as the new supreme commander chief in Europe. This post and the job of NATO commander in Europe usually go together.

Discover Body Of Man in Field

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Police have discovered the partly-decomposed body of a man in a field outside town and identified him as Swedish-born Abdallah Faik Kunuk, whose abandoned car was found nearly 11 days ago.

An air of mystery surrounded the case as police awaited the results of an autopsy and inquiries in New York and Sweden.

Police said Dr. Kunuk, who has lived alone here for three years, was believed to be the local representative of a Swedish chemical firm named Svenska Catalyst, which has an office in New York City.

Police also were checking a report that a woman who arrived by air earlier this week in nearby Buffalo from Sweden was heading for Canada under the sponsorship of Dr. Kunuk. Immigration authorities turned back the woman when her sponsor for immigration could not be located.

Dr. Kunuk's car was found abandoned on the edge of the Queen Elizabeth Highway five miles outside Niagara Falls. Police searched the area Saturday after failing to locate the owner and found the body in a field about 400 feet from where the car was left.

Dr. Kunuk lived alone in a $125,000 house he owned in a residential area of the city and neighbors knew little about him. Papers found by police showed he was born in 1901 and had a doctorate of philosophy in chemistry.

Union at Avro Ready to Fight

TORONTO (CP) — Officials of the International Association of Machinists (CLC) have promised a full-scale battle to remain bargaining agent for 1,200 Avro Canada and Canadian Applied Research employees in the face of what they called "a fictitious gimmick to lower wages" under another union.

The union, Aircraft of Canada Limited, which recently bought the two companies from Hawker Siddeley of Canada, said Avro and Canadian Applied Research employees, now under a machinists contract, would be transferred under the terms of the contract between De Havilland and United Aircraft Workers (UAC), whose aerospace division is bargaining agent for de Havilland workers.

"The de Havilland and Hawker Siddeley parent firms in Britain were merged in 1959.

Machinist union officials told a meeting Sunday of 200 men that the transaction was not a sale, but only a transfer within the parent company.

Mike Rygus, the union's general vice-president for Canada, said the "company is trying to talk us into a form of a legal boo-hole to rob you people of benefits."

"Nobody is going to displace us," he said. "We'll use legal and some illegal means — no — legal methods—any kind of harassment at all—but we'll continue to represent you—come what may."

Colorful Air Force Show Rated Best in History, Golden Hawks Top Feature

TRENTON — Over 27,000 people, men, women and children, poured into RCAF Station Saturday and Sunday for Trenton's answer to the Mardi Gras — — Air Force Day.

To the kids, it was Christmas, the Easter bunny, and hallowe'en, all rolled up into one, with a three-ring flying circus, thrown in for good measure. Popcorn and pony rides; candy apples and Carib-bous; pop and para drops; helicopters and highland dancers, were the order of the day. Not a dull moment.

The gates opened at 12:30, but a few hardy souls arrived earlier. There was something for everyone in the Hangar 10 static display. Specialists could take their picks of the wood working exhibit (where sailboats are made by RCAF personnel were proudly displayed by their owners); amateurs and semi-pros in the photography field couldn't help but be impressed by the excellent shutter work carried out by the camera club; do-it-yourselfers learned something about how to reupholster a living room chair; those with a technical turn of mind enjoyed the display of nuclear weapons (which, by the way), devotees of life in the open learned how RCAF personnel survive in the bush and parachute jump; a few pointers which might come in handy.

If you were lucky enough to know someone stationed in the Congo, by lifting a phone, and telling the operator his name, rank and outfit, the message was sent winging its way 5,000 miles across the Atlantic (via the transmitter at Carp).

Out into the bright sunshine again. The RCAF Station band and RAD band carried on a musical dispute (friendly, of course), and the Highland pipers from 400 Auxiliary Squadron moved in to take top honors for attention from the ten-deep circled crowd.

The friendly airforce had thought of everything. Lost kids were advertised over the public address system. Lost parents got the same treatment. Girls from the Belleville St. John Ambulance junior unit kept the tearful youngsters amused until Mom and Dad arrived to pick them up. Some wise parents took advantage of the baby-sitters' offer and left the small fry to be minded while they made the rounds.

Then the air show! Parents got a thrill of course, (who wouldn't) but every man, jack of those kids were riding high in the sky with those Golden Hawks. Those rascals, Chipmunks ran a close second at attention-getters. A strident screaming of the crowd, had climbed the ramps and looked the aircraft over before the airshow, and felt like the pros at the flying game when they recognized the various aircraft in the air.

Dramatic timing. The Pride of Air Transport Command, a Yukon aircraft landed after a 24-hour non-stop endurance test between Trenton and the North Pole and back again.

Most impressive of all was the ground and in the air were these in 100 air cadets from the U.K. and continental Europe who landed in Trenton Friday morning, on the first leg of a trip across Canada. They were welcomed by Air-Commodore R. J. Lane, U.K. cadets will lunch with the mayor of Montreal, and see a Canadian football game. Continental cadets will see western Canada. Hosts are the Air Cadet League of Canada, and the RCAF.

Anyhow, it's all over for another year. A most successful day. The most successful Air Force Day in Trenton's history if you want to take the opinion of a cross-section of the crowd.

By Friday night too, Albert St., adjacent to Fraser Park, had been paved and was opened to traffic. The shoulders on King St. were surfaced with asphalt on Friday.

The current curbing program is in its final stages and step two in the program will be embarked upon as soon as approval of the work is forthcoming from the Ontario Municipal Board. This time, street repair and reconstruction will be carried on along with the curbing. Throughout the town, strips of broken sidewalk will be repaired or replaced by town workmen. All in all, Trenton is taking on a new look.

The government held several meetings Sunday in Premier Woodrow Lloyd's hotel suite.

NEITHER WILL CONSENT

Both sides clamped a blackout on official comment on negotiations.

Lord Taylor's efforts appeared to have been instrumental in bringing officials of both sides together for a meeting Saturday night. It was the first such meeting since the cabinet and the college council held talks during the week prior to implementation of the medical care plan.

The meeting broke off early Sunday. Then both sides held separate sessions.

Premier Lloyd and his cabinet members were to have left for Regina, the provincial capital, Sunday night but put off their departure.

About 200 of the college's 625 practising doctors have provided free emergency service at 41 of the province's 164 hospitals since July 1. The government has recruited 81 British doctors to serve in the province on short-term contracts.

HAS MAJOR ROLES

Lord Taylor apparently has had two major roles to act as a go-between, delivering and explaining to each side the other's position, and to offer suggestions in the light of experience with the British plan.

After holding Friday night meetings with each side, Lord Taylor met with the college council prior to the meeting of both parties Saturday.

At one point during weekend talks, Lord Taylor mentioned 5 p.m. Sunday as a deadline for the college council to tell him whether there would be a settlement. The deadline passed and Lord Taylor said it was extended.

STORIED ISLE FOR SALE

This 11 acres Foresters Isle off Deseronto is justly famous for its historic past. The famous Indian Dr. Oronhyatekra, practised his profession in Nanapee for a time, and occupied offices in the Daly building. He built a magnificent home on Robiin Hill while in Napanee.

He reorganized the Independent Order of Foresters, and established many fine buildings on the island, which acquired its name from that project. All the former buildings are now gone, but the foundations of cement paving, patios, etc. remain as reminders of its former grandeur. The site in general is level with trees of heavy and light hardwood trees lining the splendid shoreline. There are about 200 or 30 or more fine cottage sites on the East and North Shore.

It would lend itself ideally to the development on a large scale, or, for those who wish complete privacy for today and tomorrow.

Around this famous island are said to be the finest bass fishing grounds in the Bay of Quinte. Additional information from Canada's largest suburban realtor of Scarboro

Move In Wrong Direction

There is no question but that, in the past, Canadian immigration regulations have involved racial discrimination.

There was good reason for this. If Canada had accepted all, or even set proportions, of those wishing to come here to live, we would have been flooded with unskilled people with black, brown or yellow skins, totally unfitted by training to become equal partners in the Canadian scene.

A short time ago these long-standing regulations were changed. Discrimination now is based not on color, or race, but on skills. There were those who objected that, in effect, this was a change without a meaning, since the proportion of would-be colored immigrants who possessed the required skills was negligible. This was certainly true. Still, on the whole, we approved of the changed ruling. Its significance might be small today, but large at some time in the future.

Now, much quicker than anyone would ever have expected, we are seeing concrete results from this change in policy. A hundred and forty-eight West Indians, in the professional, technical and skilled trades, have already been accepted for entrance into Canada, and this number is expected to become 200 or more.

This surprising result has not simply occurred. It is the fruit of the work of a three-man Canadian recruiting team, which has been seeking in the West Indies people whose skills are required in Canada.

We do not know that it was altogether approve of this procedure. It is one thing to permit skilled people who desire to immigrate to do so; it is quite another thing to hunt these people out in relatively undeveloped lands and to induce them to leave their homeland which is likely to be in great need of just the skills they possess than is Canada. If we need to recruit skilled immigrants, let us do so in those countries which can best afford to lose their talents. What the world needs more than anything is the movement of skilled and dedicated people to undeveloped lands. To produce a peculiarly opposite thing deliberately is hardly a procedure which sits well with our natural pride in Canada's record in the realm of international co-operation.

What's In A Name?

What is a beatnik? The word has crept into the language, by occasional use and frequent misuse. Soon, we may expect to see it sanctified by a dictionary definition.

It began with a book by the American novelist, Jack Kerouack. He used the phrase, "the beat generation," to describe a group of Bohemians, born about 1920, who could see no future for the world. The original "beats" drifted away from reality as visualised on this this continent, into another reality, of oriental mysticism.

Unfortunately for the English language, Russia chose this as the time to launch the first Sputnik. In the slang craze which followed, everything in sight became a "nik," and the beat generation died. The beatnik was born.

But a beatnik, nowadays, is not a member of the old beat generation. The modern beatnik, in vulgar usage, is any-bohemian, another misnomer. When the gypsies, a Magyar race, first penetrated to Paris, the Parisians thought they came from Bohemia. Thence the word "Bohemian" came to symbolize any disorganized, gypsy-like life.

And the gypsies? Well, they are in the dictionary.

Moderation No Help Here

There is no reasonable doubt but that cigaret smoking increases the hazard of lung cancer.

However, doubt has now been cast on the contention that the danger of contracting this disease is highest for heavy smokers. Prof. R. D. Passey, a Leeds University pathologist says that a study with 499 men with lung cancer showed the amount of smoking they did made little difference as to the time they contracted the disease. All contracted it at approximately the same age.

This seems to provide the exception needed to prove the rule that moderation should be followed in all things.

If one is going to smoke at all, one might as well smoke continuously.

Macmillan Meets Crisis

Montreal Gazette

The challenge which Prime Minister Macmillan has now taken up in the British Cabinet are substantial. They consist of much more than a rearrangement of offices, a placing of old faces in new places. They are a response to a political emergency, brought about by failing popularity in the country and by growing criticism in the Conservative Party.

More than one-quarter of the Cabinet, including the chief offices, including such senior or well-known ministers as Selwyn Lloyd, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Harold Watkinson, Minister of Defence; and Sir David Eccles, Minister of Education, . . .

The case of Selwyn Lloyd is a special one. He, more than most can ever have been exposed to greater ability in public popularity, for his 100% imminent resignation more often predicted, than fulfilled. He was the first received major office in 1959 was recognized as a future Prime Minister. But he was Foreign Secretary at the time of the Suez fiasco, and although it seems certain that he was only carrying out the policy of the then Prime Minister, Sir Anthony Eden, he was exposed to severe and bitter attack.

Mr. Lloyd survived the effects of the Suez crisis and was retained as Foreign Secretary by the Macmillan Government, obtaining and his fortunes improved. But when he was moved to the Chancellorship of the Exchequer a couple of years ago, he had to bring in financial policies necessary for the country, but highly unpopular because of their "wage-freeze" nature.

Mr. Lloyd's name has been so closely associated with these policies that it was evidently felt he had become a political liability to the Government.

By removing so many ministers from office, including some so highly placed as Prime Minister Macmillan has gained the flexibility to make new things. He has been able to promote ministers who are both able and popular; it has also been able to bring in new ministers who are relatively young and ambitious.

One of the most important changes is that the leadership of R. A. Butler to be First Secretary of State and Deputy Prime Minister. Mr. Butler was regarded as the alternative choice to Prime Minister, before Mr. Macmillan's illness developed, and he has long been regarded as the obvious successor to Mr. Macmillan. He is popular in the Conservative Party and in the country, and Mr. Macmillan is clearly trying to associate himself as closely with Mr. Butler as possible.

Two other significant changes are the promotion of Mr. Reginald Maudling, who is only 45 years old, to the vital office of Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the appointment of Mr. Duncan Sandys to hold the Commonwealth and the Colonial offices.

In view of the controversy over the Government's financial policies, Mr. Maudling may have little chance to break the Government during the two years before another election must be held. He will have to avoid unpopularity as an "austerity" minister, while following policies that will avoid another economic crisis.

Prime Minister Macmillan has made changes in those responsible for negotiating Britain's entry into the European Common Market. This he could scarcely do, even if he had wished to do so, before new laws affected the negotiations. It seems certain that entry into the European Economic Community will remain the principal policy of Mr. Macmillan's Government.

Mr. Macmillan has not made his Cabinet changes out of preference, but out of necessity because he felt he had no alternative. The popularity of his Government has been falling, and this has been manifested in each of many by-elections. With the ground thus being cut from under his feet at home, the Government's conservative party was at stake, and so was its whole future policy, entry into the Common Market.

The Cabinet changes are Mr. Macmillan's response to the unfavorable by-elections. If he had done less, the changes would have been regarded as too timid; if he had done more his Government would have been regarded as too corrupt. It is this new Cabinet upon which Mr. Macmillan will rely to regain confidence in Britain into the Common Market, and to regain sufficient public support to win the next election.

'Old' Is Not Dirty Word

Cleveland Plain Dealer

Some people prefer the term "Golden Age" to describe their old years in what is sometimes described as the "canny side of life," others like the term "Senior Citizens." There's nothing wrong with either term, but as we approach the status of this large group of citizens we have no objection whatsoever to being described by the ancient and honorable term of "old."

There's no getting away from the fact that old football juggler, Jack Dempsey, respected as actor and game; that one-time world's heavyweight boxing without getting tired and that one needs spectacles to find a name in a telephone directory. In short, one is growing old. But there's everyone, there's no shouting it.

An agency of the United Nations reports that throughout the world today 200,000,000 persons are past 60. From 1950 to 1960 the number increased by 4,500,000 a year, or 2.5 per cent. Meanwhile, the world population grew by 43,000,000 a year, or 1.5 per cent.

In the United States, Canada and Europe, one of every seven persons is past 60; in the United States one in 11, in Latin America one in 16; in Asia and Africa, fewer than one in 20.

Yet, according to the UN report "efficient and responsible citizens reach a peak past 60," and the report urges that the aged be encouraged to keep their place in the community.

In certain industrial Texas towns, pensioners help in training new workers.

Thus "old" is not a dirty word, and many persons past 60 can do their work as well as they ever could. We should do some way, if we can, in which they can remain useful.

Atomic Power Opportunity

Hamilton Spectator

The President of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, A. J. L. Gray, says Canada very soon as a major exporter of atomic power reactors. He is not the first to make such a prediction but he does it from a wider basis knowledge of the economics of atomic power than most. With large supplies of natural uranium available and an experience in developmental of atomic energy for peacetime uses that, in time at least, is second to none, it is in its own fault if his prediction dwells in the realm of fantasy. Expanding world demand for atomic power may be a long way off. Hydro power is still the cheapest form of energy and, with the constant change in these systems, we will still have a large potential undeveloped. Moreover, in areas where steam coal is in abundance and can feed power plants more cheaply than a nuclear plant.

But the export market that Dr. Gray sees just around the corner could be the answer for a Canadian electronics industry which has already demonstrated its knowhow in the atomic field. If this is a possibility, immediate steps are in time to lose. We should be developing potential not only for production but for the factors such as the 280 million uranium reserves, but for smaller types suitable to replace diesel power in remote areas. Here atomic power is but the eventual answer to the exorbitant cost of transporting fuel by air.

With facilities of Atomic Energy Limited available, this is a field in which partnership between government and private industry can be fully justified.

Nuclear Clubs Status Symbols Mad Fads

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If anyone thinks I was guilty of hysterical exaggeration in my recent piece on "insanity" in the modern nuclear world, let me refer you to an astonishing dispatch from London by William Shoneman of The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service.

Shoneman reported that there is a growing belief in British official quarters at the British decision to concentrate on military rather than civilian targets in a nuclear war.

"Since the new American concept," Shoneman points out, "would make the British deterrent practically useless against the initial stage of a nuclear war, it would deprive Britain of its highly prized membership in the nuclear club and its role in the prestige and prerequisites that go with it."

If this is not absolute insanity, then the word has lost its meaning. When "official quarters" become "deeply distressed" because big cities are no longer the target, we have reached rock-bottom of civilization.

And what is the distressful reason given by Shoneman (who, by the way, is one of America's most reliable and well-informed foreign correspondents)? Not any abstract principle, but because the American decision seems to freeze Britain out of the nuclear club, and out of the prestige and prerequisites that go with it.

Could lunacy extend any further than this? The power to wage nuclear war, whereby we easily devastate the planet, is viewed by these "experts" merely as the prerequisite of a private club, like White's or Boodles, where gentlemen are rationed and ranked by their financial ability to join membership committee.

"Don't make this dreadful decision to bomb only military objectives," plead the official quarters. "Let us retain our prestige as a nuclear power against big city — otherwise we will feel snubbed, we will lose caste, we will sink in prestige. God forbid you might even lose our membership in the nuclear club, and never again be invited to the annual dinner-dance."

I call this insanity, not in derogation to Britain, which I deeply respect for many reasons (not the least of which is my having been born there). But this is the attitude of "official quarters" everywhere — the feeling that war is a private matter, a game of chess in a club, a struggle for prestige and prerogatives. This complete divorce from reality is a sure sign of insanity, in individuals and in national leaders.

Never Be Misled by False Old Term 'Growing Pains'

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes "growing pains" in children? My son complains of a pain in the leg muscles. — M. K.

We should never let ourselves be misled by that false old term, "growing pains," because there's no such thing.

Growing doesn't hurt.

However, children can and do at times have muscular cramps and pains, and there are two causes which outnumber others.

One is the fact that active youngsters sometimes don't know their own strength or its limitations) and keep going until tired muscles "scream for mercy." Muscles will do that to kids again. In spades at being overworked. So take a cramp like this means muscle pain is not a sign of weakness. The result, again, is muscular pain.

Therefore I suggest these two rules, first of all, when a child complains of pain in the legs. Second, check up that every child ought to have, tell the doctor about these pains, and be sure it has proper posture and, particularly, foot structure. Flat feet hurt.

There are, naturally, other causes for such pains. If the pain is in the thigh, may be one of the muscles, and especially if the child has been a fever or recently had tonsilitis or a sore throat, a medical checkup would be in order to be sure there is no rheumatic disease.

Sometimes I do not like to approach, important to note whether the child's diet is correct. Diet deficiencies can contribute to "growing pains."

There are, as well, a variety of rarer troubles, but I see no special point in fretting about them. If the child complains and is skinsicked and the pains persist, then it's time to look for the infrequent sources, and for that you'd have to depend on your doctor's diagnosis.

Dear Dr. Molner: My wife and I are attempting to diet, and two serves the enclosed article. It's about time we began to determine fact from fallacy. Would you advise us? — H.S.

The enclosed article was one written by Dr. Frederick Stare, head of the department of nutrition at Harvard. He is a friend of mine, which is important; he is a scientifically trained reliable man, which is important.

Radar Checks Boat Cowboys

Cornwall Standard-Free-holder

Police are planning to employ radar on Lake Simcoe and Lake Couchiching in a effort to curb the activities of motorboat "cowboys".

According to the Sudbury Star, this action follows a number of complaints from residents about operations on these lakes. The unit to be used is similar to that used to measure motorists' speeders.

In the course, there will be an extension of the use of radar to check up on speeding boaters as well. Police hopes a real threat to the safety of other boating enthusiasts. Marine controls, similar to those used in coastal states in the United States, must be introduced in Canadian waters because of the great number of pleasure boats.

But in the state of Ohio, one lake is set aside for the use of high-power motors only. Only outboard motors of between five and six horsepower are permitted on other lakes. Such a program has proved an effective measure of control on the number of accidents.

It may take some time before a friend of mine, which is married in Ontario. But at least the introduction of radar to curb irresponsible boating represents a step in the right direction.

Lost Wallet Is Caught By Fisherman

INGERSOLL, Ont. (CP) Charles Dawdry of Ingersoll has reason to believe in Fisherman's Luck.

He said Sunday he was fishing Thursday in Lake Erie near Turkey Point. He dropped his wallet containing $150 and valuable papers, apparently as he pushed his boat in shallow water. A search was unsuccessful.

Mrs. R. T. Saxby of Tillsonburg, Ont., phoned him Friday to say her husband had the wallet. Its contents intact. Mr. Saxby was trolling for pike in Long Point Bay when he caught it.

Kirk Reid Finishes First In Yacht Club's Regatta

The finest fleet seen to date this sailing season gathered entries as a "Y" Flyer, and an on the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club's annual open regatta and to see Kirk Reid of the best club lead the fleet across the finish line with a lone one three hours, 33 minutes and 21 seconds (3:35:21) for the 5.3 mile course.

Although a late starter in his own class, having been the fourth O'Day sailer to cross the starting line in the first class away under the gun, Reid not only overcame the initial lead of his class competitors but also managed to outrun Ian Borch's "Ca Va", the first to the first point, in his small centreboarder.

Very light winds, when there were any, indicated a drifting race by O. J. "Blackie" Williams, skipping the Aerogastic Club's lone keel boat entry "Astra".

The rest of the fleet soon followed as increasing winds provided some drive which soon had the competitors well bunched with the exception of Jenkins' "Ruths II", which missed the winds which many of the others were enjoying, and Howard Wickerson's "Sobester", which had made a timing error at the start.

Keen competition was the order of the day, especially in the Norberg class which had a dozen entries, mostly from the Aircastic Club. The open class, which saw such varied Murray Mills, a junior golfer playing in a club match against Peter Simott here.

Mills' ball rebounded from the marker, through a window of the clubhouse, and knocked a bottle of Scotch whisky from a shelf in the bar. The bottle did not break.

Tee Ball Went Looking For Highball

GALT (CP)—A ladies' tee marker scotched a drive for Mills' golf match between Peter Simott and Mrs. Mills, when the range safety officer at Cape Canaveral pushed a button to electrically fuse 800 pounds of charges in the vehicle.

Doris McLean Wins Ladies' Golf Crown

A gulling "bridesmaid" for two years, Mrs. Doris McLean finally became a championship "bride" winning the Bay of Quinte Country Club's ladies' crown over the weekend.

Mrs. McLean defeated last year's champion, Betty Ingram 4 up and 4 in 4 thirty-six hole match.

Both carded 39's for the first eighteen holes, but the new champion forged ahead in the second round to win the honors.

Both ladies played excellent golf, particularly in the first round, when the lead went from one to the other.

Sixteen ladies qualified for the championship round.

The champion defeated Clare Hopwood-Jones, Hilda Dolan and Anne Acton before meeting Mrs. Ingram for the title.

Mrs. Ingram drew a bye in the first round by virtue of being the 1961 champion, then went on to defeat Eva Ketcheson, and Ena Corke before meeting Mrs. McLean.

Mrs. McLean holds the course record for ladies, having shot an 80 earlier in the season. She was twice runner-up for the title.

Mrs. Ingram is a two-time champion. She won the title in 1958 and again last season.

Venus-Bound Spacecraft Ends in Flames

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The first American attempt to launch a space craft to explore the planet Venus has ended in flaming failure nearly 100 miles above the Atlantic Ocean. The booster rocket derailed from course and was destroyed Sunday.

Project officials almost immediately began questioning the second launching to the mysterious, bright planet within a few weeks.

The $8,000,000 Alis-Agena B rocket and $4,000,000 Mariner R spacecraft were consumed in a voluminous ball of fire when the range safety officer at Cape Canaveral pushed a button to electrically fuse 800 pounds of charges in the vehicle.

Project officials had labored for months to perfect the most complex and sophisticated space payload ever launched by the United States.

If Mariner I had worked, it would have sped across a 224,-000,000 - mile - to - Venus flight course and passed within 10,000 miles of Venus on the intended target date of Dec. 8. Its measuring instruments were to have reached electronic fingers into Venus's dense cloud layers.

weapons nor stopping of their tests.

"In strengthening its might, the Soviet Union is acting not only in its own interests, but also in the interests of all mankind, in support of universal peace."

"As long as the agreement on disarmament has not been reached, we have no other way in the present international situation.

"The stronger the socialist camp will be, the greater the defensive might of our country, the less is the danger of an aggression, the possibility of an outbreak of a destructive thermonuclear war."

LONDON (AP) — Foreign criticism of Moscow's decision to stage a new series of nuclear weapons tests mounted slowly today.

The United States deplored the announcement as "disturbing news" at a time when the disarm a m e n t conference in Geneva "is seeking new approaches for an agreement on a nuclear test ban treaty."

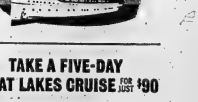
The state department said "the world need hardly be reminded" that Russia touched off new rounds of nuclear weapons testing last September when it broke a moratorium which had existed for almost three years.

The department expressed hope that despite the projected new tests, the Soviet Union will continue to negotiate—and seriously so—in Geneva."

The Moscow announcement did not say when the tests will begin, but it is assumed the first blast will be touched off in Siberia soon.

In Britain, the proposed new Soviet tests sent anti-nuclear pickets hurrying from outside the U.S. Embassy in London to the Soviet Embassy. The pickets had been parading outside it had been parading outside tests against the present U.S. tests in the Pacific.

A group of young Britons said they hoped to recruit an international crew to sail a lifeboat into Leningrad harbor in Sep-100 miles above the Atlantic tember to protest the Soviet decision.



The Liberal British newspaper The Guardian urged that the West press for an agreement to end all further tests as soon as the new Soviet tests are finished. The paper said a Soviet claim to have an automatic right to test last is absurd "but nothing is gained by disputing it and nothing is likely to be gained either by piling yet further Western tests on the hour series carried out since Easter."

Drop Hemlines This Winter Fashion Hint

PARIS (Reuters)—Paris will drop the hemlines in the winter fashion showings next week, one leading fashion house says.

In an unprecedented departure from the habitual secrecy surrounding the new designs, the house of Christian Dior announced Saturday that designer Marc Bohan has lengthened the hemline almost one inch.

Other famous Paris couturiers also intend to show longer hems. Rogue Hancebrik knees will be modestly covered by skirts lengthened anywhere from one to two inches.

The slender aspect of the "straight-line" silhouette will be furthered by restrained neckline treatments with high small collars, long tight sleeves and narrow unpadded shoulders, according to over-all showing predictions.

Little and Lovely

By ALICE ALDEN

Clothes for the small fry are not only appealing but also fashionable, practical and altogether lovely.

Pretty as a summer garden is this little miss who is "barely" summer-garbed.

The blue and white seersucker launders with ease and doesn't muss. Completely ruffle-edged about its plastron top, the smusuit features a gay applique of colorful balloons.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

GOOD SPORTS OBEY THE RULES

While lying on his beach the other day, I got to musing a bout signs, by and by, I almost got cooked on the head by one.

It read, clear as day, "No ball playing allowed." But what had almost toppled it over on me was a fine drive by a husky batter teaching his son how to wallop a homer. Happily, the lesson was over my head and, if the ball had not hit the sign and spared my noggin, it might have been over my dead body, as well.

After returning the ball to the owners (neither even said "thank you," of course) I shakily looked around to see if others were ignoring the words on the sign just as thoroughly. For all the good it did, the person who put it up might just as well have added a loop so it could be used as a backboard for playing basketball.

Sure enough, there were at least six ball games going on within the scope of my blurred vision. The pre-schoolers, of course, could be excused on the basis of ignorance. But what excuse can be offered for teenagers and older, aside from plain thoughtlessness and discourtesy, which are rather inexcusable to begin with? Clearly, either Johnny really can't read, or he can't read what he doesn't want to.

Signs of this nature are put there not so much to encourage good manners — although it is a side effect — but for the general welfare and safety of the public. To so blatantly ignore them not only places them in an uncomfortable position, but also the rest of the bright citizenry. Even a softball can inflict severe injury when it's thrown or hit with sufficient force. A golf ball batted around on a crowded beach can be lethal. A sun hat or a bathing cap hardly offers a scrap of protection.

The fun-spoiler may not care, but I'm sure that thousands of others have shared his unnerving experience of being nearly bonked by a ball or, worse luck, having served as a ball's eye. While little children can be excused somewhat, I'm afraid there's still no excuse for the grown-ups who either play ball where signs are posted or actually encourage their children to do so. The Great American Jean Fastime is restricted section.

If youngsters are to grow up to be law-abiding citizens, they must be taught from the beginning to obey all legally posted signs, whether they say "don't play ball" or "please don't litter." At most public parks, beaches, and picnic areas set aside for sports of all kinds, I've found interesting that teaching their offspring to be both courteous and cautious of the rights of officially sanctioned playing fields a good place to start.

Obeying the rules is part and parcel of good sportsmanship. The same goes for signs, which, after all, are an official statement of the rules governing public places.

So before interrupting them to test your own lights, here's another good one to remember: "Think."

AMATEURS ROUGH

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Asked what is the most dangerous part of shocked racing, veteran driver Bill Walsh of Brantford replied: "Travelling to and from the track." He explained that each driver on the track is a professional, but it's a different story on the highway.

Canadian Girls Like Work In Tiny Liechtenstein

By MARGARET NESS

VADUZ, Liechtenstein (CP) — Two Canadian girls are spending the summer working in this tiny principality tucked between Austria and Switzerland.

Anne Sinclair of Montreal, who was here last summer as well, is doing public relations and selling watches for tourist-minded Baron Gerard Von Falz-Fein.

Evelyn Mills of Vancouver came here by way of London where she has been since last september, doing secretarial work. She happened to hear of the baron's gift-cum-tourist bureau and applied.

Both agree that simply working in this predominantly German-speaking principality on the Upper Rhine is a liberal education. On the baron's staff are girls from France, Germany, Australia and Italy as well as Canada.

It's the baron's idea—to give tourists this extra attention—and it sometimes leads to amusing situations such as when American or English tourists compliment Evelyn on her good English.

FAMILY ATTRACTED

While Evelyn has picked up a few words of German from friendly Liechtensteiners, Anne is already fluent in the language having spent the winter as a ski instructor at St. Anton, Austria.

Anne's enthusiasm for this community and the Alps has extended on among her family. Her bother Peter and his bride, the former Alexandra Weil of Montreal, spent part of their honeymoon here. And sister Susan will attend school in Chateau d'Oex near Lausanne, Switzerland.

Friends Honor Neighbors With Bon Voyage Party

MARMORA — A number of friends met on the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Maloney, Marmora township, to extend best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. James Sproule of Marmora, who are leaving on July 17, via Malton air-ways to visit their former homes in Glasgow, Scotland. The party was held in their daughter's and was a complete surprise. They received several gifts.

Barber in the week Mrs. Sproule attended a coffee party at the home of Mrs. Manley Lavender, where she was again surprised with a lovely personal gift.

Mr. and Mrs. Sproule came to Canada as a bride and groom 33 years ago and have resided since in the village.

Mr. Sproule was employed by Deloro Smelting and Refining Company and still commutes to the Deloro Stellite plant in Belleville. He is on holiday. This is his first visit home but Mrs. Sproule and daughter made the trip several years ago.

In, On, Under, Beside And Around Belmont Lake

by Mary Moore

Belmont Lake is on the map of Central Ontario, but the cottager did not learn about it in any public school geography class.

But for one month this summer all my days and nights are spent either in it, on it, around it, bathing it, laundering it, rinsing in it, consuming it or teaching little ones to swim in it.

It is a lovely lake studded with islands. The moon rises and sun sets send us all into raptures and exclamations. Magnificent!

"Gammo" is in her happy and chosen element cooking for eight and every one of them is hungry. We thought that ten-month-old Danny might be a problem but he is a good-natured babe and is happy in his playpen beside us while we loll in the can after three-or sometimes four swims per day.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Braised Short Ribs of Beef; Brown Gravy; Garden Peas with Mint and Sugar; Parsley Potatoes; Tomato, Cress and Cucumber Salad; Fresh Cherry Lattice Pie; Coffee.

Helen and George Pollock dropped in on us last Saturday afternoon and brought some scrumptious baking — a perfect Lemon Bread (below) and some delicious Macaroon Puffs. I will give you the recipe for the latter next month, for they are interesting because B'-ten tells me they are steamed, before baking.

I made a Cocoanut Cream Pie yesterday, which disappeared almost before I knew I had it. I think it was extra good but there is no telling for sure for this crowd is so voracious they consume everything they see at once.

HELEN'S LEMON BREAD

½ cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, grated rind of 1 lemon, ½ cup milk, 1½ cups sifted bread flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, dash of salt, chopped nuts to taste (walnuts or pecans.)

Cream the butter and sugar until light. Beat in the eggs and rind. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt, and add one-third at a time, alternately with the milk. Fold in chopped nuts —from ½ to ¾ cup if desired. Turn into buttered loaf pan (Helen used a 9x4x2½" pan). Bake at 350 deg. F. 55 minutes. As soon as the bread is taken from oven turn over it a mixture of ½ cup sugar and juice of one lemon. Leave in pan 10 minutes then turn out to cool on rack, glazed side up.

COCOANUT CREAM PIE

1 cup sugar, ½ cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 cups scalded milk, 3 eggs, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ¾ cup cocoanut.

In top of double boiler mix together the sugar, flour and salt. Over boiling water stir in scalded milk until thick. Stir in egg yolks and cook 2 or 3 minutes longer. Add butter, vanilla and cocoanut; strain into baked pie shell (9"). Beat remaining egg whites with 4 tablespoons sugar until stiff. Spread over warm filling, sealing at edge and sprinkle top with more cocoanut. Brown meringue at 375 deg. F. until it and cocoanut are tinged with gold. Serve cold.

Bride-to-Be Feted With Lovely Gifts

GILMOUR — Mrs. Thomas Jenkins and Mardi were hostesses on Wednesday evening for a bridal shower for Miss Joan Grant, Bancroft, formerly of Wesleyan Lake.

There were 30 guests and the evening was spent in games and contests.

The bride-to-be, seated on a bench under pink and white bells and streamers opened and passed around the pretty gifts for all to see. Joan received many lovely useful articles for which she thanked everyone.

Refreshments were served.

Guests were present from Gilmour; Gunter; Westlemkoon Lake and Bancroft.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. S.F.—He's a grown man but he gives me as much worry as a child.

Flora F.—She should be sorry for him, not so impatient and annoyed.

* * *

Mrs. S.F. — What do you do with a husband who's just a big child? He holds a routine 8-hour-a-week job and then demands upon me to think up bright ideas to fill every other hour of his week — the hours, that is, when he isn't killing time by sleeping.

I didn't realize how dependent he was until our daughter married and moved away. Now I can what a load she took off my hands, just talking to her Dad, playing cards with him, accompanying him on walks and to the movies. With her gone, I'm the one he turns to all with his eternal question: "What's there to do now?" He's like a little boy who can't be amused and played with. Naturally when I have reading or letters to do, I feel guilty, as though I'm neglecting him. Not once has he said, "Go along. I'm busy." He'll only wait for me.

Our daughter thinks I'm too hard on him when I beg him to take up a hobby or work at some friends. But as the same time she knows herself quite scarce, whereas he's dying to talk to her and enjoy her company.

* * *

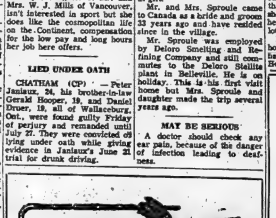
Flora F.T. — I know how Dad just sits around, but that doesn't mean he's just waiting for Mother to entertain him. He's just a homebody who'd rather be in his favorite chair with his family nearby than anywhere else on earth. My mother needn't feel guilty going about her own affairs.

But she shouldn't bawl him out or make fun of him. She's always telling him he's worse than a child, and that she's thought she'd have some freedom after raising me but that he's just like another youngster to take care of. Just because she's full of bright ideas about things to do, places to go, she shouldn't treat him as though he's feebleminded. He reads a lot and he's good company.

It's true that nothing really holds his attention so hard that he objects to being interrupted. He'll always stop whatever he's doing at Mother or I ask him to help us or join in whatever we're doing. But that's the way he is. After all those years, Mother won't change him. Why should she try? He's a dear!

* * *

The Council: Thoreau, the wise philosopher, is currently being much quoted in celebration of the 100th Anniversary of his passing. So we turn to his poetic way of publishing, perhaps, why Mr. F. is a follower type, and Mrs. F. the self-starter. It's because each of us "hears a different drummer" in the distance and keeps pace accordingly.



Besides hearing her "special drummer," Mrs. F. is waiting to hear three little words from Mr. F., and they're not "I love you." She wants to hear, of all things, "Leave me alone!" She awaits the day when he'll be so engrossed in an interesting project of his own (aside from sleep) that he'll say, "Go along without me. I'm fine." Then she won't have to suppress guilt feelings over her solo jaunts.

We submit that her problem is one of acceptance. Okay, Mr. F. isn't an initiator, an imagineer. He's a pigalong, a me-too. Fortunately, the human race is divided into personality types time and each has its purpose. For every creator, there's an appreciator. For every contemplator, there's a doer. At least that's the idea behind "Two and Plus." And once a man has reached the stage of life where Mr. F. is, it's folly to hope to, or try to, push him over into a different rack.

It's useful, valuable rack. Mr. F. appears to be a restful, quiet, peaceful soul. Maybe, as Dear Gobel says, there's the best around it, instead of against it. And Flora can help matters by being less preachy and more practicing, by showing up at home more often to enjoy the Dad she admits is good company."

Once Mrs. F. realizes that her husband may be content "less actively" and "watchin' her," she won't be impatient with him and her guilt feelings should abate. One final thought, however: isn't she dependent upon him, too, in a different way?. How about his arm on her shoulder, and his comforting word?

What to Do About Necking?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I am 17 but have only had five dates. The reason is when I am asked out I refuse, because most of the boys around here seem to go for necking. I hate that.

I like boys who talk, joke and laugh (and do not always neck.) By talking most of the time, I am able to control myself, as well as the boy, and also learn more about the individual (my date.)

If I do go out with a guy and if he necks too much, I refuse to go on necking. Once this is done, he doesn't enjoy himself and neither do I.

So if I think he's that kind of guy I refuse to date. Most girls seem to enjoy themselves with whoever they go out with, but I just can't. What should I do?—ROSEMARY.

DEAR ROSEMARY—Where are you when this happens? The way to avoid sessions that you don't want is not to go where they take place: on lonely car rides, in unoccupied living rooms, in so-called "pagsion pits" (outdoor movies.)

The fairest thing is to stop the necking before it starts. Otherwise nature may resent interruption.

On your next date do something active; something that's fun and that works off energy. Something that provides laughter and other things to think about besides sex.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—There is help for these often forgotten people: the families of alcoholics.

Al-Anon is a fellowship of relatives and friends of alcoholics, banded together to try to improve their understanding of the alcoholic. We are a group of various backgrounds, religions, ages, all united by one common factor: the disease of alcoholism.

If P.M. or others with this problem would like more information, they may write to: Al-Anon New Hope Group, P.O. Box 715, Winnipeg 1, Manitoba.—AL-ANON CHAIRMAN.

DEAR AL-ANON CHAIRMAN—Every word you say is true, and more. There are Al-Anon groups in many centres, which may also be contacted through an enquiry of the local A. A.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—Would you please tell me why everyone writing for advice is asked to give their proper names. It has been annoying me for some time.—MISS B. D.

DEAR MISS B. D.—Believe it or not, there are people who write anonymous letters for the purpose of making a practical joke or delivering an unwelcome message to someone who reads the column. No columnist wants to be involved this way. In fact, it is accepted newspaper practice to request identification. Ask the editor of your own paper.

Correspondents who have honest-to-goodness problems do not hesitate to identify themselves. They know that any columnist worth her salt will honor their confidence.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—When we first are left a widow it looks like there is no more to life. Your former friends all leave you like a shot—you go through a period of very deep mourning, you go over and over your past, but then someone comes along and you take on new life.

Tears stop flowing, your heart pit-a-pats, once again you're alive. You're still young and 35 or 36 years ahead of you perhaps. I know because I'm about to venture out the second time and I'm about to burst with excitement. We know what to put into marriage as we have had experience and learned how to give and take.

The relatives all throw up their arms and say don't do it, but all they're looking at is their own interests. We both have it made and all we have to do is "reap what we have sown." To be given that warm tender look, a gentle pat, an affectionate kiss and strong embrace of a living man is enough to make one live forever. This marriage will be better than the first for we are much wiser now. I'm so happy I cannot put it in words.—JUST MOONING.

DEAR JUST MOONING—I'd be mooning too. It sounds like the real thing—twice. Best wishes!

• • •

DEAR DORIS—About three months ago I had a party and invited this boy. When the party was nearly over he kissed me on the cheek. It was then my crush on him began.

Since my party some girls told him I cry every night over him, etc., which is not true. Thanks to them he will not talk to me and he even talks about me behind back. He pushes me around and calls me names. I still like him and want him.

Please help me to find a way to get him back and prove that I like him.—HOPING AND WISHING.

DEAR HOPING AND WISHING—Do you really want to be pushed around? And called names. What is this thing called love?

If you want to prove you don't cry over him—and to bring about a little more courteous treatment—try the old ignoring technique. Give the others your favors for a while.

Arthur W. Roebuck at 84 Has Three Careers Going Won't Retire 'Until Old'

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the busiest men on Parliament Hill is an 84-year-old Liberal senator who keeps three careers going and doesn't intend to retire from any of them "until I get old."

Arthur Wentworth Roebuck is a complete denial of the popular idea that senators are decayed politicians sitting out $10,000-a-year appointments in mothballs.

He rarely misses a Senate sitting, is chairman of the heavily burdened Senate divorce committee, keeps up a thriving law practice in Toronto and is one of the country's most active labor conciliation experts.

When he isn't involved in one of these fields, Senator Roebuck might be found on a golf course (he shoots in the low 80s) or relaxing with paint brush and easel. Both hobbies are late-life acquisitions. He began golfing when he was 60 and took up oil painting at 70.

Retirement, he says, is something young men should plan for and old men should avoid.

Friends of the senator point to him as a living argument against Prime Minister Diefenbaker's proposal to retire senators at 75.

OPPOSES REFORM

Senator Roebuck has nothing but scorn for this or any other plan to "plot" senate reform. He predicts that none will ever get through the House of Commons which would have to approve any legislation before it could become law.

He describes so-called Senate reform as a "plot" to send civil servants who want the Senate out on their way, "to be put on a cushy pension" at Parliament Hill the civil servants have wanted.

The slim, finely featured senator is one of the regular Liberal familiar figures in the inevitable wing collar, pince-nez and black bombazine.

His silvery hair retains enough of its original black to walk is brisk and his high-pitched voice clear and commanding. He spent three days out during a dull Senate debate after a particularly rough divorce committee session, but more often he is on his feet with sharp questions about some government bill.

A heart attack five years ago—"not much of a one"—hardly caused him to break stride. When doctors advised easing up, his one concession was to decline any more cases involving appearances before the Supreme Court of Canada.

He is "a pack-a-week smoker," takes an occasional drink—and seems to thrive on honest work is the best formula for a long and active life.

DISMISSED JP'S

Senator Roebuck has been in politics since 1911 but wasn't elected until 1934 when the Liberals under Mitchell Hepburn swept into power in Ontario. He became attorney-general in the first Hepburn cabinet and for a time held a triple portfolio with labor and hydro.

He revamped the attorney-general's department, dismissing 10,000 justices of the peace and 20 magistrates by stream-line the court system.

Hydro, he reversle power contracts to reduce power costs by $7,000,000 a year and as labor minister introduced legislation forcing companies to honor collective agreements.

In 1937 he split sharply with Hepburn over interference in the General Motors strike at Oshawa, resigning from the cabinet with David Croll who had taken over the labor ministry and who now is a Senate colleague.

"You may remember Croll's historic remark that he'd rather walk with the workers than ride with General Motors. That went for both of us."

Senator Roebuck entered Parliament in 1940 as MP for Toronto Trinity and made a bid for the Ontario leadership when Hepburn resigned in 1942. He says he thought he had Ottawa's backing at the leadership convention but found out too late that it had been withdrawn.

'HORRIBLY TREATED'

"I was horribly treated by the Ottawa cabinet. They got me out on a limb and sawed it off."

His believes it was partly to compensate for such treatment and partly to reward his work as Liberal strategist in the 1940 federal election that Prime Minister Mackenzie King appointed him to the Senate April 15, 1945.

When the new Parliament met, the 67-year-old rookie senator took his seat in the staid chamber, often described as an old man's home for worn-out politicians, in a cabinet carefully.

At that point Arthur Roebuck seemed to be entering the twilight of a long career. He had much to look back on.

Born at Hamilton, Feb. 28, 1879, he spent five boyhood years in Victoria before the family returned to Ontario in 1892 and farming near near Guelph, moving into Toronto in 1894.

His first job was as a $1-a-week elevator boy for a Toronto department store. Next he took him five years to move up to a clerk's $5 salary and became convinced that he wasn't cut out for the business world.

Resuming the last three years of high school into six months of intense study he won entry to law school. At that time two years of apprenticeship was needed to get into Osgoode Hall and the young Roebuck found study left ample time for his "high blood."

RAN WEEKLY PAPER

He spent five "very active, very profitable" years as a reporter for the Toronto Star, then went to the Northern Ontario town of New Liskeard to take over a weekly newspaper that a younger brother had been running when typhoid killed him.

"I took it largely for sentimental reasons and lived up north for 10 years."

As editor of the now-defunct Liskeard Herald he soon was deep in politics, a calling he first came to him naturally.

The senator takes pride in the memory of a great-uncle, John Arthur Roebuck, who left Canada at 20 and became a British MP.

"Long before the outbreak of rioting in both the Canadas in 1837, he envisaged the Canadian nation as we know it today and publicly advocated its formation. He was the original Father of Confederation."

The young editor was a candidate three times in Timiskaming, once for the federal seat and twice for the legislature. Those were rough times for new politicians and the senator still retains bitter memories.

Timiskaming riding then ran from New Liskeard "clear to the North Pole" and the senator says enumerators were often too good at finding Conservative voters and omitting Liberals.

CHOSE HEPBURN

He finally gave up, "sold the paper for a few dollars" and had taken over the labor minis-

SENATOR KEEPS ACTIVE — Senator Arthur Roebuck, 84-year-old Liberal, is opposed to the government's plan to have senators retire at 75. Chairman of the busy divorce committee, he is his own best argument. He runs a law practice in Toronto, remains active as a labor conciliation expert, plays golf and paints. (CP Photo).

1917. He used the money to finish law school, graduating 17 years after his original enrolment.

Law and politics mixed easily and he soon was prominent in Toronto's influential Liberal group. "Generally speaking, there was stagnation in government then. A few of us determined we would change it."

To look the way they selected Hepburn, "a swaller rabble-rouser" who, "had he remained the same as he was when he elected him, would have been a great leader."

FROM THE PRESS

From then the Roebuck political star soared until it crashed on the rocks of federal opposition in the 1943 leadership fight. Safe in the Senate, he soon found himself bored. One outlet for his energy was in labor conciliation, a field in which Senator Roebuck now is one of Canada's most respected experts.

He has been the union nominee on the three - member conciliation boards which have handled most of the major railway disputes of recent years.

For the last eight years his toughest chore has been the chairmanship of the Senate divorce committee which acts as the court for Quebec and Newfoundland divorces east. The other eight provinces have their own divorce courts.

The committee hears up to 600 cases a year, often sitting long hours on difficult ones. Its job is considered the most taxing in Parliament.

Why does an 84-year-old man continue to accept such an assignment?

"I keep on doing it because I think the divorce committee needs the harmony of live with our two languages. Both provinces seem to object to having the work done by ordinary courts. But the province of Quebec doesn't think so and so long as that province insists on handling them in this way, we in the Senate are prepared to go on doing this work."

The senator favors wider grounds for parliamentary divorce, which now is granted only on proof of adultery. He feels that this limit leads to fraudulent evidence in some instances "and we are prevented from judging on the real issue between the parties and making a sensible judgment in respect to them."

RESTORED OLD HOME

"It is because of these human aspects, and also because I think this work helps to keep us in harmony, that I go on with it."

Although he has been in federal politics more than 20 years, Senator Roebuck has no home in Ottawa. During sessions of Parliament he takes a room in a hotel five minutes' walk from his Senate office.

On weekends when he is free the senator returns to Toronto where his daughter, his son-in-law and two small granddaughters live with him.

His summer home is a 125-year-old stone farmhouse near Cobourg, Ont., which he discovered in derelict condition a few years ago and restored to its original pioneer state, doing much of the work himself.

There he paints, works on law and labor reports, and romps with granddaughters Wendy, 6, and Clay, 9. They and their mother, his only child, have been his closest companions since the death of Mrs. Roebuck in 1954.

Senator Roebuck describes his 116 - acre farm as "a wonderful place to relax and grow old."

But, of course, he doesn't intend to do either.

Nats Nip Yanks Twice, Twins Beaten

Angels Lose But Cut Lead

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Somebody down here must like the city's baseball fans.

Even when they lose, Los Angeles Angels gain. They were finally stopped 7-3 by Cleveland Indians Sunday after winning five straight games. But they still picked up half a game on New York Yankees and trail the American League leaders by three games. The Yankees dropped a doubleheader to the last-place Washington Senators 7-2 and 5-3.

The Angels' lofty station defies all laws of mathematics. They are unproven in team batting, eighth in home runs, ninth in fielding and 10th in pitching (complete games), but second in the standings with 53 victories against 41 defeats.

The third place Minnesota Twins missed a golden opportunity to close in on the Angels, bowing to Baltimore Orioles 8-6, while Chicago White Sox beat Boston Red Sox 7-3 as outfielder Floyd Robinson hit a record-tying 6-for-6 at the plate. Kansas City Athletics whipped Detroit Tigers 13-5.

SHUT OUT INDIANS

The Angels were triumphant Saturday, shutting out the Indians 4-0. New York edged Washington 4-3, Minnesota beat Baltimore 7-4, Chicago blanked Boston 5-0 and Detroit defeated Kansas City 7-5.

Willie Kirkland and Jerry Kindall were the big guns Sunday as the Indians broke a nine-game losing streak. The Indians broke out with 15 safeties against starter Don Lee and four relievers, Kirkland drove in three runs with his 18th home run and a single, Kindall batted in a pair with his tenth homer, Tito Francona (9-7) won and Lee (7-7) lost.

Righthanders Dave Stenhouse and Bennie Daniels went the distance against the Yankees and were given home run support by Harry Bright, Jim King and Chuck Hinton.

Bright hit a three-run homer off loser Bill Stafford in the first inning to account for all the runs in the Senators' first-game triumph. Stenhouse permitted only four hits for his ninth victory. Daniels allowed 10 hits for his fourth triumph in the nightcap and also hit a home run. The Yankees had won nine straight games prior to the double debacle.

ETS RECORD

Robinson became the 22nd American Leaguer to have a 6-for-6 day and the first since Joe Demaestri did it for Kansas City July 7, 1955. Ed Delahanty is the only player to collect six hits in a game twice. The major league record is Wilbert Robinson's 7-for-7 for Baltimore in 1892.

Robinson had six singles, connecting safely off each of five Red Sox hurlers. He drove in his 71st run, and scored once. The victory went to Frank Baumann in relief. The White Sox stranded 16 runners.

Jackie Brandt drove in three runs with a home run and three singles and made a spectacular catch to play the starring role in Baltimore's victory which snapped a six-game Minnesota winning streak.

Robin Roberts won his sixth game in nine decisions. He retired in the seventh when he developed stiffness in his arm. Binder's game-saving catch came in the ninth inning. He raced far to his left to pull down a line drive by Bill Tuttle with the bases loaded.

Ed Charles drove in four runs and Jerry Lumpe and Bobby Del Greco homered for the Athletics, who ruined only their second victory in the last 12 games. Ed Rakow won for Kansas City, his seventh against 11 defeats. Detroit's Sam Jones lost.

Scot Wins British Grand Prix

ANTRIM, England (AP) — Jimmy Clark, a part-time farmer from Scotland, led from the start to the finish in driving a British Lotus to victory in the British Grand Prix auto race.

The 26-year-old driver followed up his triumph in last month's Belgian Grand Prix with a beautifully paced race Saturday and a margin of 46.2 seconds over runner-up John Surtees of Britain, the former world motor cycling champion. Clark's victory earned him nine points in the world driving championship and raised him from fourth place to second behind leader Graham Hill of England. Hill has 19 points and Clark 18.

Clark toured the twisting, three-mile circuit 75 times in two hours, 36 minutes, 20.8 seconds, an average speed of 90.25 miles an hour. He earned one point for the fastest lap with a clocking of one minute, 39 seconds.

Surtees was second in a British Lola in 2:37:10.0. He was followed in order by Bruce McLaren of New Zealand, British Cooper, 2:38:06.8; Hill in a British BRM, 2:38:17.6; Jack Brabham, former world champion from Australia, in a Lotus, 2:38:41.4 (74 laps); and Tony Maggs of South Africa in a Cooper, 2:37:08.2 (74 laps).

Beats Goalby By Stroke

Gary Player Wins PGA Title

NEW TOWN SQUARE, Pa. (AP) — Gary Player, an intense little South African to whom golf is a way of life as well as a good source of income, has accomplished three-quarters of his ambitions—winning three of the world's top four golf championships.

And who do you suppose gets the major credit? Arnold Palmer, a fellow who won't be satisfied until he wins all four in one year.

Player, winner of the British open championship in 1959 and the Masters title in 1961, added the United States Professional Golfers' Association crown to his list Sunday when he finished one stroke ahead of Bobby Goalby in what he called "the most exciting game I've ever played."

Player shot a 70 for 278, two under par for the 72 holes. Goalby's final-round 67 gave him 279.

MISSED OPEN

The only major title Player has missed is the U.S. open. He said there was one thing he learned just before this tournament.

"I had been playing a lot of exhibitions with (Arnold) Palmer, I always thought driving was one of my good points, but I finally realized I couldn't outdo him.

"Today I never used a driver off the tee. I generally used a four wood and I never missed a fairway. The most important thing to me now is to keep the ball in play."

Player, 26, is the first designer in 32 years to capture the U.S. PGA.

Player's victory was worth $13,000, which put him in fifth place in the money winner derby with a total of $41,313.36 this year. Palmer, who finished with a final round of 72 and a 286 total that tied for 17th place, earned $666.67. He still is the top money man with $71,286.36 for the year.

George Knudsen of Toronto had 73-75-74-75—297, good for $230.

The last foreigner to take the championship was Scotland's Tommy Armour, who beat Gene Sarazen in 1930. Ben Hogan is a match-play event. Australian-born Jim Ferrier won in 1947 but at that time he was an American citizen.

FIRST PRO WIN

SUTTON, Mass. (AP)—Shirley Engleborn of Spokane, Wash., won the $10,000 women's eastern open golf tournament with a 54-hole total of 226. Miss Engleborn, winning her first professional tournament, finished with a one-over-par 75 Sunday to take first-prize money of $1,450.

Bradley Wins at Mosport

Bradley pushed his Miss Wiki to an average speed of 85.84 miles an hour in 30 laps Saturday over the rugged 2.46-mile course with a winning time of 30 minutes, 25.1 seconds.

More than half a minute behind him in second place was Ludwig Heimrath in his RS61 Porsche fitted with a 1,600 cc engine. Herb Swan of Cleveland was third in another RS61 Porsche.

'TAKES SHOE TITLE

BARRIE (CP)—Elmer Hohl of Wellesley, retained his Ontario horseshoe pitching championship here Saturday with a 50-38 victory over Jack Zon of Goderich in the final of the open division. Second division winner was Elmer Dench of Stratford. Joe Forewell of Waterloo, took the third division.

Jerome Stars at Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harry Jerome turned in the best hometown performances of his career as he won the 100- and 220-yard sprints at the Western Canada track and field championships, setting Canadian records in both.

The 22-year-old star from North Vancouver, now running with University of Oregon, ran the 100 in 9.3 seconds and the 220 in 20.9 Saturday. The times bettered his own previous Canadian records of 9.5 for the 100 and 21.2 for the 220.

His performances made him an automatic selection to the November 3-5 team that will travel to the Canadian championships and British Empire Games trials in Toronto in August.

Dave Steen, 20, of Burnaby, B.C., also standing the University of Oregon, broke the Canadian shot put record with a heave of 58 feet, two inches, a three-inch improvement on the previous mark which he set last year.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo H. Carver, Sports Editor

Motor-boat owners I have talked with since the Department of Transport came out with its new regulation regarding over-loading boats and "planing" of those 16-feet plus powered by 10 horsepower and over, generally agree with the ruling.

The consensus is that it is a step in the right direction towards the reduction of accident potential — one that should have been put into effect sooner.

I have definite proof that at least four people read this column because three out-of-town persons phoned me to say that as motorboat owners they had not been aware of the departmental ruling. True, they had not, as yet, been approached by RCMP (not RCMP operator) officers — but they were taking no chances and would get the plate immediately.

However another motorboat owner who drives a 16-footer-plus with a 10-plus horse-power motor, and has driven all sorts of power-craft in a hundred different settings, came up with an angle. I think it is a good one.

"I agree with all sensible power-boat owners that the water safety regulations are good ones. The authorities are wise, I believe, in putting punitive teeth into their accident-preventive edicts, if they do sound a bit tough."

The load-carrying regulations and the accompanying plate legislation are good ones. They were needed. It should stop a lot of foolhardy drivers from taking unnecessary chances."

"But" he said — and he was deadly serious — "the authorities can go still further, if they really want to reduce accidents and potential accidents, they should enact similar legislation for boats less than ten feet in length and powered with less than 10-horsepower motors."

"Some people driving these boats on the fay and inlet waters are not only a menace to themselves but to people who are driving within legal regulations — and who know the rules of the road and other matters necessary to the public safety on water."

"Only last week" he said, "I was driving my boat in the bay near here and was rounding a point. My speed was slow, thank heavens, or there would have been a serious accident. As I rounded the point a small boat, 14 or a twelve-footer powered with a five H.P., came roaring out in front of me. It had a man, woman and I don't know how many kids. I would say the boat had about four inches freeboard. My companion noted later that some of the children was wearing lifebelts."

"This is not an isolated instances" he said. "I have seen similar, but not quite as bad, incidents such as that. And I know of a dozen drivers who can corroborate the story."

It seemed to him, he said, that water-safety regulations should be made for all boats regardless of length or the horse-power of motors. If a boating accident occurs and someone is drowned as a result, it doesn't make much difference if the craft was sixteen or ten feet long or the motor 10 horse-power or more or less.

Water-safety organizations and others through the press and on the air, he said, issue periodical warnings and advice to boat owners anent boating hazards. They urge one to do this and not to do that. They are doing a good job, but a lot of those who hear do not heed.

"I think a law-enforcement officer stopping a boat-owner and checking his adherence to government regulations would be a far greater deterrent than all the advice in the world."

Giants Edge Pirates

Mets Face Oust; Dodgers Hold Lead

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Oblivion creeps closer for New York's hapless Mets in the 1962 National League race.

It has been obvious from the start of the season when Casey Stengel's unlikely crew of barons lost nine straight games —that they're not destined to be their year.

The Mets dropped two games to Cincinnati Reds Sunday and moved closer to bowing out of the pennant chase. They have lost eight straight games and could be officially out of the run by Aug. 25.

That would be embarrassingly early for president George Weiss and manager Stengel who used to clobber pennants by the dozen when they directed the fortunes of New York Yankees in the American League.

SLOW START CLAIMED

The Reds pounced on the hapless tailenders 11-4 and 4-3 for a doubleheader sweep Sunday with New York blowing an early lead in each game.

Pinch hitter Marty Keough completed the rout by clubbing a home run leading off the ninth inning of the nightcap, breaking a 3-3 tie. It provided New York with its eighth straight loss and pushed its record against the Reds to 0-7. It also was the 25th one-run game lost by the Mets this season.

The league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers maintained their two game margin, defeating Chicago Cubs 10-4 in a game that was halted because of rain after five innings. Second place San Francisco Giants edged Pittsburgh 5-4, St. Louis Cardinals took Houston Colts 5-1 and Milwaukee Braves swept two games from Philadelphia Phillies 13-10 and 5-3.

New York now 39 games behind Los Angeles, lost a 4-1 lead in the first game and 1-0 in the second before sixth inning Cincinnati uprisings wiped them out. A two-run triple by Hank Aguirre drove in the 4-3 win. Vada Pinson's three-run homer did the job in the second game.

The Mets scrambled back to tie the second but Keough's third homer of the season sent them reeling to their third loss-ever losing string of the season. The Reds now have won five in a row.

Up

GETS TWO TRIPLES

Joe Nuxhall, jumped on Cub starter Don Cardwell for five runs in the first inning and was never headed. Los Angeles' 12 hits included homers by Frank Howard, Larry Burright and two triples by Willie Davis. Maury Wills stole his 49th base. Ernie Banks hit his 34th homer for the Cubs.

San Francisco's victory over the Pirates gave the Giants a two game edge over the third-place Pirates. The Giants got their first four runs on solo homers by Felipe Alou, Jim Davenport, Jose Pagan and Willie Mays, the 28th, Alou also doubled in what proved to be the winning run in the 8th. Dick Stuart hit a homer and three runs batted in for the Pirates.

Bob Gibson (12-6) of St. Louis stopped Houston on seven hits, but had to have help from Lindy McDaniel in the ninth. He retired 18 of the last 20 men to face him before the Colts threatened in the ninth, and McDaniel came on to preserve the win.

Milwaukee trailed 9-1 at one point in its opener against Philadelphia, but scored seven runs in the fourth inning and held on behind the solid relief pitching of Don Nottebart to win it. Nottebart held Phillies to one run, a homer by Wes Covington, over the last six innings.

Joe Adcock's two run homer and a three-run rally in the seventh carried the Braves through the second game. Tony Gonzalez hit a homer in each game for the Phillies.

St. Louis and Houston split a doubleheader Saturday, the Cards winning the first game 7-0 and the Colts the second 7-3. Los Angeles beat Chicago 3-1, Cincinnati defeated New York 2-1, Pittsburgh edged San Francisco 7-6 in 10 innings and Milwaukee belted Philadelphia 8-1.

Take Clay Court Titles

CHICAGO (AP) — Donna Floyd, 21, of Arlington, Va., won the U.S. national clay court women's singles championship Sunday by defeating Carole Caldwell of Santa Monica, Calif., 6-2, 6-4.

Fred Stolle of Sydney, Australia, powered his way into the finals of the men's singles with a 6-1, 5-7, 6-4 triumph over Bill Lenoir of the U.S.

Opposing Stolle in today's final will be Chuck McKinley, No. 1 U.S. Davis Cup player, who defeated former Stanford University quarterback Jon Douglas, 6-4, 6-2.

Lose To Petes, Kingston

Kenmors Defeated Twice

Playoff trouble could be looming over the baseball horizon following the two weekend setbacks suffered by the Lakeshore senior Kenmors.

They lost a squeaker in Peterborough Saturday night, bowing 2-1 to the upsurging Pennings and were clobbered 10-3 by the hard-hitting Kingston club Sunday afternoon.

Kingston now leads the league with 16 points and two games to play. The Kenmors, stationary for a week with 14 points have one game left while the Petes with ten points have two battles to go.

The schedule winds up this week. Tomorrow night the Petes take on Port Hope. The Kenmors face Kingston at the Fair Grounds here Wednesday in a "must" game while Kingston winds up next Saturday at Peterborough.

Two victories for the Petes and a loss here Wednesday night for the Kenmors will mean a playoff battle between the clubs for the right to meet Kingston for the title.

PETERBORO 2 - KENMORS 1

PETERBOROUGH — A hoary-headed, ninth-inning umpire's decision that saw the Kenmors leave the bench in protest and Coach Sid Forster ejected, featured the Petes 2-1 victory here Saturday night.

Marety Read grounded out and Ricky Locke drew his fourth consecutive walk. Jackie Elliott slashed out a single sending Soules running for Locke to second. Billy Moxon drove out another single scoring Soules with Elliott racing for third base.

The ball Locke threw the ball to third and on the ensuing play Elliott was called out by The Kenmors — and a host of fans claimed Elliott reached the bag well ahead of the tag.

Coach Forster stormed out on the field so did the Kenmors. Elliott, Forster claimed on the bag as the fielder caught the ball. Even though Peterborough fans agreed with them.

However the "goof" may or may not have cost the Kenmore the game. Moxon had gone to third on the play and stolen fellower him with the third single of the innings. He stole second and the Kenmors had the win on the bases. But Peterborough came up with a run in the game.

Up to this point the game had been a sterling mound duel between Soden and Bob Gatfield. Gatfield was walking five but otherwise he looked like the Peterborough lefty striking out seven and walking five.

Soden deserved a better fate. He gave up seven hits but scattered them well. He fanned seven when the Petes scored single runs, whiffing four in the winning home.

Gatfield's double after two mates had already scrambled for one Petes run. In the seventh three back-to-back singles produced the one run.

The Kenmors fielded flawlessly behind Soden, not committing an error in the Petes hooked twice, both harmless.

Gary Gorge again paced the Kenmors getting two hits as did Larry Burright. Forster and Moxon accounted for the remaining pair.

Bob Gatfield doubled and drove in both Petes runs. Taylor with a pair, Whitehill, Hill, DeNoble and Mahoney accounted for the other Petes clouts.

Wibley Wins Millar Cup

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Wibley can thank his amateur servant putter for bewildering when it mattered to make the Kitchener Westmount pro Canadian match play golf champion.

In a few off moments, Wibley's putter helped the cause of luscious young Bob Panasiuk of Toronto Northwood in Saturday's prolonged final of the Millar Trophy at Uplands golf course.

But it came through on the second extra hole to drop a five foot putt for a winning birdie two, the trophy, the title and $1,000 cash.

Wibley, 28, acknowledged the determined effort of his 20-year-old opponent an assistant pro for less than a year, "I was a good tournament and I won it with my toughest match today," he said after the final. "Bob's a hard golfer to beat."

Panasiuk, technically ineligible as a first-year pro, was given special permission to play for the Millar by the Ontario Professional Golf Association.

COMES FROM BEHIND

The novice came from behind on the home stretch to let Panasiuk deadlock the contest. On the par-three 15th, Wibley raised a two foot putt for a par while Panasiuk got a deuce. Wibley needed two strokes to hole out from 10 feet on the 17th green while Panasiuk conceded to even the match.

Wibley set up his win on the 19th with a 185-yard tee shot which landed 10 feet from the flag and hopped five feet closer. His putter this time turned in a clean performance.

Panasiuk overshot from the tee by 35 feet and missed the putt by inches. Running up was worth $750 to the Toronto player.

Wibley stopped Moe Norman of Toronto in the morning semi-final one up and Panasiuk eliminated John Davis of Burlington 2 and 1. Davis had eliminated defending champion Al Rudd the afternoon of May 24.

'Adventures of Young Man' Shows Jerry Wald's Genius

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The late Jerry Wald's particular genius with the motion picture medium is ably demonstrated by his next-to-last production, Adventures of a Young Man.

Wald was essentially an idea man, and it was the idea for the picture rather than the finished product that made him a success. Ernest Hemingway's early short stories hold a fascination that would depict the author's early years. As in the stories, the young man is called Nick Adams, but there is little doubt about who he is intended to be.

The idea was good, as were most of Wald's ideas for picture projects. The execution was good, if not great.

Richard Beymer, late of West Side Story, plays Nick, and "I is in his portrayal that the film misses greatness. Perhaps the writing failed to indicate the complex brilliance, the inner strength of Hemingway. In most of the action he is a listener rather than participant.

FILM HAS POWER

Still, there is cumulative power, as episode follows episode. The characters are well drawn — especially Paul Newman as a battered pulp ex-fighter, Dan Dailey as a press agent, Arthur Kennedy as Nick's bedeviled father, Dorothy Malone and Eli Wallach as Italian soldiers.

Adventures of a Young Man was meticulously produced, as were all of Wald's films. The shots of the Michigan woods are stunning, and nowhere was anything skimped.

His death of a heart attack was a serious blow to 20th Century-Fox, already reeling from a number of catastrophes. Wald was the studio's top producer, the company's product, and he cannot be replaced. He was the last of the big, flamboyant, hard-driving producers who could turn out a full program of class movies each year.

Four Honored Today

Hall of Fame Induction

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Bobby Feller, Jackie Robinson, Eddy Stanky and Bill McKechnie will be formally inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame today in this picture postcard community.

Feller, the onetime lowa plough boy with the crackling fastball, and Robinson, the first Negro ever to play in the majors, were voted into the group by the members of the Baseball Writers Association of America service. Robinson becomes the first Negro in the Hall of Fame.

Roush, 68, and McKechnie, 74, were selected by the unanimous vote of the Old-Timers veterans' committee which considers only "those who have been inactive for at least 30 years."

After the morning ceremonies in front of baseball's Hall of Fame and museum on the main street of this pretty, New York Yankees will meet Milwaukee Braves in an annual exhibition game at Doubleday Field, 11 new hundred feet down the street.

Feller was one of the great pitchers of the modern era. Hand Bob's winner of 266 games, including three no-hitters and holder of many other record records, now is a 43-year-old insurance executive. He won 20 or more games all three and hit a high of 27 victories in 1940. In 1946 he set a single season record by striking out 348 batters.

His single game strikeout mark of 18, set in 1938, has been tied but not beaten.

Robinson, a greying 42-year-old businessman who is vice president of a national restaurant and coffee manufacturing concern, broke the baseball color line in 1947 when he came up to the National League with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Branch Rickey had kept him in the Montreal Royals organization of baseball in 1946 after signing him.

Robinson played with the Dodgers from 1947 to 1956, appearing in six World Series and six All-Star games. He led the league in hitting with .342 in 1949 and had a lifetime batting mark of .311.

Roush, a great outfielder with Cincinnati and the New York Giants from 1916 to 1931, had a lifetime average of .323, leading the league in 1917 and 1919.

McKechnie was elected for his managing ability although he played in 1,896 games over several years. He was the only man ever to win pennants with three different clubs — Pittsburgh in 1925, St. Louis in 1928 and Cincinnati in 1939 and 1940.

Oarsmen Win at Buffalo

BUFFALO (CP-AP)—A powerful contingent of rowers from the St. Catharines Rowing Club invaded Buffalo during the weekend, struck for a pair of victories and returned home with team honors in the U.S. national amateur rowing championships.

The white-shirted Canadians pulled their biggest surprise by beating the heavily-favored Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia in the championship eight Sunday, covering the 2,000-metres in 6:03.7 for a two-second victory.

In Saturday's events, Jimmy Joy, a 34-year-old St. Catharines school teacher, downed defending champion James Baxter of the Philadelphia Undine Barge Club in the 150-pound quarter-mile dash.

When results of the two-day regatta are tallied, Detroit Boat Club retained team honors with 36½ points, 2½ points ahead of St. Catharines and almost 40 ahead of the third-place Vesper club.

In the championship eights the St. Catharines crew was out to overtake the Vesper eight that finished a length ahead at the International race in Philadelphia July 4—an event won by the Russians.

TRAIL FROM START

The Vesper boat moved into a slight lead at the start and held it almost to the 1,000-metre mark. Then the Canadians pulled even, moved in front and gradually drew away.

A crew from the Lord West Side Rowing Club of Buffalo finished third, followed by the Detroit Boat Club.

LAVES UP AGAIN

GSTAAD, Switzerland (AP) — Wimbledon champion Rod Laver of Australia beat compatriot Neale Fraser in an expected Sunday in the men's singles finals of the annual Swiss international tennis championship 6-4, 6-4, 5-6.

Russian Sets World Record

Yankees Win Track Meet

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — The United States men's team decisively defeated Russia in their fourth international, dual track meet Saturday as Valery Brumel of the Soviets captured individual honors, smashing his own world high jump record by leaping seven feet, five inches.

The final score was 128-107, the most points the U.S. has run up in the series. The two world track powers have met four times, the U.S. has won all four men's duels with Russia.

The United States had 14 firsts to eight for Russia in the two-day weekend meet. The Americans won their latest duel of the meet 66-41. The Russian girls took seven firsts to three for the United States.

Brumel's great high jump leap was the second mark set in the competition. Hal Connolly tossed the hammer 220 feet, 10 inches Saturday to erase his own mark of 220 feet, nine inches.

Brumel holds the current world mark of seven feet, 4½ inches and has another record pending of seven feet, 4¾ inches.

ATTACK BIG CROWDS

It was another hot day Sunday but the athletes didn't appear to mind. The crowd of 51,000 at Stanford Stadium, added to Saturday's 72,500, made the total for the two days 123,500, largest ever to see track events since the 1932 Olympics for a track meet. Gate receipts were more than $325,000 and television contributed another $225,000. Expenses of about $125,000 have been deducted the balance will be split between Stanford University, the host, and the Amateur Athletic Union.

Russian champion Valery Kuznetsov was the decathlon winner with 7,830 points. Paul Herman of the U.S. was second with 7,653.

Jim Beatty won the 1,500 metres in 3:39.9, a U.S. record. It is the equivalent of a 3:37 mile.

Leafs Take Two From Buffalo

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When they got around to picking the International League's most valuable player this year, don't be surprised if the first name on the list is Vic Davalillo of Jacksonville Suns.

The centre-fielder had another big day Sunday as the league-leading Suns split a twin bill with Atlanta, pounding out nine safeties during the second game 6-2, after dropping the opener 8-7 on ninth-inning home runs by Angel Scull and Jim Baumer.

Vic rapped four hits, including a triple that drove in the winning run in the last inning of the nightcap, to boost his league-leading average to .341.

He also leads the league in triples with 11, in hits with 121 and in stolen bases with 21.

Because of Davalillo the Suns had only a game from their lead to second-place Toronto Maple Leafs, who took a doubleheader from Buffalo Bisons 5-2 and 5-3. Jacksonville leads Toronto by 8½ games, Rochester is third and Wings grabbed a pair of 3-1 decisions from Syracuse Chiefs and Columbus Jets routed Richmond, Virginians 11-5.

In Saturday action, Buffalo edged Toronto 7-6 in 10 innings and Richmond beat Columbus 10-2. Rochester swept a doubleheader from Syracuse, 7-3 in seven innings in the opener and 2-0 in the nightcap. Jacksonville edged Atlanta 4-3 in the seven-inning first game of a scheduled doubleheader. The second battle was rained out.

Canada Misses At Bisley

By ALAN WALKER

BISLEY, England (CP)—Canadian shooters have cleaned their rifles and packed their bags unsuccessful in their attempt to win a third straight Queen's Prize for Canada but happy to have captured the Mackinnon Trophy at the Bisley National Rifle Association matches.

Spectators who jammed the Bisley Surrey ranges Saturday for the windup of the two-week series of matches saw seven Canadians fail for the Commonwealth's highest individual shooting honor. But the hero of the day was a Briton, The top Canadian among the 100 entrants stood ninth.

Philip Rahill, 34-year-old office manager, scored 300 out of a possible 300 under difficult conditions to finish two points ahead of the pace. When told he had the prize he packed his gear and calmly announced: "Where the devil did I put my prize?"

Lieut. Gerry Ouellette of Windsor, Ont., top Canadian, scored a 298. The 29-year-old Olympic gold medal winner ran into bad luck on his first shot when the recoil smashed his colored shooting glasses.

Soccer Fans Run Riot After Game

HAMILTON (CP) — Canadian soccer fans attending Sunday's Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League game in a between Hamilton Steelers and Toronto Italia stormed the field as Hamilton romped out a 5-0 win in the last minutes of play.

About 200 Toronto supporters ran on to the grounds punching and kicking referees in their disapproval of Hamilton's victory.

Referee Phil McKay needed a police escort to get from the stadium to his car. One lineman received a cut on the head from a Toronto fan wielding a corner flag.

Gunther Plaskerneli scored Hamilton's goal, before a crowd of 2,694.

Astrological Forecast

For July 24.

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Active day, especially where finances are concerned. Make basic changes. Take creative step forward. But step on the brake when it comes to accepting word of so-called authorities. Personally investigate.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Need for self-expression clear. Cycle up. Take advantage of it by clearing air of illusions, delusions. See situation as it exists. Very good for home improvement and domestic harmony.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Inhibitions come to fore, but overcome them by showing you have nothing to hide. If you are frank, cheerful, the day proves of tremendous benefit. Refuse to run from what appears an unpleasant situation.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Break away from routine. Gain new refinements of experience. Good time to show you are spiritual. Actively within favorite charity or professional organization favored.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Time for ambition to "show." Let those in authority know you are serious, capable. Avoid one who tries to talk you into "short-cut" methods. Perform tasks thoroughly.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): No time to attempt bluffing tactics. Stress honest convictions. But keep mind open for suggestions, new ideas. A forthright manner wins success. Extra care suggested while traveling.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Curb temper, avoid complications. Absorb knowledge, but hold back on attempting to make others change their ways. A sense of humor performs wonders. Utilize intuition. A bunch could pay off.

Scorpio (Oct. 22 to Nov. 21): Good for interviews, making plans for future. Success during club meeting or social affair indicated. Best to avoid making snap decisions. This applies to letter writing, signing legal agreements.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Check details, read, listen to "sample" opinions others have to offer. You win friends by being willing to hear their point of view. Flatter those who deserve praise.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Favorable lunar aspect indicates opportunity for creative endeavors. But don't be influenced by friends who claim an "easy way." If you hear rumor realize it may be based on wishful thinking.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Excellent for attending theatre, enlarging cultural horizons. Find ways to make job more interesting. Do this by applying "personal touch." Shine!

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Tendency toward self-deception in evidence. Romantic ideas are fine, if you combine them with practical methods. One close to you may make fantastic claims. Listen, but take no direct action.

* * *

If today is your birthday... next month could see you emerging from maze of details. You are extremely loyal, patriotic individual. You may find strong marriage opportunities (if single), materializing in near future.

* * *

General Tendencies: Emphasis on economy, methods of saving money. Cycle up for Aries, Taurus, Gemini. Special word to Scorpio: Take time to make proper decision. Impatience is today's greatest adversary.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP) — Beau Purple smashed the Aqueduct oval record by nearly all he way to capture the $102,800 Brooklyn Handicap as Re-wond Carry Back lacked his usual late rush and could do no better than second.

The winner, owned by Jack Dreyfus Jr., stopped the 1 1-16 miles in the fast Saturday clipping three-fifths of a second from his track record mark set July 4.

Beau Purple, ridden by Bill Boland, rolled home by 3½ lengths over Garwol, who managed second by a nose over Polylad. He returned $10.20, $4.40 and $3.20. Polylad paid $14.40 and $8.10 and Polylad returned $5.40.

Beau Purple earned $71,240 and increased his 1962 winnings to $94,025.

OWNER HAS GOOD DAY

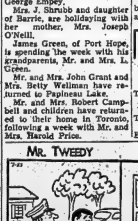
At Inglewood, Calif., Hollywood Park opened up a pair of $102,100 purses for two-year-old runners and looker's got a bonus as they saw two of his long-shots captured a doubleheader.

In the first division of the Hollywood Juvenile championship, Y. Ferro's brush horse Noti made it a sweep in the second division for the same jockey and owner.

Noti returned $16.40, $6.40 and $3.60. Second-place Copper Student, paid $19 and $4.80 and third-place Ferro Flame, $3.40.

In the first division, Y Flash paid $18, $8 and $5.40. Second-place Slipped Disc $5.20 and $4.20 and third - place Court Tower $5.60.

TORONTO (CP)—Noral Gale, a five-year-old gelding, raced 11 times this season before winning, but in its next two races nothing on the track was fast enough to head it off, including Saturday night before 9,585 patrons in Old Woodbine's time way's feature $4,000 Invitational Pace.



Noral Gale, owned by Earle Thomson's Niagara Farm of St. Catharines, was driven by Keith Prince, owned by Mrs. Edmond Filion of Angers, Que., for the second straight win after taking its first a week ago in a B pace. It ended the two all-time wagering records were set Saturday night. An eight-race total handle of $237,779 topped the previous mark by more than $20,000, and the $2,000 bet of the eighth race established a single-pool figure by some $2,000.

The week's attendance was 36 below the 60,000 total last year and wagering reached $1,582,541.

"Whoever robbed you last night left very few clues. We seem to feel, however, that he was an alcobal."

South Hastings Baseball League

Latta rallied in the last inning to get a 4-4 tie with Shannonville on Saturday night, then edged Cannifton-Clipper 4-3 Sunday in South Hastings baseball action.

LATTA 4, SHANNONVILLE 4

Latta trailed 4-2 in the eighth and final inning and had two out, with two on, when John Hazzard singled home both runners for the final 4-4 score. Hazzard was caught out between first and second base to end it.

Shannonville scored two runs in the fifth to snap a 2-2 tie that had existed since the second inning.

Bill Hogan of Latta, and Shannonville's Billy Hill staged a good mound duel. Bunnage allowed five hits, struck out nine and passed three in 8⅓ innings to take his whilfred two and walked two.

Hill gave up a double and single for Latta with John Hazzard, Howard Skelly, Don Harris and Wayne Cox getting a single.

Fullmer Verdicts Rivero

NEW YORK (AP) — Young Gene Fullmer piled up a big lead over wild swinging Juan (Rocky) Rivero and held on to gain a split decision over the Argentine in a 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden.

Fullmer, of West Jordan, Utah, weighed 160½. Rivero, 160.

Rivero, a hard-hitting middleweight who had scored six straight knockouts and kayoed 25 of his 44 opponents, couldn't hurt the tall, 23-year-old kid brother of middleweight champion Gene Fullmer until the ninth round Saturday night. It was too late then.

Referee Jimmy Devlin and Judge Joe Azzollo each had Fullmer ahead six rounds to four. Judge Al Berl gave each fighter five rounds, but named the winner on points 6-5.

Kidd Sets Mile Record

TORONTO (CP) — Three records were set and the Metropolitan Toronto police force defeated their District counterparts in the team standings 118-47 in the 80th annual police field day.

The highlights of the meet Saturday came when Toronto's Bruce Kidd and Abbie Hoffman both set records in the invitation track events.

Kidd, 18-year-old University of Toronto track star, turned in Canadian native-one-mile record run of 4:01.4 for an upset victory over University of Kansas runner Bill Dotzel. Kidd bettered the Canadian mark of 4:06.8 set by Rich Ferguson at Vancouver in 1958.

In another invitation event, Miss Hoffman, 15, took the women's open 440 to set a Canadian and North American record of 58.2. The former Canadian record, set by Kay Webb in Vancouver in 1961, was 61.2

In police events, Trooper Stan Sallie won the first-and set a Canadian discus record with a throw of 173 feet, 6½ inches, beating his own former meet record of 165 feet one inch, set last year.

Cowan Wins Golf Title

SUDBURY (CP) — Gary Cowan of Kitchener Rockway scored a 4-up victory over Rodney Brownlee of Toronto to win the 15th annual Myleydie invitation golf tournament.

"My putting was cold," said the Toronto golfer who defeated Bill Morland of North Bay 3 and 1 in the semi-final of the match-play tourney.

Cowan defeated Bruce Carlator of Toronto on the 20th hole to reach Sunday's final.

Cowan was 2 to after the first nine holes of the semi-final and the match looked like a runaway, but Carlator bounced back to even the match on the 18th hole. They halved the 19th and on the 20th. Cowan made a two-foot putt for a par four while Carlator missed a 20-footer to end up with a five.

School's Out

by Matthew B. Dymond, M.D., Health Minister for Ontario

School's out! Thousands of lucky children and grown-ups too will be off to camps and cottages for summer holidays. Let's hope and strive that every youngster will be able to return to school next September. Why shouldn't they?

Well, every year a number of youngsters who leave school in June, happy to be away on holiday, don't get back to begin the next school year in September. They were killed or seriously injured in accidents of one kind or another. Many were motor vehicle accidents; boating and swimming accidents; some fell out of trees or from high places; some resulted from poisoning and a host of other causes.

Those who go camping and to summer cottages may have to be most careful about swimming and boating accidents, about poisonous plants, insects and animals. Some of the dangers of the latter can be prevented by protective measures before leaving on vacation. If the children have been immunized against Tetanus (Lockjaw) the danger from dirty cuts is lessened. Children and adults too, allergic to certain plants more common in summer may be helped by protective methods. Your family doctor is best equipped to advise you on this and should be consulted. The Medical Health Officer in your camp or cottage community will tell you about the purity of the water for drinking and swimming.

Parents will find many ways of enjoying the vacation while educating the children in safety measures. It's best for them to know that dangers exist and how to cope with them.

Some youngsters won't be able to go to camp or cottage, but parents and guardians need to be more watchful of them because in holidays time hangs heavily on children's hands and they might tend to become a bit careless.

Do all you can to keep danger out of their way, but don't be afraid to tell them of dangers and how best to cope with them.

Help us in the Department of Health. Keep our children Alive and Healthy.

Garden Notes

Violas, Violettas and Pansies

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Violas, Violettas and pansies are closely related. Heartsease (Viola tricolor) and the yellow mecosiis pansy were common to English gardens in the sixteenth century. It was not until somewhere about 1810 to 1815 that systematic work was began in selecting and cultivating good forms of Viola tricolor and other species.

This work progressed fast once it was begun and within the next twenty years a large number of plants with interesting and colorful flowers was available.

Later in England standards were fixed to shape and markings for show pansies. The flowers had to be circular in shape and mainly self color, sometimes margined with dark or shade and small dense markings in the centre of the three lower petals. These were known as "Show Pansies".

BEGAN EXPERIMENTING

On the Continent growers were not satisfied with these strict rules and began experimenting with more colorful and brilliant markings than those of the Show pansies. From this venture came the strain known as Fancy Pansies which were also governed by strict rules.

In the late eighteen hundreds English growers were crossing the new strains with the original species and from these came the tufted pansies or violas.

One of these growers was a Doctor Charles Stuart. His crossings eventually produced tiny tufted pansies with one inch blooms on three inch plants. These have come to be known as violettas. The blooms were quite fragrant. This had a special appeal to most gardeners.

Dr. Stuart's special gem was his all white rayless violetta.

In 1884 a few miniature violas or violettas were drawn on. The shape of the flower must be circular, narrow or oval with smooth petals of good substance. The centre must be clear with no ray or markings.

STUART'S LAWN

You can grow violas, Violettas, and pansies from seed planted in May or August. They will make good sturdy plants before hard frosts arrive. Very early, in the spring they are in bloom.

In exposed areas cover the plants after late fall frosts with light and loose mulch such as evergreen or evergreen branches. We have found that the branches cut from the Christmas tree placed over the plants is sufficient to keep them alive.

In a late fall the plants been blooming until late December.

You can still buy seeds of the Dr. Stuart's Scents and Violettas from the Garden Guild Toronto. Viola and Pansy seed can be bought from Dominion Seed House, Georgetown Ont. Dupuy and Ferguson, Montreal or Macdonald's Ottawa.

Fastest-Growing Industry Started by $5 Investment After Immigrant Reads Ad.

A classified advertisement clipped from a "do it yourself" magazine and a five dollar investment in a silk screen printing kit have paid off in a big way for Nick Mika, of 330 Victoria Ave. in Belleville. His investment and ability have made him the owner of one of Belleville's fastest growing industries.

Nick was born in the Ukraine. He moved from there to Poland; Germany and from Germany to Canada. He met his wife in Germany, but married her in Belleville. Nick came to Canada in 1949 ang is now a Canadian that he wears a maple leaf on his tie now.

In Belleville, he worked as a chemist for Bakelite for 11 years. In his spare time, he continued with his hobbies, ornamental lettering, printing, and art. He is a graduate of a Ukraine school of fine arts.

The big break came when he noticed a silk screen printing kit. One of his projects with the kit was to produce 300 Christmas cards. They sold well, and he now produces about 20,000 Christmas cards per year.

The operation showed no promise of growing out of his basement until Bakelite developed a problem. They had code numbers to mark on plastics, and the rubber stamps they had been using were not clear enough. Nick brought in silk screening as the answer. Now he is continually developing new inks, to solve the problems brought on by more and more industries every year. The code letters on the inside of your radio set, the dial markings on your TV, even the speedometer on your car may have been printed by Mika Silk Screens, in Belleville.

PUBLICIZED IN CANADA

Perhaps Mika's greatest publicity comes from the tiles he prints and sells through shops across Canada. He noticed tiles first when they carried nothing but designs of scenes, and were mostly produced in Japan. Nick checked on the market, decided there was room for Canadian scenery, and went to work. His first product with a picture of Canada Goose, caused him troubles. He found he could buy tiles in Kingston, but he could not get the inks to stay stuck. As a chemist, he solved the problem by formulating a new ink. The Canada Goose was followed by 11 other wildlife designs.

A week in Ottawa followed, while Nick learned to adopt the Zekino art style. The results are good, as shown in his series of tiles on Eskimo art. In addition to these, he now carries a stock of souvenir tiles for about 65 Canadian cities, showing the cities' landmarks. Some tiles are made, on special order, for groups who want souvenirs for their own hobbies or activities.

STUDIED IN GERMANY

It was about this time that Nick decided he was on to something. He took a two-month leave of absence from Bakelite and set out to study silk screening properly. Some advanced techniques of the trade are a closed secret in Canada, so he went to Germany. This was in 1959.

Back home, as the business grew, Nick quit his regular job at Bakelite at the end of 1960. He was still working in his basement shop, but from that moment, he was on his own. He continued to expand. Last April, he moved into a medium sized industrial building, on Dunask St. Next year, he may have to enlarge the building.

His operation has now expanded to include making crests, for associations and clubs, and Canadian maple decals and stickers for customers. He has any specialized printing jobs.

PRINT ON CURVES

Silk screening is a form of printing, but it differs from the standard technique. The screen is really silk, sealed with varnish. The "type," or pattern to be printed, is left unsealed. With the silk screen stretched taut, is laid over the object to be printed, and the ink poured over the screen, the impression is left. Because the material is a flexible silk, the process can be used to printing on curved surfaces, because the ink is forced through the pattern, the silk screen process even works well for printing on water. The printed image lasts a few seconds, then is washed away, on water. Almost the only limitation is that silk screening is slow. It could never be used, for example, in such a speed and volume job as printing a newspaper.

There was a time when the pattern for silk screen work was hand cut, an extremely delicate operation. Things have changed now, however. The pattern drawn on paper is now photographed, and the screen exposed to the photographic negative by a process similar to making a photographic print.

The quality of Mr. Mika's work is the big difference between his and other silk screen printers. It allows him, for example, to sell tiles and folios of his own art work, reproduced by silk screen in many. It is also the main reason for his industrial contracts, the mainstay of the business. His training as a chemist is valuable, too, in developing new inks for special applications. New departments, planned for the coming years, will make more use of his special talents.

HAS NO SECRETS

And there is one more feature that makes Nick Mika's operation different from most in Canada. He has no secrets. When he wanted to learn the business he had to go to Germany. Now, anyone who is interested is welcome in his plant, and to his secrets. During the past winter, there were about 20 Belleville and out-of-town people, interested in silk screening as a hobby who made regular trips to the studio for information and instructions. Next winter, there may be more. Nick Mika is not afraid of competition.

CHILDREN'S BOOKS

The first publisher of books to amuse children was John Newbery, the English author and bookseller who died in 1767.

Nick Mika inspects one of his first tile patterns: a Canada Goose. He now produces wildlife and Eskimo art sets of about a dozen tiles each, and souvenir tiles for about 65 Canadian cities.

Algeria Premier Ready To Yield To Radical Rival

Wants 7-Man Bureau Approved by Council

ALGIERS (Reuters) — Provisional Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda today was reported conditionally willing to relinquish power to dissident Vice-Premier Mohammed Ben Bella's political bureau.

Ben Khedda's condition was said to be that the seven-man bureau headed by Ben Bella must be approved by the 70-member revolutionary council, as a quasi-parliament and the supreme instrument of the revolution.

On Monday, Ben Khedda sent Minister of State Mohamed Said to Ben Bella's headquarters at Tlemcen in western Algeria to lay his proposals before the dissident vice-premier.

Another vice-premier, Belkacem Krim, one of Ben Khedda's strongest supporters, said today he is "confident that the new heading towards a happy solution of the Algerian crisis."

Ben Khedda's provisional government has "perfect unity as its supreme objective" and now is ready to bow to the will of Said's mission to Tlemcen.

AGREE ON OBJECTIVE

Every member of the Ben Khedda government now agrees that the main objective is to "restore by all means our national unity," Krim said.

Ben Khedda's proposal that the bureau, made up of five pro-Ben Bella and two pro-Ben Khedda members, be given full power for a year and step down within a month, the Liberation Front (FLN) congress elects a successor bureau.

Ben Khedda's move followed the resignation Monday of his foreign minister, Saad Dahlab, and an open declaration for Ben Bella by Rabah Bitat, another leader of state.

In another development, four Christians were killed and three others injured in a Moslem ambush Monday night in the Oran area shortly after news of independence was proclaimed earlier this month.

The four were Belgian peasants dived for cover as young Moslem soldiers fired from a machine - gun fire. The shooting, which broke out after two explosions, wounded the four and lasted, said one, for more than an hour.

CIVIL SERVANTS GET NO RAISES DUE EMERGENCY

Action Deferred On Suggestions

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has decided to defer consideration of civil service salary increases "during the present emergency period," Finance Minister Fleming announced today.

Mr. Fleming said the decision is in line with the "substantial reduction" in government expenditures as part of the economy program announced June 24 to curb a heavy outflow of foreign exchange reserves.

"While this emergency continues the government considers that it cannot consistently bring into effect increases in salaries at substantial cost to the treasury," Mr. Fleming said in a letter to heads of civil service staff associations.

Consequently, it has referred consideration of the salary recommendations of the civil service commission."

BREWERS FAIL TO MEET WITH WORKERS' UNION

Strike Deadline Not Yet Set

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario brewers did not meet with Brewery Workers Union (CLC) negotiators Monday after labor Sunday night gave its executive the green light for strike action to speed up negotiation on wages and a new contract.

No strike deadline was set by the 1,000-member Toronto local of the International Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers of America who struck dry up the province in hours if they strike.

Strike action in Ontario is forbidden under Ontario law until seven days after a conciliation board submits a report.

Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer of the Ontario department of labor said Monday he had no comment about the strike vote taken by the brewers union local.

TALKS SCHEDULED

The prospect of a beer drought in the province drew cheer when neither side in the dispute suggested a date for resumption of negotiat n s between O'Dowd, business agent of the Brewery Workers Toronto local, and Al Hall, boss of brewers down, but none are scheduled.

Industry last week offered the union workers a five-year contract, a six-cents-hourly wage increase every year, a 10th weekly increase in sick pay benefits and payment of the full cost of a private medical care plan in plants where it has not been fully paid by the employer.

Also offered was a maximum wage guarantee of 40 weeks' pay after a 10-year bonding payment of unemployment insurance premiums.

The union, seeking a 16-cent-an-hour wage increase and a reduction of the present 44-hour work week, said it considered the pay offer inadequate in comparison to other industries.

Liquor Vote Ballots Stolen, So Recount Out

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP) — Ballots cast in a liquor vote at Hepworth Road Village in the Bruce Peninsula were stolen July 7 from the home of Returning Officer Jerry Bell, says Judge P. S. MacKenzie.

Judge MacKenzie told representatives of both "wet" and "dry" factions Monday that a recount requested by the "wets," who lost, could not be held. He declared the result of the June 27 plebiscite will stand.

The vote question was the ballot—approval of dining lounges, and cocktail bars for the dry village. Only 51 and 50 per cent votes in favor respectively, were required to win the vote.

The Criminal Investigation Bureau of the provincial police is investigating the theft, under the direction of Ontario Chief Provincial Officer Frederick Lewis.

Judge MacKenzie said Mr. Bell had left his home briefly and when he returned the ballots were missing from the box.

Will Inspect All Meat Sold in City

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — City council Monday passed a bylaw requiring inspection of all meat sold within the city.

The bylaw is the result of a report in which Dr. J. R. Anderson, medical officer of health, recommended prohibiting the sale of meat unless it has been inspected by authorized personnel of the federal government, the provincial government or the Peterborough Board of Health.

H-Bomb's Source, Heavy Water, May Be Weapon Against Cancer

MOSCOW (AP) — Heavy water — essential source of H-bomb/explosives—may provide a new weapon in the war against cancer, a group of American scientists suggested today.

Experimenting with cancerous mice, suggest, the report indicates, that this form of water might be used in combination with known anti-cancer drugs to enhance the effect of the drugs and thus provide a one-two punch against certain cancers.

The work was described to the eighth International Cancer Congress by researcher Asher J. Finkel and two associates, all of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission's Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago.

LONDON (AP) — Excited could also be washed in Algebanner headlines and rave no- geria.

An estimated 200,000,000 viewers watched the two 20-minute programs relayed both ways across the Atlantic Monday by the Telstar satellite.

The British press today said the communication satellite "mentioned" in the Bible, had the potentiality for destruction, but means instead union and comprehension."

A discussion note came from Moscow radio, which said President Kennedy used the transatlantic hookup to further the "same cold war spirit as before."

Canadian Airliner Crash Mystery to Officials

HONOLULU (CP) — Federal aviation officials were trying today to explain how a Canadian airliner, a second away from safety, suddenly plunged into a mass of airport construction debris Sunday night, killing 27 of the 40 persons aboard.

Seven of the dead were Canadians including seven crew members. Many of the survivors were thrown clear of the burning wreckage. None was badly injured.

The pilot who was killed, Capt. W. T. (Wally) Jennings, 45, from the Vancouver suburb of Richmond, had radioed minutes after leaving Honolulu on a flight to the Fiji Islands that he had trouble with the No. 4 engine and was returning.

He feathered the defective engine and began dumping fuel. He had been airborne about 40 minutes when he hit the runway.

An eyewitness member of the airport firefighting crew standing by said it appeared to him the emergency landing when the Canadian Pacific Airlines' Empress of Lima, a Douglas DC-6B airliner, banked, approached the runway at International Airport.

"They missed the runway by 2,000 feet," said Booker T. Wilson, 30, an airman at Hickam Air Force Base that borders International Airport.

"The plane was making a perfect approach to runaway 8 then it banked to the left and crashed. It disintegrated on impact.

The Federal Aviation Agency said the cause of the sudden veering to disaster was a mystery.

Some of the bodies were so badly burned that agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation were called to help with the

BRITAIN WAITS FOR KEY SPEECH BY MACMILLAN

Likely to Announce Economic Measures

LONDON (CP) — Britons are leaning forward in anticipation of Prime Minister Macmillan's next move in his campaign to restore the Conservative Party to the nation's favor.

He extended his weekend stay at his country home at Chequers to work on a major speech he is to deliver Thursday when a Labor Opposition motion, calling for his resignation and for an immediate general election, will be debated in the Commons.

Economic measures appealing to workers are expected to predominate. This would be the second stage in his search for a new formula to bring about the recent byelection evidence showed public disapproval of his party's policies. The first stage came two weeks ago when he purged his cabinet and brought in several younger men.

The dismissal of Selwyn Lloyd as Chancellor of the Exchequer has led to belief that Macmillan will steer a new path in financial matters.

BEES WAGES BOARD

The Daily Mail, a Conservative newspaper, predicts a wages board will advise on pay policy and that it will forbid hit white-collar employees a better deal." The newspaper was the first to predict the July 13 cabinet shuffle.

The board is expected to change the controversial "pay-pause" plank in the government's policy, which has kept wage increases for some groups down to 2½ per cent. Nurses and parcels officers have been the hardest hit and recent public support for these two groups has apparently worried Macmillan.

The Daily Mail says the board will be able to study conditions in an industry and then decide whether a wage increase is justified.

"Even more important, the board will be able to examine pay and conditions in specialized trades and professions where the whole issue cannot be related to productivity."

Dismiss Charge Against Quebec Police Officer

ST. JOHNS, Que. (CP) — A charge of manslaughter against Constable Jean Guy Sol, of the Quebec Provincial Police has been dismissed.

The charge was laid following the death in a police cell last June 5 of Paul Rainville, 30, who was arrested in a hotel brawl in Sutton, 40 miles from New York border.

Judge Andre Regnier said after a thorough study of testimony at Insp. Bisaillon's preliminary hearing he could not left him with no choice but to dismiss the charge. He had come to the conclusion that no jury would convict the policeman on the evidence presented.

Insp. Bisaillon is still under suspension from the provincial police for alleged dereliction of duty. A high ranking officer of the force said today "the whole matter" will be reviewed by the attorney-general's department.

Train Wreck Death-Car Silence Indicated Tomb of Passengers

DIJON, France (Reuters) — Hundreds killed through the night under floodlights at the scene of a train wreck in which officials said more than 90 persons were killed and at least 32 were injured.

The Le Havre Paris - Marseille express was derailed Monday at nearby Velars - sur - Ouche while hurtling along at 87 miles an hour. Five coaches ran off the rails and one of them plunged 150 feet down a ravine.

Urgent calls went out for blood donors from Dijon hospitals, where the injured were taken.

A hospital official who arrived at the crash scene with the first ambulances said today "probably the most frightening thing on first sight of the fallen car was the complete and utter silence. Everybody was dead, or as if it had already become the tomb of all its passengers."

The death toll was the highest in a French rail crash since 1953 when 106 persons were killed at Port Dalelier in eastern France.

Railway officials said it was too early to tell the cause. But eyewitnesses accounts in indicated a coupling of the seventh passenger car broke in two places, cutting loose the coaches behind it.

About 800 passengers, many of them vacationers, were aboard the train headed for the Mediterranean coast.

Sign Agreement With Premier To End Dispute Allowed to Practise Outside the Plan

SASKATOON (CP)—Saskatchewan doctors begin reopening office doors today following settlement of their three-week boycott of the province's medical care plan.

The end of the dispute came shortly after noon Monday with signing of a doctor-government agreement to amend the Medical Care Act to allow doctors to practise outside the plan.

Premier Woodrow Lloyd is to call a special session of the legislature secretly to make the amendments law.

Meanwhile, the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, governing body of the province's doctors, will begin dismantling its hospital-based emergency care service.

College officials said it will take about 10 days to return things to normal. Doctors on emergency service plan to return patients to their family doctors on a gradual basis.

Most of Saskatchewan's 625 private practitioners and about 200 doctors remained on duty at the province's 358 hospitals to provide free emergency care.

A GREAT RELIEF

Premier Roy Ilsley of North Battleford, president of the Saskatchewan Urban Municipalities Association, said it is "a great relief" to have the dispute settled.

Liberal Leader Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan said his party's official opposition in the legislature, will give proposed amendments to the act "the closest possible scrutiny" in the forthcoming special session.

Thatcher said it is "a great word memorandum of agreement."

The medical care program is, we believe, a workable one. Inevitably it will be subject to some changes. The government and the college will deal with these troubles as they arise by frank and friendly discussion together."

The government and the doctors agreed to make no further public comment for at least a week to allow things to settle down.

AGREEMENT 'CONFUSING'

Martin Pederson, leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said the agreement is confusing "to the patient, who has at least four different channels of obtaining and paying for medical services."

He said the 23-point agreement "could prove satisfactory to the wishes of these two groups (the doctors and the government) but not to the wishes of the people of the province.

"I could imagine that an individual patient or family, wanting to resume relationships with their previous family doctor, might find their wishes as to the method of payment might

SASKATOON (CP)—A patient will have four choices and a doctor will have four ways of getting income under the government - doctor agreement signed Monday to end Saskatchewan's medical care dispute.

PATIENT'S CHOICES

1. He may choose a doctor who is enrolled with the government's Medical Care Insurance Commission for direct payment. His doctor will bill the commission.

2. He may enrol with a voluntary (private) health insurance agency and may choose a doctor who is not enrolled with the Medical Care Insurance Commission for direct payment. The doctor will bill him and the patient will be reimbursed up to 85 per cent of the schedule of minimum fees by the commission.

4. He will be able to go to a doctor who elects to practise entirely for private fees. He will then pay the fee himself and will receive no claim on the Medical Care Insurance Commission.

DOCTOR'S CHOICES

1. He may elect to enrol for direct payment by the Medical Care Insurance Commission. His payment will then be as he agrees with the commission: By fee-for-service; by retainer and a smaller fee-for-service; or by fixed remuneration only.

2. He may practise partly, largely, or entirely in association with one or more voluntary health insurance agencies. For patients who have enroled with such agencies, he may submit bills at the agreed figure (at present 85 per cent of the schedule of minimum fees). The agency will collect from the Medical Care Insurance Commission a reimbursement on the general 85 per cent basis, and pay to the doctor the amount of that reimbursement in full payment of the doctor's bill.

3. He may practise partly, largely, or entirely outside any health insurance agency plan and not be enroled for direct payment by the Medical Care Insurance Commission. He will bill such patients entirely at his discretion, but the fee requirement will be the submission of his bill to the patient on itemized form.

4. He may choose to practise entirely for private fees, provided that his patients also are not enroled with one of the medical care scheme.

ANDS CANCER TREATMENT

DUBLIN (Reuters) — A substance obtained from salmon has been given "encouraging results" in treatment of cancerous tumors, says a report in Dublin hospital. Twenty patients with inoperable tumors have so far been given injections of protamine sulphate, an anti-clotting agent obtained from fish roe, reducing the tumor size to make it amenable to conventional treatment.

Council Runs Into Poser 'To Beer or Not to Beer' In City's Dry Fringe Area

City council's meeting yesterday, to pass a bylaw providing for a referendum on licensed dining rooms and lounges in Belleville, struck a snag soon after it opened. Alderman Don Whalen asked whether the bylaw, and the referendum, would allow the serving of beer in the dry area of the city east of Herchimer Ave.

City clerk Adam Stalker said he thought a pro liquor vote would have no bearing on the serving of beer in those areas.

Mayor Haig moved a ten-minute recess, to find the city solicitor and ask him. But the solicitor was not found during the ten minutes, and it was assumed he was not in the building.

The mayor then moved the council adjourn until five o'clock today. He said he was not even sure whether the referendum would allow licensed dining rooms and lounges in the dry areas. The motion was carried over slight opposition. Council will meet again to take the matter up, at 5 p.m. today.

identification. Ban one doctor said some of the victims may never be positively identified. Among the dead are two Australians, New Zealanders, British and Americans.

Capt. Jennings, a veteran of CPA, had survived a Canso crash in which two persons were killed in Prince Rupert, B.C., harbor in May, 1953.

Also killed were Capt. A. Giguere of White Rock, B.C., a Chilliwack pilot on a routine examination flight; First Officer D. G. Eldred of Ledner, B.C., making a familiarization flight; First Officer C. J. Norton; Senior Officer C. S. Farr and navigators Ron G. Hill and R. C. McLennan, all of the Greater Vancouver area.

A Windsor, Ont., couple and their infant son were killed. They were Mr. and Mrs. David D. Drake and their son, Alan, 2, who friends said were on their way to New Zealand as immigrants. The other dead were a passenger among the dead was Miss Jules McKie of Vancouver.

RETURNING HOME

A retired New Zealand customs official, who couldn't be discovered by his family in Toronto, died in the fiery crash. C. E. Hodgen had left New Zealand for the first time at his wife to visit their son in Weston, Ont., in November.

They planned to return by ship but changed their booking when they could not stand Toronto's winter, he said, and decided to fly home. He was 71 and his wife 69.

Prime Minister Keith Holyoake sent a message of condolence to the Canadian government and people.

The Canadian survivors were William O'Connell, 44, who was returning to duty as inspector for the department of transport, and stewardesses Andrea Johnson, 20, Pearl Heidner and Nancy Chalmers and purser Frederick Hall, all of Vancouver.

Frederick S. Manuel of Sydney, Australia, said:

"After about 15 minutes airborne the captain gave a message that he had to cut one engine.

"I remember approaching. It looked like a field. We were down to 30 feet above the ground. The pilot did a good job. Then we had a bunch it seemed light. Then we went up.

"I thought he was going to land. It gave me the impression that we were too far down the runway, that he (the pilot) was too late. He went to raise her, and it fell down."

LEAVE BY DOOR

Manuel said he and Soukop, the purser, both were in first-class compartments and managed to get through a door-opening quickly.

"Everything appeared to be normal during the flight. The passengers were well behaved.

"I just cannot judge what happened, but it was the biggest mystery."

Two-year Canadian Pacific officials flew here to conduct an investigation. Also aboard were W. W. Lavery, an inspector of the Canadian department of transport.

Six investigators representing the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board also arrived, and two C.A.B. men were on the scene.

Camsell Pacific and the deaths were the first in the airlines' operation since August, 1956, when 62 died in the crash of a DC6 at Cold Lake, Alaska. The airline said it had flown 3,000,000,000 passenger miles without a fatal accident since then until 11:19 p.m. Hawaii time Sunday (4:19 a.m. EDT Monday) when the Britannia was wrecked.

Craft Crowd Local Harbor

Despite inclement weather, perhaps indeed because of it, Belleville harbor was crowded to its limit yesterday evening with about 30 visiting power launches and yachts using every available inch of dock space.

The facilities for visitors at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club saw extensive use of the building. Close to 100 people were aboard the visiting yachts and many made journeys by car-boat to see the town in the evening.

Brampton Man Tells Rotarians About Flowers

For most local citizens it was raining rain yesterday afternoon but for local Rotarians it could be said that it was rainin-the violets as a popular Al Jolson tune once put it.

Jack Gilbert of Brampton, a director of the Royal Winter Fair and one of Canada's leading flower growers, spoke to the Rotary Club on the flower growing industry.

He noted that in Canada the industry is expanding and has maintained the prices which were current over a decade ago despite the fact that the industry has experienced rising costs, as has every other Canadian industry. The speaker suggested that the commercial flower growing industry has thus contributed its share to the advancement of the country's economy.

He attributed this situation to the fact that the industry has been keeping up a vigorous program of research and development to ensure that its products are more beautiful and better than ever before. Several of the more significant developments, especially those involving the raising of flowers under artificial conditions at will and the techniques used to alter the physical characteristics of a plant, were discussed by Mr. Gilbert.

Mr. Calvert also described the part which flowers play in a civilized society and related the use of flowers directly to the cultural aspects of a mature society.

Fred Hargon, he said, flowers play about three times as much part in people's lives as they do in North America. He suggested that this was because flowers played a definite part culturally and that North Americans had yet to reach full cultural maturity.

The speaker was introduced by Jack McArthur and thanked by Stan Barber.

During the meeting Rotarian Jack Major was made an honorary member of the club. A plaque to mark Mr. Major has been a Rotarian for 42 years.

Rotarians Alan Sprague introduced Carl Bateman, clerk-treasurer of the County of Hastings as a new member of the club. President Harry Burns conducted the meeting.

Much Needed Rain Fell Over District

The 0.80 inch of rain which fell yesterday was a welcome timely one for local farmers. Some farmers had dried "out to the point where a number of farmers were to start supplementary feeding for their cattle, agriculture representative Clayton Shortill said this morning in commenting on the rain.

"This was a 'million dollar rain,'" advised Mr. MacDonald, "particularly because it was a gentle rain and soaked in, rather than running off."

Just about everything around the county needed rain including the grain crops, but warm weather is also required for a good harvest of corn, he advised.

Number of beds is to be increased to 420 from 113, with 80 of the new beds for chronic medical patients.

Other additions are to be made in kitchen, laundry, laboratory, pharmacy, radiology and nursery facilities.

One floor will be set aside for surgical and ob with aseptic and sterile areas, five major and two minor operating theatres and recovery areas.

Two delivery rooms will be added, one equipped for complicated surgical deliveries.

Urged to Refuse To Buy Pigs From Strangers

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The only way a sales yard operator can keep out pigs infected with hog cholera is by refusing to buy from strangers, the quarterly meeting of the Ontario Livestock Auction Association was told.

Ontario Livestock Commissioner Richard Graham, speaking Monday to operating executives of yards, said there is no reason why a current outbreak has been checked.

"It is still a ball of fire, it may go further," he said. "It could be better."

Mr. Graham said sales yards in Kitchener, Waterloo and Galt in Waterloo County—were closed Monday. Kitchener had been closed July 19 and was cleaned and still ready to open when the new closure order came.

In nearby Oxford County, 16 areas are in quarantine. All hog farms in eastern Ontario are also in quarantine.

ORIGIN TRACED

Federal veterinary officials said they have traced the origin of the cholera to a farm in Prescott County. They said that throughout Eastern Ontario and into Quebec when animals were sold at an auction.

Mr. Graham said he has told sales yard operators to keep a record of the sellers and buyers of pigs to assist veterinarians to trace pigs.

Jack Gaddess of St. Marys, president of the auction association, joined in a warning that the yard operators should buy only from known customers. Often a small load of pigs is driven to a distant yard after being rejected by district yards.

SUGGEST MARKUP

The operators took no action on suggestions that they mark every pig suspected.

Operators from Kitchener, Waterloo, Melbourne, Listowel, Thamesville, Lindsay, Smithville, Stratford, Deanfield, Lucknow and Wingham attended the meeting.

Federal officials said that since July 14, 3,822 swine in Ontario have been slaughtered in an attempt to stop the spread of cholera. Farmers are paid the market price of their pigs as compensation. In Ontario, more than $62,000 has been paid.

In Montreal, an agriculture department spokesman said authorities have killed 3,671 hogs on 17 farms in Chateauguay and Soulanges Counties in seven farms in Terrebonne, Athabaska and Terrebonne Counties are suspect.

"Snoring is much more revolting than a crooked nose or projecting ears."

Scouting activities

The weekend of July 14th was an exciting one for the 18th Belleville Parkdale Sea Scouts. Under the leadership of Assistant Scoutmaster Art Vogel, eleven scouts spent the weekend camping at Lake Ontario in the "Land-O-Lakes" district. Mr. Vogel was assisted by Mr. Harry Brooks, group committee chairman of the 18th Belleville Parkdale.

The troop arrived in camp at 6.00 p.m. Friday evening, having by car from Belleville. After pitching camp, the boys prepared their evening meal, a delicious snack then it was into sleeping bags for the night under canvas.

Saturday morning at 7.45 saw the Scouts breakfasted, uniformed, then breakfast, and the day's activities began. Boating and swimming led off, then a lecture on axemanship and tree felling, followed by a practical application. Successful felling of a tree was a first-time experience for some of the boys, who discovered that the axe was a heavy implement.

A lecture and demonstration on canoe paddling and handling followed and each scout then tried his hand at this new skill. The morning's activities naturally led up to a barbecue lunch, and the appetites displayed by the Sea Scouts effected was put forth.

After lunch the troop divided into two groups for a combined exercise in trail sign interpreting, cover and concealment, and swimming. The two mile distance through dense woodland, fields, swimming, a treasure hunt, then another took up the remainder of the day, which was finally effected off by a late evening wiener roast.

A church parade was held on Sunday morning, after "Flag Break" at 8.30 a.m. Scouts then took the troop on a compass reading exercise through a heavily wooded area. To climax this, compasses were set and the troop found its way on a devious roundabout course, then the members were required to cook their lunch back at camp. More than one scout discovered that he had a remarkable sense of direction, but that caution and care in the bush is the watchword.

After Sunday lunch, the troop began to break camp and up. As a departing celebration, watermelon feed was enjoyed by all before the journey home.

Scouts attending were: Troop Leader Judy Boyle, Patrol Leaders Wayne Brooks and Tom Schofield, Scouts Fred Armstrong, Don Smith, Bill Hall, Wayne Furney, Bill Hutt, Gary Mallet, Wayne Reid, Don Rouse. The scouts did all their own cooking and camp chores on their own. The troop is very grateful for the kind assistance provided by some of the area parents.

The 18th Belleville Sea Scouts are sponsored by the Parkdale Ratepayers' Association of Belleville.

Job Insurance Fund Increases By Nine Million

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) — The government unemployment fund turned back from the brink of bankruptcy in June.

It increased to a record low of $19,851,652 at May 31, the fund showed a surplus and recovery last month and held $20,042,329 at June 30.

The figures were obtained Monday from the unemployment insurance commission on the eve of the annual watchdog session of the non-government-dominated national employment advisory committee.

The labor-management committee scrutinizes the state of the fund up to each March 31, end of the fiscal year, and reports its findings to Labor Minister Starr.

WARNED YEARLY

In recent years, the committee has warned the government that the fund was in peril, chiefly under pressure of extended seasonal benefits for winter-time jobless.

Today's meeting, however, will be held in the shadow of the forthcoming report from a special commission set up by Prime Minister Diefenbaker to probe into all aspects of the unemployment insurance program.

This committee of inquiry, headed by Toronto insurance executive Walter C. Gill, is expected to deliver its report to the government next month.

The financial situation in the fund between May and June was bolstered by seasonal job openings reduce the number of claims.

Europeans Hear Kennedy Rap Soviet Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — With European watching and listening as he spoke, President Kennedy rebuked Russia for testing nuclear weapons, reported the recent progress on Berlin and promised not to reduce the U.S. military goals.

As the president answered reporters' questions Monday, some of the program exchanges beamed to the telstar communications satellite enjoyed an encore as both sides of the Atlantic.

They did not hear Kennedy's opening statement, when he took note of the occasion and described Telstar's capacity for speedy communications as "a very essential requirement for peace." The understanding it can civilize, he said, is bound to enhance its prospects and well - being of people everywhere.

U.S. RELUCTANT

They were on the receiving end, however, when he said the Soviets "are playing for time and uncertainty" with the new Soviet round of nuclear tests. The United States is very reluctant to test" again and will not undertake such tests unless convinced what he considers a further threat to Allied security.

The occasion-a special segment of the conference began as Kennedy was finishing up four days of current prospects for a Berlin settlement:

He noted that an accord can be reached. We continue to try to reach one. We will not make progress recently forward."

It closed as he was in the midst of contending refusal to accept Soviet demands would be the most backward step the United States has taken since the end of the Second World War." He predicted the inflow and exports of goods would be the ascend next year and guaranteed the United States would not devalue the dollar.

Official Count Gives Liberal 65-Vote Edge

CORNWALL (CP) — An official count of ballots cast in the Stormont federal byelection July 16 confirms Liberal candidate Lucien Lamoureux as winner by a margin of 65 votes in home 25,000 cast.

The official check left totals for the four candidates the same as those announced following an unofficial tally last week.

Returning Officer Alphonse Charron gave the official results Monday as:

Mrs. Marjorie Ball, NDP, 9-4; Grant Campbell, Progressive Conservative, 11,258; Mr. Lamoureux, 11,362; Mel Rowat, Social Credit, 1,254.

A total of 237 of the 23,096 ballots cast were rejected as spoiled.

The election in the eastern Ontario constituency was conferred from the general election date June 18 because of the death of the original Liberal candidate.

Mr. Lamoureux, 41-year-old lawyer, was chosen to replace him and seek to win the seat away from Mr. Campbell.

The result left the standing in the House of Commons: Conservatives 116, Liberals 100, Social Credit 30, NDP 18, vacant 1.

Mr. Campbell said he may seek a recount. He has until midnight Friday to make the request.

Crown Will Appeal Bruneau Sentence

OTTAWA (CP) — Notice has been served on former MP Raymond Bruneau that the Crown intends to appeal his two-year suspended sentence for a bribery conviction, it was disclosed today.

The crown attorney's office said notice has been served on Bruneau prior to an application for leave to appeal.

Bruneau, 45, was found guilty of accepting $10,000 for the use of his influence as a Liberal MP—for eastern Ontario-Glengarry-Prescott riding—in arranging government purchase of property six years ago.

Judge Frank Costello of Kitchener said June 18 that Bruneau was "driven to take this offer" because he was in desperate need of money. It was an example of the inadequacy of the $10,000-a-year sum received by members of parliament, the judge said, and accordingly he was imposing only a two-year suspended sentence.

Maximum sentence on the charge is 14 years in prison.

Peru Junta Plans to Release Prado

LIMA (AP)—Peru's week-old military junta plans to release deposed president Manuel Prado and set up a government acceptable to the United States and other nations hostile to the regime, military sources said today.

"After July 28, even the United States cannot refuse to recognize the new regime," the sources said.

They declined to say what measures the junta would take other than to release Prado, who is being held prisoner aboard a navy transport that do'y term expires July 28.

The report came on the heels of the junta's clearout victory over the Peruvian Labor Confederation in the first major challenge to the military rule.

The largest of Peru's unions, the confederation ordered a nation - wide strike Monday but called it off Monday night after most workers showed up for their jobs and picket lines failed to materialize.

Only minor incidents were reported as troops in battle dress patrolled Lima's industrial section.

Has to Steal To Keep Mother Says Thief 83,

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The dean of Mexico's thieves, Aurelio Martinez Cervantes, 83, was arrested Monday for the umpteenth time after unsuccessfully trying to make off with a set of scales from butcher's shop.

Police said the old man was first arrested in 1904. Since then he has spent four visits on a penal colony island in the Pacific, 10 in the Mexico City Penitentiary and many others in various prisons throughout Mexico.

Martinez says he has no other way to support himself, his 125-year-old mother and a 90-year-old brother.

"The trouble with me is that I have never been able to bag a good loot," the old man said.

Missing Pair Found on Tiny Island

HONEY HARBOR, Ont. (CP) — Two Peel Credit teen - agers missing since Sunday when they started out on a 15-mile trip in an outboard motor boat were found Monday on a tiny uncharted island in Georgian Bay.

David Soulis, 18, and Dorothy Kench, 18, were both in good condition despite wet, unseasonably cool weather.

They had taken the 18-horsepower boat to go about seven miles from a 35-ton cruiser owned by the boy's father to a shore at Whaler's Landing for provisions. On their way back they ran out of gasoline about dusk and were blown onto the island.

They were spotted by an RCAF Albatross from the Air Force rescue co-ordination centre at Trenton.

Honey Harbor is about 35 miles north of Barrie.

Red China Welcomes Laos Signing

PEKING (Reuters)—The Chinese Communist party newspaper People's Daily today welcomed the signing of the Laos agreements at Geneva as "another proof that international disputes can be solved by negotiations."

But it adds editorially that Communism in Southeast Asia has still not been removed and new struggles lie ahead for the Laotian and other peoples concerned."

People's Daily published a story from Hanoi under its General Nguyen Giap denouncing U.S. armed aggression" in South Viet Nam.

It also printed a long report from the New China news agency's Geneva correspondent saying "the situation in Southeast Asia is still tense and peace in Laos has still to be consolidated.

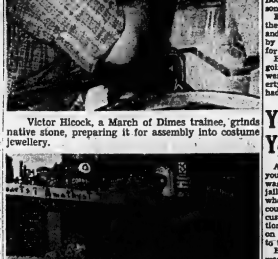
"Operation Recovery" Does Fine Job Making Jewelry

TRENTON — Almost a year ago, "Operation Recovery" the March of Dimes workshop near Smithfield, set up business. Jim Paterson, a member of the Quinte Disabled Persons' Club, was sent to Ottawa to be trained in the art of costume jewellery making, and when the shop was opened, he trained Marjorie Alexander, another club member. Since then, Victor Hicock has joined the staff as a trainee.



Jim explains the operation of the shop as follows: rocks are sent in from British Columbia, (these include rose quartz, gold and blue tiger eye, agate and petrified wood), the rocks are sliced on a slab-saw; cut into small pieces on a trim saw; ground to remove rough edges and placed in tumblers to remove burrs and polish the stones. Then, they are ready for assembling into the settings of silver, gold and rodium, (a silvery substance, non-tarnishable, which is more valuable than silver).

The necklets, bracelets, key chain fobs, pendants, tie bars and numerous other articles made from this "native stone", are sold through retail outlets. Sales manager for Ontario is Johnny Meyers, who is paralyzed from the waist down. Johnny doesn't let his "handicap" stand in the way of being a super salesman. He drives a hand controlling car, fanning out from the March of Dimes Toronto headquarters, to cities and towns in the province where Operation Recovery manufactured jewellery is handled by jewellers and gift shops.

An interesting sidelight: for Quinte area residents is the fact that many of the articles of costume jewellery are made of "sodalite", a substance mined in quantity at Bancroft.

Victor Hicock, a March of Dimes trainee, grinds native stone, preparing it for assembly into costume jewellery.

Send Plane To Aid In Search

TRENTON — At 2:30 p.m. yesterday, the Rescue Co-ordination Centre at RCAF Station was alerted that a 15-foot white outboard motor boat with two people aboard was overdue on a trip between Northern Pine Island and Whalen Landing in the Georgian Bay area. A civilian aircraft had searched the area with negative results after the small craft was reported missing.

By 4:30 p.m., an Albatross aircraft from 102 Composite Unit at Trenton had been despatched under the command of F/L R. E. Jasper, to search for the missing boat and ships from the Canadian coastguard and commercial shipping in the area had been notified to keep a lookout

At 7:30 p.m., the Albatross crew sighted a small boat drawn up to a 20 x 20 island in the bay, and two persons were seen, under a canvas shelter on the island. The air crew saw another small boat approach the island, and pick up the two people. It was later established that the two were the objects of the search and the Albatross was recalled to base.

Summer Activities At Playgrounds

TRENTON — Planned activity at Trenton's summer playgrounds this week include a pet show at Marmora Senior Public; a kabiki meet at North Trenton; a "dress up" day at Alison Park; a hike for those who attend Dufferin school playground and on Friday, children from Hanna Park and St. Peter's School will visit the donut factory.

Approximately 400 children are attending the town's playgrounds this year and interest in the special events is high, with parents and pre-school kiddies taking in the various shows from the sidelines.

Four Youths Sentenced to Seven Days

Four district youths were each sentenced to seven days in jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills when they appeared in city court here charged with "wandering about in a public place."

Sentenced to seven days in jail to date from last Friday were Stanley J. Bailey, 17; Ronald Crow, 18; Donald Roy Boomhour, 21, and Carl Ronson Haines, 18.

Evidence in connection with the charge was heard last week and the four were remanded by the magistrate until today for sentence.

He said the reason they were going to jail was because they were found on private property late at night when they had no reason for being there.

Youth Given Year in Jail

A 16-year-old Belleville youth, Larry Edward Carroll, was sentenced to one year in jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills when he appeared before him in city court charged with escaping custody of Provincial Probation Officer D. I. MacKinnon on July 9. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

Evidence heard last week was that Carroll had been given permission by Mr. MacKinnon to visit his mother at her Front Street residence before being taken to the Training School to which he had been sentenced by the magistrate on July 6.

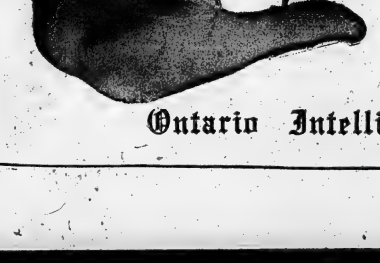
Carroll escaped by the back door and was picked up that afternoon by Belleville Provincial Police Corp. Harold Howring, about 15 miles north of Belleville, Ont., Mr. Howring.

Magistrate Wills said in passing sentence this morning that going back to the Training School was out of the question.

SIR CEDRIC IN HOSPITAL

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sir Cedric Hardwicke is being treated at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital for what the hospital describes as an ailment of the upper respiratory tract. The condition of the 69-year-old British actor has been described as good.

Driving Charge Is Dismissed



A charge of careless driving laid against a Belleville man this morning in city magistrate's court. Clarence Blakely of Humewood Drive pleaded not guilty to the charge. He was represented before being taken to the Training School to which he had been sentenced by the magistrate on July 6.

Police testified that when they went to Mr. Blakely's residence he had a bad gash on his forehead and he was bleeding quite badly. He was taken to hospital by the investigating officers.

Upon hearing the evidence, Magistrate Wills said there was insufficient evidence to warrant a conviction in this case. He said the case had not been proved beyond all reasonable doubt, therefore he could not find the accused guilty of careless driving.

Britain Out of Step

According to an AP report, Britain is resisting United Nations efforts to force the renegade Congo state, Katanga, into a settlement. The Belgian government is also taking sides with Britain and Katanga in the dispute.

If the true story follows along the lines suggested by the UN reports of two years ago, (reports which resulted in the removal of the UN representative who made them) it would read like the socialist propaganda of the 1930's.

Two years ago it was suggested that the giant Union Miniere was responsible for most of the trouble. This huge mining firm, of Belgian and English ownership, has an obvious interest in independence for Katanga, being the main taxpayer of the whole Congo. If Katanga remains independent, the Union Miniere taxes will all to go to a smaller area. The company can expect much higher taxes if the Congo is ever unified.

Unless we assume communist interference, which is highly unlikely, we must then look to the Union Miniere as the likely source of the money that supports Katanga's well armed troops. It sounds like the stories of the most rabid revolutionaries, but in this case is the United Nations that is being frustrated by wealth and greed: and this time the stories appear to be true.

In private, according to the AP report, the British assert they are as concerned as anyone about the Katanga situation. They add, however, that they feel the situation can best be solved by patience.

There is no doubt that the Union Miniere would like to see the UN practise patience, indefinitely. But unless the British government is completely under the control of big business, as proposed by the communists, it would do well to get in step with Uncle Sam, who, for once, seems to have diagnosed economic imperialism correctly.

Dance, Clown, Dance

"Place hands, convolute, you're dancing the Popeye," according to an Ontario Intelligencer heading in Thursday's paper. In case readers are interested in the history of this cultural exercise, an article below the heading includes this with a more complete description of the dance. As a parting shot, the writer conjules that the effect of the popeye is "something like a hornpipe performed by a sleepwalker."

The dance is established as a small time craze, in competition with several other apparently idiotic calesthenics. The Popeye seems to differ largely in that it requires a stylized sailor's costume.

Adults, perhaps, are too ready to condemn such antics. Parents, especially, may be worried about the cost of the sailor suits, which will be thrown away, half worn, when the style shifts. But they might perhaps look at their own customs of the present as well as their youth. Tuxedos and tails differ from the sailor suits mostly in that they are suitable for more than one type of dancing. Little else. The dances of adults are accepted as dignified and proper mostly because of their foreign origin, foreign in time and/or space.

Perhaps the most justifiable defence of the teen age dance crazes is that they are new. There may be no culture represented or developed in them. They may bear little or no relation to reality. They are certainly mostly the result of a canned culture vendor's ambition to qualify for a higher tax bracket.

But they are accepted or rejected by the youth of a continent and generation who will live through times undreamed of by their ancestors. These dances, foolish though they may be, or seem to be, are being tested, and accepted or rejected, by a generation in need of a cultural pattern to fit vastly changed times.

The dancers are the dancers of the future. Whether the dances are the dances of the future or not, is up to the dancers to decide.

Ottawa Offbeat
Watching and Waiting Game on Parliament Hill

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has the capital playing a few guessing games which he appears to be in no hurry to end.

The first is the new formation of his Cabinet, of course, and when this is to take place nobody can possibly guess. The greatest problem in this particular game is that the prime minister apparently doesn't know himself.

Much the same can be said about the matter of appointing Senate new senators. There are now 13 vacancies in the upper chamber . . . seats considered real plums for the party faithful.

They are more than this. Those empty seats, if filled with Liberal supporters, would bring the Senate closer to balance between the two major parties and go part way toward avoiding embarrassing incidents like the Coyne affair of 1961.

There now are 63 Liberals there and only 27 Tories, as well as two independents and an independent Liberal.

An effective distribution of 63 against 39 or 41 does not sound like much of a balance, but in practice all of the senators are not present at any given time and a party with 63 senators are far older than the Conservatives.

With younger and more active Tories in the Senate, it is possible a few more bills could out-vote the Liberals, who suffer greatly from absenteeism because of age and ill-health.

But none of this can take place as long as Mr. Diefenbaker holds off the naming of new senators.

This selection is a difficult task because, as Diefenbaker himself has pointed out on occasion, every time a senator is named one man is happy and 100 are made angry.

There is no reason so obvious for delaying Senate appointments but it is the one that seems to be the most likely. A third reason is that any appointments now delayed and there is nothing which can hurry the prime minister.

A third reason for his abeyance might be influenced by outside pressure. The decision on a by-election date for the new vacant Commons seat for Burnaby-Coquitlam, resigned by the NDP's Erhart Regier to make room for party leader Tommy Douglas.

Although there is some question at the moment about the legality of Mr. Regier's resignation, there should be no problem there.

The real problem for the NDP is to have the seat officially declared vacant and have the prime minister set a by-election date.

The party would fully appreciate an acclamation in the riding for Douglas, but hopes for that faded when the Socreds declared they would fight tooth an nail for the seat.

On this, the Tories may also field a candidate and, if they do, the Liberals undoubtedly will follow suit.

For a variety of reasons it is unlikely that the Conservatives have any particular love for the NDP or feel the need to do the party any favors.

When Hon. George Drew, now high commissioner to London, became Conservative leader in 1948 the member for Carleton refused to allow the leader to gain a seat in the Commons.

The Tories had agreed that he be allowed an acclamation but the old CCF decided against it and ran Pat Conroy.

Dr. Forsey lost his deposit, but he delayed proceedings and denied the acclamation to Mr. Drew.

Proceedings in Burnaby-Coquitlam now rest with the prime minister and much depends on what is in his mind.

If he does not do so by the end of this week, Douglas will not have a Commons seat for a September session of Parliament.

A writ issued this week would allow a by-election September 10 at the earliest. It would not until September 18 that the returning officer could forward his official certificate to Ottawa and that would be just in time for a late September start for Parliament.

So watch for the prime minister's decision or if he does not come this week, the Commons will begin without Tommy Douglas.

Getting Started in Life

New York Times

The business of getting started in life is so full of drama sometimes that it is hard to remember episodes from it all of our lives. The experience is a source of anecdotes for the most autobiographies, and "Men and Decisions," a new memoir by Lewis L. Strauss, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, is no exception. Mr Strauss got started as a shoe salesman in Chamberlain-Searcy Virginia. He introduced himself to country customers by saying, "I am the son of the vice president of Fleishman Morris and Co. in Richmond, and I would like to show you our line of shoes." He was quite innocent of the effect of this speech until one backwoods shopkeeper said, "Well, sir, I must say that this is a great honor. Imagine to you, the son of so humdrum goodness vice president, coming to my humble store to ask me to see common people like me."

Many young people are getting started at this time of year following graduation. They are the ones seen waiting in reception offices wearing those slightly bored expressions designed to toward that threatening ordeal—the personnel interview (euphemistically called "job interview"). It is an unnerving thing. The man you eventually confront may smile, but his eyes are coolly calculating you. What is he thinking? His voice purrs, but his eyes never change. One must impress this man at all costs. So when he asks, "What can you do?" you answer "Anything." When we are older and someone makes an estimate of us that we do not like, we are able to congratulate ourselves for being so tolerant of other people's mistakes. A young person hasn't yet developed this handy device.

No one, however illustrious later, seems to have been exempt from the trials and the embarrassing happenings that are a part of them. H. G. Wells tells in his autobiography of an important appointment he had as a youth in London. In preparation for it he had tried to spruce up an old bowler hat. He used a brush and plenty of water to paste down the uneven nap of the hat until it was an ebony smoothness. Two sternly serious men interviewed him and things were not going at all well when suddenly the whole session took a bizarre turn. Wells' hat, unnoticed, was on a desk before them, began to sprout and grow, as the water dried and released the nap. The interviewers stared transfixed at the phenomenon, all business forgotten.

There are many rules for getting started in the world. Should dress be formal? Any appearance (if one has it) One must be careful to "fit in" more than water on the cowlick, though). One should be cheerful and polite, but not overdo it. Here brokes all the rules and succeeded. The secret is to be a noying his prospective employer. Herbert Bayard Swope, executive editor of the New York World, looked up from his desk one morning at a young man standing unexpectedly before him. The young man, absorbed in his own little world the secretaries weren't watching before his friends could enter the editor's office. Swope expressed his annoyance, refused to employ him, but the young man said, "Mr. Swope, you are interfering with my destiny." The remark involved a year's training on The World, the young man said and Swope, impressed by the nerve gave in. The visitor was the future columnist, Heywood Broun. Another type shoulders around his home until his parents and their business friends bring opportunities before his eyes to save him from utter wretchedness. But most of those who are getting started use no such sweeping or sly approaches. They are instead shy but courageous, self-doubting but dogged. They dress neatly each morning, study the want ads minutely, set out with their best foot forward; hoping they won't put it in their mouth. That day, at least.

Strictly Personal
Negative Power Real In World

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Although Lord Acton said many wise and witty things about the nature of power, all that we remember is his famous aphorism that "Power tends to corrupt, and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

One of the most neglected aspects of power, however, has rarely been touched upon, even by so discerning a critic as Acton. And that is the problem of negative power.

The power to create negative feelings is much greater than the power to create positive ones: this is true in every realm. As a matter of fact, for instance, I have learned over the years that it is impossible to keep the public away from a play I dislike; but it is impossible to prevent the public from seeing a play I happen to like.

Or, if a newspaper opposes a bond issue, it is much easier to defeat the issue than it would be to pass it with the paper's support. Most power turns out to be veto power: it can prevent but it cannot produce results as well.

And what makes power precisely so dangerous is this negative character. If power does tend to corrupt those who hold it, is it not largely because the leaders become cynical about their positive power?

A President, in his larger sphere, faces the same problem as a drama critic. He can prevent the legislature from enacting measures he does not approve of but his positive power to get his own legislative program enacted is much weaker.

Dictatorship, of course, are almost always successful on a negative basis. Both the Russian and the German revolutions of our time were based on negative principles — on "liquidating" certain classes of the population. Hate, envy, despair, rage, fear — all these negative emotions are played on revolutionary leaders to achieve their purposes.

A positive program, on the other hand, is rarely able to summon enough political or social power. A campaign for honesty, generosity, rationality, far-sightedness, and constructive progress does not rouse us to a frenzy. Every politician has known that since the days of Pericles and Jesus and Confucius to the present.

The corruption of power, I am convinced, comes not so much from the untrustworthiness of those who hold power as from the elementary fact that they can effectively exercise their power only in negative terms. When a dictator tells me he will destroy the entrenched Bankeropreneurs and Plutocrats I know my enthusiastically he praises them, he becomes twice as vicious in denouncing my capitalist friends — and more cutbacks in one direction always stimulate violently in the opposite.

To Your Good Health
Faulty Arches, Poor Fitting Shoes, Cause Foot Misery

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a fairly good figure except that I am knockkneed. What is your advice about plastic surgery?

Please don't push this aside with something that won't help me. It's more important to me than you know. — J. P.

I wish Dr. Paris of the mogul would decide that its fashionable to be knockkneed. (It was many years ago.)

If that happened I'd be a very happy man. I've had hundreds of letters insisting that a custom-made boot is a financial problem.

But then I suppose I'd be just as deluged with end letters saying, "I'm a 95 C-cup. How can I make myself flatter?"

Oh, this lop-sectional status symbol!

There are no pills, creams, hormones or other abracadabra that will inflate the female chest to suit its possessor.

There are some things that can be done, but since these she aids don't cost anything, they usually don't get a fair trial.

First, I've noticed that women who are self-conscious about their lack of diameter-inches tend to stump and let their shoulders sag forward.

Next, girls don't straight with the shoulders back can be the equivalent of adding a couple of inches on that despicable lapse measure.

You don't believe me? Then notice the way fashion models, most of them ladies as lathe, hold their shoulders.

Since the breasts are a natural depository for fat, even a few pounds of weight is the most natural way to increase their size.

And, of course, you can buy just about any contraption you want at a department store.

Finally, if you have a real faty tissues, plastic surgery is a difficult process — unlike building up a sore or cuts which can be done with bone grafts. It's most difficult to establish the necessary blood supply if fatty masses are added.

Talk it over with a plastic surgeon if you wish, but he'll tell you that it is not a simpler process to correct a pendulous breast by removing excess tissue, than to do the reverse. There have been attempts to use paraffin, plastics, etc., but I have yet to see any convincing evidence of either safety or success.

I'm sorry not to be more optimistic about filling your cup-a-ell, but I do think that correct posture plus adding a few pounds will take care of the problem in most instances.

Dear Sir: What can I do for my aching feet, they had corns and two calluses? I went to bed and still get no relief — T. K.

For this combination of foot misery, I would suspect both faulty arches and shoes that don't fit properly, and I cannot think of a single thing that will help much, short of going to an orthopedist or to a specialist in foot troubles.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 3 months pregnant. I am already having cramps in the calf of my legs. I have had these occur because (S) I have no much; (H) the baby is by, in a nervy condition. (3) I may be a calcium deficiency, (4) exercise (B) more than the others.

I have been to see my doctor only once and forgot to ask him. — Mrs. J.D.

By the time you should be having a checkup at least once a month, I believe (B) less than the others, but why guess? Go to your doctor. If he says to slow down, slow down. If he gives you a calcium supplement, take it.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of my booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is, and encouraging sinus sufferers to do something about it. For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 30c in coin to cover handling.

Glenn Gould Is Eccentric

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

The young Canadian pianist, Glenn Gould, has won a reputation as one of the world's foremost interpreters of the music of Bach. He has at the same time gained quite a name as eccentric and an individualist.

Sometimes it is not quite clear by which reputation he prefers to be recognized. His devotion to music appears for the sake of music cannot be questioned. Mr. Gould's personality is many-sided, and he plays many odd evidences of a boyish delight in going different and even contrary.

In Canada, where only a few dozen of real individualists, this is all to the good. Whatever else he does, the individualist stirs interest, and when this applies to the most sublime music written, it is doubly valuable.

This is the light in which Mr. Gould's request at the Stratford Festival for the audience to without applause should be viewed It was a justifiable request, and in practice if they were sincere and could be a most unpleasant noise to an extremely sensitive ear.

It is doubtful if Mr. Gould, single-handed, will be able to reverse the traditions of centuries.

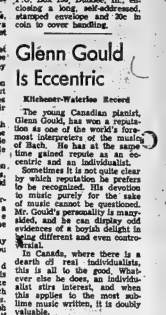
THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When I called at his office to see if he could spare a bread for a little fishing jaunt for the evening, he was in the act of filling a desk coffer-full of mail, but never witnessed this little rite, and was interested to see all the legal-likes a doctor has to go through in the performance of his manifold profession.



"Who was it?" I enquired.

"Hah-w," said the doctor, "of a prosperous businessman. Mother of three children, all whom she more or less crushed with indulgences of every kind. Started ed life as the happy spirited son of a young clerk in a store. Shared with all the joy of great success. Began putting on airs by the time she was ten. An insufferable social climber by the time she was forty. Hadn't a friend left by the time she was fifty. By the time she was sixty she was a thoroughly old tyrant. Of her life I would say: I have known what she wanted; but whatever it was she didn't get it."

Such was his name, with that remark for an epitaph.

not correspond to the doctor's wishes."

"And the family might have to hunt for a doctor who will fit their desires as to method of payment for his services."

Rodney Thomson, acting chairman of the provincial Keep Our Doctors Committee, said he was "elated".

He said a meeting of the committee's provincial executive will be held in Regina Wednesday to decide its future.

WILL DISBAND

Grant Armstrong of the Save Our Saskatchewan organization said the group probably will be disbanded.

The pending court cases arising from the medical care controversy apparently were unaffected by the settlement.

Dr. M. H. McIlraith, who with a Prince Albert doctor has launched a suit against the Saskatchewan cabinet and former premier T. C. Douglas, claiming damage of professional reputation, said the action will proceed.

Dr. Ross Tosh, one of three persons who applied for a temporary injunction to suspend the act until its validity could be tested in court, said he will have no comment to make until the court rules on the application.

Community Health Services Incorporated, a citizens - sponsored clinic, also continues before said one of its member doctors, Dr. Don Wolfe.

A product of the medical care dispute, it was formed as a nonprofit clinic operating under the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Act.

ENDS LONG BATTLE

The agreement climaxed a battle that began in 1959 when the government began to organize the first compulsory prepaid medical care plan in North America.

It originally called for the government to operate the insurance scheme with all doctors in it. The government was to be the sole insuring agency.

The agreement now will allow private insurance agencies to operate in co-operation and competition with the Medical Care Insurance Commission, administrator of the government plan. A refund system allows doctors to practise outside the act even though their patients might be insured by the commission.

The doctor bills the patient and the patient pays the doctor. The patient would then obtain reimbursement from the commission.

Most of Saskatchewan's population of 920,000 is already insured by two-doctor sponsored schemes, Medical Services Incorporated and Group Medical Services.

College officials say it is a certainty most doctors will work outside the act. Only a smattering of doctors agreed to work under the act at the start of the boycott.

MEANS ACCEPTANCE

The agreement meant acceptance of the principle of universal, compulsory coverage, a situation many doctors still bitterly oppose.

It also meant a retreat for doctors from the July 1 stand in which they demanded repeal of the act as a prelude to negotiations for settlement.

Despite this, reaction among medical college officials has ranged from pleasure at the outcome to a reluctant view that this was the best that could be obtained.

The memorandum of agreement was signed by Premier Lloyd and Dr. Dalgleish in a brief hotel-room ceremony.

Immediately after, Britain's Lord Taylor, who helped mediate the dispute, announced the end of the boycott.

ACTS AS GO-BETWEEN

The 51-year-old Labor peer spent several days shuttling between separate meetings of the college's governing council and the provincial cabinet.

He was brought here by the government as an adviser a week ago, but immediately plunged into the role of go-between. Lord Taylor helped set up Britain's national health service.

Saskatchewan residents will pay annual $12 premiums for individuals and $24 for families to obtain coverage. Premium payments start in November. The remainder of the cost of the coverage is financed through taxation.

Under the agreement, the Medical Care Commission will be increased by 51 from eight members, with the three additions nominated by the college of physicians and surgeons. The powers of the commission will be reduced but it was not made clear to what extent.

The agreement also calls for the commission to halt the issue of British doctors imported by the government on temporary contracts to work under the medical care plan. Last reports said 94 had been signed to fill vacancies left by doctors July 1.

Swaps Sketch With Artist

SAINT TROPEZ, France (AP)—Pablo Picasso traded portraits Monday with an artist from Montmartre, in Paris.

Picasso was sitting with friends on a cafe terrace when Parisian Gaston Tyko, 54, took a nearby table and began a portrait of the noted artist. When he had finished, Tyko gave it to Picasso.

"Sit down over there," said Picasso. "You did my portrait and now I am going to do yours."

Picasso sketched Tyko with a few deft strokes, signed it and handed it to him.

Blast on Boat Leaves 1 Dead, Eight Injured

DETROIT (CP)—The body of a Detroit landscaper, drowned when a gasoline explosion destroyed a cabin cruiser on Lake St. Clair and injured eight other persons, has been recovered.

Police recovered the body Monday of a 40-year-old ex-naval officer, Donald Oak, Mich., Monday after the cruiser had been blasted by a mooring buoy in Lake St. Clair.

Police said a second explosion occurred. The dead man was identified as Byron (Jack) Gavin, 36, of Detroit.

Four of the victims are in hospital suffering first degree burns and shock. Four others were treated for burns and released.

Police said a mooring buoy struck the 30-foot cruiser owned by Dominic of Royal Oak, Mich., caused up the boat after leaving but was forced to return when the engine started to miss. It opened the gas hatch as he entered the marina canal and a second explosion occurred. He started and everyone was forced to jump in the water.

Police said Gavin was not immediately discovered missing. He was last seen alive aboard by passing craft. The boat caught fire after the explosion, burned to the engine line and sank.

Indian Children Are Paralyzed By U.S. Flour

SHILLONG, India (Reuters)—Ill-treated wheat flour, contaminated by a poisonous chemical, was the cause of an outbreak that paralyzed 180 children in Assam, State school children.

B. J. Choudhuri, director of Assam's health services, said Monday laboratory tests here at Calcutta proved the presence of the chemical tri-ortho-cresyl phosphate in the flour, given through the American Friendship Society.

Food poisoning affected 180 to 185 pupils of a Roman Catholic school at Sonapahbari last month after they had eaten bread made from the flour, he said.

Flaccid paralysis of the lower limbs and weakness affected the hand muscles of some victims was one of the symptoms, Choudhuri said.

Tri - ortho - cresyl phosphate, known commercially as TOCP, was responsible for the partial paralysis of thousands of Moroccans who consumed it in 1959 in cooking oil.

An investigation later showed it came in Arabic-labelled bags from surplus jet aircraft oil from the United States Air Force and used it to dilute more expensive cooking oil.

No Restriction Placed on Water Uses

PICTON — It has not been necessary to place any restriction on the amount of water used by Picton residents, according to the Water Purification Plant officials. It has been possible to pump sufficient water to meet the demand in spite of the lack of rain.

One of the reasons there are no restrictions is the way the pipes were laid a few years ago, is the fact that there cannot be any dead ends or scouring and facilities at the plant have been improved.

On Wednesday, July 4, a total of 1,839,000 gallons was pumped. Other days of the week were 1,651,000, 1,800,000, 1,755,000 and this is the general average.

The plant is geared to pump two million gallons daily but has pumped 300,000 gallons over that amount.

Contrary to popular opinion, users do not get all their water from the town reservoir; instead it comes directly from the network of water lines. It is only when the pumping ceases that the reservoir water is used.

A check shows that, while there is space at the pumping station for expansion, installation of equipment, none of it has been secured as yet. Under the town bylaw passed seven months ago, it is expected construction of the town's water supply will begin after July 31st.

Warm Weather Sent Crowds To Beaches

PICTON—Warm weather on Sunday sent crowds to the various beaches and traffic was heavy on most roads. However, police report no serious accidents.

During the past week, 644 groups used the camp sites. There are 365 of these and about 30 an overflow at the weekend pitched tents on the sand dunes.

Sunday three lost children were reported and all located unharmed.

Rain Welcome But Too Late for Peas

PICTON — The best rain we have had in months, commenting one farmer Monday night, fell Sunday, a fell almost steadily all day and provided a soaking which has been lacking for weeks. It came too late to help peas but is just what the tomato crop, potatoes and other things needed. For the past few years, rather than being general and steady, they have been scattered and varying from very light to heavy.

Due to the rain, a plane piloted by Ray Hylan of Hylan Air Service, Picton, came down safely at Prince Edward Flying Club and remained until visibility improved.

Solving This Shell Game Hard as Finding the Pea

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The International Shell organization which has made a bid to purchase Canadian Oil Companies Ltd., is a vast and intricate organization.

Canadians know it chiefly through Shell Oil Company of Canada Ltd. and the current bid being made by a wholly-owned subsidiary of Shell Canada — the recently-incorporated Hasler Oil Co. Ltd.

However, the offer of $114,000,000 presumably sends some ripples through other parts of the Shell set-up.

Internationally, the organization is commonly known as the Royal Dutch-Shell Group, but this is only a name of convenience to encompass the worldwide operations. Unless there have been recent changes, the corporate structure runs about as follows:

At the head are two companies. They are the 200,000 fl. Koninklijke Nederlandsche Petroleum Maatschappij or, in English, the Royal Dutch Petroleum Company; and The Transport and Trading Co. Ltd., a British company. These two are simply holding companies and have no operations.

KEY HOLDINGS

Their holdings consist mainly of the shares of two principal group companies — Royal Dutch Petroleum Maatschappij (Batavia Petroleum Company) and Shell-Petroleum Co. Ltd. Royal Dutch holds 60 per cent of the shares of Shell-Petroleum, in turn, owns shares directly or indirectly, in more than 50 companies engaged in the oil and chemical industries around the world.

Included in Batasafe Petroleum's holdings is Canadian Shell.

Canadian Shell, not to be confused with Shell Oil Company of Canada Ltd., was formed in 1933 and is the holding company for the bulk of Shell's Canadian hemisphere interests. It occupies the same head office building in Toronto as Shell Oil Canada but its operations and office space are entirely separate and the relations between Shell of Canada are the same as with any other western hemisphere company.

STRUCTURE COMPLICATED

Canadian Shell owns 50 per cent of Shell of Canada and the other 50 per cent is held by Shell Oil Company, New York, the American operating company. However, in the very complicated corporate structure Canadian Shell probably has about an 83-per-cent interest in Shell of Canada. In this set-up the line of ownership has been — Canadian Shell owns Shell Caribbean Petroleum Company, New York; Shell Caribbean owns 83 per cent of Shell Oil Company, New York; Shell Oil, New York, owns 50 per cent of Shell of Canada.

Shares of the two companies at the top of the pyramid — Royal Dutch and "Shell" Transport — are widely held internationally and are traded on stock exchanges in London, New York, Amsterdam, Brussels, Paris and in Germany. Figures a year or so ago indicated that of the two companies, British nationals held 36 per cent; Americans 18 per cent; and Dutch nationals 15 per cent.

Shares of Shell Oil, New York outside those held by Shell interests, are traded on American stock exchanges. It is also claimed that shares of Shell Oil Company of Canada on Canadian exchanges.

Annual sales and operating income of the entire Shell world group companies range from $10,000,000. In the last 10 years-the group has invested more than $300,000,000 in Canada.

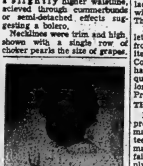
T-Line Marks Paris Winter Fashion Show

PARIS (Reuters)—Pierre Balmain showed a T-line today on the second day of the Paris winter fashion showings.

The silhouette, lingering increased shoulder-breadth above a tall unbroken body column, contrasted with the Eiffel Tower, object proposed by Pierre Cardin Monday with slender suit jackets falling low over skirts with unusual pleats.

Like Cardin, Balmain had feminines down to the top of the calf—but he has done this in previous seasons when other major Paris houses were showing kneecap lengths.



Balmain featured tranquil designs.

Broader shoulders, cut without padding, and rounded sleeves contrasted with the narrow "pouadour" look which has emerged elsewhere.

He showed a lightly fitted and elongated suit jacket, often reminiscent of an English riding habit.

Dresses, still the simple sheath he put on the fashion map 10 years ago, this year had a slightly higher waistline, achieved through cummerbunds or semi-detached effects suggesting a bolero.

Necklines were trim and high, shown with a single row of choker pearls the size of grapes.

Mr. and Mrs. John Charles Walmsley are shown following their recent marriage in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville. Mr. and Mrs. Walmsley are residing in Brockhurst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Brockhurst, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Walmsley, of London, Ontario.

WALMSLEY—BROCKHURST

On Saturday, July 14, at 2.00 p.m. a lovely summer wedding was solemnized by the Reverend R. D. MacLean, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, when Shirley Ann Brockhurst of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Brockhurst, was united in marriage to John Charles Walmsley, of London, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Walmsley. Baskets of pink and white gladioli formed a pretty setting for the ceremony, and white satin bows designated the chairs.

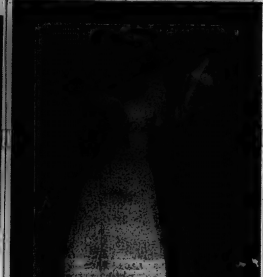
The wedding music included the processional, "Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven", "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register, and the "Wedding March" by Mendelssohn, for the recessional.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. H. T. Adams, the bride was radiantly lovely in her waltz-length bridal gown of white chiffon over taffeta with molded lace bodice trimmed with sequins. Her shoulder-length veil of silk tulle illusion was held by a tiara type headdress encrusted with, sequins and drop simulated pearls. She carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of white carnations centred by deep pink rosebuds.

Miss Donna Kennedy, of Montreal, Quebec, was matron of honor, attired in pale pink chiffon, with white feathered hat and face veil, she carried a crescent bouquet of white carnations centred with pale pink rosebuds.

Mr. Howard Loveland, of Wallaceburg, Ontario, attended the bridegroom, and Mr. Thomas Paquet, of Toronto, and Mr. Harold Pulsmaker, of Belleville, ushered the guests.

The reception was held in the church parlor, where the bridal table was daintily appointed with white damask linen centred by the traditional wedding cake, and flanked by tall pink and white candles, pink and white gladioli and the bridal bouquets.



The guests were received by the bride's mother who wore a blue and white chiffon gown over taffeta, with white accessories and pink carnation corsage. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, in beige brocade satin, with white accessories and corsage of yellow carnations.

For the honeymoon, the bride chose a pink and white striped cotton two-piece ensemble, with white accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Guests were present from Toronto, Ontario; Wallaceburg; Toronto; Montreal, Quebec; Trenton and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Walmsley will reside in London, Ontario.

The bride was entertained, previous to marriage by the girls of the Belle Cleaners, at a miscellaneous shower of lovely gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dawson Catton are pictured following their marriage in St. James' Chapel, of St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, Ontario. CATTON — KOEN

St. James Chapel of St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, Ontario, was the scene of a lovely summer wedding on Saturday, June 30th, at eleven in the morning, when Mary Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Koen of Kingston, became the bride of Frederick Dawson Catton, of Belleville. The Reverend R. J. Feeney officiated, white gladiolis, red carnations and baby's breath decorated the church.

The bride was radiantly lovely in floor-length gown of white peau de soie, with slight train, featuring a Sweetheart neckline, pleated cummerbund and short sleeves. She wore a crown headdress of seed pearls and rhinestones, veil of nylon tulle and carried a cascade of red rosebuds with stephanotis.

Attending the bride was the maid of honor, Miss Genevieve Gazeley and bridesmaid, Miss Frances Knotek, both of Kingston, who wore sheath dresses of light blue peau de soie with matching overskirts fastened with a bow; white gloves and shoes. Their headdresses were of matching blue peau de soie with nylon tulle. Both carried cascades of white carnations tipped with blue.

The charming little flower girl, Carl Koen, dressed in white Swiss dot with blue cummerbund and carrying a basket of white carnations with blue streamers, was a niece of the bride, and Michael Koen, handsome little ring-bearer, for the double ring ceremony, is nephew of the bride.

Mr. Collin Parker of, Ottawa, Ontario, was best man and ushers were Messrs. MacLean Hale, of London, Ontario and Jack McDonald of Belleville.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Ben Righ Hall, at Queen's University, where the bridal table was prettily appointed with its white linen, tablecloth, centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, misted about the base with blue and white net.

The bride's mother wearing an azure blue two piece sheath with matching redingote, large picture hat and white accessories, received the guests assisted by the mother of the bride-groom, who wore shell pink embroidered pure silk over taffeta, with white accessories. The bride's mother's corsage was of pink carnations and the bridegroom's mother's corsage was of white carnations.

Out-of-town guests attended from Belleville, Bracebridge, Florida, London, Newmarket, Ottawa, Scarborough and Toronto.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a linen shower given by Miss Genevieve Gazeley, and Miss Frances Knotek at the home of Miss Genevieve Gazeley, Kingston; at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Pomeroy, Kingston; a kitchen shower at the home of Mrs. John Koen of Kingston, given by Mrs. Gertrude Murphy and Mrs. John Koen, and a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. C. V. Miller, Scarborough, Ontario.

Guests were received at the bride's parents' home in Kingston, where gifts were on display.

A dinner was held at St. Margaret's On-The-Hill, Belleville, and a dance followed at the Belleville Shrine Club.

For travelling the bride chose a dress of apricot paisley arnel with white accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations.

After vacationing at a resort area in Lake of Bays, Mr. and Mrs. F. Dawson Catton, will reside in Toronto.

L.C.W. Meeting

ST. JOHN'S U.C.W.

TWEED—A general meeting of the United Church Women of St. John's Church was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dunning with the two Country units acting as hostesses. Over 60 members and guests were present.

Mrs. C. Denhane, vice-president of U.C.W. acted as chairlady and opened the meeting with the poem, "God is Like This."

Business was conducted and letters of thanks were read from the Scott Mission and United Church Overseas Supply Committee to whom parcels had been sent. The second quarter of the L.C.W. allocation was ready to send to the Presbyterial Treasurer.

THANKS TENDERED

Motions of thanks were expressed to Mrs. Defoe, chairman of the parsonage committee and to Mrs. Irvine Bateman for their faithfulness as head of the supply committee. Mrs. P. C. Barker volunteered to finish the term as convener of supply.

Mrs. W. A. Donnelly conducted the worship which included singing the hymn "Take Time To be Holy". The theme of the worship and Bible studies was "Church Women at Prayer." Mrs. Catherine Marshall's "Power of Secret Prayer" was read and Mrs. P. C. Barker quoted many hymns and prayers which brought back memories of poems learned in early school days. She asked all to pray in the early morning on awakening and closed her discussion with prayer.

Mrs. S. Webb recited two poems and Linda Gunning played a piano solo.

The ladies called on Mrs. Payton and presented her with a lovely pantry shower as a welcoming gift.

Thanks were expressed to the hostess and the afternoon closed with a strawberry social served by the Country units.

Friends Mark 25th Wedding Anniversary

WELLINGTON—Last Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Carson and son, Eldon, and her niece, and nephew, Mrs. Bill McKenzie of Toronto, and Miss Kay Yandt of Stirling, were hosts and hostesses at a lovely surprise party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Yandt, of Dresden. Mr. and Mrs. Yandt celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary in April and as this was the first time they had been back to Wellington, their friends and relatives met at the Carson home for a belated celebration.

About 30 guests were present and all enjoyed a social time together.

During the evening, Mr. Joe Scott of Picton, read an address to the honored couple, and on behalf of their relatives presented them with a purse of money and a lovely white bedspread, a gift from their old Wellington friends, for the "Year's Ending."

They both voiced their appreciation for the lovely gifts and also for the party, which was certainly a big surprise to them.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess which included a huge anniversary cake, prettily decorated for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Yandt said, "this was one trip back to Wellington that they would never forget."

New Hat Headliner

By ALICE ALDEN

The prettiest, most becoming hats are usually on the subdued order, relying for their appeal on line and deft handling of material.

This is very much the case in one worn by the beautiful Mrs. Eleanor Searle Whitney, chosen a member of the Best-Hatted Hall of Fame.

Luger Pistol, 15 Siamese Cats Kept Mau-Maus at Distance

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Harker will remember her Kenya cats.

In the days of Mau Mau terrorism, they were more than pet feline friends. They were bloodhounds.

Mrs. Barker took her cats with her from England when she went with her husband to Kenya 25 years ago. They bought a 2,000-acre coffee plantation in the wilderness of the Kikuyu country, an area now known as the White Highlands.

Her husband died two years later. When the Mau Mau terror campaign started she managed the plantation alone, separated from the nearest police station by 30 miles of tropical bush.

"I was scared to death. My dogs were killed by marauding lions and leopards. Many of my African servants left me. They were afraid the Mau Mau bands roaming around the forest might kill them.

"I used to sleep at night with a Luger automatic under my pillow.

"I had about 15 Siamese trained cats. They saved me.

"They would growl at night whenever anybody came near the house."

Mrs. Barker said the cats actually would attack anybody who entered the house, and lion and leopards kept their distance.

Only the cats allowed her to sleep and work the plantation.

Mrs. Barker chatted during a Vancouver stop on a world tour. She no longer has any pets and she's undecided about returning to Kenya, a land where disturbances have wrought great changes, and where the believers the work of white pioneers will disappear with independence, scheduled for next year.

Hamburg Smell Floats From Red Shield Centre

By EDNA BLAKELY

SOEST, Germany (CP)—An unmistakable North American odor of hamburgers floats from the Red Shield Centre in the downtown area of this German community.

Inside, the hamburgers are dished up by Canadian Salvation Army Major Cecil Bond, his wife and one of their staff of 12.

A canteen takes up most of the space at the centre, which serves the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade group and its families. At the rear of the canteen and down a few steps is the chapel where services are held. There is a Sunday school for children, and a married couples' club and youth group meet there regularly.

The women's Sunshine Club, known as the Home League back in Canada, has a large membership turnover because of transfers within the brigade.

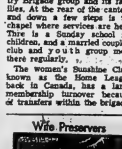
Many members were associated with other church groups at home but help the work of the Salvation Army in Soest.

Only the ladies of the faithful" says Mrs. Bonar. The women make one piece of new clothing a year for each of 100 children in the Salvation Army's orphanage at Castrop-Rauxel near Dortmund.

GOING HOME

Mrs. Bonar explained that the centre is "first and foremost a service for servicemen." Both she and her husband are on call at all times for welfare work.

"Sometimes we are nothing more than a comfort. Other times we are a guide."



The major and his wife return to Canada this summer after three years at the centre. They expect to go first to Toronto but do not know their eventual posting.

"I have no home" Mrs. Bonar said. She and her husband have lived and worked in seven provinces, missing only Prince Edward Island, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Prior to coming here they served at North Bay and Sault Ste. Marie in Ontario.

"I have sisters in Vancouver and Mal. Bonar's family is in Cape Breton," she added.

Her husband has done Salvation Army work for 30 years and she has been in its service for 22 years. They were married at Belleville, Ont., in 1942 and left five weeks later for duties in Newfoundland.

The Bonars have three daughters. One is married and the others are 16 and 13.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. H.S. — He failed biology and he's supposed to make it up this summer.

Roger S. — Why is the world must I know all about the amoeba and the paramecium?

* * *

Mrs. H.S. — Roger is 14 and a good student. But we moved from another state in the middle of the term and he had a difficult adjustment to make. Nevertheless, he managed to catch up in all subjects except biology. He claims he just couldn't work up any interest in the topics and the experiments.

Fortunately he was able to register for a summer course. If he passes it, he'll be able to start the new term as a full-fledged high school sophomore. But already he's falling behind in his assignments and failing the weekly test. I can't understand his lack of interest. It's such an important subject. Perhaps the Council can discover why he has such an allergy to this particular study.

* * *

Roger S. — I used to attend a private school and the things we learned in Science made some sense to me. We planted seeds and took cameras apart and watched chemistry experiments. But this stuff I'm supposed to study now doesn't seem to have any connection with real life. Why must I know all about the habits of a pre-amecium? Or a caterpillar and its larvae?

I suppose I'll manage to pass the examination this summer. My mother's worried because I failed a quiz on definitions of Arthropodes like Holothuroidea and Dictyleidoneous. But I'll just try to memorize my notebook. At first I thought I'd remember a few things because they were interesting. But the teacher just dictates the same old lessons. Why can't biology be about everyday things?

* * *

The Council: We're with you, Roger. Of all subjects, biology — which means the science of life — ought to start with knowledge about himself. How he grows, his body functions, how he should hold his temper and his attention. Time enough later to branch out to dissect birds, probe the secrets of plants, understand animal behavior.

Some gifted biology teachers are able to illuminate the cold-necked syllabus, so as to relate every law of nature, every revelation to the child's day-to-day experience. Evidently Roger has not been fortunate enough to have received biology plus magic in the classroom. The old hackneyed notes about the dropped out and lie Kleiss in Roger's hoarded book.

The curriculum-makers may some day get around to shaking the cobwebs in biology courses to make them exciting, but meanwhile, Roger's teachers should realize that they could make the material, now so dull to him, come alive by relating it (and most of it is "relatable") to his daily experiences and feelings.

Children can be very cruel to each other. They will hound the odd-ball, the one with a conspicuous flaw, new clothes, accent. But if, from an early age, they are aided to realize that classmates have "feelings" just like their own, and that certain drives and needs are universal, much childish anguish can be averted, but more important, lessons of lifelong value will be learned. As part of biology, Roger might be finding answers to: What sort of a person am I? Why do I feel the way I do? Why do I act the way I do? Then, he'd move on to Why does my body show off so much? How can I make things easier for Harry who just got a zero? Believe it or not, science has discovered some elemental truths about all of us which hardly any of us know. Learning them in school would serve us better than some of the material now taught.

Once a child has an idea of what makes him and his fellow human tick, he may find believes and not hills even more fascinating to ponder.

Cookie Bakeoff

Chocolate-Coated 'Digests'

by Mary Moore

Two weeks ago I gave here some cookies that were chocolate coated and which I hope and believe you enjoyed making and eating as much I enjoyed making, eating and passing on. At the same baking session we made a cookie which was my effort at a reasonable facsimile of chocolate-coated digestive biscuits.

My English daughter-in-law Margy and my British-educated niece Beverley tell me these are ever so popular in England. In addition I remember Marianne buying them as a special surprise for her children when they lived in Canberley.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Grilled Liver and Bacon; Creamed Onions; Fried Thin New Potatoes (Parboiled First); Lettuce Wedge with Roquefort Dressing; Blueberry Slump; Tea.

CHOCOLATE-COATED "DIGESTS"

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1½ cups sifted whole wheat flour, (addingbran and ment in sifter to sifted whole wheat flour). ½ cup shortening (butter is not necessary), ½ cup sifted icing sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix all ingredients in order given and blend together with finger tips. Do not chill dough. This dough is not easy to shape but be tolerant and work carefully for this is worth the work. Shape into thin rounds about 2 x ¾". If the rounds are not perfect circles it does not matter. Some of ours were a little jagged at the edges and looked interesting when chocolate coated and ready to serve on the cookie plate. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet at 325 deg. Fahr. for about 16 to 20 minutes. Do not brown these cookies. Cool on rack.

Above amounts make about 50 2" cookies.

When cold coat with chocolate: In a 2-cup measuring cup melt 6 oz. semi-sweet chocolate pieces or 6 oz. semi-sweet chocolate bar with 2 tablespoons milk over hot water. Allow chocolate to stand over hot water while you dip. With tongs, gently pick up cookies and dip in melted chocolate, allow to drain a moment, wipe on side of cup and carefully lower to sheet of wax paper to cool and harden. If these are made in real hot weather they must be kept in a cool place or in top refrigerator — especially if they are coated with semi-sweet bar chocolate.

I hope you try these. They are a novelty and a delicious confection. Next Tuesday see my recipe for Crisp Cocoanut Chews.

Question: My husband and I have been invited to the wedding and reception of a business associate's daughter. Because of the long drive involved, we will not be able to attend the ceremony, but can arrive in time for the reception. Is it permissible to miss the ceremony, or is this considered a breach of etiquette? Must we offer an apology to the bride's parents for not showing up at the church? — Mrs. C.W., New Haven, Conn.

Answer: The ceremony should be attended, if possible. But, if you can't, it would be better not to make an issue of it at the reception.

Income Tax Explained

This is one of a series written by C. A. Miller, a former supervising tax assessor. It is designed to help you in the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

Quite a number of taxpayers have written to us in the past few months, inquiring as to how they would report the income received from one or two boarders in their home. In this article I will outline the procedure to be followed regarding this type of income.

When the husband is regularly employed outside the home, the income tax department does not consider him to be in the business of operating a boarding house, when the number of boarders is three or any less number. In such cases any profit made on the boarders would be considered as his wife's income, as she is the one who does the additional housework and cooking.

The total amount received for board need not be reported. It is only that portion that is considered to be a profit that enters the tax picture. To determine the profit, the cost of the extra food and laundry, pertaining to the boarders, should be deducted from the amount of board money received. In most cases such as these, the net profit would not be approximately one third of the gross amount paid by the boarders, if the proper method of board is charged.

As this is considered to be income in the wife's hands, she would not have to file a return until her earning exceed $1000. However if her income exceeds $250, the amount in excess of this will reduce her husbands $1,000 exemption that he would ordinarily be claiming on behalf of his wife. Please bear in mind this will only apply when the number of boarders in the home is three or less. If you have four or more boarders, you would be considered to be in the business of operating a boarding-house, and when the proper balance sheet should be filed.

Question? I board my two nephews while they attend high school. I charge only enough to cover the cost of the food they consume. Do I have to report this as income?

Answer: No. You only have to report any profit made and in this case there is none.

Keep Oil Paintings Cool Away From Kitchen, Bath

By JACK VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (CP) — Don't hang that oil painting over the fireplace. The heat could ruin it.

If the painting has value, it could cost between $20 and $5,000 to restore it.

Also, don't hang oils in the kitchen or bathroom. Cooking grease and humidity play havoc with them. (Don't laugh. One prominent Ottawa woman has a valuable oil painting hanging on her bathroom wall.)

The advice comes from Dr. Nathan Stolow, chief of conservation and scientific research at the National Gallery of Canada. He looks after the country's art treasures.

His job is to restore and keep in shape the millions of dollars' worth of paintings hung in the gallery — some of them priceless.

Such things of value as sketches, paintings, sculptures and antique furniture have to be given great care or they'll "just fall apart," Dr. Stolow said in an interview.

Canadian homes more and more are being filled with genuine works of art — oils, tapestries, valuable silverware, Eskimo carvings, even totem poles.

Oil paintings — especially from the modern school — can decay "as early as 10 to 25 years after execution."

SOME BEYOND REPAIR

When buying paintings, make sure they are in good physical condition as well as pleasing to the eye, Dr. Stolow urges. Take along an expert, who can tell whether the canvas used is of good quality and whether a proper preservative has been applied.

Many contemporary painters, he says, are producing temporary paintings, slapping on thick gobs of paint without allowing time for the layers to dry. The result would be cracks in the picture.

"Some of them just can't be repaired."

He hit especially at painters who use "feathers, autumn leaves, inferior grads of house paint and sheets of rubber" in their works.

Water colors, prints and drawings should be properly matted and framed under glass. Glass would help protect oils, too, but reflections marred the beauty of the paintings.

One of the most insidious attackers of oils is vaporizing cooking fat. Every kitchen should have an exhaust fan, says Dr. Stolow.

Paintings should be hung firmly on cool walls. Keep them away from fireplaces or walls containing heating ducts or steam pipes. The frames expand and contract in heat and cold and the result is cracks and resilver paint. Prevent erratic humidity will cause mould.

If you've made any of these mistakes, don't give the pictures to just anybody to restore. Leave it to experts. Check with local public museums for the names of experts.

Fiance is 'Second Best'

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I am 26, my girl 20. While she says she loves me and wants to marry me, she also says I come "next to her parents, whom she loves the most in the whole world."

For this reason she is anxious about how she will feel after we are married, and she has to move 400 miles away from them, in order to live where my work will be taking me.

Miss Clark, am I expecting too much? This attitude puzzles me.—SECOND BEST.

DEAR SECOND—No, you are not. A girl loves her husband more than she does her parents.

But this will come. Ties of love for her family have been built up over the past 20 years. Your siege on her heart is relatively recent.

With marriage, and all-weather companionship, and physical satisfactions, the love between compatible people just gets better all the time.

Since you are older than she is, your encouragement must be gentle and reliable. If, in the early months, she is lonely for all the old familiar things, help her to get home from time to time. She will adore you all the more for it.

Then, since home is where the heart is, your homing pigeon will gradually begin swinging in your direction.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:

1. Does a man light his wife's cigaret first or those of the other ladies present?

2. When a single man is lighting cigarets, does he start with the lady to his right or does it matter?—SMOKER.

DEAR SMOKER—

1. Those of the other ladies. He and his wife are a co-equipping team. Both are interested in taking care of the others before taking care of themselves.

2. Where or with whom he starts doesn't matter. The fact that he notices when a lady needs this service, and jumps to oblige, is what counts.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—I am thirty years old and my voice seems to have no volume at all. People are always straining their ears to hear me, and I am becoming very irritated.

If you know of any exercises, etc., which may be helpful at this late date, I would be only too glad to know of them.—PIP-SQUEAK.

DEAR PIP-SQUEAK—Lessons in speech would be worth their weight in gold to you. Public speakers, actors, actresses learn a technique for making their voices carry in large auditoriums. Most of us could profit by some such training.

To find a speech teacher in your community, go to your conservatory of music. After a year or so of lessons, you could be right up front among those who are heard with pleasure.

Not to mention the poise which comes with such training!

* * *

DEAR DORIS—1. Do I ask the parents of my girl friend to the reception when I ask her to be my bridesmaid?

2. Also, is it proper to give a bridal shower gift, if one has not been asked to the shower?—INTERESTED TO KNOW.

DEAR INTERESTED:

1. Not necessarily—unless they are good friends too.

2. No.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—I am to be married soon. Would it be proper for me to carry a bouquet of wood fibre roses?

How soon should the wedding cake be baked?—ENGAGED.

DEAR ENGAGED—Nothing artificial. A tiny nosegay from the garden, or a single, perfect rose, perhaps. But no substitutes, please.

Making the cake about a month ahead of the Big Day gives it time to ripen.

* * *

VISIT BOMBER BASE

LONDON (AP)—The 15 members of the permanent NATO council, along with NATO Secretary-General Dirk Stikker, visited the RAF nuclear bomber base at Finningley in Yorkshire today. The party flew here from Paris in an RAF Comet. The visit is part of NATO policy for a fuller exchange of information among Allies about the role of nuclear weapons.

ROME (CP) — Francesco Iacurto, who describes himself as "a quarter of Italian descent, French culture and Canadian mentality," takes to all three environments like a duck to water.

The renowned Canadian artist, whose portraits and landscapes hang in many of North America's best-known galleries, was in Rome on his 14th European tour.

"I like to spend some time in France and Italy to rest and to get a fresh outlook," he said in an interview. "But for a country to live and work in, there is no place like Canada."

And in Canada, one of Iacurto's favorite spots is Quebec City, where he made his home in 1938 and where he has done much of his work.

His exhibition at Quebec's Palais Montcalm in 1960 featured such lively works as Soap-Making, Portrait of a Canadian Peasant, Smelt Fishing and Autumn in Baie St. Paul.

Quebec Premier Jean Lesage and Thomas Maher, director of the National Gallery in Ottawa, are among the Canadians who have sat for a Iacurto portrait.

In a four-year stay of the United States, Iacurto also has portrayed such public figures as news, commentator Lowell Thomas and Cole Pitts, governor of Princeton University.

His works have been exhibited in the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, the Toronto Art Gallery, the Winnipeg Art Gallery, and as far afield as San Francisco and New York.

Born in Montreal of Italian parents, Francesco Iacurto developed a taste for painting early in life.

He was the first student to enrol at Montreal's Ecole des Beaux Arts when that institution opened its doors Oct. 1, 1922.

His fellow students at that time, such men as Goodridge Roberts and Ernest Newman, have earned similar distinction in the realm of art.

One of the first Beaux Arts scholarship winners, Iacurto studied art in Paris for two years at the Grande Chaumiere and at the Colarossi School of Art.

He returned to Montreal to teach art until 1938, when he moved to Quebec City to devote more time to painting.

Back in Europe, Iacurto disclosed plans for an ambitious double exhibition here.

"I'm set in Europe as a tourist," he said. "For three years, I've been working toward a double exhibition, to be unveiled simultaneously in Paris and Rome."

The themes chosen for the exhibitions reflect the painter's cultural background and his love for the traditional French-Canadian customs and survive in some parts of Quebec province.

"For Paris," he said, "an exhibition of aspects of Canadian life which derive from ancient French customs.

"For Rome, a suitable selection from a painter of Italian descent, French culture and Canadian mentality."

PLANS DOUBLE EXHIBITION — Canadian painter Francesco Iacurto is planning a double exhibition of works to open simultaneously in Paris and Rome. Mr. Iacurto, who lives in Quebec City, specializes in portraying the French-Canadian Scene. (CP Photo).

Use Tobacco Machine to Plant Berries

HADASHVILLE, Mass. (CP)—A modified tobacco transplanting machine has helped make strawberry growers out of 65 farmers in this region 55 miles east of Winnipeg.

The rotating hands of the machine transplanted more than 70,000 freshly dug strawberry plants on eight acres owned by the Reynolds Fruit Growers' Co-operative this spring.

The co-op was formed by the farmers of the area north of here as a means of helping increase income.

"For years we have run mixed farms in the summer and worked in the bush in the winter," says co-op President Eli Samec. "But as farming becomes more expensive we have slowly gone downhill trying to keep up with rising costs."

His solution was the co-op which has taken shape under direction of district agricultural representative Ralph Poston.

One problem was that while every member knew how to grow grain or vegetables or raise hogs and cattle, none knew anything about strawberries.

They sought advice and were shown how to put in plants to be ready for transplanting this spring. The converted tobacco transplanter then came into use. The yearling plants were transplanted and are expected to bear fruit in 1963.

Until the work done so far has been on a volunteer basis with each farmer holding shares in the co-op while running his own farm. The group expects to realize $10,000 from the crop on the first eight acres and plans to use the money to expand to other crops, such as raspberries, as well as more strawberries.

Howard's Homers Powering Dodgers

Hits Five In 6 Games

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Frank Howard is a huge young man who may have found something he has been looking for—himself.

Los Angeles Dodgers have been waiting — sometimes not too patiently—nearly two years for the six-foot-six, 250-pound giant to start hitting the long ball, a missing ingredient in their National League attack.

Howard has lashed five home runs in the last six games, driving in 11 runs as the Dodgers continue to hold off the pressing San Francisco Giants.

The long-ball binge increased his home run total to 17, two more than he had all last season. Howard's two-run homer triggered a three-run second inning Monday night that helped give the Dodgers their fourth straight victory, a 9-2 romp over St. Louis Cardinals.

The Giants stayed two games back with a 5-3 victory over Houston Colts. Jim O'Toole, young Cincinnati lefthander, hurled a masterful one-hitter as the Reds knocked Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0 to move within a 3-0 victory. Philadelphia Phillies handed Chicago Cubs their seventh straight loss, 5-3.

SPARKS FOUR WINS

Howard's power has been the key to the Los Angeles five victories.

Maury Wills and Jim Gilliam chipped in with homers Monday night to make it easy for Johnny Podres (6-7). Starter Ray Sadecki (6-6) took the loss and became the 14th straight southpaw starter the Dodgers have beaten since June 1.

O'Toole, who had a 19-0 record last season but has slipped to 9-11 this year, also appeared to have found himself in the one-hitter against the Pirates.

He had a perfect game through 7 1-3 innings before Bob Skinner lined a double to center field. The only other Pirate base-runner was Bill Virdon, who walked in the ninth. O'Toole struck out six men in addition to the third shutout, which pulled the Reds to within four games of the third - place Pirates.

Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda each drove in two runs to help Bob Bolin to his sixth victory without a loss in the Giant triumph over the Cards. Mays contributed his 20th homer and Cepeda his 19th.

Philadelphia scored its runs in the last three innings in overcoming a 3-0 Cub lead. Don Demeter smacked a three-run homer in the seventh and the Phillies went ahead to stay on Clay Dalrymple, Demeter and Reuben Amaro and a sacrifice fly.

Storm Unseats Seven Jockeys Before Race

OCEANPORT, N.J. (AP)— Seven jockeys were unseated Monday when a violent rain storm, accompanied by high winds, lightning and hail swept over Monmouth Park just before the start of the ninth race.

There were no major injuries.

The eight horses and their riders were parading toward the starting gate, about an eighth of a mile away, when the gale struck.

The storm was so severe the track was obliterated from the view of the crowd in the grandstand.

"Man, what happened!" asked jockey Bill Peake, who was thrown into the infield by his mount, Fraudulent, when the horse tangled into the fence.

"It hit so fast the first thing I knew I was on the grass in the infield and the last thing I rain and lightning were hitting all around me."

Apprentice jockey Danny French, who was on Sgt. Hidrick, was the only rider to keep his seat. The other seven mounts scattered into the fence.

Redliv, ridden by Walter Blum, eventually won the race, paying $9.80.

Defeat Ottawa, Tiger-Cats

Bombers, Lions Chalk Up Wins

WINNIPEG (CP) — All the action was saved for the second half Monday night as Winnipeg Blue Bombers squeezed out a 15-14 Canadian Football League exhibition victory over Ottawa Roughriders before 13,125 rain-soaked fans.

Fullback Dave Thelen scored both Bombers touchdowns and University of Minnesota end Bob Deegan and University of Minnesota fullback Roger Hagberg scored fourth - quarter touchdowns for Winnipeg. Gerry James converted both Winnipeg scores and Mo Racine kicked the convert for Thelen's second.

Racine picked up the first point of the game in the dying seconds of the first half when Winnipeg halfback Ron Lancaster conceded on a missed field goal attempt.

James counted a single at the start of the third quarter when Whit Tucker ran out a wide field goal attempt but the team was called for illegal interference.

The most spectacular touchdown came late in the action when Hagberg scratched over over his shoulder to take a pass by Winnipeg second-string quarterback Hal Ledyard and sprinted down the left sideline.

Ottawa's regular quarterback Ron Lancaster engineered Thelen's first touchdown before rookie Ed Chlebek from Western Michigan University took the next, but both series used Mel Mellis and Bob Schlorsedt as signals-callers.

HAMILTON (CP) — British Columbia Lions, given a brief, faint rushing job by Willie Pless, defeated Hamilton Tiger-Cats 30-20 Monday night in Canadian Football League exhibition game.

Fleming picked up 205 yards rushing and two touchdowns, getting superb blocking from his team-mates on the Western Conference club.

It was a wide-open game despite muddy conditions brought on by rain that continued intermittently through the game. An estimated 4,500 fans attended.

Don Vicic and Mack Burton also scored touchdowns for the Lions, Vic Kristopaitis converted three touchdowns and kicked a field goal.

Hal Patteson, Frank Cosentino and Bobby Kuntz scored touchdowns for Hamilton and Don Sutherin converted two of them.

B.C. coach Dave Skrien threw in his best and it was more than enough as the Lions took a 27-7 lead at one point.

Coach Jim Trimble of the Tiger-Cats, going without quarterback Bernie Faloney and John Barrow, his mainstays offensively and defensively, gave Sutherin a full dress test at the lefthanking job. But after three passes were intercepted Trimble let Joe Zuger and Cosentino finish the job.

Quarterback Joe Kapp directed the B.C. attack at its best, but Dave Mann and Sid Smith carried the ball 20 times for 205 yards and both scored on a single touchdown apiece.

Major Loops Home Fans Are Down

NEW YORK (AP)—Ten major league baseball clubs show home attendance declines for the 1962 campaign nears the two-thirds mark.

Other clubs trailing their 1961 paces are Minnesota 151,850; Chicago Cubs 139,714; Chicago White Sox 109,809; Boston 88,-803; Cincinnati 86,994; New York Yankees 77,855; Baltimore 67,808 and Cincinnati 66,794.

The teams ahead of their 1961 pages are Los Angeles Dodgers 325,765; Los Angeles Angels 296,034; Philadelphia 104,076; St. Louis 99,022; Cleveland 85,-452; Washington 63,087; San Francisco 63,085 and Minnesota 43,902. The figures include Sunday's games.

Softball Game Rained Out, Play Tonight

Yesterday's steady rainfall caused postponement of the Belleville and District Softball League game between the RCAF Flyers and Rollins Construction.

The game, a key one for Rollins who must win it in order to tie the Bobcats for the third and final playoff position, has been re-scheduled for tonight at the same time and place.

Should RCAF win tonight Rollins will be eliminated and the Bobcats will open the round-robin semi-finals against the Flyers in Trenton Wednesday night.

If Rollins win tonight, they will meet the Bobcats in a sudden-death game at the Fairgrounds Thursday. In that case there would be no game in Trenton Wednesday night.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Professional hockey came up with a two-hitter over the latter days of last week. In its second time at bat—it struck out the first time—the Eastern Pro League, it appears, has reached first base on a small economy size single, at the same time striking out the pinch-hitting proposed senior "A" salaried loop.

Whether the Eastern Pros will circuit the bags is not known, although Kingston and Hull supporters are cheering in the hope coaches in hostelry country by a reported scheduled exhibition game between the respective clubs later in the season.

If the pro loop is reborn, and its president says it is, although he refuses to release the batting order at the moment, it looks like the Ontario Hockey Association's proposed senior "A" league will die stillborn. At least as far as pro-subsidized players are concerned.

It seems four National Hockey Leaguers have promised to finance as many clubs in the 1962-63 Eastern Pro Minor circuit. According to Sam Fox, Windsor Arena manager, who dreamed up the senior "A" salaried idea, the NHL had shown interest in a share-the-loss players' deal.

He didn't mention the clubs but you can bet two of them were not the Detroit Red Wings and the Toronto Maple Leafs. Leafs' manager-coach Punch Imlach wanted no part of the EPL, saying he would rather put say $50,000 for junior, than for the Eastern Pro idea of player development.

Fox reported as saying his idea was simple. The NHL was to supply a number of players to form each team. A system to protect these players as NHL property to be set up; additional players over and above the supplied number to be the property and responsibility of the senior club.

And here's a dandy: "the senior league will consist of strong cities where the history of fan appeal has been proven." An interlocking schedule between clubs to avoid excessive travel expenses. "The NHL clubs will subsidize the senior team (in the event the senior team loses money) up to not more than 50 per cent of players', coaches', and managers' salaries.

Yeah, it's just as simple as all that.

All this, of course, was to be, in Fox's opinion, in case the Eastern Professional League folded, as practically everyone expected. And it may, at that!

So with the announcement the Eastern Pros would continue to operate on a glorified Junior "A" scale, it would appear Mr. Fox's dream has gone aglimmering. It doesn't sound like NHL operations to finance two loops, after the beating three of them took in last year's EPL program.

Fox, however, left something for Windsor fans to ponder over, Said he: "There doesn't seem any possibility of the EPL operating — but if it does there is a possibility of Windsor getting a franchise but it's a very slim one."

As far I can learn, Windsor, Chatham, Kitchener, Waterloo and Galt were the only clubs interested in the senior "salary" idea, with K-W and Galt depending on Kitchener ice providing the pros did not return.

The only point, in my opinion, that Fox had in his suggestion to resurrect senior "A" hockey was the clause about the NHL forming the player nucleus. We're not too badly off here but other clubs would have a tough job getting players of senior "A" calibre.

However, it's a case of wait and see. Miracles have a habit of happening at odd times. With the Eastern Pros coming up for the third time, it would appear senior hockey will drop back into the share-the-wealth (if they did) routine of last season. And all of it in Western Ontario.

275 Teams In 20 Series

OASA Sets New Record

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The Ontario Amateur Softball Association will have a record 275 teams in the playoffs for 20 series this summer.

Secretary Leroy Pickard of St. Catharines also announced the reinstatement of a suspended player, William Hamelin of Brockville has been reinstated after sitting out one year for an altercation in 1961.

A total of 28 player transfers were approved. They include Norm Bagnell, a Toronto pitcher given permission to play in Oshawa and Bob Geir, who pitched for Sudbury to the all-Ontario intermediate championship last year. Geir will play this season in Midland.

The OASA also announced that it will co-operate with the Canadian National Exhibition in staging an invitation tournament the first week of September. Senior and intermediate teams will take part in the series.

An additional three OASA conveners were appointed. They are Lou Addy of Windsor, L. R. Keen of Cornwall and L. G. Rodgers of Sault Ste. Marie.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Hooker and Amber Morn battled stride for stride to finish well ahead of their seven rivals, with Hooker gaining the decision by a neck in Monday's feature race at Fort Erie.

The race was for three-year-olds and up, competing for a purse of $2,700. Six and one-quarter lengths back was Raven Wing in third place.

Those in the crowd of 7,866 who backed the winner received $6.30, $4.10, and $3.20.

Own Colleen won the $2,800 purse for Canadian-breds, at one mile on the grass. Malacina took the decision by a head. Lavelle was third.

Winter Garden in the first race ($12,350) and Teacher's Pal ($17,700) in the second paid a daily double worth $95.90.

Palmer, Player, Nicklaus, Snead

World Series Of Golfdom

NEW TOWN SQUARE, Pa. (AP) — The lineup for September's big World Series of Golf champions probably will be Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and Sam Snead.

Player, 26, the South African who, like Palmer, filled a third berth when he won the 44th Professional Golfers' Association championship with a score of 278 Sunday.

This is just what sponsors of the $75,000 World Series, scheduled Sept. 8-9 in Akron, Ohio, wanted. Player's victory gives the show an international flavor.

The 90-called World Series, principally a two-day, 36-hole television package, is designed to match the winners of the four major golf championships — the Masters, U.S. Open, British Open and the PGA.

Palmer gave the organizers no-cuss fit after he added the British Open to his Masters triumph. Nicklaus's playoff victory over Palmer in the U.S. Open and Player's PGA conquest assured the project of a topflight cast. But what about a fourth place, if sponsors think it's necessary?

"We've thought about that," said Ed Carter, who is putting on the Akron contest. "We haven't reached a firm decision but I would be surprised if a top player is invited to make it a foursome. The most talked-about player is Snead."

PGA Title Worth $13,000

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—Gary Player's victory in the Professional Golfers Association tournament during the weekend netted the South African but he remains 4th in total money won this year.

Player was king of the money-makers last year with more than $64,000. This year he has $41,333.

The list released Monday by the PGA shows Arnold Palmer leading with $71,198. Gene Littler is second with $57,360, Dan Casper third with $52,436 and Jack Nicklaus fourth with $48,-148.

Killebrew On Power Binge

Twins, Angels Move Up Half-Notch

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Owner Cal Griffith of Minnesota Twins said yesterday: "When Harmon Killebrew and Bob Allison start to hit, and if we can find another starting pitcher, we'll cause lots of trouble yet."

Killebrew went on a power binge two weeks ago and now has 30 home runs and 82 runs batted in.

Allison has hit at a .305 clip in his last seven games, including five home runs and 14 runs batted in.

Southpaw hurler Dick Stigman was rapped in the Indians' six day ago and has pitched two straight complete-game victories, striking out 19 men and allowing only 11 hits.

The Twins have won eight of 10 games and have climbed back to within 6½ games of the first-place New York Yankees in the American League race and trail the second-place Los Angeles Angels by only two games.

WATCHES IN GLEE

Griffith watched in glee Monday night as Allison, hitting in his seventh straight game, rapped a three-run homer behind Stigman. The southpaw scattered five hits and fanned eight batters in beating Detroit Tigers 8-1 at Minnesota.

The victory enabled the Twins to keep pace with the Angels, who came from behind to nip Baltimore Orioles 9-8 in 14 innings.

Before he got his first start of the season July 18 against Cleveland Indians, Stigman had appeared in relief 25 times for Twins and had a 3-3 record but had pitched only 32 innings. He allowed six hits and fanned 11 in a 1-0 game over the Indians and Allison hit grand-slam homers in the first inning.

That earned him another start and the Minnesota lefthander didn't disappoint the Twins. Despite a three-hour bollarfest by the return of Al Kaline for the first time since May 26, Stigman (6-4) went all the way on a five-hitter.

STRIKES OUT EIGHT

He collared Kaline four straight times, struck out eight batters for a total of 97 in 85 innings this year and was so tough in the clutch that Detroit stranded 11 runners.

Two-run homer by Rich Rollins in 12th, and Lenny Green's 11th got the Twins off to a 4-2 lead in two innings. Allison, whose batting average has climbed to .272, hit homer No. 14 with two on in the seventh frame. The only Tiger runs came in the third inning off when Stigman uncorked a wild pitch with the bases loaded and Rocky Colavito batting. Rocky then struck out, Paul Foytack (7-4) lost.

The Angels pushed across the winning run in the 14th inning against reliever Dick Hall when Felix Torres delivered a bases-loaded single. It was the first run off Hall after a string of 30 shutout innings.

Dean Chance (7-5) got the win for the Angels with five strong innings of relief after Los Angeles rallied to tie the score in the ninth. The win moved the Angels to within 3½ games of the Yankees, who had the day off.

Grey Cup TV Question

'To See Or Not To See'?

OTTAWA (CP) — R. C. Fraser, CBC vice-president for corporate affairs, says the private CTV television network backed out of an offer to provide the CBC with a telecast of the Grey Cup football game on an unsponsored basis "solely for commercial reasons."

Mr. Fraser said "in an interview Monday the publicly-owned CBC had accepted the offer from CTV and Toronto station CFTO-TV, owners of the TV rights to the game, "but CTV then backed out."

The CBC executive said he believes the eight-station CTV network and CFTO have been unable to complete a deal for sponsorship of regular Eastern and Western Football Conference games and playoffs unless CTV can assure the sponsors that the Grey Cup game would get national coverage through CBC facilities.

He declined comment on a proposed regulation that would require every television station in Canada to carry the Dec. 1 telecast of the Grey Cup game including advertisements and CTV network identification. The Board of Broadcast Governors last Friday proposed such a regulation and said public hearings will be held on the issue Aug. 12.

CITIES REASON

Gordon Keeble, executive vice-president of CTV, said Saturday in Toronto that negotiations with CBC on Grey Cup coverage foundered because the corporation declined to screen the game accompanied by commercial advertising.

Mr. Keeble said that on June 7 CTV offered CBC the broadcast at no charge, unsponsored or with advertising, the only condition being that CBC would not seek sponsorship other than the CTV advertising. A wire from the CBC July 12 "reminded" the corporation that CTV would provide the telecast only if CBC arranged for sponsorship by the firms sponsoring the game on CTV, Mr. Keeble added.

Mr. Fraser said Monday the original offer was made by John Bassett, chairman of CFTO, and the CBC accepted the offer June 12, when CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet said the corporation would run the telecast unsponsored. Both Mr. Bassett and Mr. Keeble subsequently confirmed that the CBC would carry the game unsponsored, he said.

Mr. Bassett wired Mr. Ouimet June 19 saying that the football sponsors—British American Oil Company Limited and John Labatt Limited—were ready to pay the CBC for advertising carried with the telecast. West ern sponsors were ready to do the same, "so that the Grey Cup will not have to be carried without sponsorship expense but will be fully sponsored."

But the CBC considered the original acceptance of an unsponsored telecast still applied, Mr. Fraser said.

A wire from CTV President Spencer Caldwell July 12 to Mr. Ouimet said press references to the CBC carrying the game unsponsored "lead me to remind you that this network has not granted the CBC such rights."

Yanks, Braves Rained Out

Hall-of-Famers Inducted

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Jackie Robinson said there was no doubt about it that being the first Negro to play in the big leagues helped him make baseball's Hall of Fame on the first try.

Robinson and Bobby Feller, baseball's gifted pitching ace, were inducted formally Monday along with veterans Bill McKechnie and Ed Roush. Robinson and Feller were picked by the baseball writers the first year they became eligible (five years after their retirement). McKechnie and Roush were selected by the veterans committee last summer.

After the ceremonies Robinson said: "I was not the first Negro player I might have made it eventually but probably not the first time around. I don't say that was the only reason, of course, but it was one of the factors."

Robinson, former Brooklyn Dodgers speedboy, now is a 43-year-old business executive.

JOKES ABOUT RECORD

Feller joked about his record for most bases on balls in a career and a season.

"Some of my records are not on this plaque," he said. "But the walks are on here. Some of my marks are in jeopardy but not the walks. I wish they were."

Feller didn't mention such outstanding accomplishments as 266 wins, three no-hitters, 12 one-hitters, 18 strikeouts in one game and 348 strikeouts in 1946.

McKechnie, 72, the only man ever to have managed pennant winners in three different cities, said: "If I have ever contributed anything to baseball, I have been repaid seven times over today."

Roush, 68, is a former outfield great in the National League.

The ceremonies in front of the hall were set off on schedule but a heavy thunderstorm hit Doubleday Field while the New York Yankees were taking batting practice for their scheduled exhibition game with Milwaukee Braves. The game had to be cancelled, first rain-out since 1944.

Compete In 86 Races

600 Oarsmen at Henley

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Henley for the first time, has 600 oarsmen competing in 86 races in this week's 80th Royal Canadian Henley Regatta, generally conceded to be the world's largest four-day rowing event.

Some 600 oarsmen and scullers from 25 United States and Canadian rowing clubs will be competing. Rowing gets under way Wednesday and continues through Saturday.

"It's a well-balanced entry this year," said Claude Saunders, chairman of Henley regatta committee, during Monday's draw here. "It's not as large as in some other years, but the competition should be better."

The Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, governing body of amateur rowing in Canada, instituted a "scratch fine" rule during the winter and it has had the desired effect on the entry.

SCRATCHES PENALIZED

In the past, many clubs entered races indiscriminately and then scratched their crews when heats conflicted. However, scratches like this now cost the club 25 per cent of the points awarded the winner of the final. The number of races is four fewer than in 1961.

Defending champion St. Catharines Rowing Club has the largest entry again, contesting 20 events. The West Side Rowing Club of Buffalo is next with 28.

The Detroit Boat Club, defending U.S. champs, will go with 21 entries while the Leander Boat Club of Hamilton has 21 and the New York Athletic Club 19.

Suns Whip Leafs 6-0, Up Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There's no stopping the Jackson Suns in their drive toward the International League pennant.

The Toronto Maple Leafs, hopeful after sweeping a doubleheader Sunday, opened a series in Jacksonville Monday night that gave them a chance to whittle at the Suns' bulky lead. Manager Charlie Dressen of the second place Leafs had Steve Ridzik (9-4) ready to go.

After two innings, however, Jacksonville had a 4-0 lead. After nine innings Art Ceccarelli had pitched an eight-hitter for his fourth shutout, Harry Chiti had slammed a home run, double and single, Vic Davillillo had padded his league-leading average with three more hits, and the Suns had a 6-0 victory.

The triumph ballooned Jacksonville's lead to 9½ games over Toronto.

In the only other league action, Atlanta defeated Buffalo 3-2 with two runs in the 11th inning without hitting the ball out of the infield. The winning game-man bus at Rochester and Richmond at Syracuse-rained out.

Catcher Bob Lipski, whose single scored the tying run in the seventh inning, made a wild throw enabling Atlanta to defeat Buffalo. Singled by Bobby McAfmus and Jim Frey gave Buffalo a run and a 2-1 lead in the top of the 11th inning before the Crackers rallied. A walk, a throwing error by Buffalo's Seward and Joe Morgan's bunt single loaded the bases, Seward hit Phil Gallison with a pitch, forcing in the tying run. Then Lipski drove in the winning run, Johnny Kucks won his 10th. Seward took the loss.

BUSY RIVER

The Hudson River, flowing 315 miles from the Adirondacks to New York Harbor, is 4,400 feet wide at New York City.

MONTREAL (CP) — A field of 154 hopefuls tees off today to try to win berths in the $30,000 Canadian open golf championship starting Thursday at the Lavaleeside golf course.

A total of 16 top Canadian amateur golfers have been given a place in the championship on the basis of past performances, leaving 96 still to be earned over the 6,535 - yard, par-72 course.

The 156 starters Thursday will be cut to the top 100 and ties for Saturday's round and then to the top 60 and ties for Sunday's final.

Among the big names already in town or expected to arrive today are the top five finishers in the United States PGA tournament that finished Sunday—South Africa's Gary Player, Bob Goalby, George Bayer, Jack Nicklaus and Doug Ford.

Among the Canadian pros bidding for the title are tournament veterans Stan Leonard of Vancouver, Al Balding and George Knudson of Toronto and Al Johnston of Montreal, all winners of major tournaments on the U.S. tournament circuit this year.

Pat Fletcher of Montreal, the last Canadian to win the Canadian Open in consecutive times when he swept the title in 1954 at Vancouver, played a practice round and predicted that a score of 272 for the four rounds will capture first place.

Hornung Out of The Army

FT. RILEY, Kan. (AP)—Paul Hornung shed his private first class stripe today and, in a word, said he liked getting out of the army "fine."

Hornung completed his processing at Ft. Riley and was to be flown to Green Bay, Wis., in a private plane by a pilot friend.

Green Bay's six-foot-three, 210-pound Heisman Trophy winner from Notre Dame looked every inch the wonder boy who kicked, passed and ran the Packers to a 37-0 playoff rout of New York Giants for the National Football League championship last winter. He scored 19 of those points himself, a record for a title game.

As a result, Hornung was named the NFL Most Valuable Player of the year. He has led the league in scoring since 1959.

India Tries to Aid Tibet Refugees Begin New Lives

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—Official and private organizations in India are trying to help refugees from Communist-occupied Tibet adjust themselves to their new lives.

So far, about 34,000 Tibetans have fled to India. The influx is continuing, though now in only a trickle. While the massive, snow - bound Himalaya Mountains are a natural prison walls, the Chinese have set up observation posts along the 2,500-mile-long border to prevent refugee flights.

The Indian government has set up a high-level organization to speed up the rehabilitation of Tibetans. It includes representatives of the Dalai Lama, Tibet's exiled spiritual and temporal ruler, and voluntary bodies.

Resettling the mountain-loving, illiterate and deeply-religious Tibetans under conditions so vastly different has posed some knotty problems for the Indian authorities.

MOVED TO FARMS

After a number of surveys the Indian government has begun settling the refugees in agricultural colonies. More than 2,000 have been moved to Mysore since last March and 3,000 more has a moderate climate.

Many Indian families have offered to organize refugee settlements for the Tibetans and the offers now are being studied.

There are also plans for starting "little Tibets" in areas near the higher Himalayan valleys. Consisting of 75 families each, these villages will be self-contained.

Some 2,000 Tibetans now are learning useful handicrafts such as electro-plating, shoe-making and sericulture are being studied. girls are being trained as nurses.

LAMAS POSE PROBLEM

The toughest problem is that of rehabilitating refugee lamas (priests). Only about 2,000 Tibetan priests have managed to slip through to the Indian side of the Himalayan frontier. Most of them are passionately attached to their age-old traditions in way of life. For them, the modern world of scientific schools and air-conditioned factories has no attraction.

Two lama camps have been organized at Buxa and Dalhousie. There life goes on in the traditional way. Prayer bells and the chanting of Buddhist hymns fill the air.

Tibetology sections have been started in four Indian universities and a request for specialists has been offered fellowships.

Dart Game Operators Lose Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — Evidence from an expert dart thrower was used Monday at the Ontario Court of Appeal upheld convictions of keeping a gaming house at three amusement park concessionaires.

The court dismissed appeals by Robert Ard, R. R. Stump and Harold McKinnon who were fined $100 last Aug. 23 by Magistrate R. J. Moore.

Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan quoted evidence that a dart-throwing booth the three operated at Bernard Amusements Park in Cobourg, Ont., was a game of chance, not a game of skill.

"Evidence given by an expert dart player was that it would be extremely difficult and practically impossible for an expert to hit any particular numbered square," Mr. Justice McLennan said. "It is impossible to say that this is a game of skill."

Dart players couldn't see the numbers they hit and had to rely on the judgment of the operator, he said.

Co-op Piggery Proves Problem To Liquidator

LONDON (CP) — The tangled affairs of Norman Mascall, 32-year-old businessman who promoted a large co-operative pig farming organization here after studying Canadian methods of the plan, took a new turn Monday as attention focussed on 16,000 pigs running short of food.

The Live Stock Marketing Company, controlled by Mascall after a five-year stay in Canada, declared itself bankrupt last week owing a big deal of £981,061.

Official Receiver, the liquidator, revealed his dilemma Monday. The assets of the company in liquidation included the hungry pigs.

Gilroon said he had three choices: To pay for the food himself at a cost of £3,000 a week; to let the animals die; or to sell them and risk being sued.

His counsel pleaded in High Court for an immediate hearing of an application to sell the pigs but the request was denied.

Shortly after they company went into liquidation Maurice Therien of Port Credit, Ont., claimed he had been in 50-per-cent partnership with Mascall and asked the High Court to appoint a special administrator for the company's affairs. His request was rejected.

PALMER TIRED OUT

MONTREAL (CP) — Arnold Palmer is passing up the Canadian Open because he is tired, tournament Co-ordinator, Larry O'Brien said Monday.

Palmer, currently one of the world's top golfers, told O'Brien he is "physically and mentally exhausted" after winning the British Open.

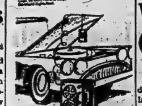
Despite the loss of Palmer this field in the Canadian Open starting Thursday at Montreal's Laval-Sur-le-Lac club will be one of the strongest in the tournament's history, with South Africa's Gary Player and U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus among the entries.

Federal Review Of High Water Damage Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate judiciary committee has approved a resolution calling for a federal review of damage claims filed against high water in Lake Ontario allegedly caused by Canadian operation of Gut dam.

High water levels caused by the dam in 1952 and 1958, the committee said, may have caused millions of dollars in damage as many as 1,000 American properties along the lake.

Gut Dam, no longer in use, was built and operated in the St. Lawrence River by the Canadian government.



The bill, introduced by Senator Kenneth B. Keating (Rep. N.Y.), would authorize the U.S. Foreign Claims Settlement Commission to investigate any claims filed by Lake Ontario property owners.

It would be up to the commission to determine the validity of the claims and the amounts of damage caused by the dam. The bill merely authorizes the investigation. It would not commit the government to pay any claims.

Negotiations have been the United States and Canada to resolve the claims have been unsuccessful. The issue has also been before the federal district court for northern New York.

Listening Aids In Locating Auto's Ills

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Rather than attempt to describe his trouble, as imaginative readers sent in a tape recording of his engine in action for diagnosis. Noisy valves were obvious, even to a few non-professionals who heard it . . . so it did help to isolate the trouble.

All of us can learn by listening, especially when we are able to distinguish a rious sounds. For example, heavy dull engine knocks suggest a loose main bearing or loose flywheel. If it's a bearing, the knock is loudest when the engine is under load. When the flywheel is to blame, the knock is irregular and also be heard immediately after you suddenly switch off the engine while it's fast-idling.

An occasional knock, usually heard when the engine is pulling hard or suddenly accelerated, can be due to nothing more than foreign material.

Of course, engine noise diagnosis can be tricky. That's why we have mechanics and special equipment. But any mechanic can tell you that a clear description of the nature, circumstances, frequency and volume of the noise you expect him to locate.

• • •

H.G. asks: "What would cause just one brake to lock? It's the left front on my '60 station wagon."

A: Usually a loose brake backing plate, or a lining which is soaked with fluid, grease or oil.

• • •

From: P.S.: "Over the weekend, I jacked up the front wheels to check a radiator water leak, and accidentally noticed that the right front wheel's spin nearly as freely as the left. I assume the drive shaft to be dragging — right?"

A: If it isn't brake drag, it's probably a tight wheel bearing.

• • •

I.T. writes: "I'm no mechanic, but I never had trouble tuning cars as more I've owned until I bought my present '61's the first with automatic transmission. Job I've had, and I wonder if that's why I can't stop it from stalling when it idles in gear?"

A: That could be the clue — you may be setting the idle speed too low.

• • •

L.O. asks: "Since I had new piston rings installed a few weeks ago, my car is hard to start. The engine doesn't seem to turn over three or four times before it will start, it's not the battery; I just got a new one. Could it be anything to do with the ring job?"

A: It's quite possible. Tight rings can cause excessive engine resistance and hard starting.

Big Dose of Old Reliables With Some New Programs Coming Canadian TV Fare

By DOUG GREELING

TORONTO (CP) — A liberal dose of the tried and tested laced with a sprinkling of new programs will be offered on Canadian television in the coming season.

Veteran entertainers Jack Pearl and Lucille Ball will both sport a new look when they turn up in the fall. The new TV season will also see the birth of a Canadian variety show entitled Network, and other home-grown productions ranging from dramas to panel shows.

Both the CBC and the independent CTV network have prescribed more of the same in the medical field.

CBC - TV has bought The Nurses, an hour-long series featuring Zina Bethune, to keep company with the surly neurosurgeon, Ben Casey. CTV will bring in The Eleventh Hour, starring Wendell Corey as a psychiatrist, to round out the service offered by its intern, Dr. Kildare.

Michael Sadlier, CBC - TV's program director, promises 65 per cent Canadian content in its new season's schedule.

"The over-all schedule represents the greatest employment of Canadian actors in any season during the 10 years of television in Canada," he says.

NEW HISTORY SERIES

New Canadian productions will include a history series, a panel show and an afternoon women's program, two serialized dramas and more re-runs of children.

Five of the nine programs in the history series will be on Confederation and will be produced by the National Film Board. The remaining four will be CBC productions marking the anniversary of the War of 1812-14.

Flashback, a new panel game, will feature once-famous personalities and fancies.

One of the dramatic series, produced by Taylor Television Productions for the CBC, will be a Monday-to-Friday afternoon serial adapted by Canadian writers from a library of scripts by the late Robert Howard Lindsay.

The second drama series, produced by the CBC itself, is tentatively titled Canada Playhouse and will be on in the evenings. It will be launched with an eight-episode run, based on Thomas Raddall's novel, The Wings of Night, set in Nova Scotia.

Take Thirty, the new women's show, replaces Open House and will be seen each weekday afternoon.

Children will be offered a new weekly drama series produced by CBC Vancouver and a thrice-weekly puppet show.

FOUR NEW IMPORTS

CBC has bought four new American film shows. They are The Nurses, Empire, an hour-long series on a modern Texas ranch starring Richard Egan and Terry Moore, Target, a 30-minute adventure series based on stories from True Magazine with Jack Lord as lead, and Beverly Hillbillies, a half-hour situation comedy with Buddy Ebsen and Bea Benaderet.

Jo Stafford tops the list of CBC specials with a monthly hour-long show. Her guests will include Peter Sellers, Bob Hope, Ella Fitzgerald and Marcel Marceau.

Clooney and Peter Lawford.

Comedians Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster will be back, together with the Ed Sullivan Show, Juliette, Quest and Cross-up.

For sports fans, National Football League action and other sporting events will return on the World of Sport along with National Hockey League action Saturday nights.

The Tracks

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Prove it, and we'll open the curtain on the Hollywood Park season in a familiar role as the winner will be $88,000 Handicap, but it took a long look at a photo-finish than to separate him from Windy Sands.

Taking his fourth straight stakes triumph, the Ren. C. Ellsworth star beat out the game Windy Sands in a thriller through the stretch Monday — and both the five-year-old and his rider, Willie Shoemaker, drew a resounding wave of boos from the crowd estimated at 45,000. The Ellsworth stable picked up the $53,000 winner's share.

Six lengths back of the first two was longshot Notable II.

Prove It, an entry with Oden Times, returned $3.80, $2.80 and $2.60. Windy Sands paid $4.80 and $3.80 and Notable II $7.40.

Marlene Dietrich's ABC's Cover Wide Area of Topics

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Marlene Dietrich seems to be taking a tip from Igor Stravinsky.

Annoyed with reporters, the composer now ducks interviews, instead records his own reflections in book form.

The actress now interviews herself in a book called Marlene Dietrich's ABC, her range of comment being so wide that it must be alphabetized. You can get everything from a recipe for buttermilk soup to observations on the signs of the Zodiac ("I live with a Taurus is not very easy.")

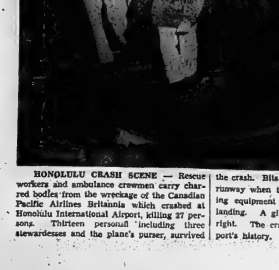
For those whose interests are more earthy, book called Marlene Dietrich's ABC, her range of comment being so wide that it must be alphabetized. You can get everything from a recipe for buttermilk soup to observations on the signs of the Zodiac ("I live with a Taurus is not very easy.")

For those whose interests are more earthy, book called Marlene Dietrich offers some comments on such matters as:

"Sex: In America an obsession, in other parts of the world a fact."

"Necking: A dirty pastime."

"Kisses: Don't waste them. But don't count them."



"Nakedness: Easy for the beautiful, difficult for the ugly."

"Physical love: Any society that allows condition to exist in which the adolescent begins to connect guilt with physical love raises a generation of defectives."

"Seduce: Anyone who was seduced wanted to be seduced."

MODERN VERSION

The Cool Mikado, being filmed in England, will be the first non-traditional screen version of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas.

HONOLULU CRASH SCENE — Rescue workers and ambulance crewmen carry charred bodies from the wreckage of the Canadian Pacific Airlines Britannia which crashed at Honolulu International Airport, killing 27 persons. Thirteen personnel including three stewardesses and the plane's purser, survived the crash. Bits of the plane flew all over the runway when the aircraft struck earth—gouging equipment while making an emergency landing. A giant bulldozer is visible at the right. The crash was the worst in the airport's history. (AP Wirephoto).

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

How is this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind? The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

American Editors Give K. Impression of Berlin, Invite Him to Visit Wall

Paul Miller, president of the Gannett newspaper, and Walker Stone, editor-in-chief of the Louisville Courier-Journal papers, have been friends from college days in Oklahoma 35 years ago, and personal rivals since. Together with other representatives of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, they interviewed Premier Khrushchev in Moscow July 4, and, together, they went to Berlin this week and joined in the letter to Premier Khrushchev.

BERLIN (AP) — An open letter from Berlin, July 24, 1962, to:

His excellency, Nikita S. Khrushchev
Chairman, council of ministers
Moscow, U.S.S.R.

Dear Mr. Chairman:

A little more than a week ago, with a group of 10 other American newspaper men, we sat with you in the Kremlin and listened attentively to your views on how to solve the problem of Berlin in a way which you believed would contribute to the happiness and security of the German people and ease the tensions between the U.S.S.R. and the United States and its allies.

Neither of us had been in Berlin for several years. We did not know what changes we felt. On coming here after leaving the cordial hospitality of the Soviet Union, it seemed logical to ask the people of Berlin, both East and West, whether they agreed with your ideas and welcomed your proposals.

This is a report to you, our host in Moscow, as well as to the newspaper of which we are in America, on what we heard and saw.

First, let it be emphasized that we did not talk with Walter Ulbricht or any officials of East Berlin or East Germany. But we did talk with Herr Ulbricht or any officials of East Berlin or East Germany. But we did talk with the people of the two days we roamed the streets of both West and East Berlin, ranging both sides of the wall that has been erected to keep East Germans from fleeing to the West.

We talked with Germans willing to talk.

INTERVIEW ALL TYPES

Using several different interpreters, we talked with people of such varied occupations, as manual workers, students, lawyers, secretaries, businessmen, border guards, nurses, housewives, and of course tax drivers who seem to be the common denominator of public opinion in all countries whatever the social system.

For these conversations we took along the official Soviet transcript of our Kremlin interview, and we read from that document its comments and suggestions you made.

We told these people that we believe an accurate summary of your ideas and proposals can be expressed this way:

1. The last vestiges of the war which ended 17 years ago should be wiped out by a peace treaty.

2. The Soviet Union proposes that such a treaty with the government of East Germany and any others agreed that it will be signed or acquiesced to by the United States, Britain and France.

3. Such a treaty should establish what it now means for West Berlin as what you call "a free city."

4. Such a solution must, in your view, include the withdrawal of U.S., U.K. and French troops from West Berlin.

5. The people of Berlin would then feel more secure, confident of the future, and be happier.

6. Unless all this occurs, West Berlin will "wither on the vine."

Mr. Chairman, we hope you will be interested in the opinions of the people with whom we talked. We were.

When we read your statement that the Germans of Berlin would be "much more at ease" and enjoy "prospects for future development" if a peace treaty were signed and Western troops withdrawn, we could hardly finish before the person being interviewed would exclaim "nein."

This means the same as the Russian "nyet."

When we asked if they would sleep easier if Allied troops withdrew from Berlin, they said:

"Nein. In 30 days Russia would gobble up Berlin."

When we asked if a peace treaty would reassure them, a West Berlin policeman at the wall said, "you Americans of all people should know how little is the meaning of such promises."

Berliners, with the bitter first-hand experience of two dictatorships — Hitler's and Stanlin's — behind them say they are not fooled by propositions for a Soviet - style "peace."

They say they can see for themselves what this "peace" means for their own relatives just a few blocks away in East Berlin. In their encounters with us they left no doubt that they fear the same fate if the American soldiers and their allies quit the city. These are no longer "occupation" troops in the minds of the Berliners with whom we talked but rather "our protectors."

We talked with a Lutheran nun, standing on the West side of the wall waving at a window a block away from which she hoped a friend on the east side was watching. We talked with a middle-aged housewife, teetering tearfully on a stepladder to peer over half a block across the wall. These and all the others said "nein."

We talked with a woman more than 70 years old in East Berlin whose face perhaps the most vehement of all in insisting that there must be no yielding, else all hope for her and Germany's reunification be lost.

Mr. Chairman, we wonder if you have ever seen the wall? It is impossible to envisage it otherwise.

The wall takes many forms. The 26 miles between East and West Berlin is a continuous barricade of houses with bricked-in windows, garden walls torn down, glass scattered on top, barbed wire, guarded stretches of canal where fleeing East Berliners have been shot by East Berlin Police. For long stretches jagged barriers of iron and steel back up heavy masonry. Spotlights provide wide areas at night.

Let us particularly describe one section that is the wedding district of northern East Berlin.

There blocks of East German apartment buildings face west on a street that is both East and West Berlin. When residents saw that East Berlin was to be fenced in, some of them escaped by jumping from second-and third-story windows into nets held by West German firemen. Those apartment houses then were ordered evacuated. For bricks and concrete, the buildings were sealed with bricked-in concrete. Some persons desperately leaped from seven - storey roofs. Then the entire area of eastern where East Berliners crashed to their deaths on the sidewalks. Finally, barbed wire was strung on the roofs.

Truly, Mr. Chairman, you have to see it to believe it. We hope you will come and have a look.

Sincerely yours,

Paul Miller and Walker Stone.

Green Charges 3 Big Powers Block Progress

GENEVA (CP - AP) — External Affairs Minister Howard Green of Canada said today he deplores the Soviet decision to resume a nuclear testing and said his government is opposed to all nuclear weapons tests.

Green, addressing the resumed session of the 17-nation disarmament conference, accused the three nuclear powers — Russia, the United States and Britain — of blocking progress with "a largely fruitless debate" over interruption of a neutralist compromise formula which the two sides read in different ways.

Green said he detects a spirit of resignation in the talks and added: "This conference must not simply mark time."

He said "there is an urgency about our work which grows day by day, as the arms race spirals on."

He called on the delegates to resist "a growing tendency . . . to accept a return to the General Assembly with virtually no progress to report." He also warned against "a temptation to spend the intervening weeks in bidding up a case for blaming others for failure to achieve results here in Geneva."

APPEALS TO DELEGATES

He appealed to the delegates to get things going by concentrating on areas where progress could be achieved.

Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon of India also said he, too, deeply regretted the Soviet decision to test again.

Menon said the Soviet announcement that a week was "proof that the arms race is spiralling." He said it underlined an urgent need for a test ban.

Without mentioning the U.S. nuclear tests specifically, he strongly condemned all nuclear weapons tests. He also emphasized that steps must be taken to prevent wider distribution of nuclear weapons.

But Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko told the conference that U.S. nuclear tests in the Pacific increased the nuclear arms race "to a hitherto unparalleled pitch."

The conference resumed with Gromyko, U.S. State Secretary Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home all present—the first time a nuclear testing and said his government is opposed to all nuclear weapons tests.

Spend Less, Create Jobs Says Robarts

TORONTO (CP) — Citizens in Ontario can create 60,000 new jobs in the province by reducing the amount they spend on imported goods by less than a half, says Premier Robarts.

Speaking over an Ontario network of CBC radio stations, Mr. Robarts said Monday the average Canadian spends $236 a year on imported goods. This compares with $90 a person in Britain and West Germany and $32 in the United States.

"It is a general belief that $10,000 worth of business creates one job in Ontario industry," he said.

Using this as a yardstick, Ontario's 6,000,000 citizens would give local manufacturers $600,000,000 worth of extra business a year if they spent $100 less on imported items.

Mr. Robarts said the Canadian content of "most of our manufactured products is far too low" and the reduction of $100 a person in foreign buying is a "minimum initial target to keep our economy expanding."

Alex Kerensky Discounts Reaction of Many People Who Believe He Is Dead

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

NEW YORK (CP) — When Alexander Kerensky is introduced to someone for the first time, he isn't at all surprised if the reaction goes like this:

"What! You're still alive! You can't be THE Kerensky."

The old gentleman with the close - cropped white hair is ready with a calm and pollte reply: But yes, he is the same Kerensky who once held power in Russia for a fleeting moment between czardom and communism.

Kerensky, 81, sitting in his book-lined study, told of this recurrent experience with amusement, noting that he is indeed one of the very few leading figures who still survive from the chaotic days of the Russian revolution and the stirrition that followed.

"It isn't surprising that they should think me dead," he declared. "After all, it was so many years ago and so much has happened. . . ."

As a young lawyer, Kerensky witnessed the famous red Sunday in 1905 in St. Petersburg, when workers petitioning the czar were shot down by troops before the Winter Palace—prelude to the upheaval that shook the world.

Later Kerensky, when only 36, was at the summit of power for eight months in 1917 as vice-president and president of a provisional government until the fabric of Russian life was rendered by the revolution and the Bolsheviks under Lenin rolled to power.

Weary and ill, Kerensky worked a haunted underground counter - revolutionary for another eight months and then escaped Russia aboard a British vessel. He has never returned. He now lives in Manhattan.

"Physically all this time I have lived in Europe and America, spiritually I've remained in Russia," he said.

The old socialist gave an impression of vigor and keenness —not age—when with a strong handshake he greeted a Canadian reporter for an interview that he granted reluctantly, now testing: "No one is interested in those past events."

Kerensky fell into a brooding silence when the reporter mentioned the hardships he endured during the Red terror. Then he gave a glimpse of the philosophy that keeps him young and active as a writer and lecturer.

"When one believes in an ideal that he has done right for others, even defeat is not demoralizing. Truth is not a question of numbers.

"Truth can remain alive in the hearts of only a few thousands, or perhaps of even only 10 men. The number who believe in this or that idea is not proof of the truth of the idea.

"During this long exile I've continued to defend the rights of the Russian people and explain the real situation in articles, books, countless conferences and public meetings."

Kerensky described the Russian situation as a permanent fight between the absolutist tendencies of rulers with the "strong will of the people to have all political rights, to participate in the direction of all the life of the state." Russian youth in particular now is demanding personal freedom, he added.

SURVIVED RUSSIAN REVOLUTION

WANT BETTER LIFE

"They are more nationalistic. They want the best things of life for Russia and themselves. They no longer accept the theory that all effort must go toward the world revolution. They are more patriotic than Communist —they are interested in the amelioration of political and economic life within Russia.

"They do not attack the regime directly, but they attack a task of originality and creativity in Russia, and their implication is clear.

"Two years ago a meeting of students was held in St. Petersburg—what you call Leningrad —and much of his criticism was heard. The government had promised more of those meetings but it is significant that none took place."

Soviet Premier Khrushchev's difficulties with agriculture were also cited by Kerensky as an indication of discontent among the people. He compared the farming troubles with a "fever" that may go up or down but is always present.

Kerensky declined to discuss in detail such things as Russia's relations with the satellite countries, saying other authorities are in a better position than he is to do so.

SILENT ON CHINA

"All my life I've been for the independence of Poland and supenaity of old age—failing eyesight, indicating the books that tonomy for all the non-Russian parts of the Russian empire," he said.

"About Russia's relations with Communist China, I have some ideas, but I would prefer not to discuss them now," he added cryptically.

At another point Kerensky said it is one thing to try to inject ideas into Russia but another to speak of foreign intervention—"People must fight for freedom, but not wait for some benevolent foreigner to bring it by means of arms."

Unexpectedly, Kerensky opened the interview by speaking of the European Common Market, which he termed the "economic resurrection of the resurrection, if you like—of Europe."

Khrushchev's proposal that the Common Market be extended to all countries may have elements of sincerity, Kerensky declared, but it marks "still another break" with Communist philosophy as enunciated by Lenin and Stalin. He scoffed at the aura of infallibility surrounding Communist eyes.

"A society without ideals or religion must contain a sort of infallibility on its heroes," he said. "This explains why the Communist creates a Leninist background for everything they do, forcing attributes to Lenin that are all lies."

To an unusual degree, Kerensky brought his interviewer into the conversation, asking about the Canadian political scene and such things as Canadian thoughts on Britain's entry into the Common Market.

An Oriental man-servant made silent forays into the room during the interview. Kerensky has outlived two wives and his two sons now live in London.

Although treating his visitor with old-world courtesy, he dismissed with a deprecating wave of the hand—as if unimportant—questions about his personal life and pastimes.

Only once did he refer to a cover his study walls, he said:

"To a man like me, it is sad not to be able to read—to read all sight."

U.S. Government Holding Debate On Ban Treaty

How Far Can Terms Be Trimmed Is Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Post says a major debate is taking place within the Kennedy administration over how much the United States can trim its terms for an East - West nuclear test ban treaty.

"The issue that divides political policymakers and science advisers," The Post says, "is how much or a risk the United States can take to achieve a test ban.

"It is President Kennedy, however, who will make the decision.

"The current administration dispute centres largely on the issue of international inspection in relation to control posts on Soviet territory.

"No one in the administration, so far as is known, has suggested an abandonment of onsite inspection, which is championed of the U.S. delegation."

DOMINATES DEBATE

The question of the values of recent scientific findings and clear test detection is dominating intra - administration debate, the paper says. The findings suggested the detection of nuclear explosions which might not be as difficult as previously assumed.

The hot school within the administration believes that the findings make it possible to reduce the number of international detection stations or control posts on Soviet territory as well as the number of onsite inspections. The congressional teams for verifications previously demanded.

"The other school contends that although the scientific findings may suggest these changed, for political reasons substantial reductions in control posts and onsite inspections would be unwise."

The congressional view is that "both international inspection and on-site inspection are mandatory."

Will Probe Army Driver Court Ruling

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Kelso Roberts says he will investigate a ruling by Magistrate, H. T. G. Andrews of Brampton, who Tuesday said that armed forces personnel are exempt from the Highway Traffic Act.

Magistrate Andrews dismissed a careless driving charge against Cpl. Donald Mcinnis, 40, of suburban Long Branch after defence counsel T. E. G. Fellowes argued that an armed forces driver, travelling under standing orders was not bound by the act.

The attorney - general said Tuesday night: "As far as I'm concerned I think armed forces personnel should be subject to the same rules and regulations as any other citizen in normal times."

Cpl. McInnis was charged following complaints by two motorists that an army box on route from Brampton to Toronto was weaving from lane to lane at speeds of 45 miles an hour, the court was told Tuesday.

Union Admits Forged Cards, Quits Fight

TORONTO (CP)—The United Steelworkers of America (CLC) has given up its fight in west central of employees of Falconbridge Nickel Company, Sudbury, from its bitter rival, the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.).

William Mahoney, Steel's national director for Canada, said in a statement to the press today the union admits that some of the applications cards it submitted for a certification vote were forged.

He announced the union has asked the Ontario Labor Relations Board for leave to withdraw its application for a certification vote in the area and that it had the support to take over as bargaining agent.

Steel had to take board membership cards with the board showing it had the support of more than 45 per cent of the company's 2,041 employees.

Mid-April approved the application, charging that signatures on a number of the cards were forged.

FREE TO MARCH, NEGROES MAY SUSPEND ACTION

Two Officers Hurt In Albany, Georgia

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — Negro leaders weighed today a possible suspension of mass racial demonstrations after violence climaxed a protest march in the uneasy southwest Georgia City.

The violence, in which two officers were injured, came Tuesday night just a few hours after a federal judge's action cleared the way for Negroes to renew their anti-segregation activities.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., integration leader who preaches non-violence, urged passive resistance in the Negro's fight for equal rights, termed the incident regrettable. He said he would halt demonstrations temporarily if he feels Albany Negroes cannot stick to a strict non-violent campaign.

The trouble developed when about 100 officers moved into the Negro section to disperse about 2,000 Negroes in the vicinity of a bus terminal.

State Trooper Claude Hill was struck by a rock, bruising his face and knocking out a tooth. Bottles and rocks rained onto the pavement as two lines of officers broke up the milling crowds of Negroes.

40 JAILED

The missile flew after 30 Negroes and one white man marched from a church to the downtown area and were jailed for parading without a permit. Several hundred had started the march but most dropped out before reaching the area where police had warned demonstrators would be arrested.

Police Chief Laurie Pritchett said: "There was no violence after part — the officers never took their night sticks from

Feels Message of Canada "Got Across" at Geneva

GENEVA(AP)—External Affairs Minister Green of Canada, ending his six-day stay at Geneva, said today he felt "our message got across" at the disarmament conference.

Green's speech to the conference Tuesday stressed the urgency of continued negotiation and the danger of flagging effort by the great powers. He termed as "sheer madness" and said the great powers must endeavor to seek an end to such testing in the Geneva talks.

Informants said both Russia and the United States believed a good capitalize on a propaganda struggle at the UN General Assembly which opens in September.

Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko Tuesday charged the West was seeking a "paradise" of espionage in disarmament powers inspection while Soviet Secretary Rusk of the United States and Foreign Secretary Lord Home simultaneously their decision of Britain was making a "get-rich of secrecy."

Rusk and Gromyko themselves appeared ready to return home within 48 hours after fruitless talks on Berlin and disarmament.

After Rusk emerged from a third meeting with Gromyko Tuesday, an American spokesman said he had the impression both men "will be leaving Geneva in a day or two."

Rusk also attended Tuesday's resumed session of the 17-nation disarmament conference which produced only, one concrete proposal — a call by India's V. K. Krishna Menon for a declaration against disseminating nuclear weapons or information.

Krishna Menon said: "a simple less effective declaration against the spread of nuclear weapons could be achieved immediately if the four nuclear powers — including France, which is boycotting the conference—declared unilaterally but simultaneously their decision not to disseminate nuclear weapons or information.

Most Doctors in Offices By the End of the Week

SASKATOON (CP) — Doctors' offices reopened throughout Saskatchewan today as the province's medical profession officially ended a boycott of the CCF government's medical care insurance plan—the first such government program in North America.

The Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons said most doctors who boycotted the prepaid medical insurance plan since it went into effect July 1 will be back at work by the end of the week.

Some have already reopened their offices. But for the sake of uniformity the college said it advised doctors to end their boycott today and begin charging for services.

During the three-week boycott of the plan about 200 doctors provided free emergency medical treatment at 41 of the province's 134 hospitals. Most of these doctors will take a few days rest before returning to normal hours.

Dr. Sam Landa, coordinator of the emergency service established by the college and the Canadian Medical Association, said about half the college's 650 private practitioners would be expected by Thursday. It was expected to take a week to 10 days to return services to normal.

While doctors said they had to give way on a key principle—acceptance of universal, compulsory medical care — they added they had won victories on other key points.

These included the right to practise outside the act and the operation of voluntary, private health insurance agencies within the framework of the legislation.

Drives Off Falling Bridge To Safety

WEBBWOOD, Ont. (CP)— Truck driver Armand Lemieux won a race with disaster when he gunned his loaded five-ton truck to safety as collapsing bridge.

Lemieux, 49, of Hanmer, Ont., was crossing the bridge over Bell Creek on Highway 17 Lake Road near here Tuesday when he spotted trouble.

"There was no time to warn me," he said. "I happened to glance at the rear view mirror and saw the bridge falling down behind me.

"I thought of jumping, but it was only a 20-foot drop—I'd pose 30 or 40 feet—and I knew I'd be killed.

"I just gunned the motor and hoped I'd make it off." The speeding truck made the end of the bridge just as the structure fell away. The rear wheels grabbed momentarily at the broken edge of the concrete abutment before rolling clear.

The bridge is believed to have been built about 1902.

Webbwood is 63 miles west of Sudbury.

BEN BELLA SAYS HE HAS GIVEN SELF AUTHORITY

Loyalist Minister Approved by Troops

ALGIERS (Reuters) — Partisans of dissident Vice-Premier Mohammed Ben Bella today seized control of the east Algerian port of Bone, reports from the city said.

TIARET, Algeria — Dissident deputy Premier Ahmed Ben Bella rode into Tiaret today with a show of military might and cheering crowds that he and his supporters have taken over power in Algeria.

Moslem troops supporting Ben Bella meanwhile were reported to have taken over Constantine in eastern Algeria and to have arrested a loyalist cabinet minister.

Another report said the Constantine Ben Bellists had kidnapped a top military man also responsible to provisional government Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda. Ben Bella's adversary in the current power struggle.

The Algiers sources said the Ben Bellist forces, including troops formerly stationed in Tunisia, took command of Constantine today after a night of confusion there during which three persons were killed and several wounded by sunfire.

Ben Bella declared in a brief speech that he and other members of his political bureau "have given ourselves authority."

The radical deputy premier declared:

Legal Issues Delaying Abortion For Woman Fearing Legless Baby

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Phoenix woman's plan to have both three - month pregnancy aborted rather than risk the birth of a deformed child was suspended Tuesday pending clarification of legal issues.

The woman, in her early 30s and already the mother of four, disclosed Sunday that she had inadvertently taken thalidomide, a drug blamed for deformities of newborns in England, Germany, Australia and Canada.

Arizona law forbids abortion except to save the life of a pregnant woman. Dr. Monroe Bless, a panel of three physicians advised that the pregnancy be terminated.

The woman and her husband, fearing the birth of a child without arms or legs, had decided to follow the recommendation and the abortion had been scheduled for today at Good Samaritan Hospital.

But hospital administrator Stephen Morris cancelled the plan.

Said Morris: "Everything is being held in abeyance until the

U Thant Denies Proposing Using Force In Congo

Says Katanga Leader Is Guilty of Bad Faith

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Acting Secretary - General U Thant denied today that he had proposed a fresh United Nations military initiative in The Congo to end the secession of Katanga province.

At the same time he charged President Moise Tshombe of Katanga with bad faith in unity negotiations.

Thant's denial was issued through a UN spokesman who was commenting on reports arising from Thant's appearance Tuesday before a closed-door meeting of his Congo advisory committee.

Members of the committee told reporters that Thant had raised the question whether the U.N. should use force as a last resort to bring unity to the province with the central government.

The UN spokesman said the meeting was called to report on talks Thant held on The Congo during his recent visit to several European capitals.

BUDGET AMENDMENT

The spokesman said Thant asked members of the committee "for their advice as to how the present impasse could be broken, including the possibility of seeking a fresh mandate from the Security Council.

"It is absolutely incorrect to say that the secretary-general had proposed a fresh military initiative in The Congo."

Thant told a press conference in London, June 29, that the United Nations was planning new action against mineral-rich Katanga.

But he added:

"It has never been my intention—and never will be my intention—to use any military initiative."

He noted that UN troops had the authority to fight only in self-defence.

FIGHT TO STANDSTILL

Katanga's secession fight UN forces in a standstill last September. Now fighting broke out in December after the UN won control of the centre of Elisabethville, Katanga's capital.

Since then the United Nations has tried to negotiate a settlement between Tshombe and Premier Cyrille Adoula of the central government in Leopoldville. Negotiations were broken off in June, and Tshombe told a press conference May 30 that he no longer considers Adoula a "valid partner" in the central government.

Observers of The Congo committee said Thant also raised the possibility of an economic blockage against Katanga. He asked whether the committee thought the security council should be called into session to consider the situation.

Information said the committee is recommended to act on the suggestion by next Friday, giving members time to consult their governments, who have or will be briefed by their ambassadors.

They said Thant told the group the United Nations is spending so much money on its Congo operation that by the end of 1963 even the proceeds of the $200,000,000 emergency bond issue would be used up.

Million Dollar Theft Suspect Gives Self Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Alan Pomeranz, 33, the Mr. X in a $1,300,000 theft of blue - chip stocks from the Wall Street firm of Bache and Company, has surrendered to the district-attorney's office.

Pomeranz had been identified publicly as wanted only a few hours before his surrender Tuesday. Described as a key figure in attempts to dispose of the Bache loot, he was charged with receiving stolen property.

U.S. Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau, who identified Pomeranz, also announced the arrest of Edward Schoenberger, also 33, of Jackson Heights, saying he was a key suspect in the case. He was charged with conspiracy with Pomeranz. Federal law against interstate transportation of stolen securities.

Morgenthau said Bache clerk Gordon T. Talman stole the securities from the vault room in Robert J. Dodge, 34, who relayed them to Pomeranz. Then, it was said, Dodge and Pomeranz drove to Schoenberger's apartment where Pomeranz paid Dodge for the stocks and consulted with Schoenberger on their disposition.

Dodge, Talman and nine others are under arrest. Although only $270,000 worth of the securities have been recovered, apparently none of the others had been cashed.

City council's interrupted meeting of Monday afternoon, resumed yesterday, received its answer to the question of whether the liquor referendum would curtail the sale of beer in the dry areas of the city. City solicitor E. Gow, present at the meeting, feels it would.

Mr. Porter explained that if the two questions of the referendum were answered "yes" by the required majority, the sale of beer in areas now dry, except they could have no government liquor store. Lady Bowlers Of District Had Busy Week

The women's division of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club climaxed a busy week's play yesterday with 19 triples teams taking part in play here.

District playdowns were played here last Friday and a was possibly due to the fact that the Consumerals had used socialization for their new pagoda.

Socialization seems to guarantee certain rights to man — the right to work; to make a decent living; to have leisure, of when sick, to have an education, to have fair employment, to have recreation, the speaker said.

OPINION DIVIDED

Opinion is quite strong and divided on the question of socialization, however, the audience gave priest a hearing. He noted that in the United States Senate there was full attendance for the speech when Kennedy's Medicare plan was defeated by a narrow margin of 53-48 votes. Every senator took a stand on the issue. This is quite the time when the United States was formed almost 200 years ago that the entire membership of the senate was on hand to cast its votes in this highly controversial issue taken as an indication of the extreme interest and importance attached to the matter of socialization, he said.

The idea of socialism is to be found in the life of Christ and the 12 apostles and during the first hundred years of Christianity when life in that group was fairly wonderful, Dr. Imhoff said. Socialization's growth was retarded by medieval times and the matter of this period still exist today, especially in the seven southern states of the United States, he remarked.

He suggested that it was expressed in the fact that even in Kiwanis clubs in these states black members are not taken in.

Some of the deeper intricacies of various methods of socialization and how they evolved a delicate balance between group ownership and the recognition of the individual and his right to private property and free enterprise were discussed by the speaker.

LISTS DISADVANTAGES

He also mentioned that there were certain disadvantages to socialization. It can kill individual ambition and initiative, can break down some of the family relationships which mean much to a good society; it can result in poor leadership and abuses lately have been occasioned in some unions where the members let a few run their affairs; it can result in politicians sacrificing ethics for votes, he suggested.

Such abuses are heightened by people regarding the communications media as infallible and allowing their thinking to be formed by these media rather than to do any thinking for themselves. The press, if it is unsinful, can be away from public into any line of thought or action it desires, he cautioned.

People are seeking their rights but people should not expect the government to do everything for them and have it breathing down their necks all the time, he suggested.

"We need individuals who can live up to the high ideals which we think we have," he concluded.

Kiwanian Rob Collins and Don Williams respectively introduced and thanked the speaker.

The meeting was highlighted by the visit of a large delegation from the Kiwanis Club of Syracuse, N.Y., and by an invitation visit by Picton Kiwanians.

Socialization Coming to Stay Kiwanians Told

Socialization, defined as the evolution of social activities, is coming upon modern society to stay, the Rev. Maurice Imhoff, Ph.D., pastor of Holy Rosary Church, told local Kiwanians at their weekly meeting yesterday afternoon in the Kiwanis Centre.

It is expressed today in the uprising of many people for equality especially in areas where medieval social conditions of enforced wealth and extreme poverty exist side by side and there is no balance brought about by an association of co-operation by many people for the common good, he said.

said the amended act might serve as a model for public health plans throughout North America.

Dr. R. H. Watson, president of the B.C. division of the CMA, agreed with the prominent British physician, one of the Labor party group that drew up the British Kingdom's nation al health plan.

Lord Taylor was called in to advise the council as an adviser to Premier Woodrow Lloyd's provincial government.

LIKES THE AGREEMENT

Dr. Watson said in Vancouver, "It's a very good agreement and will work very well. The general principles, we've been talking about in the medical profession in Canada seem outlined in the plan. Both (the college and the government) have agreed on basic principles and when they sit down and work it out as well they'll have a good scheme."

Dr. Watson said the plan has left enough competition so medical plans would work efficiently —there wouldn't be just one government monopoly."

The amendments to the legislation will be adopted at a special session of the provincial legislature. No date has been set for the session.

In Winnipeg, Dr. R. M. McCharles, president of the Manitoba Medical Association said it was a good settlement as could be expected in such dire circumstances."

"It's time to start picking up the pieces," he said. "The damage has been done a lot of good men."

In Regina, Dr. Clayton Crosby, emergency service coordinator, said Regina hospitals still were admitting only emergency cases by Friday as no start would be made on elective admissions.

Dr. Harry Kinzel, secretary of the Medical Care Insurance Commission, said Friday short term contracts with 91 doctors brought in during the dispute will be signed. He said the recruits were from Britain and the Commonwealth and were expected to remain in the province.

A STEP FORWARD

In Regina, T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party and one of the architects of the province's plan, said the terms reached by the government and the doctors are "a great step forward."

He added Saskatchewan was "not out of the woods yet" and that he was "confident we will devise a program which will improve medical care and give people a feeling of medical security."

Mr. Douglas, who resigned as Saskatchewan premier in late 1961 to head the NDP, first proposed the medical care insurance plan in 1944. He lost his party to victory in 1960, using the plan as one of his party's major campaign planks.

Mr. Douglas and the present leader of the Supreme Court quit brought against them by Dr. W. J. McDonald of Saskatoon and a Prince Albert doctor. The suit, which will be heard after the summer recess, claims damages of professional libel.

Tuesday, Mr. Justice D. C. Dubucy of the Court of Queen's Bench, Regina, set the date for application by Hans Teal, provincial Attorney-General of the Keep Our Doctors Committee, Dr. J. E. Brand of Saskatoon and Ralph J. Purdy of Regina, for an interim injunction until the validity of the act could be tested in court.

their belts." He said one of his main efforts was hit by a bible but wasn't hurt seriously.

Shortly after the march began, Negroes filed federal court action to desegregate all public facilities and to prevent police interference with anti-segregation demonstrations.

Dr. King, who had urged at a mass rally that the Negroes march, said: "We have developed apparently from some onlookers who were not part of our movement."

"We cannot and we will not tolerate violence on the part of our people," Dr. King said.

Municipal Board Approves Bylaw to Buy Property

City council was told yesterday by city manager J. R. Reynolds, that bylaw number 7316 had been approved by the Ontario municipal board. The bylaw, not yet passed, provides for the expenditure of $100,000 by the city to buy the property at 332 and 334 Front St., and convert the land to a parking lot. The land, owned by Samuel Goodman, Kingston, Ltd., is the site of the Coffee Cup Restaurant, the Dan Stewart Barber shop, and the Cecil McLean Real Estate office.

Council was also informed of the value set on the land by Judge Anderson, in case of expropriation. The land and buildings were valued at $34,000 and the owner's special interest in the land was set at $6,000. The city can, if necessary, expropriate the land for this price, at a legal cost expected to be nearly $1,000. The owner of the land, if he chooses to appeal the valuation, must lodge the appeal within six weeks of August 31.

An expropriation value has not yet been put on the Stobie YMCA and Salvation Army properties, slated for inclusion in another bylaw, said city solicitor, E. Gus Porter, will be sought by the parking authority to try to arrange an amicable purchase of these lands.

Bylaw 7316 provides for repairs to the roof of the Belleville Arena, at a cost of about $7,000, was passed during this meeting.

Argentina Outlaws Reds And Peronists

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina's military - controlled government Tuesday night outlawed Communist and Peronist parties and candidates in elections clearing the way for new civilian government rule.

President Jose Maria Guido issued four decrees that also banned "other totalitarian parties" and their candidates. Electoral courts were given power to supervise political party activities.

The decrees were aimed principally at followers of former dictator Juan D. Peron, who was overthrown in 1955. They specifically prohibited Peronist propaganda, Peronist songs and displaying Peron's portrait.

The Peronists were barred from organized political activity after Peron's overthrow, but President Arturo Frondizi let them run as a party in the March elections. They got one-third of the popular vote and a substantial number of the offices at stake.

When Frondizi refused to nullify the elections, the military ousted and arrested him and installed Guido, the Senate president. Congress was ordered into recess, and Guido promised new elections in mid-1963.

8,000 Attend Queen's Last Garden Party

LONDON (CP) — Some 240 Canadians were among the 8,000 guests Tuesday at the last of the Queen's three garden parties of 1962.

The Queen and Prince Philip spent nearly an hour chatting to members of the colorful throng in the grounds of Buckingham Palace. The Queen wore a sheath dress of silk organza in a subtle mixture of powder blue and lilac with a matching hat.

Other members of the royal family were Princess Marina, mother of the Duke of Kent, and the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester.

As the Queen came down the pathway cleared for her by Guards officers, the petition of some guests was momentarily diverted when several presented a clutch of celebrities, including former actor Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and the Foreign Secretary Sir Anthony Eden) and poet T. S. Eliot.

French Envoy Back in Moscow

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Normal Franco - Soviet relations, disturbed by the Algerian issue, were re-established by the return Tuesday to Moscow of French Ambassador Maurice Dejean, informed sources said today.

A French embassy spokesman would say only that Dejean had completed "consultations" in Paris, which he was summoned last March.

Dejean went to Paris when the Soviet Union recognized the insurgent Algerian provisional government. A French foreign ministry statement at the time interpreted this as an unfriendly act and said continuation of relations at the level of ambassadors had become impossible.

Award Contract To Complete Mountain Road

TRENTON—Last night, the members of the Trenton Board of Parks' Management voted to award the contract for the completion of the mountain road to the Disher-Farrand Company of Canada. Last week, this firm laid asphalt on Division Street, Albert St. and on the grade ahead of King St. Board members considered that since Disher-Farrand was "on the job" and the price was attractive, now was the time to complete the mountain ridge road, commenced last year. Admittedly, the contractor will find the job "uphill work," as the right hand section of the roadway is steep. Work will start in 10 days.

The Miron-Lansing Company will erect a new bandstand building in Hanna Park. Certain modifications will be necessary to the chosen design and type of materials to be used in the building, but it is expected that work on this project will start in the near future.

An irate citizen, living in the Champlain Park area, had written to the board to complain that the park, far from being a "quiet place of flowers" type of park, was being used as a ball diamond, by persons from three years old to the adult stage. The complainant stated that children, sometimes along with their tricycles and bicycles, were carelessly rolling down his lawn. Balls, from hard balls to golf balls, whizz over his roof, and he is going to replace a window in his carport there for the fifth. Now, the window sports a screen.

WILLING TO SELL

"If the board wishes to buy my property, I'll take the letter, "I'm quite willing to sell."

Board members decided that while they were in sympathy, "kids were kids, no matter where they are," that the park was a public park" and that if the complainant could get hold of the parents of the children who broke his windows and made them pay, the matter might take on a different complexion.

Present at the meeting were board chairman E. M. Parker, Jr., secretary Miss Marion Bayshore-Fraser Park area had been nothing but trouble. A year and a half ago, vandals stole a large quantity of sprinkler heads, which were never recovered; then said Mr. Boers, town workmen "bulldozed" up parts of the system. Experts called in prowed to be not so expert in their diagnosis of the trouble. Mr. Boers will continue to search for the cause of the trouble.

Edna Finkle, a Central Bridge employee since 1939, shows one of the company's original time record books to Leo Dube, (left); works manager Jim Duncan and Fred Kingsman. Kingsman has been with the company since 1937 and Dube since 1939. The plant, which now employs 200, in 1937 had 25 workers registered on the time book.

Govt. Will Clear Weeds In Harbor

TRENTON — On Tuesday, Lee Grills, MP for Hastings South, said that a department of transport weed cutter would be brought down from Frankford within a few days to clear out the weeds in Trenton harbor. Mr. Grills said that he hoped a larger weed cutter, manufactured at Prescott last spring, would soon be available to cut weeds in the Bay of Quinte. The cutter itself is finished and ready to go to work, but trouble has developed in the hoist which will be used to lift the cut weeds onto a scow. As soon as this is ironed out, it is planned to bring the cutter to the Trenton area.

Meantime, Mr. Grills said, the department of public works men would move into town to effect repairs and reconstruction to the boat ramp at the government dock, on Thursday or Friday of this week.

FANS HURT IN CRUSH

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Four teen-agers, part of a crowd of some 4,000 at a shopping centre's autograph party for Fabian, 19-year-old movie and recording personality, were injured Tuesday when a plate glass window broke. They required stitches when they were pushed through the window by the crush.

St. Lawrence River:
highway to the heart of North America!

Great ocean liners now link the heart of America directly to the ports of the world, via the St. Lawrence Seaway. And all along the new 1200-mile route, traffic is accelerating and changing the old way of life. In the August issue, Holiday Magazine examines these changes. Not all the old skills or customs are lost, but it's harder to find them. On the Gaspe Peninsula you can still see cod drying on racks and, at Murray Bay, in order to find the man you seek, you must know the given name of at least four of his ancestors. Farther down the river, in Quebec, ancient French holidays survive, and in Montreal the French and English continue to meet without mixing. You can still feel remote from civilization in the Thousand Islands Archipelago. But, for good or ill, it's only a matter of time before the old gives way completely to the new. Read this thoughtful, illustrated report in the August Holiday.

1,500 Miles on a Bicycle His Idea of a Vacation

"I you want to stay healthy and young looking like me, don't drink and don't smoke, and if you feel up to it ride a bicycle for about 1,500 miles once a year".

This is the policy of a 55-year-old Owen Sound man, Allister Luke, who called in at the Ontario Intelligencer office Tuesday afternoon, on his way back from Ottawa to his home in Owen Sound via bicycle.

A laborer at a saw mill, in Owen Sound, Mr. Luke spends his vacation each summer cycling through Ontario. Mr. Luke while in Ottawa visited with relatives as well as getting a birdseye view of the capital city.

A bicycle, a thermos, and some sleeping gear is all that is needed, but most of all a bit of leg muscle to enable you to cycle to the top of a long sloping hill, like many Mr. Luke encountered on his trip along highway no. 7 from Peterborough to Ottawa.

So far this trip, Mr. Luke has travelled approximately 1,100 miles and he still as a few miles to go before reaching his home town, Owen Sound. "I love the outdoors," said Mr. Luke, "and it is healthy for anyone who is fortunate enough to be able to be outside.

When the weather permits, Mr. Luke rests his weary body by the roadside, sleeping on a mere rubber sheet and a blanket to keep him warm. When it rains, as it did in the Quinte district Monday, he takes lodging at a hotel along his route.

With his three speed bicycle, Mr. Luke averages about 72 miles per hour. "Sometimes," he said, "I cast travel 20 miles an hour and at other times, such as when I have to climb a hill, I can only travel about eight miles per hour, so I say I can average about 12 miles an hour, I'm not too far off.

"Last year, I had to get off and walk up every hill I came to and, lots of time I am glad to get off and walk, but this year it is a little easier with having a three speed bicycle."

Mr. Luke says he can average about 100 miles each day without any difficulty. Monday he travelled 102 miles, even through the rain. "I usually call it a day around nine o'clock at night and then try to get an early start in the morning," he explained.

Mr. Luke said he hoped to be close to Toronto by Tuesday evening, where he expects to stop for a couple of days to visit with relatives. Then he will continue to Kitchener and visit his sister-in-law before continuing on to Qeen Sound, to conclude his yearly vacation as well as getting lots of exercise.

Y's Men's Day Camps Said Success

"The past four weeks have seen a most successful operation of the Y's Men's Day Camp at the north end of Oak Lake, reports camp director Dennis Julian. Two camps have been in operation, one for girls and the other for boys.

A full and varied program, concentrating on the Canadian Audubon Society's junior club program on birds, leaf recognition handicrafts, and wildlife, has been conducted.

Talks by a wildlife officer from the Ontario Department of Land Forests together with a film presentation opened the eyes of many campers to the work of the department in the great outdoors of Canada.

The waterfront's swimming sessions proved extremely popular. Some 50 non-swimmers had their first introduction and basic instruction in the elementary forms of swimming and floating. All took their tests and most were able to swim at least 25 feet and properly float by the end of their two-week session.

A visit to the Col. Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area was held during each camp. J. H. McLeod, secretary treasurer of the Moira River Conservation Authority presented booklets and discussed the work of the authority to the campers during their day-long visits.

An "Open House" and campfire program were also held for parents and other visitors during each period.

For the first time a mixed camp will be held in August, Mr. Julian advises. This will be watched with interest by the local YMCA staff and camp to determine its success and the possibility of future such camps.

Gun Fancier Fined $20 And Costs

TRENTON—In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday Leonard Kirby of Trenton, charged with being in possession of an unregistered firearm, pleaded guilty to the charge but objected to the testimony of a police constable that he had found an unregistered 38 calibre revolver in the Kirby home when he had searched the house with a search warrant. Kirby told the court that he had invited the constable into his home, and Constable Sidney Vickers concurred with this.

Kirby explained the presence of the revolver in his possession by saying, "I'm a gun fancier, that's all."

Magistrate T. Y. Wills fined the accused $20 and ordered him to pay $3 court costs.

"You'd better get that gun registered," Magistrate Wills advised Kirby, "or you'll get into trouble."

Clarence Ernest Andrews of RR 3, Brighton, charged with the theft of an automobile, was remanded until July 31. Bail was set at $1,000 cash or property. Andrews was apprehended by Constable John Martin of the Brighton provincial police detachment on July 20, in Brighton, and charged with being in possession of a car which was established as being the property of Ian Roderick McMann of Trenton.

Frankland Stone of Trenton, pleaded not guilty to a charge of careless driving, but was found guilty on the evidence and fined $13 and costs.

G.A. Ireland told the court that he had stopped his station wagon on Dominion Street around 2 p.m. on June 13, with the intention of backing up. Suddenly, he said, a car appeared from behind "out of nowhere," and struck his vehicle before he could do anything about it.

Stone testified that he had turned a corner onto Dominion Street, and that as soon as he saw the Ireland vehicle he had applied his brakes and tried to swerve to the left, but could not avoid striking the station wagon.

Louis Maraskas, appearing for the accused, asked that the case be dismissed as he said that the facts did not support the quasi-criminal charge of careless driving. He said that the Ireland vehicle was substantially the same color as the pavement and that Stone had been confronted with an unusual emergency on the part of the other driver, (the defence contended that Ireland was in the act of backing up when the accident occurred), and that he (Stone) had made an error in judgment.

Roderick Campbell, representing the Crown, argued that Stone had driven at least a block on a sunny day with the Ireland vehicle in plain sight all the while. He said that it was an irresistible conclusion that Stone had been operating his care in a careless manner.

Magistrate Wills said that it was "quite refreshing" to have both parties telling the absolute truth, and stating that they did not see each other's cars. He said that he was inclined to think that both parties were at fault to a certain extent.

In levying a fine, some confusion was caused when by neither side knowing the exact trial fare for a return trip to Toronto, (Mr. Ireland, a former Trenton resident, now lives in Toronto), Mr. Maraskas named a much lower figure for fare than the court came up with. Magistrate Wills told him that this figure would cement his holiday weekend charge. The question of the exact fare was left in abeyance until railway ticket offices could be contacted.

BEN BELLA

alize an era of peace, prosperity and fraternity, I want to make this clear to everyone, including Europeans.

Ben Khedda, who favors closer ties with France than Ben Bella wants, yielded to the political bureau in face of threats of revok by Ben Bella's army-backed leftist faction.

Ben Bella is expected to be named chairman of the political bureau and possibly take on the premiership as well.

Ben Bella's imminent takeover of power raised the prospect of strife in the newly independent nation with reports of mounting restlessness among berber tribesmen.

Rivalry between Algeria's Arabs and the Berber minority has been long - standing and the tribesmen particularly hate Ben Bella.

In Paris, a French government spokesman said France will "intervene to protect her nationals" if the confused situation in Algerian deteriorates in the power struggle between Ben Bella and Ben Khedda.

CENTRAL BRIDGE MARKING QUARTER CENTURY IN TRENTON

TRENTON — This week, the Central Bridge Company of Trenton, a subsidiary of the Toronto Iron Works, marks its 25th year of operation.

The Trenton plant, built on the site of the British Chemical Company plant, (which was destroyed by an explosion, in October, 1918, two weeks before the end of World War II), was grown from a small outfit, employing 25 persons, to a firm which now regularly employs 200, 120 in the plant, 80 erection men and an administrative staff of 30 plus.

When the company went into business in 1937, bridge work was at the forefront. The first job for the workers, veteran steel Kingsmen of Belleville recalls, was the Tweed-Actinolite bridge. Fred has been with the company since its inception. Other veterans are Edna Finkle, (1939) Leo Dube, (1939) and Len Lockwood, foreman director in the field, (1942).

During World War II, Central Bridge manufactured tugs. Now, manufacturing operations have enlarged to include the making of structural steel for multi-storey buildings and bin and hopper work. Bridges on the Trent the Salmon River and the new bridge at Gananoque all bear the stamp of Central Bridge. Locally, the company is supplying structural steel for the addition to the high school and the new addition to the Outboard Marine Company plant. In Belleville, Central Bridge supplied the structural steel for the new Bank of Montreal and the Victoria and Grey Trust building. Working under licence with Strait-Steel, Central Bridge supplies structural steel for prefabricated buildings.

Last year, Central Bridge shipped an order of pre-fabricating steel to Iran, valued at $250,000.

Heads of the Trenton plant include James Duncan, works' manager; Dick Burnet, chief draughtsman; Grant Storey, shop superintendent and "Buck" Hutchinson, erection superintendent. G.E. Ellsworth has been president of the Toronto Iron Works since 1953 and E. J. Langan, vice-president of manufacturing, has charge of the Trenton unit.

Bad News

The announcement that Soviet Russia has decided to conduct a new series of nuclear tests is very bad news for the world.

Originally much of the opposition to such tests was the fear that they would poison the atmosphere with radioactivity and eventually lead to an increased incidence of bone cancer or a number of deplorable mutations in coming generations.

Nothing has occurred to lessen concern in this respect. Indeed, with the ever-increasing power of the explosions and with the danger that the U.S. may join Russia in a stupidly childish contest to be the last to conduct tests before a ban, cause for alarm about the results which may accrue from the tests themselves seems to be heightened rather than lessened.

Unfortunately, there is good reason to fear that this pollution of the atmosphere is no longer the gravest danger. Khrushchev has talked about an anti-missile rocket which could hit a fly in space and the U.S. Nike-Zeus has intercepted an Atlas missile fired over 4,000 miles out over the Pacific. There is speculation that the new Russian tests will be aimed at perfecting an anti-missile missile. If the U.S. has any reason to think that the Russians have had any success in this field, further U.S. tests in an effort to duplicate this feat would be almost inevitable. Even if the Russians fail, and the West learns of this failure, the U.S. may proceed with further tests. If enough tests are held eventually success is likely to follow.

Far from being a safeguard against war, these anti-missile missiles will merely serve to reduce the power of what we have come to call the nuclear deterrent. The likelihood of war will be enhanced, rather than lessened, when the certainty of doom is removed. Right now, neither the U.S. nor Russia could hope to escape wholesale destruction in any nuclear war. But if either or both sides develops anti-missile missiles which appear effective, then the chances of them risking war are greater. No matter how effective these anti-missile missiles are, there will be some failures and some missiles will get through. Even if they do not, a war in which each side was blasting the other's missiles out of the sky, far from their own shores, would expose large areas, certainly including Canada, to extreme danger from the giant fireballs of fusion explosions in space. All the world would suffer a vastly more dangerous exposure to excessive radiation than could ever result from a series of tests.

The nuclear scientists, too clever by half from the start, are now nearing the point where they will be too clever by one hundred per cent.

Maybe Hokum-But Admirable

We suspect the Royal Canadian Air Force to be guilty of considerable hokum in the record-breaking flight of its giant new Yukon transport over the North, but nevertheless we applaud it all, hokum as well as flight. If the RCAF is going to set new records, breaking those of the publicity-conscious Yanks, we see no reason why record-breaking performances should not just chance to happen at a time when 30,000 people are on hand to welcome the home-coming heroes. The manner in which Squadron Leader Maurice Hlady and his 12-man crew arrived at Trenton Air Station during the observance of Air Force Day there would have been admirable if staged and a marvellous coincidence if not staged and we leave our readers to take their choice between these two estimates of the situation.

There may be a few derisive smiles on professional faces south of the border, at the ides of a squadron leader wandering around the Arctic and just deciding that, being so close to the North Pole, he might as well have a look-see and set a new record for the endurance flight. But it all makes an excellent story and we suggest that the RCAF keep the pattern in mind and that next time the force is thinking of doing something unique it should "just happen" that the completion of the feat is witnessed by a multitude assembled for some entirely different purpose. Indeed, the only way in which the pattern could be improved would be for the next record-breaking RCAF crew to drop in on some little celebration south of the border and nonchalantly announce that the record for which the celebration had been planned had already been surpassed.

Life admits not of delays; when pleasure can be had, it is fit to catch it. Every hour takes away part of the things that please us, and perhaps part of our disposition to be pleased.—Samuel Johnson.

Royal African Wedding

Milwaukee Journal

Africa's biggest social event of the year — a royal wedding at which half a million guests are expected — will take place in the mountainous kingdom of Basutoland, South Africa.

The bridegroom will be the studious looking, bespectacled paramount chief of the Basuto and national stadium where 100,000 people will see the festivities. As soon as one tribal dancing group will get tired, another will take over, brandishing spears and shields, and shimmering the ground.

The richer Basuto, and those who want to gain particular favor with their ruler, may save by shopping spree in the nearest city, Johannesburg.

They will buy the smartest and most expensive shops to buy suitable gifts for their future queen.

• • •

Princess Masenile is at present in England, studying domestic science. Her English fellow students have been surprised to hear that her 25-year-old future husband is going to pay her family an undisclosed number of cattle.

This is, however, not strange to Africa.

It is a tradition that, although a woman cannot be bought for a bride against her own will, her father receives cattle, or even money in the Europeanized system, as compensation for the loss of his child's labor in the home.

These days the higher the number of cattle must be, and Princess Masenile falls in the luxury class. Her father is blue blood and her European studies.

• • •

The wedding ceremony will be a fairly simple one, made up of a Roman Catholic cathedral by Archbishop Emmanuel Nicholaus.

Though the great feast will stir up new loyalty in Basutoland's royal family, it is expected that the couple will not have much power over the land. It has granted the territory autonomy within the next few years. Basutoland has a large share of left wing politicians who want a new land under the Bereng.

Bereng himself strongly resembles the shy King Baudouin of Belgium. His hobby is to sit drawn life with his books most of the time and he seems to be satisfied by remaining the mere symbol he already is.

Television Musical Chairs Insane Game

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

This spring I began my 13th year of writing a television column. In that time, its readership has increased slowly but steadily throughout the country.

Suppose, however, that I had begun a column on radio instead of television. The chances are overwhelmingly that the column would have been knocked off and replaced by something else.

This is how the public's preference that performers and writers have against them in television. In film we had scramble for "numbers," for large and immediate audiences. In theatre, only long off many programs before they have a chance to grow and develop, to win loyal and regular audiences.

A television program must be an immediate success, or perish. It must shake down like a drug and must pull in additional business for the sponsor. There is no room, as there is for cultivating a program, for allowing it to find its audience. Failure must be become a steady habit.

Television today is a mad game of musical chairs: every time the music stops, somebody is squeezed out. Figures come and go with startling rapidity; and talent withers under the cold and sterile summary treatment.

Suppose my publisher had said to me, after my first year, "I'm sorry but we have to discontinue your column — it's not drawing as many readers as the comic strips or the crossword puzzles or the sports pages. We're going to have to try something else."

Obviously, it takes time for a feature to catch on, to find its proper niche, to build a cohesive and responsive audience. This is true for any medium — and especially true for a medium as elusive, as evanescent, as television, in which viewers have not yet built up any patterns of loyalty or rhythmic habits of watching.

And the more the networks shuffle around their programs — every 13 weeks, the more difficult will it become to build these patterns and habits in the audience. The constant search for "novelty" is self-defeating; and, ultimately, it becomes a game of follow the leader — if one Western is successful, ten others imitate its formula slavishly; if one medical drama makes a hit, a dozen others become gross caricatures of it.

Part of the trouble, of course, lies in the insatiable appetite for material in television: the medium devours talent by the ton, simply in order to keep a picture on the screen 18 hours a day, seven days a week. With such volume, most of it has to be trash; but the non-trash must be given a chance to compete over the long haul, or television will be buried alive under the avalanche of its own debris.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Directors of the Belleville Rotary Club will consider the sponsorship of the Belleville Association of the Girl Guides of Canada. Members of the Junior Board of Directors of the YMCA original sponsors and fathers of the idea for a unit here, have stated that the idea will be too heavy for them. The original sponsors and the Chief Lesgue, the father of which it its counterpart in Britain, was not as a feeder to the RCAF, but a youth movement set up as a civilian organization.

A carelessly thrown cigarette butt is believed to have been the cause of a minor grass fire in the Exhibition Grounds last night. No great damage was done and the city fire department had little difficulty in reaching the scene.

With motor vehicle tires frozen in Canada and every rubber tube is worth its proverbial weight in gold and at least one Belleville man is willing to admit that today. Sneak thieves entered the garage garage of Mr. M. Wickett of Front Street, sometime last night, jacked up the rear of Mr. Wickett's truck and removed the right front tire and wheel.

At present, 37 inmates are guests of the county in the Jail here. According to officials the number is high for this period of the year, but the excessive figure is partially explained by the fact that the RCAF have recently been conducting a round up of transients riding on railway trains.

The Original Name of Belleville

Here is an interesting article from our old files, of July 25th, 1902 — 40 years ago — by Mr. H. Pahatahquahga Chase, of Sarnia, is visiting the home of Mr. Frederick Chase, who was born in Belleville in 1818, and attended the "Mossom" Church, by the Rev. Thomas Campbell. He is a lineal chief of the Ojibway Indians, and interesting he was as the civil servant having previously received a letter from Lord Metcalf when he was Governor-General. Twenty-seven years ago he was appointed by the Church of England as a missionary to his own people. He has been four times in England as representative, not only of his own people, but of the tribes in Ontario. He was presented to Queen Victoria in 1876 and twice he has been presented to the Prince and Princess of Wales.

He says that the original name of what is now Belleville was Asaukhnook, which means "the place where the rushes grow." He also informed the local that the rushes grew along the bay of Quinte, but terminated at Belleville. Napanee, he says, "should be spelled "Napane' and that it means "the place of flour," because it was the only place where there was a flour mill." Mr. Chase carries with him the chief's medal which was given to his grandfather by King George III, and held by him as his family successor. Through the kindness of Rev. Mr. J. W. Smith, Rector of St. Thomas' Church, and Mayor Curtis Bogart, Mr. Chase has met some of our prominent citizens who have been delighted with him and his fund of interesting information.

Strawberry Fruit of Life

Ogdesburg Journal

Do you remember the gleaming red nuggets that covered the south ridge of the pasture? Remember the masses of white petal and golden-centre blossoms that patterned the winter-browned grasses in May?

There is no denying that a wild strawberry and it is unpretendedly that the Indians called it the "fruit of life". On a mellow day when time is once deep in June, a man should go forth with a two-pound lard pail and gather a harvest.

"The wild strawberry is grateful to the stomach especially eaten with wine and sugar," says "A Curious Herbal" published in 1837. If we have imagination we can appreciate how the vegetable-loving Puritans felt, on June 12, 1630, Cape Ann and "gathered a store of ripe strawberries," in the words of John Winthrop.

The strawberry is a member of a distinguished family. Its relatives include the rose, apple, raspberry, blackberry, hardtack and meadowsweet. Some ante-bellum wrote that no better fruit than the strawberry had been made. Men like cultivating berries in the season; they enjoy them frozen in the winter, the best of all, in shortcakes with well bested pie, if the cook can pick his own is doubtful blessing. Nor is there the comparable flavor of wild strawberries comes from the warm sun on a hot bank, the melodies of birds and the beauty of a June day.

Cracked Fingers Can Lead To Secondary Infections

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My fingers on both hands have been cracked for four years now. I have had numerous treatments with out success. Petroleum jelly loosens my fingers so I can bend them but does not heal them.

I have low blood sugar and an under-active thyroid. Could that have anything to do with it?

I am 30 and have five children. Just putting my hands in water is agony, and if I wear rubber gloves, they make my hands sweat and that is worse. — Mrs. R. S.

A miserable situation, and a hard one to treat.

Skins vary greatly in toughness, and since our hands must come in contact with so many things to which we may be sensitive, it is a wonder even more of us don't have such troubles.

Yes, low thyroid activity can have a bearing. It tends to make skin dry and lusterless. Your general nutrition is extremely important, and have you discussed with your doctor whether or are getting a balanced diet?

Irritants — dish water, detergents, cosmetics, cleaning fluids, dust — can dry the skin, thereby predisposing it to cracking. Then, many times, secondary infections become established in the cracks, and the problem becomes chronic.

You mention petroleum jelly as only softening the skin. This antibiotic salve may hasten healing by suppressing secondary infection. Silicone lotions may help as protection.

Much of your problem — with a household of five children to care for — may well be that once you get healing started, you are unable to give the tissues an adequate chance to finish the job. The best of treatments sometimes cannot overcome this handicap.

Temporary investment in a household maid may be more than worth the cost. What about paper plates, paper cups — and can the older children wash the silverware?

Here's a new suggestion: Plastic gloves are now on the market. They look big and unwieldy but actually are handy to work in — they leave plenty of air next to the skin.

An older trick is to use rubber gloves a couple of sizes too large, and wear ordinary cotton gloves inside, to keep the hands from sweating, and to avoid contact with the rubber which for some skins may be irritating.

One more, rather remote, thought. You might do well to see Dr. Raynaud's Disease, which can be a factor in pain in the hands.

Dear Dr. Molner: When I lie on my right side I am distressed by either the heart or the bladder. However, after lying on my left side for some time, I can return to the right and be comfortable. Is this something to be alarmed about? — S.A.

I doubt whether liver or gall

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a unusual habit of eating any kind of raw dough — cake, pie or cookie. You may say it isn't good for me because it is hard to digest. I am trying to lose weight, and eat three balanced meals a day but no cookies, pie or cake — except when I splurge and eat them raw. Is the dough worse for me? What is the difference in calories? — J.

An odd quirk of taste buds — but not harmful, any more than what one side list the bowl when mother makes a cake. But these calories are contributing to your weight problem. Raw or cooked, the dough has the same calorie value.

Canada Gets Poor 'Image'

Hamilton Spectator

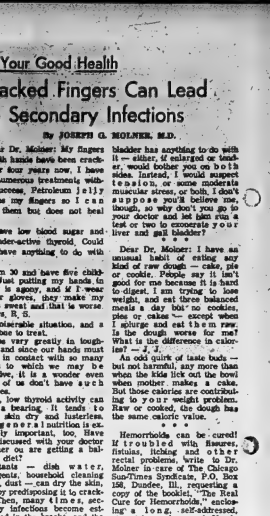
We were taken aback the other day by a Reuters dispatch from Moscow to the effect that Vasily Dmitriev, deputy mayor of Mednogorsk, described as a "Canadian-style" haircut. In Canada we call them "ducktail" cuts, but presto by Comrade Dmitriev called in all the barbers in town and told them that the style was immoral and contributed to juvenile delinquency. Our first victim of the new decree was the chief of the city's Young Pioneers club league, who popped himself down in a barber's chair, requested a "Canadian" haircut and was refused.

All this contributes to an image we Canadians do not deserve. All good citizens of this country are the hope of the crew cut is preferred by most of our male young people and that the "ducktail" is an import from the U.S., where so many things that originate elsewhere, it could be argued that our ambassador at the U.N., Mr. A.C. Smith, should deliver an official protest (no other kind will do) to the Kremlin. And he should have in his brief case a few cuts, the "object: History".

We know his own will be beyond reproach.

THE PACKSACK

—By GREGORY CLARK



Recently my son took me for a ride in his dinky little propeller boat, an old fashioned craft known affectionately as a DP. It goes about ten to twelve miles an hour, it is wide and comfortable, and when the rough water like a gull, its seats are low, and you sit back in them with an instinctively grand air, the feeling you have when you go for a ride in a horse-drawn carriage. The ladies say that riding in a DP makes them feel like the Queen Mother.

As we cuddled along, were passed by all and sundry in their launches, fast outboards and cruisers large and small.

We rode their swells with some thing like disdain, while they spotted, skidded, thumped and battered along in one another's wash.

"The sad thing," I remarked to my son, that is true of all transportation, whether by car or boat, leaves no time for anticipation. They say anticipation is greater than realization. But in this I disagree. In a leisurely boat, full of anticipation."

We rode in silence, we did not have to sit tense, with our eyes glued to the way ahead. We had not only time to look, but the inclination to observe the passing scene.

32 Persons Die In Romanian Train Wreck

LONDON (Reuters)—The Romanian government today disclosed 32 persons were killed and 54 injured when a passenger train crashed near Bucharest three days ago.

The Romanian news agency Agerpress quoted a transport ministry announcement which said the train was derailed Sunday as it took a curve at high speed while approaching the Bucharest marshalling yards.

"The accident was caused by the fact that the engine driver, Neulea N. Ion, exceeded the speed limit on a curve," the announcement said.

The train was travelling to the Communist capital from Faurei in Romanian Moldavia.

Department To Mediate Strike Talks

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario department of labor is expected to lend a sympathetic ear today to industry and the brewery workers union at a meeting called to mediate deadlocked contract talks.

Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer, called the meeting after the 1,000-member Toronto local of the International Union of Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink, and Distillery Workers of America (AFL-CIO) voted Sunday night to strike if necessary to obtain their demands.

Union officials said the members overwhelmingly favored strike action on the contract giving them 60 cents an hour more and a three-year contract with a guaranteed weekly wage of $75 for laid-off workers.

Negotiations ground to a halt last Saturday night and both sides in the dispute said they would not talk to each other.

The six-cent offer by industry would give workers 25 per cent more money by 1964 than they were earning in 1958, before a 41-day strike which produced a 26-cent-an-hour raise.

Ford Earnings At Record Level

OAKVILLE, Ont. — Strong public acceptance of its vehicles in the first six months of 1962 has resulted in the highest earnings for the period in the 58-year history of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited.

In its six-month report published today, Ford of Canada reports that sales by the company and its consolidated subsidiaries during the first half of 1962 were $359 million, an increase of 24 percent over sales of $290 million in the same period last year.

Consolidated net income, after taxes, for the period was $30.1 million, equal to $12.15 per share outstanding, an increase of 145 percent over earnings of $8.3 million, equal to $4.95 per share, in the same period last year.

The previous record first half-year earnings of $15.3 million after taxes occurred in 1959.

In Canada, Ford and Mercury dealers sold 76,937 new Canadian-built passenger cars and trucks in the first six months of 1962, a record for the period and an increase of 25.5 per cent over the same period last year.

Find Body Of Missing Man in Lake

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The body of one of two Ohio men missing on Buckhorn Lake, 25 miles north of here since Monday, was recovered today.

Police could not immediately confirm whether the body was that of Harold C. Masters, 45, or his son James, 21, both of Canton.

The pair had gone fishing at 11 p.m. in a 16-foot boat. Searchers Tuesday found the skiff with an 18-horse power motor drifting at the opposite end of the eight-mile lake from where they were last seen.

Mr. Masters and his son were members of a party of nine renting two cottages on the lake shore.

Seek Location For New University

ST CATHARINES (CP) — A site is being sought for a new university in the Niagara Peninsula, Arthur J. Schmon, chairman of the newly-created Niagara Peninsula University Organizing Committee, announced today.

A delegation has met with the advisory committee on university affairs at Queen's Park, Toronto, and other meetings have been arranged to seek advice from established colleges.

Mr. Schmon, president of the Ontario Paper Company Limited, said surveys of population growth in the area will conclusively that a seat of higher learning is mandatory in this area.

County populations, including the three Niagara Peninsula cities of St. Catharines, Welland and Niagara Falls, increased 45 per cent in the 10-year period between 1949 to 1959.

The compared with a national population increase of 27 per cent, Mr. Schmon said.

Another survey showed provincial university enrolment last year totalled 35,000 and is expected to triple in the next decade.

Death Penalty For Bribery

LONDON (Reuters) — A former head of department in the Soviet financial ministry, K. D. Degtyarev, has been sentenced to be shot for taking bribes, the Soviet news agency Tass said today.

The death penalty was introduced last year in the Soviet Union for bribery, currency speculation or misappropriation of state property. A few days ago the Soviet Supreme Court sentenced four textile industry officials from Kirghizia to be shot under the new law.

Today's announcement said the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation established that Degtyarev, taking advantage of his official position, repeatedly extorted and took bribes from people who came to him with justifiable requests for various payments and compensation.

In passing the death sentence, the court took into account Degtyarev's responsible official position and "the great danger of the crime he had committed," Tass said.

Yukon Council Antes $62,000 For Festival

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — The Yukon territorial council has approved a $62,000 grant to the Dawson City Gold Rush Festival.

The payments will be made to the festival foundation on a week-to-week basis, under scrutiny of the executive director, festival advisory committee, and will only cover the deficit of the share Fuzy.

The action was taken Tuesday during two sessions of talks. The council also decided to examine the operations of a cabaret being opened in the festival foundation on the beached riverboat Keno under special licence.

It has proved one of the most popular activities at the festival, so successful that operators of private cocktail lounges protested.

The cabaret hours were cut to three hours six nights a week from the present 10 hours. However, private operators suggested it be closed entirely or turned over to private enterprise.

Crown Appeals Sentence Given In Bribery Case

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario attorney - general's department announced Tuesday filed an application for leave to appeal against a two-year suspended sentence given former MP Raymond Brunesu for bribery.

Brunesu, 45, was found guilty June 28 of accepting $10,000 for use of his influence as a Liberal MP—for eastern Ontario's Glengarry - Prescott riding—in arranging government purchase of property six years ago.

Judge Frank Costello of Kitchener said at the trial that Brunesu was "driven to take this office" because he was in desperate need of money. It was an example of the inadequacy of the $10,000 a year received by members of Parliament, the judge said, and accordingly he was imposing only a two-year suspended sentence.

Maximum sentence on the charge is 14 years' imprisonment.

Engineers P.A.W. Airways Settle Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pan Airlines and Pan American World Airways and its flight engineers settled their labor dispute today on terms proposed by Labor Secretary Goldberg.

The agreement, announced by Goldberg following a six-hour negotiating session, calls for binding arbitration of economic issues and settlement of the jet aref being operated along the transcontinental route.

To a great extent, the Flight Engineers International Association will be getting what it wanted. When the airlines cut their jet crews to three men from four, currently employed engineers will have priority for the third spot.

Even as the negotiators were meeting, a new strike threat was posed by the Transport Workers Union against Pan American and Northeast Airlines.

Shoulders Focal Point In Fashions

PARIS (Reuters)—Nina Ricci gave the coming winter season one of the prettiest new looks yet seen in the current Paris fashion showings — a narrow-shouldered look, over - ripple waist yoke and bell - shaped skirts with gathers over the hip-line.

Ricci is the only house yet to retain a moderately short hem-line. Skirts are down one inch, striking neatly beneath the knee caps, but shorter than the mid- and top-calf lengths seen elsewhere.

Earlier Tuesday, Jean Patou established a happy compromise on the salient hemline question, with curved hems that dip in a rounded arc at front and back and scoop up at the side seams.

Shoulders are emerging as the focal point. They are square and broadened at Balmain, suggesting the cross b ard the le.ter T that symbolises Balmain's silhouette.

Patou rounds the shoulders with light padding while Ricci veies for the skinny-shouldered effect, bot disguises it under voluminous cowl collars, let circlet or Russian-peplum hoods cut in a deep triangular V-point dipping to the centre of the back.

The overall story is the slim and supple look, treated in long lean effects and minus every vestige of last season's frils and ruffles.

Cooper-Remington W.I. Tours County Home

On July 18th, 22 members of Cooper - Remington W.I. along with five visitors, sat down to a picnic dinner in the park in Belleville, beside the bay.

After dinner, a short business period was held during which it was decided to start corresponding with a Women's Institute branch in The Netherlands. A financial report was given by the treasurer, Mrs. Royce Whiteman. The program for the meeting was under the direction of the Historical Research committee with Mrs. Gordon Holmes as convener. A tour of some points of interest had been arranged through the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

The first place to be visited was the Hastings County Home where the members were met by Mrs. Kenneth Yorke who conducted a tour of the building. All were impressed with the clean, attractive, cheerful rooms and surroundings that are home to so many aged persons.

The next stop was at the County Buildings where Mr. Carl Bateman and Mr. Roscoe Robson showed the council chambers, court house and library, and gave much valuable information about each. This beautiful building is one of which the county may be proud.

The final visit was at the Belleville Museum. Slides of historical interest were shown and enjoyed. The beautiful collection of silver, pottery, furniture and paintings and all the many articles belonging to the past were admired and found to be most interesting.

This brought the July meeting to a close and it will be considered one of the highlights of the Institute year.
